Transfers to escape liability. 49. Any transfer of shares in a company made for the purpose of getting rid of the further liability of a shareholder, as such, for a nominal or no consideration, or to a person in the menial or domestic service of the transferor, shall be deemed to be a fraudulent transfer, and need not be recognized by the company, or by the Court on the winding-up of the company.

Effect of special resolution that portion of capital shall not be capable of being called up. 50. A company limited by shares may, by a special resolution, declare that any portion of its capital which has not been already called up shall not be capable of being called up, except in the event of and for the purpose of the company being wound up; and thereupon such portion of capital shall not be capable of being called up, except in the event of and for the purpose of the company being wound up.

Imp. § 59.

Return of dividend or bonus to shareholders in reduction of paid up capital. 51. When any company has accumulated a sum of undivided profits, which with the consent of the shareholders may be distributed among the shareholders in the form of a dividend or bonus, it shall be lawful for the company, by special resolution, to return the same or any part thereof to the shareholders in reduction of the paid up capital of the company, the unpaid capital being thereby increased by a similar amount. The powers vested in the directors of making calls upon the shareholders in respect to moneys unpaid upon their shares shall extend to the amount of the unpaid capital as augmented by such reduction.

Imp. § 40.

Memorandum to be first produced and registered. 52. No such special resolution aforesaid shall take effect until a memorandum, shewing the particulars required by law in the case of a reduction of capital by order of the Court, has been produced to and registered by the Registrar.

Imp. § 40.

Upon reduction of paid up capital, shareholders may require company to retain and invest money. 53. Upon any reduction of paid up capital made in pursuance of this Chapter, it shall be lawful for any shareholder, or for any one or more of several joint shareholders, within one month after the passing of the special resolution for such reduction, to require the company to retain, and the company shall retain accordingly, the whole of the moneys actually paid upon the shares held by such person, either alone or jointly with any other person or persons, and which, in consequence of such reduction, would otherwise be returned to him or them; and thereupon the shares in respect to which the said moneys are so retained shall, in regard to the payment of dividends thereon, be deemed to be paid up to the same extent only as the shares on which payment as aforesaid has been accepted by the shareholders in reduction of their paid up capital; and the company shall invest and keep invested the moneys so retained in such securities authorized for investment by trustees as the company determines, and upon the money so invested, or upon so much thereof as from time to time exceeds the amount of calls subsequently made upon the shares in respect to which such moneys have been retained, the company shall pay such interest as is received by them from time to time on such securities, and the amount so retained and invested shall be held to represent the future calls which may be made to replace the capital so reduced on those shares, whether the amount obtained on sale of the whole, or such portion thereof as represents the amount of any call when made, produces more or less than the amount of such call.

Imp. § 40.

Company shall specify in annual list of members amounts which shareholders have required company to retain. 54. From and after such reduction of capital, the company shall specify in the annual list of members, to be made by it as provided in this Chapter, the amounts which any of the shareholders of the company have required the company to retain, and the company has retained accordingly, in pursuance of the next preceding section of this Chapter, and the company shall also specify in the statements of account laid before any general meeting of the company the amount of the undivided profits of the company which have been returned to the shareholders in reduction of the paid up capital of the company under this Chapter.

Imp. § 40.

Register of members.

Register of members. Names and addresses. Date of entry. Date of ceasing to be a member. Penalty for acting in contravention. 55. Every company under this Chapter shall cause to be kept in one or more books a register of its members, and there shall be entered therein the following particulars: a) The names and addresses, and the occupations (if any), of the members of the company, with the addition, in the case of a company having a capital divided into shares, of a statement of the shares held by each member, distinguishing each share by its number, and of the amount paid or agreed to be considered as paid on the shares of each member; b) The date at which the name of any person was entered in the register as a member; c) The date at which any person ceased to be a member; and any company acting in contravention of this section shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars for every day during which its default in complying with the provisions of this section continues, and every director, manager, secretary, or other officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits such contravention shall, upon summary conviction, be liable to the like penalty.

Imp. § 25. Where the special legislative act provides that the persons therein named "and such other persons as shall become shareholders in the company hereby established and their successors shall be a body corporate for the purpose of etc.," a person who merely signed the subscription list, but attended none of the meetings of the company, and before organization of it wrote the secretary stating that he would refuse any calls made upon him, can not be regarded as a shareholder of the company when formed. — Halifax Street Carette Co. v. McManus, (1894), 27 N. S. 173; see also Halifax Street Carette Co. v. Lane, (1894), 27 N. S. 178. Where a promissory note was given to the promoters of a company after the passage of the act of incorporation, but before the organization of the company, covering the price of shares, and executed in favour of persons who proposed to act as trustees of the company and who subsequently endorsed the note to the company, it was held that the note was made without consideration, the payees having no authority to act for the company, and not being in a position to bind the company to give shares to the maker. — Halifax Street Carette Co. v. Downie, (1894), 27 N. S. 180. A mere signing of a subscription list in a proposed company without further acts evidencing an intent to accept or repudiate liability is not sufficient to make the person so signing liable as a shareholder. — Halifax Street Carette Co. v. Glassey, (1894), 27 N. S. 181; see also Halifax Street Carette Co. v. Moir, (1895), 28 N. S. 45. Where a company was formed for the purpose of carrying on building operations and acquiring the works of an existing company and the subscription list was signed by a number of persons for an amount something less than the paid up capital and a call on the stock was paid by about half of the subscribers, after which the project was abandoned, it was held that the stock subscriptions, being conditional upon an arrangement for the union of the two companies, and that project having fallen through, there was a failure of consideration, and the subscribers who paid the call were entitled to recover the amounts paid by them, and that payment of the call under the circumstances did not waive the condition. — In re Victor Wood Works, (1909), 43 N. S. 368. A provision in a charter of a company that it shall not commence operations until fifty per cent. of its capital stock is subscribed and twenty-five per cent. of such subscription paid up does not prevent calls being made on stock subscribed for, nor prevent the board of provisional directors from doing any acts for or in the name of the company within their power, so long as such acts fall short from what might properly be termed "commening operations." The words do not constitute a condition precedent to the creation of a body corporate, but act as a limitation upon the power of the corporation to commence operations until the prerequisite is complied with. — North Sydney Mining Co. v. Greener, (1898), 31 N. S. 41. An application made by the agent of a company to a person to subscribe for shares in the company, accepted by the offeree, makes the latter a shareholder, although no shares are formally allotted to him and no notice of allotment given. — Acadia Loan Corporation v. Wentworth, (1904), 40 N. S. 525. In negotiations for the transfer of shares a representation that the shares subscribed for are treasury stock is a material one and entitles the purchaser to repudiate the transaction if the representation is false. — Gould v. Gillies, (1908), 42 N. S. 28.

Register of members, where kept, open to inspection. Copy to be furnished.

Penalty. 58. [As amended by Acts, 1904, c. 23, § 3.] The register of members, commencing from the date of the registration of the company, shall be kept at the registered office of the company hereinafter mentioned. Except when closed as hereinafter mentioned, it shall, during business hours, but subject to such reasonable restrictions as the company in general meeting imposes (so that no less than two hours in each day is appointed for inspection,) be open to the inspection of any member gratis, and to the inspection of any other person on the payment of twenty-five cents, or such less sum as the company prescribes for each inspection; and every such member or other person may require a copy of such register, or of any part thereof, on payment of twenty-five cents for every hundred words required to be copied. If such inspection or copy is refused, the company shall, for each refusal, upon summary conviction, be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten dollars, and a further penalty not exceeding ten dollars for every day during which such refusal continues; and every director, manager, secretary, or other officer of the company who knowingly authorizes or permits such refusal shall, upon summary conviction, be liable to the like penalty; and in addition to the above penalty the Court may, by summary order, compel an immediate inspection of the register.

Closing of register. 59. Any company under this Chapter may, upon giving notice by advertisement in some newspaper circulating in the district in which the registered office of the company is situated, close the register of members for any time or times not exceeding in the whole thirty days in each year.

Imp. § 31.

Remedy for improper entry or omission in register. Power of Court to decide on question raised. 60. 1. If the name of any person is, without sufficient cause, entered in or omitted from the register of members of any company under this Chapter, or if default is made or unnecessary delay takes place in entering in the register the fact of any person having ceased to be a member of the company, the person or member aggrieved, or any member of the company, or the company itself, may apply for an order of the Court that the register may be rectified, and the Court may either refuse such application, with or without costs to be paid by the applicant, or it may, if satisfied of the justice of the case, make an order for the rectification of the register, and may direct the company to pay all the costs of such motion or application, and any damages the party aggrieved may have sustained. 2. The Court in any proceeding under this section may decide on any question relating to the title of any person who is a party to such proceeding to have his name entered in or omitted from the register, whether such question arises between two or more members or alleged members, or between any members or alleged members and the company, and generally the Court may in any such proceeding decide any question that it is necessary or expedient to decide for the rectification of the register. Provided that the Court or Judge may direct an issue to be tried in which any question of law may be raised, and an appeal shall lie.

Imp. § 32.

Notice to Registrar of rectification of register. 61. Whenever any order has been made rectifying the register, in the case of a company hereby required to send a list of its members to the Registrar, the Court shall by its order, direct that due notice of such rectification be given to the Registrar.

Imp. § 32.

Register to be evidence. 62. The register of members shall be prima facie evidence of any matters by this Chapter directed or authorized to be inserted therein.

Imp. § 33.

Where capital divided into shares has been converted into stock. 63. Where any company under this Chapter, and having a capital divided into shares, has converted any portion of its capital into stock, and given notice of such conversion to the Registrar, all the provisions of this Chapter which are applicable to shares only shall cease as to so much of the capital as is converted into stock; and the register of members hereby required to be kept by the company, and the list of members to be forwarded to the Registrar, shall show the amount of stock held by each member in the list, instead of the amount of shares and the particulars relating to shares hereinbefore required.

Imp. § 43.

Liability of members.

What liability share deemed to carry. 64. Every share in any company shall be deemed and taken to have been issued and to be held subject to the payment of the whole amount thereof in cash, unless the same has been otherwise determined by a contract duly made in writing and filed with the Registrar at or before the issue of such shares.

Executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee not personally subject to liability as shareholder. 65. No person holding stock in the company as executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee, of or for any person named in the books of the company as being so represented by him, shall be personally subject to any liability as a shareholder, but the estate and funds in his hands shall be liable in like manner and to the same extent as the testator, intestate, ward, or person interested in such fund would be if living and competent to hold the stock in his own name, and if the trust is for a living person, such person shall also, himself, be liable as a shareholder; but if such testator, intestate, ward, or person so represented is not so named in the books of the company, the executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee shall be personally liable in respect to such stock as if he held it in his own name as owner thereof.

Persons holding shares, etc., as collateral security, not subject to liability as shareholder. 66. No person holding shares, stock, or other interest as collateral security, shall be personally subject to liability as a shareholder; but the person pledging such shares, stock, or other interest as collateral security shall be considered as holding the same, and shall be liable as a shareholder in respect thereto.

R. S., 79, § 49.

Liability of shareholders, etc., in case of winding up. 67. In the event of a company formed under this Chapter being wound up, every present and past member of such company shall be liable to contribute to the assets of the company to an amount sufficient for payment of the debts and liabilities of the company, and the costs, charges, and expenses of the winding-up and for the payment of such sums as are required for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories amongst themselves, with the qualifications following, that is to say: 1. No past member shall be liable to contribute to the assets of the company if he has ceased to be a member for a period of one year or upwards prior to the commencement of the winding-up; 2. No past member shall be liable to contribute in respect to any debt or liability of the company contracted after the time at which he ceased to be a member; 3. No past member shall be liable to contribute to the assets of the company unless it appears to the Court that the existing members are unable to satisfy the contributions required to be made by them in pursuance of this Chapter; 4. In the case of a company limited by shares, no contribution shall be required from any member exceeding the amount, if any, unpaid on the shares in respect to which he is liable as a present or past member; 5. In the case of a company limited by guarantee no contribution shall be required from any member exceeding the amount of the undertaking entered into on his behalf by the memorandum of association; 6. Nothing in this Chapter contained shall invalidate any provision contained in any contract whereby the liability of individual members upon any such contract is restricted or whereby the funds of the company are alone made liable in respect to such contract; 7. No sum due to any member of a company in his character of a member by way of dividends, profits, or otherwise, shall be deemed to be a debt of the company, payable to such member in a case of competition between himself and any other creditor not being a member of the company; but any such sum may be taken into account for purpose of the final adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves.

Imp. § 123.

Adjustment of calls and dividends. 68. Nothing contained in this Chapter shall be deemed to prevent any company incorporated under this Chapter, if authorized by its regulations as originally framed, or as altered by special resolution, from doing any one or more of the following things, namely: 1. Making arrangement on the issue of shares for a difference between the holders of such shares in the amount of calls to be paid, and in the time of payment of such calls. 2. Accepting from any member of the company who assents thereto the whole or a part of the amount remaining unpaid on any share or shares held by him, either in discharge of the amount of a call payable in respect to any other share or shares held by him, or without any call having been made. 3. Paying dividend in proportion to the amount paid up on each share in cases where a larger amount is paid up on some shares than on others.

Imp. § 39.

No dividend to be declared impairing capital. Liability of directors in such cases.

69. 1. No dividend shall be declared which will impair the capital of the company. 2. If the directors of the company declare and pay any dividend when the company is insolvent, or any dividend the payment of which renders the company insolvent, or diminishes the capital stock thereof, they shall be jointly and severally liable, as well to the company as to the individual shareholders and creditors thereof, for all the debts of the company then existing, and for all thereafter contracted during their continuance in office, respectively; but if any director present when such dividend is declared does forthwith, or if any director then absent does within twenty-four hours after he becomes aware thereof and able so to do, enter on the minutes of the board of directors his protest against the same, and within eight days thereafter publishes such protest in at least one newspaper published at the place in which the head office or chief place of business of the company is situated, or if there is no newspaper there published, then in a newspaper published in the city of Halifax, such director may thereby and not otherwise exonerate himself from such liability.

R. S., c. 79, § 60. In order to succeed in an action for deceit against a director of a company on the ground of a false representation involved in the declaration of a dividend which the profits of the company did not warrant it is necessary to show: first, that the declaration of the dividend was false and dishonest and not merely erroneous; secondly, that it was made with the intent that it should be acted upon by such persons as the plaintiff; and thirdly, that the plaintiff was materially induced by it to become a shareholder. — Doyle v. Smith, (1897), 40 N. S. 157.

Preference shares.

Preference shares. 70. 1. The directors of any company registered under this Chapter may, with the sanction of a special resolution of the company previously given in general meeting, create and issue any part of the capital as preference shares, giving the same such preference and priority as respect dividends and otherwise over ordinary shares as is declared by the special resolution. 2. The special resolution may provide that the holders of such preference shares shall have the right to select a certain stated proportion of the board of directors, or may give them such other control over the affairs of the company as is considered expedient. 3. Holders of such preference shares shall be shareholders within the meaning of this Chapter, and shall in all respects possess the rights and be subject to the liabilities of shareholders within the meaning of this Chapter. Provided however, that in respect to dividends and otherwise, they shall as against the original or ordinary shareholders be entitled to the preference given by any special resolution as aforesaid. 4. Nothing in this section shall affect or impair the rights of creditors of any company.

Part III. Management and Administration.

Registered office.

Registered office of company. 71. Every company under this Chapter shall have a registered office within the Province, to which all communications and notices may be addressed. If any company under this Chapter carries on business without having such an office, it shall, upon conviction, be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars for every day during which business is carried on.

Imp. § 62,

Notice of situation. 72. Notice of the situation of such registered office, and of change therein, shall be given to the Registrar, and recorded by him. Until such notice is given, the company shall not be deemed to have complied with the provisions of this Chapter with respect to having a registered office.

Imp. § 62.

Provisions for the protection of creditors.

Publication of name by a limited company. 73. Every limited company under this Chapter, whether limited by shares or by guarantee, shall paint or affix, and shall keep painted or affixed, its name, with the word "limited," or some contraction thereof, as the last word thereof, on the outside of every office or place in which the business of the company is carried on, in a conspicuous position, in letters easily legible, and shall have its name engraved in legible characters on its seal, and shall have its name mentioned in legible characters in all notices, advertisements, and other official publications of such company, and in all bills of exchange, promissory notes, indorsements, cheques, and orders for money or goods purporting to be signed by or on behalf of such company, and in all bills of parcels, invoices, receipts, and letters of credit of the company.

Imp. § 63.

Penalties for non-publication of name. 74. If any limited company under this Chapter does not paint or affix, and keep painted or affixed, its name in manner directed by this Chapter, it shall, upon summary conviction, be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars for not so painting or affixing its name, and for every day during which such name is not so kept painted or affixed; and every director or manager of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits such default shall, upon summary conviction, be liable to the like penalty; and if any director, manager, secretary, or other officer of such company, or any person on its behalf, uses or authorizes the use of any seal purporting to be a seal of the company whereon its name is not so engraved as aforesaid, or issues or authorizes the issue of any notes, advertisement or other official publication of such company, or signs or authorizes to be signed on behalf of such company, any bill of exchange, promissory note, indorsement, cheque, order for money or goods, or issues or authorizes to be issued any bill of parcels, invoice, receipt, or letter of credit of the company, wherein its name is not mentioned in manner aforesaid, he shall, upon summary conviction, be liable to a penalty of two hundred and fifty dollars, and shall further be personally liable to the holder of any such bill of exchange, promissory note, cheque, order for money or goods for the amount thereof, unless the same is duly paid by the company.

Imp. § 63.

Register of directors, etc. 75. Every company under this Chapter shall keep at its registered office a register containing the names and addresses and the occupations of its directors or managers, and shall send to the Registrar a copy of such register, and shall from time to time notify the Registrar of any change that takes place in such directors or managers.

Imp. § 75. The manager of a mine ordered material for the construction of a boarding house for the accommodation of men employed in connection with the mine. It was held (per Ritchie & Meagher, J.J.) that, the erection of the boarding house appearing to be necessary for the efficient operation of the mine, the manager had authority to bind the company; (per Graham, E. J. and Henry, J.) that the burden was on the plaintiff to show authority on the part of the manager to pledge the credit of the company. — Miller v. Cochran Hill Gold Mining Co., (1896), 29 N. S. 304. The secretary of a company whose authority was limited to the acceptance of drafts has no power to bind the company by an endorsement made for the accommodation of a third party. Semble, a company would be bound to a holder in due course of such accommodation paper. — Union Bank v. Eureka Woolen Mfg. Co., (1900), 33 N. S. 302. Where an officer of a company is bound under the terms of his employment to render certain services without additional compensation, a payment by the directors of additional compensation is, in the absence of evidence of ratification by the shareholders, recoverable by the company. — Rountree v. Sydney Land & Loan Co., (1907), 39 S. C. C. 614; affirming Sydney Land & Loan Co. v. Rountree, (1906), 42 N. S. 49. The statements of the president of a bank, not being res gestae, nor within the scope of his authority, are not evidence against the bank. — Black v. Bank of Nova Scotia, (1889), 21 N. S. 448. The president of a company has no greater powers to bind the company than any other director. — Almon v. Law, (1894), 26 N. S. 340. Provisional directors of a company do not have power to bind the company subsequently formed in a contract for the services of an employ. — O'Dell v. Boston & Nova Scotia Coal Co., (1897), 29 N. S. 385.

Penalty on company not keeping such register. 76. If any company under this Chapter makes default in keeping a register of its directors or managers, or in sending a copy of such register to the Registrar in compliance with the foregoing rules, or in notifying to the Registrar any change that takes place in such directors or manager, such company shall, upon summary conviction, be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars for every day during which such default continues, and every director, manager, secretary, or other officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits such default shall, upon summary conviction, be liable to the like penalty.

Imp. § 75.

Prohibition of carrying on business with less than three members. 77. If any company under this Chapter carries on business when the number of its members is less than three for a period of six months after the number has been so reduced, every person who is a member of such company during the time that it so carries on business after such period of six months, and is cognizant of the fact that it is so carrying on business with fewer than three members, shall be severally liable for the payment of the whole debts of the company contracted during such time, and may be sued for the same, without the joinder in the action or suit of any other member.

Imp. § 115.

Legal proceedings.

Corporate name and proof of memorandum, etc., in actions and proceedings.

78. In an action or other proceeding it shall not be requisite to set forth the mode of incorporation of the company otherwise than by mention of it under its corporate name, as registered under this Chapter, and the memorandum and articles of association of the company, or any exemplification or copy thereof certified under the hand and seal of the Registrar, shall be presumptive evidence of every matter and thing therein set forth.

R. S., c. 79, § 71.

Proof of resolutions, etc. 79. A copy of any resolution or special resolution of the company under its seal, and purporting to be signed by any officer of the company, or as to any special resolution filed with the Registrar a copy certified under his hand and seal, shall be received as prima facie evidence of such resolution or special resolution in any Court in the Province.

R. S., c. 79, § 33.

Service on company of notices, etc. 80. Any summons, notice, order, or other document required to be served upon the company may be served by leaving the same, or sending it through the post in a prepaid letter addressed to the company at their registered office.

Imp. § 117.

Service of documents, etc., by post. 81. Any document to be served by post on the company shall be posted in such time as to admit of its being delivered in the due course of delivery within the period, if any, prescribed for the service thereof: and in proving service of such document it shall be sufficient to prove that such document was properly directed, and that it was put as a prepaid letter into the post office.

Authentication of summons, etc., by company. 82. Any summons, notice, order, or proceeding requiring authentication by the company may be signed by any director, secretary, or other authorized officer of the company, and need not be under the common seal of the company, and the same may be in writing or in print, or partly in writing and partly in print.

Imp. § 117.

Minutes of resolutions and proceedings of general meetings and of directors and managers, how proved. 83. Every company under this Chapter shall cause minutes of all resolutions and proceedings of general meetings of the company, and of the directors or managers of the company in cases where there are directors or managers, to be duly entered in books to be from time to time provided for the purpose: and any such minute as aforesaid, if purporting to be signed by the chairman of the meeting at which such resolutions were passed or proceedings had, or by the chairman of the next succeeding meeting, shall be received as evidence in all legal proceedings; and until the contrary is proved, every general meeting of the company or meeting of directors or managers in respect of the proceedings of which minutes have been so made, shall be deemed to have been duly held and convened, and all resolutions passed thereat or proceedings had, to have been duly passed and had, and all appointments of directors, managers, and liquidators shall be deemed to be valid, and all acts done by such directors, managers, or liquidators shall be valid, notwithstanding any defect that is afterwards discovered in their appointments or qualifications.

Imp. §§ 71, 74.

In case assets of company deemed insufficient security for costs may be ordered.

84. Where a company under this Chapter is plaintiff in any action or other legal proceeding, any Judge having jurisdiction in the matter may, if it appears by any credible testimony that there is reason to believe that if the defendant is successful in his defence the assets of the company will be insufficient to pay his costs, require sufficient security to be given for such costs, and may stay all proceedings until such security is given.

Imp. § 278.

In actions for recovery of calls or for money due from member of company, what allegation sufficient. 85. In any action or suit brought by a company under this Chapter against any member to recover any call or other moneys due from such member in his character of member, it shall not be necessary to set forth the special matter, but it shall be sufficient to allege that the defendant is a member of the company and is indebted to the company in respect to a call made or other moneys due whereby an action or suit has accrued to the company.

Reference to arbitration. 86. Any company under this Chapter may, from time to time, by writing under its common seal, agree to refer and may refer to arbitration in accordance with The Arbitration Act, any existing or future difference, question or other matter whatsoever in dispute between itself and any other company or person; and any company party to the arbitration may delegate to the person or persons to whom the reference is made power to settle any terms or to determine any matter capable of being lawfully settled or determined by the companies themselves, or by the directors or other managing body of such companies.

Imp. § 119.

Arbitration Act to apply. 87. All the provisions of The Arbitration Act shall be deemed to apply to arbitrations between any company and any person or between one company and another.

Imp. § 119.

Contracts, borrowing powers, etc.

Contracts, borrowing powers, etc. 88. Contracts on behalf of any company incorporated under this Chapter may be made as follows, that is to say: 1. Any contract which, if made between private persons, would be by law required to be in writing, and if made according to the law of this Province, or of the Dominion of Canada, to be made under seal, may be made on behalf of the company, in writing, under the common seal of the company, and such contract may be in the same manner varied or discharged. 2. Any contract which, if made between private persons, would be by law required to be in writing, and signed by the parties to be charged therewith, may be made on behalf of the company in writing, signed by any person acting under the express or implied authority of the company, and such contract may in the same manner be varied or discharged. 3. Any contract which, if made between private persons, would by law be valid although made by parol only, and not reduced into writing, may be made by parol on behalf of the company by any person acting under the express or implied authority of the company, and such contract may in the same way be varied or discharged. And all contracts made according to the provisions herein contained shall be effectual in law, and shall be binding upon the company and their successors, and all other parties thereto, their heirs, executors, or administrators, as the case may be.

Imp. § 76.

Power to mortgage, issue of debentures, etc. 89. 1. Every company under this Chapter shall have power, subject to the conditions of and in addition to all other powers conferred by this Chapter, to borrow money for the purpose of carrying out the objects of its incorporation, and to execute mortgages of its real and personal property, to issue debentures secured by mortgage or otherwise, to sign bills, notes, contracts, and other evidences of or securities for money borrowed or to be borrowed by it for the purpose aforesaid, and to pledge debentures as security for temporary loans. 2. [As amended by Acts, 1903, c. 18, § 3.] The power to execute mortgages of its real and personal property, and the power to issue debentures secured by mortgage or otherwise, shall not be exercised except with the sanction of a special resolution of the company previously given in general meeting.

Imp §§ 93—103. The directors of a company have power to mortgage the property of the company to discharge obligations for which the shareholders are liable. The power to borrow money implies the power to mortgage. — In re Nash Brick & Pottery Mfg. Co. (1873), 9 N. S. 254.

Power of attorney to execute deeds, etc. 90. Any company under this Chapter may, by instrument in writing under its common seal, empower any person either generally or in respect to any specified matter, as its attorney, to execute deeds on its behalf, in any place situated within (or without) the limits of this Province; and every deed signed by such attorney on behalf of the company, and under his seal, shall be binding on the company, and have the same effect as if it were under the common seal of the company.

Meetings and resolutions.

First general meeting, when held. 91. Every company formed under this Chapter shall hold a general meeting within four months after its memorandum of association is registered; and if such meeting is not held the company shall upon summary conviction be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars a day for every day after the expiration of such four months until the meeting is held; and every director, manager, secretary, or other officer of the company, and every subscriber of the memorandum of association, who knowingly authorizes or permits such default shall, upon summary conviction, be liable to the like penalty.

Imp. § 65.

General meeting to be held once in each year. 92. A general meeting of every company under this Chapter shall be held once at the least in every year.

Imp. § 64.

Special resolutions. Declaration of chairman. Notice of meeting. 93 1. A resolution passed by a company under this Chapter shall be deemed to be special whenever a resolution has been passed by a majority of not less than three-fourths of such members of the company for the time being entitled, according to the regulations of the company, to vote as are present, in person or by proxy (in cases where by the regulations of the company proxies are allowed), at any general meeting of which notice specifying the intention to propose such resolution has been duly given, and such resolution has been confirmed by a majority of such members for the time being, entitled, according to the regulations of the company, to vote as are present in person or by proxy, at a subsequent general meeting, of which notice has been duly given, and held at an interval of not less than fourteen days nor more than one month from the date of the meeting at which such resolution was first passed. 2. At any meeting mentioned in this section, unless a poll is demanded by at least five members, a declaration of the chairman that the resolution has been carried shall be deemed conclusive evidence of the fact, without proof of the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour of or against the same. 3. Notice of any meeting shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to be duly given and the meeting to be duly held whenever such notice is given and the meeting held as prescribed by the regulations of the company. 4. In computing the majority under this section, when a poll is demanded, reference shall be had to the number of votes to which each member is entitled by the regulations of the company. 5. [Added by Acts, 1903, c. 19, § 1]. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained a special resolution may be passed at any general meeting of the company upon a unanimous vote of all the shares of the company.

Imp. § 69.

Mode of voting. General meeting, how summoned. 94. In default of any regulations as to voting, every member shall have one vote; and in default of any regulations as to summoning general meetings, a meeting shall be held to be duly summoned of which seven days' notice in writing has been served on every member in manner in which notices are required to be served by the table marked A in the first Schedule hereto; and in default of any regulations as to the persons to summon meetings, five members shall be competent to summon the same; and in default of any regulations as to who is to be chairman of such meeting, it shall be competent for any person elected by the members present to preside.

Imp. § 67.

Copy of special resolution to be forwarded to Registrar and registered. Penalty in case of default. 95. A copy of any special resolution that is passed by any company under this Chapter shall be printed and forwarded to the Registrar, and recorded by him. If such copy is not so forwarded within fifteen days from the date of the confirmation of the resolution the company shall, upon summary conviction, be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten dollars for every day after the expiration of such fifteen days during which such copy is omitted to be forwarded; and every director, manager, secretary, or other officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits such default shall, upon summary conviction, be liable to the like penalty.

Imp. § 70.

Special resolution to be embodied in articles of association. 96. When articles of association have been registered, a copy of every special resolution for the time being in force shall be annexed to or embodied in every copy of the articles of association that is issued after the passing of such resolution. Where no articles of association have been registered a copy of any special resolution shall be forwarded in print to any member requesting the same, on payment of twenty-five cents, or such less sum as the company directs; and if any company makes default in complying with the provisions of this section it shall, upon summary conviction, be liable to a penalty not exceeding five dollars for each copy in respect to which such default is made; and every director, manager, secretary, or other officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits such default shall, upon summary conviction, be liable to the like penalty.

Imp. § 70.

Inspectors.

Governor-in-Council may appoint inspectors on application made. 97. The Governor-in-Council may appoint one or more competent inspectors to examine into the affairs of any company under this Chapter, and to report thereon, in such manner as the Governor-in-Council directs, upon the applications following, that is to say: 1. In the case of any company that has a capital divided into shares, upon the application of members holding not less than one-fifth part of the whole shares of the company for the time being issued; 2. In the case of any company not having a capital divided into shares, upon the application of members being in number not less than one-fifth of the whole number of persons for the time being entered on the register of the company as members.

Imp. § 109.

On what application to be based. 98. The application shall be supported by such evidence as the Governor-in-Council requires for the purpose of showing that the applicants have good reason for requiring such investigation to be made, and that they are not actuated by malicious motives in instituting the same. The Governor-in-Council may also require the applicants to give security for payment of the costs of the inquiry before appointing any inspector or inspectors.

Imp. § 109.

Officers and agents to produce books, etc., for inspection. 99. It shall be the duty of all officers and agents of the company to produce for the examination of the inspectors all books and documents in their custody or power. Any inspector may examine upon oath the officers and agents of the company in relation to its business, and may administer such oath accordingly. If any officer or agent refuses to produce any book or document hereby directed to be produced, or to answer any question relating to the affairs of the company, he shall, upon summary conviction, be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars in respect to each offence.

Imp. § 109.

Report. Expenses. 100. Upon the conclusion of the examination the inspectors shall report their opinion to the Governor-in-Council. A copy shall be forwarded by the Provincial Secretary to the registered office of the company, and a further copy shall, at the request of the members upon whose application the inspection was made, be delivered to them, or to any one or more of them. All expenses of and incidental to any such examination as aforesaid shall be defrayed by the members upon whose application the inspectors were appointed, unless the Governor-in-Council directs the same to be paid out of the assets of the company, which he is hereby authorized to do.

Imp. § 109.

Inspectors may be appointed by special resolution. 101. Any company under this Chapter may by special resolution appoint inspectors for the purpose of examining into the affairs of the company. The inspectors so appointed shall have the same powers and perform the same duties as inspectors appointed by the Governor-in-Council, with this exception, that instead of making their report to the Governor-in-Council they shall make the same in such manner and to such persons as the company in general meeting directs; and the officers and agents of the company shall incur the same penalties in case of any refusal to produce any book or document hereby required to be produced to such inspectors, or to answer any question, as they would have incurred if such inspector had been appointed by the Governor-in-Council.

Imp. § 110.

Proof or admissibility of report in legal proceedings. 102. A copy of the report of any inspectors appointed under this Chapter, authenticated by the seal of the company into whose affairs they have made inspection, shall be admissible in any legal proceeding as evidence of the opinion of the inspectors in relation to any matter contained in such report.

Imp. § 111.

Company ceasing to carry on business.

Proceeding in case of company ceasing to carry on business. 103. 1. Where the Registrar has reasonable cause to believe that a company is not carrying on business or in operation, he shall send to the company by post a letter inquiring whether the company is carrying on business or in operation. 2. If the Registrar does not, within one month of sending the letter, receive any answer thereto, he shall, within fourteen days after the expiration of the month, send to the company by post a registered letter referring to the first letter, and stating that no answer thereto has been received by the Registrar, and that, if an answer is not received to the second letter within one month from the date thereof, a notice will be published in the Royal Gazette with a view to striking the name of the company off the register. 3. If the Registrar either receives an answer from the company to the effect that it is not carrying on business or in operation, or does not within one month after sending the second letter receive an answer thereto, the Registrar may publish in the Royal Gazette and send to the company a notice that at the expiration of three months from the date of that notice the name of the company mentioned therein will, unless cause is shown to the contrary, be struck off the register, and the company will be dissolved. 4. At the expiration of the time mentioned in the notice the Registrar may, unless cause to the contrary is previously shown by such company, strike the name of such company off the register, and shall publish notice thereof in the Royal Gazette, and on the publication in the Royal Gazette of such last mentioned notice the company whose name is so struck off shall be dissolved; provided, that the liability (if any) of every director, managing officer, and member of the company shall continue and may be enforced as if the company had not been dissolved. 5. If any company or member thereof feels aggrieved by the name of such company having been struck off the register in pursuance of this section the company or member may apply to the Court, and the Court, if satisfied that the company was at the time of the striking off carrying on business or in operation, and that it is just so to do, may order the name of the company to be restored to the register, and thereupon the company shall be deemed to have continued in existence as if the name thereof had never been struck off; and the Court may by the order give such directions and make such provisions as seem just for placing the company and all persons in the same position as nearly as may be as if the name of the company had never been struck off. 6. A letter or notice authorized or required for the purposes of this section to be sent to a company may be sent by post addressed to the company at its registered office, or if no office has been registered, addressed to the care of some director or officer of the company, or if there is no director or officer of the company whose name and address are known to the Registrar the letter or notice (in identical form) may be sent to each of the persons who subscribed the memorandum of association, addressed to him at the address mentioned in that memorandum.

Imp. § 242.

Forms.

Forms. Power of Governor-in-Council to make alterations. Alteration, how published. Proviso. 104. The forms set forth in the second Schedule hereto, or forms as near thereto as circumstances admit, shall be used in all matters to which such forms refer. The Governor-in-Council may from time to time make such alterations in the table and forms contained in the first Schedule hereto, and in the forms in the second Schedule, or make such additions to the last mentioned forms, as are requisite. Any such table or form when altered shall be published in the Royal Gazette, and upon such publication being made such table or form shall have the same force as if it was included in the Schedule to this Chapter; but no alteration made by the Governor-in-Council in the table marked A, contained in the first Schedule, shall affect any company registered prior to the date of such alteration, or shall repeal, as respects such company, any portion of such table.

Imp. § 118.

Part IV. Prospectus. Liability of Directors and Promoters.

Prospectus.

Prospectus. Specific requirements as to particulars in prospectus. 105. Every prospectus of the company, and every notice inviting persons to subscribe for shares in the company, shall specify the dates and the names of the persons to any contract entered into by the company or the promoters, directors, or trustees thereof, before the issue of such prospectus or notice, whether subject to adoption by the directors or the company, or otherwise; and every prospectus or notice which does not specify the same shall, with respect to any person who takes shares in the company on the faith of such prospectus or notice, and who has not had notice of such contract, be deemed fraudulent on the part of the promoters, directors, and officers of the company who knowingly issue such prospectus or notice.

Imp. §§ 80—84. A statement in a prospectus that a "reserve fund existed" does not necessarily mean a reserve fund which has been invested, the important thing is the reserving of the amount out of property available for distribution in dividends and appropriating it in the books of the company to meet contingencies. A representation as to the proportion of profits earned in payment of dividends does not mean "paid." It is sufficient if the sum mentioned was appropriated or devoted to a particular purpose, although not payable until later. — Kennedy v. Acadia Pulp & Paper Mills Co., (1905), 38 N. S. 291.

Liability of directors for loss or damages sustained by subscribers by reason of untrue statements in prospectus. Provisos. Promoter, definition of. Expert, definition of. Cases where director not liable. 106. 1. Where a prospectus or notice invites persons to subscribe for shares in or debentures or debenture stock of a company, every person who is a director of the company at the time of the issue of the prospectus or notice, and every person who having authorized such naming of him, is named in the prospectus or notice as a director of the company, either immediately or after an interval of time, and every promoter of the company, and every person who has authorized the issue of the prospectus or notice, shall be liable to pay compensation to all persons who subscribe for any shares, debentures, or debenture stock on the faith of such prospectus or notice for the loss or damage they have sustained by reason of any untrue statement in the prospectus or notice, or in any report or memorandum appearing on the face thereof, or by reference incorporated therein or issued therewith, unless it is proved: a) With respect to every such untrue statement, not purporting to be made on the authority of an expert, or of a public official document or statement, that he had reasonable ground to believe and did up to the time of the allotment of the shares, debentures, or debenture stock, as the case may be, believe that the statement was true; and b) With respect to every such untrue statement purporting to be a statement by or contained in what purports to be a copy or extract from a report or valuation of an engineer, valuer, accountant, or other expert, that it fairly represented the statement made by such engineer, valuer, accountant, or other expert, or was a correct and fair copy of or extract from the report or valuation: Provided always, that, notwithstanding that such untrue statement fairly represented the statement made by such engineer, valuer, accountant, or other expert, or was a correct and fair copy of an extract from the report or valuation, such director, person named, promoter, or other person who authorized the issue of the prospectus or notice as aforesaid, shall be liable to pay compensation as aforesaid, if it is proved that he had no reasonable ground to believe that the person making the statement, report, or valuation was competent to make it; and c) With respect to every such untrue statement purporting to be a statement made by an official person, or contained in what purports to be a copy of or extract from a public official document, that it was a correct and fair representation of such statement, or a copy of or extract from such document. Or unless it is proved that having consented to become a director of the company he withdrew his consent before the issue of the prospectus or notice, and that the prospectus or notice was issued without his authority or consent, and that on becoming aware of its issue he forthwith gave reasonable public notice that it was so issued without his knowledge or consent, or that after the issue of such prospectus or notice and before allotment thereunder he, on becoming aware of any untrue statement therein, withdrew his consent thereto, and caused reasonable public notice of such withdrawal and of the reason therefor to be given. 2. A promoter in this section and the next preceding section means a promoter who was a party to the preparation of the prospectus or notice, or of the portion thereof containing such untrue statement, but does not include any person by reason of his acting in a professional capacity for persons engaged in procuring the formation of a company. 3. In this section the word "expert" includes any person whose profession gives authority to a statement made by him. 4. Where any company existing at the passing of this Chapter, which has issued shares or debentures, is desirous of obtaining further capital by subscriptions for shares or debentures, and for that purpose issues a prospectus or notice, no director of such company shall be liable in respect to any statement therein, unless he has authorized the issue of such prospectus or notice, or has adopted or ratified the same.

Imp. §§ 80—84.

Liability of directors and others to indemnify person named as director in a prospectus who has refused or withdrawn consent. 107. When any such prospectus or notice as aforesaid contains the name of a person as a director of the company, or as having agreed to become a director thereof, and such person has not consented to become a director, or has withdrawn his consent before the issue of such prospectus or notice, or has not authorized or consented to the issue thereof, the directors of the company, except any without whose knowledge or consent the prospectus or notice was issued, and any other person who authorized the issue of such prospectus or notice, shall be liable to indemnify the person named as director of the company, or as having agreed to become a director thereof as aforesaid, against all damages, costs, charges, and expenses to which he is made liable by reason of his name having been inserted in the prospectus or notice, or in defending himself against any action or legal proceedings brought against him in respect thereto.

Imp. §§ 80—84.

Director or person named as director entitled to recover contribution in certain cases. 108. Every person, who by reason of his being a director or named as a director, or as having agreed to become a director, or, of his having authorized the issue of the prospectus or notice, has become liable to make any payment under the provisions of this Chapter, shall be entitled to recover contribution, as in case of contract, from any other person, who if sued separately would have been liable to make the same payment.

Imp. §§ 80—84.

Part V. Application of Chapter to Existing Companies.

Application of Chapter to existing companies. 109. Any joint stock company at any time before the thirtieth day of March, A. D., 1900, incorporated by a special Act of the legislature of Nova Scotia, or by letters patent issued under the provisions of The Nova Scotia Joint Stock Companies' Act, being Chapter 79 of the Revised Statutes, fifth series, may apply by petition to the Governor-in-Council for a certificate of incorporation as a company limited by shares under this Chapter.

Resolution to be passed before presenting petition. 110. Before such petition is presented a resolution authorizing the same shall be passed at a meeting regularly called for such purpose by a majority of not less than three-fourths of the members of the company present in person or by proxy in cases in which proxies are allowed by the regulations and by-laws of the company.

Prayer may embody in petition that Governor-in-Council will by such certificate extend powers of company. Increase of capital stock, etc. Further powers. 111. Such resolution may also authorize the embodying in the petition of a prayer that the Governor-in-Council will by such certificate: a) Extend the powers of the company, and the purposes for which the same is incorporated; or b) Increase the capital stock of the company; or c) Make provision for any other matter or thing in respect to which provision might be made on an original application for incorporation under this Chapter.

Documents to accompany petition. Copy of statute, letters patent, etc. Nominal capital, etc. Names of members, etc. Amount of bonds. 112. Such petition shall be accompanied by the following documents, verified by a statutory declaration by the president, secretary, or other officer of the company: 1. A copy of the statute, or letters patent, or other instrument under which the company is incorporated; 2. A statement showing the nominal capital of the company, the number of shares into which it is divided, the number of shares taken, and the amount paid on each share; 3. A list showing the names, addresses, and occupations of all persons who on a day named in such list, and not being more than six clear days before the date of application, were members of the company, with the addition of the shares held by such persons respectively, distinguishing in cases in which shares are numbered each share by its number; 4. The amount of any bonds or debentures issued by the company, the number of such bonds or debentures, and the amount of each one of the same.

Issue of certificate by Registrar. 113. Upon receipt of such petition and other documents the Governor-in-Council may direct the Registrar to issue to the company a certificate of incorporation under this Chapter, stating the purposes for which the company is incorporated and the amount of capital of the company divided into shares of a certain amount, and thereupon such company shall be incorporated in like manner as if application for the incorporation thereof had been made under this Chapter, and the company shall be registered as a company under this Chapter.

Effect of certificate of incorporation. 114. A certificate of incorporation given at any time to any company registered in pursuance of this part of this Chapter shall be conclusive evidence that all the requisitions herein contained in respect to registration under this Chapter have been complied with, and that the company is authorized to be registered under this Chapter as a limited company, and the date of incorporation mentioned in such certificate shall be deemed to be the date at which the company is incorporated under this Chapter.

All property, real and personal, to pass or vest. 115. All such property, real and personal, including all interests and rights in, to, and out of property, real and personal, and including obligations and things in action as belong to or are vested in the company at the date of its registration under this Chapter, shall on registration pass to and vest in the company as incorporated under this Chapter for all the estate and interest of the company therein.

Existing rights, etc., not affected. 116. The registration in pursuance of this part of this Chapter of any company shall not affect or prejudice the liability of such company to have enforced against it, or its right to enforce, any debt or obligation incurred or any contract entered into by, to, with, or on behalf of such company previously to such registration.

Actions, etc., to be continued. 117. All such actions, suits, and other legal proceedings as at the time of the registration of any company registered in pursuance of this part of this Chapter have been commenced by or against such company or any member thereof, may be continued in the same manner as if such registration had not taken place; nevertheless, execution shall not issue against the effects of an individual member of such company upon any judgment, decree, or order obtained in any action, suit, or proceeding so commenced as aforesaid; but in the event of the property and effects of the company being insufficient to satisfy such judgment, decree, or order, an order may be obtained for winding up the company.

Provisions contained in statute deemed conditions of company. Provisos. Table A shall not apply, unless adopted by resolution. Numbering of shares. Not to alter statute, etc. Not to alter provisions in letters patent. Provision in case of company being wound up. Further provisions respecting alteration of statute, etc. 118. When an existing company is registered under this Chapter in pursuance of this part thereof, except as is otherwise provided by the certificate of incorporation, all provisions contained in any statute, letters patent, or other instrument constituting or regulating the company, shall be deemed to be conditions and regulations of the company in the same manner and with the same incidents as if they were contained in a registered memorandum of association and articles of association; and all the provisions of this Chapter shall apply to such company and the members, con-tributories and creditors thereof in the same manner and in all respects as if it had been formed under this Chapter, subject to the provisions following, that is to say: 1. That table A in the first Schedule to this Chapter shall not, unless adopted by special resolution, apply to any company registered under this Chapter in pursuance of this part thereof; 2. That the provisions of this Chapter relating to the numbering of shares shall not apply to any joint stock company whose shares are not numbered; 3. That no company shall have power to alter any provision contained in any statute relating to the company; 4. That no company shall have power, without the sanction of the Governor-in-Council, to alter any provision contained in any letters patent relating to the company; 5. That in the event of the company being wound up, every person shall be a contributory in respect to the debts and liabilities of the company contracted prior to registration, who is liable at law or in equity to pay or contribute to the payment of any debt or liability of the company contracted prior to registration, or to pay or contribute to the payment of any sum for the adjustment of the rights of the members amongst themselves in respect to any such debt or liability, or to pay or contribute to the payment of the costs, charges, and expenses of winding up the company so far as relates to such debts or liabilities as aforesaid, and every such contributory shall be liable to contribute to the assets of the company in the course of the winding-up all sums due from him in respect to any such liability as aforesaid, and in the event of the death or insolvency of any such contributory as last aforesaid, or marriage of any such contributory being a female, the provisions in this chapter contained with respect to the representatives, heirs, and devisees of deceased contributories, and with reference to the assignees of insolvent contributories, and to the husbands of married contributories, shall apply; 6. That nothing herein contained shall authorize any company to alter any such provisions contained in any statute, letters patent, or other instrument constituting or regulating the company as would, if such company had originally been formed under this Chapter, have been contained in the memorandum of association, and are not authorized to be altered by this Chapter. But nothing herein contained shall derogate from any power of altering its constitution or regulations which is vested in any company registering under this Chapter in pursuance of this part thereof by virtue of any statute, letters patent or other instrument constituting or regulating the company.

Commissions for subscriptions to shares. 119. [Added by Acts, 1903, c. 18, § 1.]

1. It shall be lawful for any company to pay a commission to any person in consideration of his subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, whether absolutely or conditionally, for any shares in the company, or for procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions for any shares in the company, if such commission paid or agreed to be paid does not exceed ten per cent. of the price at which such shares are sold. 2. Save as aforesaid, no company shall apply any of its shares or capital money, either directly or indirectly, in payment of any commission, discounts, or allowances to any person in consideration of his subscribing, or agreeing to subscribe, whether absolutely or conditionally, for any shares of the company, or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions, whether absolutely or conditionally, for any shares of the company, whether the shares or moneys be so applied by being added to the purchase money of any property acquired by the company, or to the contract price of any work to be executed for the company, or the money being paid out of a nominal purchase money or contract price, or otherwise. 3. The provisions of this section shall apply to every company heretofore incorporated, or that may hereafter be incorporated, and all commissions heretofore paid out of capital account or income for underwriting which would have been legal and valid under the provisions of this section if the same had then been in force are legalized, and declared to be and to have been legal and valid.

First Schedule.

Table A. Regulations for management of a company limited by shares.

Shares.

1. If several persons are registered as joint holders of any shares, any one of such persons may give effectual receipts for any dividend payable in respect to such shares.

2. Every member shall, on payment of twenty-five cents, or such less sum as the company in general meeting prescribes, be entitled to a certificate under the common seal of the company, specifying the share or shares held by him and the amount paid thereon.

3. If such certificate is worn out or lost, it may be renewed on payment of twenty-five cents, or such less sum as the company in general meeting prescribes, upon indemnifying the company against any loss or damage in case of the certificate so lost being found, and upon such terms or conditions as the company prescribes.

Calls on shares.

4. The directors may from time to time make such calls upon the members in respect to all moneys unpaid on their shares as they think fit, provided that twenty-one days' notice at least is given of each call, and each member shall be liable to pay the amount of calls so made to the persons, and at the times and places, appointed by the directors.

5. A call shall be deemed to have been made at the time when the resolution of the directors authorizing the same is passed.

6. If the call payable in respect to any share is not paid before or on the day appointed for payment thereof, the holder for the time being of such share shall be liable to pay interest for the same at the rate of five per cent. per annum from the day appointed for payment thereof to the time of the actual payment.

7. The directors may if they see fit receive from any member willing to advance the same, all or any part of the moneys due upon the shares held by him beyond the sums actually called for; and upon the moneys so paid in advance, or so much thereof as from time to time exceeds the amount of the calls then made upon the shares in respect to which such advance has been made, the company may pay interest at such rate as the member paying such sum in advance and the directors agree upon.

Transfer of shares.

8. The instrument of transfer of any share in the company shall be executed both by the transferor and the transferee, and the transferor shall be deemed to remain a holder of such share until the name of the transferee is entered in the register book in respect thereto.

9. Shares in the company shall be transferred in the following form:

I, A. B., of _____ in consideration of the sum of _____ dollars paid to me by C. D., of _____ do hereby transfer to the said C. D., the share (or shares) numbered _____ standing in my name in the books of the _____ company, to hold unto the said C. D., his executors, administrators, and assigns, subject to the several conditions on which I hold the same at the time of the execution hereof; and I, the said C. D., do hereby agree to take the said share (or shares) subject to the same conditions. As witness our hands, the _____ day of _____

10. The company may decline to register any transfer of shares made by a member who is indebted to the company.

11. The transfer books shall be closed during the fourteen days immediately preceding the ordinary general meeting in each year.

Transmission of shares.

12. The executors or administrators of a deceased member shall be the only person recognized by the company as having any title to his share.

13. Any person becoming entitled to a share in consequence of the death or insolvency of any member, or in consequence of the marriage of any female member, may be registered as a member upon such evidence being produced as is from time to time required by the company.

14. Any person who has become entitled to a share in consequence of the death or insolvency of any member, or in consequence of the marriage of any female member, may, instead of being registered himself, elect to have some person, to be named by him, registered as a transferee of such share.

15. The person so becoming entitled shall testify such election by executing to his nominee an instrument of transfer of such share.

16. The instrument of transfer shall be presented to the company, accompanied with such evidence as the directors require to prove the title of the transferor, and thereupon the company shall register the transferee as a member.

17. If any member fails to pay any call on the day appointed for payment thereof, the directors may, at any time thereafter during such time as the call remains unpaid, serve a notice on him requiring him to pay such call, together with interest and any expenses that have accrued by reason of such non-payment.

18. The notice shall name a further day on or before which such call, and all interest and expenses that have accrued by reason of such non-payment, are to be paid. It shall also name the place where payment is to be made (the place so named being either the registered office of the company or some other place at which calls of the company are usually made payable). The notice shall also state that in the event of non-payment at or before the time and at the place appointed, the shares in respect to which such call was made will be liable to be forfeited.

19. If the requisitions of any such notice as aforesaid are not complied with, any share in respect to which such notice has been given may, at any time thereafter, before payment of all calls, interest and expenses due in respect thereto has been made, be forfeited by a resolution of the directors to that effect.

20. Any share so forfeited shall be deemed to be the property of the company, and may be disposed of in such manner as the company in general meeting thinks fit.

21. Any member whose shares have been forfeited shall notwithstanding be liable to pay to the company all calls owing upon such shares at the time of the forfeiture.

22. A statutory declaration, in writing, that the call in respect to a share was made and notice thereof given and that default in payment of the call was made, and that the forfeiture of share was made by resolution of the directors to that effect, shall be sufficient evidence of the facts therein stated, as against all persons entitled to such share; and such declaration and the receipt of the company for the price of such share shall constitute a good title to such share, and the certificate of proprietorship shall be delivered to the purchaser, and thereupon he shall be deemed the holder of such share, discharged from all calls due prior to such purchase, and he shall not be bound to see to the application of the purchase money, nor shall his title to such share be affected by any irregularity in the proceedings in reference to such sale.

Increase in capital.

23. The directors may, with the sanction of a special resolution of the company previously given in general meeting, increase its capital by the issue of new shares, such aggregate increase to be of such amount, and to be divided into shares of such respective amounts, as the company in general meeting directs, or, if no direction is given, as the directors think expedient.

24. Subject to any direction to the contrary that is given by the meeting that sanctions the increase of capital, all new shares shall be offered to the members in proportion to the existing shares held by them, and such offer shall be made by notice specifying the number of shares to which the member is entitled, and limiting the time within which the offer, if not accepted, will be deemed to be declined; and after the expiration of such time, or on receipt of an intimation from the member to whom such notice is given that he declines to accept the shares offered, the directors may dispose of the same in such manner as they think most beneficial to the company.

25. Any capital raised by the creation of new shares shall be considered as part of the original capital, and shall be subject to the same provisions with reference to the payment of the calls and the forfeiture of shares on non-payment of calls, or otherwise, as if it had been part of the original capital.

General meetings.

26. The first general meeting shall be held at such time, not being more than four months after the registration of the company, and at such place, as the directors determine.

27. [As amended by Acts, 1904, c. 23, § 5.] Subsequent general meetings shall be held at such time and place as are prescribed by the company in general meeting; and if no other time or place is prescribed a general meeting shall be held on the third Tuesday in February in every year, at such place as is determined by the directors.

28. The above mentioned general meetings shall be called ordinary meetings; all other meetings shall be called extraordinary.

29. The directors may whenever they think fit, and they shall upon a requisition made in writing by not less than one-fifth in number of the members of the company, convene an extraordinary general meeting.

30. Any requisition made by the members shall express the object of the meeting proposed to be called, and shall be left at the registered office of the company.

31. Upon the receipt of such requisition the directors shall forthwith proceed to convene an extraordinary general meeting. If they do not proceed to convene the same within twenty-one days from the date of the requisition, the requisitionists, or any other members amounting to the required number, may themselves convene an extraordinary general meeting.

Proceedings at general meetings.

32. Seven days' notice at least, specifying the place, the day and the hour of meeting, and in case of special business the general nature of such business, shall be given to the members in manner hereinafter mentioned, or in such other manner, if any, as is prescribed by the company in general meeting, but the non-receipt of such notice by any member shall not invalidate the proceedings at any general meeting.

33. All business shall be deemed special that is transacted at an extraordinary meeting and all that is transacted at an ordinary meeting, with the exception of sanctioning a dividend and the consideration of the accounts, balance sheets, and the ordinary report of the directors.

34. No business shall be transacted at any general meeting except the declaration of a dividend, unless a quorum of members is present at the time when the meeting proceeds to business; and such quorum shall be ascertained as follows, that is to say: If the persons who have taken shares in the company at the time of the meeting do not exceed ten in number, the quorum shall be five; if they exceed ten, there shall be added to the above quorum one for every five additional members up to fifty, and one for every ten additional members after fifty, with this limitation, that no quorum shall in any case exceed twenty.

35. If within one hour from the time appointed for a meeting a quorum is not present the meeting, if convened upon the requisition of members, shall be dissolved. In any other case it shall stand adjourned to the same day in the next week, at the same time and place; and if at such adjourned meeting a quorum is not present, it shall be adjourned sine die.

36. The chairman (if any) of the board of directors shall preside as chairman at every general meeting of the company.

37. If there is no such chairman, or if at any meeting he is not present within fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding the meeting, the members present shall choose some one of their number to be chairman.

38. The chairman may, with the consent of the meeting, adjourn any meeting from time to time and from place to place, but no business shall be transacted at any adjourned meeting other than the business left unfinished at the meeting from which the adjournment took place.

39. At any general meeting, unless a poll is demanded by at least five members, a declaration by the chairman that a resolution has been carried and an entry to that effect in the book of the proceedings of the company, shall be sufficient evidence of the fact, without proof of the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour of or against such resolution.

40. If a poll is demanded by five or more members, it shall be taken in such manner as the chairman directs, and the result of such poll shall be deemed to be the resolution of the company in general meeting. In the case of an equality of votes at any general meeting, the chairman shall be entitled to a second or casting vote.

Votes of members.

41. Every member shall have one vote for every share.

42. If any member is a lunatic or idiot, he may vote by his guardian.

43. If one or more persons are jointly entitled to a share or shares, the member whose name stands first in the register of members as one of the holders of such share or shares, and no other, shall be entitled to vote in respect to the same.

44. No member shall be entitled to vote at any general meeting unless all calls due from him have been paid, and no member shall be entitled to vote in respect to any share that he has acquired by transfer at any meeting held after the expiration of three months from the registration of the company, unless he has been possessed of the share in respect to which he claims to vote for at least three months previously to the time of holding the meeting at which he proposes to vote.

45. Votes may be given either personally or by proxy.

46. The instrument appointing a proxy shall be in writing, under the hand of the appointer, or if such appointer is a corporation, under its common seal, and shall be attested by one or more witness or witnesses. No person shall be appointed a proxy who is not a member of the company.

47. The instrument appointing a proxy shall be deposited at the registered office of the company not less than seventy-two hours before the time for holding the meeting at which the person named in such instrument proposes to vote; but no instrument appointing a proxy shall be valid after the expiration of twelve months from the date of its execution.

48. Any instrument appointing a proxy shall be in the following form:

The _____ company, limited.
 I, _____ of _____ in the county of _____ being a member of the _____ company, limited, and entitled to _____ vote (or votes) hereby appoint _____ of _____ as my proxy, to vote for me and on my behalf at the (ordinary or extraordinary, as the case may be) general meeting of the company to be held on the _____ day of _____ and at an adjournment thereof (or at any meeting of the company that is held in the year _____).

As witness my hand, this _____ day

Directors.

49. The number of directors, and the names of the first directors, shall be determined by the subscribers of the memorandum of association.

50. Until directors are appointed the subscribers of the memorandum of association shall be deemed to be directors.

51. The future remuneration of the directors and their remuneration for services performed previously to the first general meeting, shall be determined by the company in general meeting.

Powers of directors.

52. The business of the company shall be managed by the directors, who may pay all expenses incurred in getting up and registering the company, and may exercise all such powers of the company as are not by "The Nova Scotia Companies' Act," or by these articles, required to be exercised by the company in general meeting, subject nevertheless to any regulations of these articles, to the provisions of the said Act, and to such regulations, being not inconsistent with the aforesaid regulations or provisions, as is prescribed by the company in general meeting; but no regulation made by the company in general meeting shall invalidate any prior act of the directors which would have been valid if such regulation had not been made.

53. The continuing directors may act notwithstanding any vacancy in their body.

54. The office of director shall be vacated: If he holds any other office or place of profit under the company; If he becomes bankrupt or insolvent; If he is concerned in or participates in the profits of any contract with the company.

But the above rules shall be subject to the following exceptions:

That no director shall vacate his office by reason of his being a member of any company which has entered into contracts with or done any work for the company of which he is director; nevertheless he shall not vote in respect to such contract or work, and if he does so vote his vote shall not be counted.

Rotation of directors.

55. At the first ordinary meeting after the registration of the company the whole of the directors shall retire from office; and at the first ordinary meeting in every subsequent year one-third of the directors for the time being, or if their number is not a multiple of three, then the number nearest to one-third, shall retire from office.

56. The one-third or other nearest number to retire during the first and second years ensuing the first ordinary meeting of the company shall, unless the directors agree among themselves, be determined by ballot; in every subsequent year the one-third or other nearest number who have been longest in office shall retire.

57. A retiring director shall be re-eligible.

58. The company at the general meeting at which any directors retire in manner aforesaid shall fill up the vacated offices by electing a like number of persons.

59. If at any meeting at which an election of directors ought to take place the places of the vacating directors are not filled up, the meeting shall stand adjourned till the same day in the next week, at the same time and place; and if at such adjourned meeting the places of the vacating directors are not filled up, the vacating directors, or such of them as have not had their places filled up, shall continue in office until the ordinary meeting in the next year, and so on from time to time until their places are filled up.

60. The company may from time to time in general meeting, increase or reduce the number of directors, and may also determine in what rotation such increased or reduced number is to go out of office.

61. Any casual vacancy occurring in the board of directors may be filled up by the directors; but any person so chosen shall retain his office so long only as the vacating director would have retained the same if no vacancy had occurred.

62. The company, in general meeting, may, by a special resolution, remove any director before the expiration of his period of office, and may by an ordinary resolution appoint another person in his stead; the person so appointed shall hold office during such time only as the director in whose place he is appointed would have held the same if he had not been removed.

63. The directors may meet together for the dispatch of business, adjourn, and otherwise regulate their meetings as they think fit, and determine the quorum necessary for the transaction of business. Questions arising at any meeting shall be decided by a majority of votes. In case of an equality of votes the chairman shall have a second or casting vote. A director may at any time summon a meeting of the directors.

64. The directors may elect a chairman of their meetings, and determine the period for which he is to hold office; but if no such chairman is elected, or if at any meeting the chairman is not present at the time appointed for holding the same, the directors present shall choose some one of their number to be chairman of such meeting.

65. The directors may delegate any of their powers to committees consisting of such member or members of their body as they think fit. Any committee so formed shall, in the exercise of the powers so delegated, conform to any regulations that are imposed on them by the directors.

66. A committee may elect a chairman of their meeting. If no such chairman is elected, or if he is not present at the time appointed for holding the same, the members present shall choose one of their number to be chairman of such meeting.

67. A committee may meet and adjourn as they think proper. Questions arising at any meeting shall be determined by a majority of votes of the members present, and in case of an equality of votes the chairman shall have a second or casting vote.

68. All acts done by any meeting of the directors, or of a committee of directors, or by any person acting as a director, shall, notwithstanding that it is afterwards discovered that there was some defect in the appointment of any such directors or persons acting as aforesaid, or that they or any of them were disqualified, be as valid as if every such person had been duly appointed and was qualified to be a director.

Dividends.

69. The directors may, with the sanction of the company in general meeting, declare a dividend, to be paid to the members in proportion to their shares.

70. No dividend shall be payable except out of the profits arising from the business of the company.

71. The directors may, before recommending any dividend, set aside out of the profits of the company such sum as they think proper as a reserve fund to meet contingencies, or for equalizing dividends, or for repairing or maintaining the works connected with the business of the company, or any part thereof; and the directors may invest the sum so set apart as a reserve fund upon such securities as they select.

72. The directors may deduct from the dividends payable to any member all such sums of money as are due from him to the company on account of calls or otherwise.

73. Notice of any dividend that has been declared shall be given to each member in manner hereinafter mentioned; and all dividends unclaimed for three years after having been declared may be forfeited by the directors for the benefit of the company.

74. No dividend shall bear interest as against the company.

Accounts.

75. The directors shall cause true accounts to be kept: a) Of the stock-in-trade of the company; b) Of the sums of money received and expended by the company, and the matter in respect to which such receipt and expenditure takes place and c) Of the credits and liabilities of the company.

The books of account shall be kept at the registered office of the company, and, subject to any reasonable restrictions as to the time and manner of inspecting the same that are imposed by the company in general meeting, shall be open to the inspection of the members during hours of business.

76. Once at the least in every year the directors shall lay before the company in general meeting a statement of the income and expenditure for the past year, made up to a date not more than three months before such meeting.

77. The statement so made shall show, arranged under the most convenient heads, the amount of gross income, distinguishing the several sources from which it has been derived, and the amount of gross expenditure, distinguishing the expense of the establishment, salaries and other like matters. Every item of expenditure fairly chargeable against the year's income shall be brought into account, so that a just balance of profit and loss may be laid before the meeting, and in cases where any item of expenditure which may in fairness be distributed over several years has been incurred in any one year, the whole amount of such item shall be stated, with the additions of the reasons why only a portion of such expenditure is charged against the income of the year.

78. A balance sheet shall be made out in every year, and laid before the company in general meeting, and such balance sheet shall contain a summary of the property and liabilities of the company arranged under the heads appearing in the form annexed to this table, or as near thereto as circumstances admit.

79. A printed copy of such balance sheet shall, seven days previously to such meeting, be served on every member in manner in which notices are hereinafter directed to be served.

Audit.

80. Once at least in every year the accounts of the company shall be examined, and the correctness of the balance sheet ascertained, by one or more auditor or auditors.

81. The first auditors shall be appointed by the directors; subsequent auditors shall be appointed by the company in general meeting.

82. If one auditor only is appointed, all the provisions herein contained relating to auditors shall apply to him.

83. The auditors may be members of the company, but no person is eligible as an auditor who is interested otherwise than as a member in any transaction of the company; and no director or other officer of the company is eligible during his continuance in office.

84. The election of auditors shall be made by the company at the ordinary meeting in each year.

85. The remuneration of the first auditors shall be fixed by the directors; that of subsequent auditors shall be fixed by the company in general meeting.

86. Any auditor shall be re-eligible on his quitting office.

87. If any casual vacancy occurs in the office of any auditor appointed by the company, the directors shall forthwith call an extraordinary general meeting for the purpose of supplying the same.

88. If no election of auditors is made in the manner aforesaid the Governor-in-Council may, on application of not less than five members of the company, appoint an auditor for the ensuing year and fix the remuneration to be paid to him or the company for his services.

89. Every auditor shall be supplied with a copy of the balance sheet, and it shall be his duty to examine the same, with the accounts and vouchers relating thereto.

90. Every auditor shall have a list delivered to him of all books kept by the company, and shall at all reasonable times have access to the books and accounts of the company. He may, at the expense of the company, employ accountants or other persons to assist him in investigating such accounts, and he may, in relation to such accounts, examine the directors or any other officer of the company.

91. The auditors shall make a report to the members upon the balance sheet and accounts, and in every such report they shall state whether, in their opinion, the balance sheet is a full and fair balance sheet containing the particulars required by these regulations and properly drawn up so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the state of the company's affairs, and in case they have called for explanations or information from the directors, whether such information or explanations have been given by the directors, and whether they have been satisfactory; and such report shall be read, together with the report of the directors, at the ordinary meeting.

c) Rev. St. 1900, c. 129. Of the Winding-up of Incorporated Companies.

Short title. 1. This Chapter may be cited as The Companies' Winding-Up Act.

Interpretation.

Interpretation of terms. 2. 1. In this Chapter unless the context otherwise requires: a) The expression "Court" means the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia; but any act hereinafter authorized to be done by the Court, and any power or authority hereinafter conferred on the Court, shall be done or exercised by any Judge thereof, except in the case of acts and authorities to be done or exercised upon or after appeal from the decision or judgment of such Judge; b) The expression "contributory" means every person liable to contribute to the assets of a company, association, or club, in the event of the same being wound up; it shall also, in all proceedings prior to the final determination of the status of such persons, include any person alleged to be a contributory; c) The expression "company" means any corporation, whether joint stock or otherwise, incorporated by the legislature of this Province, or under the authority of any statute thereof; d) The expression "extraordinary resolution" means a resolution passed by a majority of not less than three-fourths of the members of the company for the time being entitled to vote present in person or by proxy (in cases where by the Act, charter, or instrument of incorporation, or the regulations of the company, proxies are allowed) at any general meeting of which notice specifying the intention to propose such resolution has been duly given; e) The expression "special resolution" means a resolution passed in the manner necessary for an extraordinary resolution, where the resolution, after having been so passed as aforesaid, has been confirmed by a majority of the members entitled according to the Act, charter, or instrument of incorporation, or the regulations of the company to vote present in person or by proxy at a subsequent general meeting, of which notice has been duly given, and held at an interval of not less than fourteen days, or more than one month, from the date of the meeting at which the resolution was first passed.

R. S., c. 80, § 3.

Application.

Application of Chapter. 3. 1. This Chapter shall apply to all incorporated companies, associations, or clubs, incorporated by the legislature of Nova Scotia, or under the authority of any statute, and to all companies, associations, and clubs, whose incorporation and the affairs thereof in the particulars hereinafter mentioned are subject to the legislative authority of this Province. 2. It shall not apply to any company or corporation whose Act of incorporation or any Act in amendment thereof contains express provisions for the mode of winding up such company or association.

R. S., c. 80, §§ 2, 84.

When companies may be wound up.

Companies may be wound up. Expiration of time. Special resolution. Extraordinary resolution. 4. A company may be wound up under this Chapter: a) Where the period (if any) fixed for the duration of the company by the Act, charter, or instrument of incorporation thereof has expired, or where the event (if any) has occurred, upon the occurrence of which it is provided by such Act, or charter, or instrument of incorporation that the company is to be dissolved, and the company in general meeting has passed a resolution requiring the company to be wound up; b) Where the company has passed a special resolution requiring the company to be wound up; c) When the company (though it is solvent as respects creditors) has passed an extraordinary resolution to the effect that it has been proved to the satisfaction of the members thereof that the company cannot by reason of its liabilities continue its business, and that it is advisable to wind up the same.

R. S., c. 80, § 4.

Court may order winding up. 5. Where no such resolution has been passed, the Court may on the application of a contributory make an order for winding-up, in case the Court is of opinion that it is just and equitable that the company should be wound up.

R. S., c. 80, § 5.

When winding-up shall commence. 6. A winding-up shall be deemed to commence: a) In case of the passage of a resolution authorizing the winding-up, at the time of the passing of such resolution; b) In case of the making of an order directing the winding-up, from the making of such order.

R. S., c. 80, § 6.

Registration of the resolution or order.

Resolution or order to be registered. 7. A copy of the resolution or order for winding up, certified by the liquidator, may be registered in the registry of deeds of any registration district in which the company has any real property. Such resolution or order may be accompanied by a description of the real property belonging to the company in the district, and certified by the liquidator to be a correct description; and the Registrar shall register the said order and description upon payment to him of a fee of one dollar.

R. S., c. 80, § 7.

Consequences of commencing to wind up.

Consequences of commencing. 8. The following consequences shall ensue upon the commencement of the winding-up of a company: a) The company shall from the date of the commencement of such winding-up cease to carry on its business, except in so far as is required for the beneficial winding-up thereof, but the corporate status and all the corporate powers of the company shall, notwithstanding it is otherwise provided by the Act, charter, or instrument of incorporation, continue until the affairs of the company are wound up; b) The property of the company shall be applied in satisfaction of its liabilities, and subject thereto and to the charges incurred in winding up its affairs, shall (unless it is otherwise provided by the Act, charter, or instrument of incorporation) be distributed amongst the members according to their right and interests in the company; c) Any transfers of shares, except transfers made to or with the sanction of the liquidators, or any alteration in the status of the members of the company, after the commencement of such winding-up, shall be void; d) No action, suit, or other proceeding shall be proceeded with or commenced against the company except with the leave of the Court, and subject to such terms as the Court imposes; e) All costs, charges, and expenses properly incurred in the winding-up of a company under this Chapter, including the remuneration of the liquidators, shall be payable out of the assets of the company in priority to all other claims.

R. S., c. 80, § 8.

Appointment of liquidator by company. 9. 1. In case of a resolution for winding up, the company at a general meeting shall appoint a person or persons to be liquidator or liquidators for the purpose of winding up the affairs of the company and distributing its property, and shall fix the remuneration to be paid to him or them, and such liquidators shall furnish such security as the contributories determine. 2. In case of an order authorizing a winding-up, the Court shall appoint such liquidators and determine the security and the remuneration. 3. If one person only is appointed, all the provisions herein contained in reference to several liquidators shall apply to him. 4. Where several liquidators are appointed every power hereby given may be exercised by such one or more of them as is determined at the time of the appointment, or at a subsequent meeting, or in default of such determination by any number not less than two.

R. S., c. 80, § 8.

Vacancies, how filled. 10. If any vacancy occurs in the office of liquidator appointed by the company, by death, resignation, or otherwise, the company in general meeting may fill up such vacancy. If from any cause there is no liquidator acting, either provisionally or otherwise, the Court may on the application of a contributory appoint a liquidator or liquidators. The Court may also on due cause shewn remove any liquidator and appoint another liquidator. When there is no liquidator the estate shall be under the control of the Court until the appointment of a new liquidator.

R. S., c. 80, § 66.

Liquidators' commission. 11. If there is no agreement, order, or provision fixing the remuneration of a liquidator, he shall be entitled to a commission on the net proceeds of the estate of the company of every kind which comes to his hands, after deducting expenses and disbursements; such commission to be five per cent. on the amount realized, and to be in full of all fees and charges for his services.

R. S., c. 80, § 41.

Powers of directors to cease. 12. Upon the appointment of liquidators all the powers of the directors or other managing officers shall cease, except in so far as the company in general meeting or the liquidators sanction the continuance of such powers.

R. S., c. 80, § 8.

Disposal of property regulated. 13. The contributories may at any meeting pass any resolution or order directing the liquidator how to dispose of the property, real or personal, of the company, and in default of their doing so the liquidator shall be subject to the directions, orders, and instructions which he from time to time receives from the inspectors, if any, with regard to the mode, terms, and conditions on which he may dispose of the whole or any part of the property of the company.

Inspectors.

Inspectors may be appointed. 14. 1. The contributories may at any meeting appoint one or more inspector or inspectors to superintend and direct the proceedings of the liquidator in the management and winding up of the estate, and in case of an inspector being appointed all the powers of the liquidators shall be exercised, subject to the advice and direction of the inspector. 2. The contributories may also, at any subsequent meeting held for that purpose, revoke any such appointment, and upon such revocation, or in case of death, resignation, or absence from the Province of an inspector, may appoint another in his stead. 3. Such inspector may be paid such remuneration as the contributories determine, and when anything is allowed or directed to be done by the inspectors, it may or shall be done by the sole inspector if only one has been appointed.

R. S., c. 80, § 8.

General powers of liquidators.

Liquidator, how described, and powers. 15. The liquidator may be described in all proceedings by the style of "A. B., the liquidator of" (the particular company in respect to which he is appointed) and shall have power to do the following things: a) To bring or defend any action, or other legal proceeding in the name and on behalf of the company; b) To carry on the business of the company so far as is necessary for the beneficial winding-up of the same; c) To sell the real and personal property of the company, by public auction or private contract, according to the ordinary mode in which such sales are made, with power to transfer the whole property to any person or company, or to sell the same in parcels, and on such terms as seem most advantageous; but no sale of the assets en bloc shall be made without the previous sanction of the contributories given at a meeting called for that purpose; d) To draw, accept, make, and endorse any bill of exchange or promissory note, in the name and on behalf of the company, and to raise upon the security of the assets of the company from time to time any requisite sum or sums of money; and the drawing, accepting, making, or endorsing of any such bill of exchange or promissory note as aforesaid, on behalf of the company, shall have the same effect with respect to the liability of the company as if such bill or note had been drawn, accepted, made, or endorsed by or on behalf of such company in the course of carrying on the business thereof; e) To take out if necessary, in his official name, letters of administration to any deceased contributory; and to do in his official name any other act which is necessary for obtaining payment of any money due from a contributory or from his estate, and which act cannot be conveniently done in the name of the company; and in all cases where he takes out letters of administration or otherwise uses his official name for obtaining payment of any money due from a contributory, such money shall, for the purpose of enabling him to take out such letters or recover such money, be deemed to be due to the liquidator himself; f) To execute in the name of the company all deeds, receipts, and other documents; g) To use the company's seal whenever necessary for any of the purposes mentioned in this section; and h) To do and exercise all other acts and things necessary for the winding-up of the affairs of the company, and the distribution of its assets.

R. S., c. 80, § 9. A sale by the liquidators of a company in process of winding-up made, under authority of a judge's order, of the company's assets to a director of the company being wound up is valid, the reasons against such acts where the directors are actively engaged in administering the affairs of the company no longer existing. — In re Mabou Coal & Gypsum Co., (1894), 27 N. S. 305.

To sell doubtful debts. 16. If after having acted with due diligence in the collection of the debts, the liquidator finds that there remain debts due, the attempt to collect which would be more onerous than beneficial to the estate, he shall report the same to the contributories or inspector (if any), and with their sanction he may sell the same by public auction after such advertisement thereof as they order; and pending such advertisement the liquidator shall keep a list of the debts to be sold, upon inspection at his office, and shall also give free access to all documents and vouchers explanatory of such debts; but all debts amounting to more than one hundred dollars shall be sold separately.

R. S., c. 80, § 9 (4).

Debts may be compromised. 17. The liquidators may with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution of the company compromise all calls and liabilities to calls, debts, and liabilities capable of resulting in debts, and all claims, whether present or future, certain or contingent, ascertained or sounding only in damages, subsisting or supposed to subsist between the company and any contributory, or other debtor or person apprehending liability to the company, and all questions in any way relating to or affecting the assets of the company or the winding-up of the company, upon the receipt of such sums, payable at such times and generally upon such terms as are agreed upon; with power for the liquidators to take any security for the discharge of such debts or liabilities, and to give a complete discharge in respect to all or any such calls, debts, or liabilities.

R. S., c. 80, § 12.

Proof of claims.

Proof of claims, procedure. 18. The liquidator shall apply to the Court for an order fixing the time within which creditors of the company and other persons having claims thereon are to send in their claims, and within what time notice thereof shall be given. Such notice may be by advertisement, and the procedure upon such application and the proof of such claims and the settlement of the list thereof shall as nearly as may be, be that prescribed in the rules of the Supreme Court, "Of advertisements for creditors and claimants," and the duties of the liquidator shall as nearly as may be, be those in such rules prescribed for executors and administrators.

R. S., c. 80, § 10.

Payment of claims. 19. 1. When the liquidator has given such notice and complied with the directions of the Court respecting the settlement of such list of claims, he may, at the expiry of the time limited for the sending in of such claims and the proof thereof, distribute the assets of the company, or any part thereof among the persons thereto entitled who have sent in their claims as required. 2. The liquidator shall not be liable for the assets or any part thereof so distributed to any person of whose claim such liquidator had not notice at the time of distributing the assets or a part thereof, as the case may be; but nothing in this Chapter shall prejudice the right of any creditor or claimant to follow assets into the hands of any person who has received the same.

R. S., c. 80, § 10.

Compromises may be made. 20. The liquidators may, with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution of the company, make such compromise or other arrangement as the liquidators deem expedient with any creditors, or persons claiming to be creditors, or persons having or alleging to have any claim, present or future, certain or contingent, ascertained or sounding only in damages against the company, or whereby the company may be rendered liable.

R. S., c. 80, § 11.

Transfer to another company.

Transfer of property of company. 21. When any company is proposed to be or is in the course of being wound up, and the whole or a portion of its business or property is proposed to be transferred or sold to another company, the liquidators of the first mentioned company with the sanction of a special resolution of the company by whom they were appointed, conferring either a general authority on the liquidators or an authority in respect to any particular arrangement, may receive in compensation, or in part compensation, for such transfer or sale, shares or other like interest in such other company for the purpose of distribution amongst the members of the company which is being wound up, or may in lieu of receiving cash, shares, or other like interests, or in addition thereto, participate in the profits of or receive any other benefit from the purchasing company.

R. S., c. 80, § 13.

Dissentient member. Special resolution. 22. 1. Any sale made or arrangement entered into by the liquidators in pursuance of the next preceding section shall be binding on the members of the company which is being wound up, provided, that if any member of the company which is being wound up, who has not voted in favour of the special resolution passed by the company of which he is a member at either of the meetings held for passing the same expresses his dissent from any such special resolution, in writing, addressed to the liquidators or one of them, and left at the head office of the company not later than seven days after the date of the meeting at which such special resolution was passed, such dissentient member may require the liquidators to do one of the following things as the liquidators prefer, that is to say: 1. Either to abstain from carrying such resolution into effect; or, 2. To purchase the interest held by such dissentient member at a price to be determined in manner hereinafter mentioned, such purchase money to be paid before the company is dissolved, and to be raised by the liquidators in such manner as is determined by special resolution. 2. No special resolution shall be deemed invalid for the purposes of this and the next preceding section by reason that it is passed antecedently to or concurrently with any resolution for winding up the company or for appointing liquidators.

R. S., c. 80, §§ 14, 15.

Price of interest fixed. 23. If the price to be paid for the interest of any such dissentient member cannot be determined by agreement it may upon the application of the liquidator be determined by a referee appointed by the Court.

R. S., c. 80, § 16.

Liability of contributories.

List of contributories, settlement of. 24. 1. As soon as may be after the commencement of the winding-up the liquidator shall prepare a list of contributories.

R. S., c. 80, § 20.

Liability of contributories. 25. Every shareholder or member of the company or his representative shall be liable to contribute the amount unpaid on his share of the capital or on his liability to the company or to its members or creditors, as the case may be, under the Act, charter, or instrument of incorporation of the company or under the law of this Province, and the amount which he is liable to contribute shall be deemed assets of the company and to be a debt due to the company.

R. S., c. 80, § 21.

Transferred shares. 26. When a shareholder has transferred his shares under circumstances which do not by law free him from liability in respect thereto, or where he is by law liable to the company or its contributories or any of them, to an amount beyond the amount unpaid on his shares, or when a member of a company, the liability of whose members is not limited by the Act, charter, or instrument of incorporation of such company, has resigned or ceased to be a member of the company at a time when the liabilities of the company are not satisfied, he shall be deemed a member of the company for the purpose of this Chapter, and shall be liable to contribute as aforesaid to the extent of his liabilities to the company or the contributories independently of this Chapter, and the amount which he is so liable to contribute shall be deemed assets and a debt as aforesaid.

R. S., c. 80, § 22.

Cessation of membership. 27. In the case of a company, the liability of whose members is not limited by the Act, charter, or instrument of incorporation of such company, every member of such company at the time of the contracting of any debt or the incurring of any liability shall be liable to contribute to the payment of such debt or liability, notwithstanding he has since ceased to be a member of such company, and notwithstanding any statute relating to the limitation of actions, provided such liability can be enforced at law or in equity against such company.

R. S., c. 80, § 23.

Liability of heirs, etc. 28. It shall not be necessary when the personal representative of any deceased contributory is placed on the list to add the heirs or devisees of such contributory, nevertheless such heirs or devisees may be added at any time afterwards.

R. S., c. 80, § 25.

Representative contributories. 29. The list of contributories shall distinguish between persons who are contributories in their own right and as being representatives of or liable for others.

R. S., c. 80, § 24.

List prima facie evidence of liability. 30. Any list so settled shall be prima facie evidence of the liability of the persons named therein to be contributories.

R. S., c. 80, § 26.

Court may settle list. 31. The list of contributories may be settled by the Court, in which case the liquidator shall make out and leave with the prothonotary of the Supreme Court a list of the contributories of the company, and such list shall be verified by the affidavit of the liquidator, and shall so far as is practicable state the respective addresses of and the number of shares or extent of interest to be attributed to each such contributory, and distinguish the several classes of contributories; and such list may from time to time by leave of a Judge be varied or added to by the liquidator.

R. S., c. 80, § 27.

Settlement of list. 32. Upon the list being so made up and filed by the liquidator he shall obtain an appointment from the Court, or a Judge, to settle the same, and shall give notice in writing of such appointment to every person included in the list, stating in what character and for what number of shares or interest such person is included in the list, and in case any variation or addition to such list is at any time made by the liquidator a similar notice in writing shall be given to every person to whom such variation or addition applies. All such notices shall be served four clear days before the day appointed to settle such list, or such variation or addition.

R. S., c. 80, § 28.

Settlement of list to be certified. 33. The result of the settlement of the list of contributories shall be stated in a certificate by the prothonotary of the Court, and certificates may be made from time to time for the purpose of stating the result of such settlement down to any particular time, or to any particular person, stating any variation of the list.

R. S., c. 80, § 29.

Contributory's representatives. 34. If any contributory dies, either before or after he has been placed on the list of contributories, his personal representatives, heirs, and devisees shall be liable in due course of administration to contribute to the assets of the company, association, or club in discharge of the liability of such deceased contributory, and such personal representatives, heirs, and devisees shall be deemed to be contributories accordingly.

R. S., c. 80, § 3 (3).

Calls on contributories. 35. The liquidators may at any time and before they have ascertained the sufficiency of the assets of the company, call on all or any of the contributories, for the time being settled on the list of contributories, to pay to the extent of their liability all or any sums the liquidators deem necessary to satisfy the debts and liabilities of the company, and the costs, charges, and expenses of winding it up, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories amongst themselves, and the liquidators may, in making a call, take into consideration the probability that some of the contributories upon whom the call is made may partly or wholly fail to pay their respective portions of the same.

R. S., c. 80, § 31.

Liable to arrest, imprisonment, etc. 36. Where a person's name is on the list of contributories or is liable to be placed thereon, he shall be subject, in respect to his liability and on the application of the liquidator, to arrest and imprisonment like any other debtor, and he shall for that purpose be deemed a debtor to the company and a debtor to the liquidator, and his arrest may be ordered by the Court, and his being placed on the list of contributories under this Chapter shall be deemed a judgment, and the liquidator shall be deemed a judgment creditor; and the said judgment may be enforced by writ of execution in the same manner as an ordinary judgment in the Supreme Court.

R. S., c. 80, § 32.

Default of representative of deceased contributory. 37. If any person made a contributory as personal representative of a deceased contributory makes default in paying any sum to be paid by him, proceedings may be taken for administering the real and personal property of such deceased contributory, and for compelling payment thereof of the money due.

R. S., c. 80, § 30.

Liquidator's duties.

Counsel, when allowed liquidator. Liquidator not to purchase stock. Deposit in bank. Deposit, how made. Pass book. When to be produced. Costs, etc., a first charge. Subject to order of Court. 38. 1. No liquidator shall employ any counsel or solicitor without the consent of the inspector, if any. 2. No liquidator or inspector shall purchase directly or indirectly any part of the stock in trade, debts, or assets of any description of the estate. 3. The liquidator shall deposit at interest in some chartered bank, to be indicated by the inspector or by the Court, all sums of money which he has in his hands belonging to the company, whenever such sums amount to one hundred dollars. 4. Such deposit shall not be made in the name of the liquidator generally, on pain of dismissal, but a separate deposit account shall be kept for the company of the moneys belonging to the company in the name of the liquidator, as such, and of the inspectors (if any), and such moneys shall be withdrawn only on the joint cheque of the liquidator and one of the inspectors, if any. 5. At every meeting of the contributories the liquidator shall produce a bank pass book, shewing the amount of deposits made for the company, the date at which such deposits were made, the amounts withdrawn, and dates of such withdrawals, of which production mention shall be made in the minutes of such meeting, and the absence of such mention shall be prima facie evidence that such pass book was not produced at the meeting. 6. The liquidator shall also produce such pass book whenever so ordered by the Court, at the request of the inspector or of a contributory, and on his refusal to do so he shall be treated as being in contempt of Court. 7. All costs, charges, and expenses properly incurred in the winding-up of a company under this Chapter, including the remuneration of the liquidators, shall be payable out of the assets of the company in priority to all other claims. 8. Every liquidator or inspector shall be subject to the summary jurisdiction of the Court in the same manner and to the same extent as the ordinary officers of the Court are subject to its jurisdiction, and the performance of his duties may be compelled, and all remedies sought or demanded for enforcing any claim for a debt, privilege, mortgage, lien, or right of property upon, in, or to any effect or property in the hands, possession, or custody of a liquidator, may be obtained by an order of the Court on summary application, and not by any suit, attachment, seizure, or other proceeding of any kind whatever, and obedience by the liquidator to such order may be enforced by such Court under the penalty of imprisonment as for contempt of Court or disobedience thereto, or he may be removed in the discretion of the Court.

R. S., c. 80, §§ 33-40.

Meetings.

Meeting to fill vacancies. Special resolution. Notices of meetings. Where to be held. Publication of notice. Voting regulated. 39. 1. If any vacancy occurs in the office of liquidator appointed by the company, by death, resignation, or otherwise, a general meeting of the contributories for the purpose of filling up such vacancy may be convened by the continuing liquidators, if any, or if none then by any contributory of the company. 2. The liquidators may from time to time during the continuance of the winding-up summon general meetings of the company for the purpose of obtaining the sanction of the company by special resolution or extraordinary resolution, or for any other purpose they think fit. 3. The liquidator shall also call meetings of the contributories whenever required in writing so to do by the inspector or five contributories, or by the Court, and he shall state succinctly in the notice calling any meeting the purpose thereof. 4. The contributories may from time to time at any meeting determine where subsequent meetings shall be held, and in the absence of such a resolution all meetings of the contributories shall be held at the office of the liquidator or of the company, unless otherwise ordered by the Court. 5. Notice of any meeting shall, for the purpose of this Chapter, be deemed to be duly given, and the meeting to be duly held, whenever such notice is given and the meeting held in manner prescribed by the Act, charter, or instrument of incorporation, or by the regulations of the company, or by the Court, or notice of the meeting may be given by publication thereof for at least three weeks in the Royal Gazette, or by such other or additional notice as the Court, or the inspector, or the company directs, and also, except when the Court otherwise directs, by addressing notices of the meeting to the contributories within the Province, and to the representatives within the Province of contributories who reside out of the Province, and the said notices shall be posted at least ten days before the day on which the meeting is to take place, the postage being prepaid by the liquidator. 6. No contributory shall vote at any meeting unless present personally, or represented by some person having a written authority (to be filed with the liquidator) to act on his behalf at the meeting or generally, and when a poll is taken reference shall be had to the number of votes to which each member is entitled by the Act, charter, or instrument of incorporation, or the regulations of the company.

R. S., c. 80, §§ 42—47.

Assistance of the Court.

Stay of proceedings. 40. The Court, at any time after an order has been made for winding up a company, may upon the application by motion of any contributory, and upon proof to the satisfaction of the Court that all proceedings in relation to such winding-up ought to be stayed, make an order staying the same, either altogether or for a limited time on such terms and subject to such conditions as the Court deems fit.

R. S., c. 80, § 73.

Application for assistance. 41. The liquidators, or any contributory of the company, may apply to the Court to determine any question arising in the matter of the winding-up, or to exercise all or any of the powers hereinafter mentioned, and the Court, if satisfied that the determination of such question, or the required exercise of power, will be just and beneficial, may accede wholly or in part to such application, on such terms and subject to such conditions as the Court thinks fit, or it may make such other order on such application as the Court thinks just.

R. S., c. 80, § 48.

Proceedings restrained. 42. The Court at any time after the presentation of a petition for winding up a company, and before making an order for winding up the company, may restrain further proceedings in any action or proceeding against the company (other than under any Insolvent Act in force at the time, or any other authority over which this legislature has no jurisdiction), in and upon such terms as the Court thinks fit.

R. S., c. 80, § 49.

Advertisement of order. 43. The Court may make an order that no action or other proceeding shall be proceeded with or commenced against the company, except with the leave of the Court and subject to such terms as the Court imposes; but this section shall not apply to proceedings under any Act of the Parliament of Canada, under its jurisdiction in matters of bankruptcy and insolvency, or otherwise. A copy of any such order shall forthwith be advertised as the Court directs.

R. S., c. 80, § 51.

Meetings directed. 44. The Court may direct meetings of the contributories to be summoned, held, and conducted in such manner as the Court thinks fit, for the purpose of ascertaining their wishes, and may appoint a person to act as chairman of any such meeting, and to report the result of such meeting to the Court.

R. S., c. 80, § 52.

Transfer of effects. 45. The Court may require any contributory for the time being settled on the list of contributories, or any trustee, receiver, banker, or agent or officer of the company, to pay, deliver, convey, surrender, or transfer forthwith, or within such time as the Court directs, to or into the hands of the liquidator any sum or balance, books, papers, estate, or effects, which happen to be in his hands for the time being, and to which the company is prima facie entitled.

R. S., c. 80, § 53.

Payment of moneys. 46. The Court may make an order on any contributory for the time being settled on the list of contributories, directing payment to be made, in manner in the order mentioned, of any moneys due from him or from the estate of the person whom he represents, to the company, exclusive of any moneys which he or the estate of the person whom he represents is liable to contribute by virtue of any call made or to be made by the Court in pursuance of this Chapter.

R. S., c. 80, § 54.

Payment into bank. 47. The Court may order any contributory, purchaser, or other person from whom money is due to the company, to pay the same into any bank appointed for this purpose, in any general order made under this Chapter, or in default thereof into any bank named in the order, or into any branch of such bank, to the account of the official liquidator, instead of to the official liquidator, and such order may be enforced in the same manner as if it had directed payment to the official liquidator.

R. S., c. 80, § 55.

Order conclusive evidence. 48. Any order made by the Court in pursuance of this Chapter upon any contributory, shall, subject to the provisions herein contained for appealing against such order, be conclusive evidence that the moneys, if any, thereby appearing to be due, or ordered to be paid, are due, and all other pertinent matters stated in such order are to be taken to be truly stated as against all persons and in all proceedings whatsoever, with the exception of proceedings taken against the real property of any deceased contributory, in which case such order shall only be prima facie evidence for the purpose of charging such real property, unless his heirs or devisees were on the list of contributories at the time the order was made.

R. S., c. 80, § 56.

Inspection of books. 49. The Court may make such order for the inspection by the creditors and contributories of the company of its books and papers as the Court thinks just, and any books and papers in the possession of the company may be inspected in conformity with the order of the Court, but not further or otherwise.

R. S., c. 80, § 57.

Summons to appear. 50. The Court may at any time after the commencement of the winding-up of the company, summon to appear before the Court or liquidator any officer of the company, or any other person known or suspected to have in his possession any of the property or effects of the company, or supposed to be indebted to the company, or any person whom the Court deems capable of giving information concerning the trade, dealings, property, or effects of the company, and in case of refusal by such officer or other person to appear, or answer the questions submitted, he may be committed and punished by the Judge as for a contempt.

R. S., c. 80, § 58.

Production of books, etc. 51. The Court may require any such officer or person to produce any books, papers, deeds, writings, or other documents in his custody or power relating to the company.

R. S., c. 80, § 59.

Refusal to appear. 52. If any person so summoned, after being tendered the fees to which a witness is entitled in the Supreme Court, refuses to come before the Court or liquidator at the time appointed, having no lawful impediment, the Court may cause such person to be apprehended and brought before the Court or liquidator for examination.

R. S., c. 80, § 60.

Examination upon oath. 53. The Court or liquidator may examine upon oath any person appearing or brought before them in the manner aforesaid, concerning the affairs, dealings, property, or effects of the company, and may reduce into writing the answers of every such person, and require him to subscribe the same.
R. S., c. 80, § 61.

Subpœna. 54. In any proceedings under this Chapter, the Court may order a writ of subpœna ad testificandum or of subpœna duces tecum to issue, commanding the attendance as a witness of any person within the limits of Nova Scotia.
R. S., c. 80, § 62.

Lien on papers. 55. When any person claims any lien on papers, deeds, or writings, or documents produced by him, such production shall be without prejudice to the lien, and the Court shall have jurisdiction in the winding-up to determine all questions relating to such lien.
R. S., c. 80, § 63.

Malfeasance or breach of trust. 56. Where, in the course of winding up any company under this Chapter, it appears that any past or present director, manager, liquidator, or any officer of such company, has misapplied or retained in his own hands, or become liable or accountable for, any moneys of the company, or been guilty of any malfeasance or breach of trust in relation to the company, the Court may, on the application of any liquidator, or of any contributory of the company, notwithstanding that the offence is one for which the offender is criminally responsible, examine into the conduct of such director, manager, or other officer, and compel him or his executors or administrators to repay any moneys so misapplied or retained, or for which he or his estate has become liable or accountable, together with interest after such rate as the Court thinks just, or to contribute such sums of money to the assets of the company by way of compensation, in respect to such misapplication, retainer, malfeasance, or breach of trust, as the Court thinks just.
R. S., c. 80, § 64.

Appeals provided for. 57. Any person who is dissatisfied with any order or decision of a Judge in any proceeding under this Chapter, may appeal therefrom in the manner prescribed by the practice and rules of the Supreme Court in relation to appeals from the decision of a single Judge.
R. S., c. 80, § 68.

Powers of Court. 58. Any powers by this Chapter conferred on the Court, shall be deemed to be in addition to and not in restriction of, any other powers subsisting, either at law or in equity, of instituting proceedings against any contributory, or against any debtor of the company for the recovery of any call or other sums due from such contributory or debtor or his estate, and such proceedings may be instituted accordingly.
R. S., c. 80, § 69.

Proceedings by contributories.

Order authorizing proceedings. 59. If at any time any contributory who desires to cause any proceeding to be taken, which in his opinion would be for the benefit of the company, and the liquidator, under the authority of the contributories or of the inspectors, refuses or neglects to take such proceeding after being duly required so to do, such contributory may obtain an order of the Court authorizing him to take such proceeding in the name of the liquidator or company, but at his own expense and risk, upon such terms and conditions as to indemnity to the liquidator as the Court prescribes; and thereupon any benefit derived from such proceedings shall belong exclusively to the contributory instituting the same for his benefit and that of any other contributory who joins him in causing the institution of such proceeding; but if before such order is granted the liquidator signifies to the Court his readiness to institute such proceeding for the benefit of the company, an order shall be made prescribing the time within which he shall do so, and in that case the advantage derived from such proceeding shall appertain to the company.
R. S., c. 80, § 65.

Dissatisfied contributories. 60. 1. Any one or more contributories, whose claims in the aggregate exceed five hundred dollars, who are dissatisfied with the resolutions adopted or orders made by the contributories or the inspectors, or with any action of the liquidator, for the disposal of the property of the company, or any part thereof, or for postponing the disposal of the same, or with reference to any matter connected with the management or winding-up of the estate, may within four clear days after the meeting of the contributories, in case the subject of dissatisfaction is a resolution or order of the contributories, or within four clear days after becoming aware of or having notice of the resolution of the inspectors, or action of the liquidator, where such resolution or action in the subject of dissatisfaction, give to the liquidator notice that he or they will apply to the Court on the day and at the hour fixed by such notice, and not being later than four clear days after such notice has been given, or as soon thereafter as the parties may be heard before such Court, to rescind such resolution or orders. 2. The Court, after hearing the inspectors, the liquidators, and contributories present at the time and place so fixed, may approve, rescind, or modify such resolutions or orders. 3. In case of the application being refused, the party applying shall pay all costs occasioned thereby, and in other cases the costs shall be in the discretion of the Court.

Coss. Mode of application to Court. Dismissal of petition. Pleadings. Books prima facie evidence. Notices. 61. 1. The costs of proceedings under this Chapter shall be taxed and allowed according to the law relating to costs and fees. 2. Any application to the Court for the winding-up of a company under this Chapter shall be by petition, and the petition may be presented by the company, or by any contributory or contributories of the company. 3. Upon hearing the petition the Court may dismiss the same with or without costs, or may adjourn the hearing conditionally or unconditionally, and may make an interim order or any other order that it deems just. 4. In every petition, application, motion, or other pleading or proceeding under this Chapter the parties may state the facts upon which they rely in plain and concise language, and to the interpretation thereof the rules of construction applicable to such language in the ordinary transactions of life shall apply. 5. All books, accounts, and documents of the company and of the liquidator shall, as between the contributories of the company, be prima facie evidence of the truth of all matters purporting to be therein recorded. 6. Except when otherwise provided for, a clear judicial day's notice of any petition, motion, order, or rule, shall be sufficient, and service of such notice shall be made in such manner as a similar service in a civil action.

R. S., c. 80, §§ 70, 71, 72, 75, 76, 77.

Rules of procedure. 62. The rules of procedure for the time being as to amendments of pleadings and proceedings in the Supreme Court, shall as far as practicable apply to all pleadings and proceedings under this Chapter, and the Court or liquidator before whom such proceedings are pending, shall have full power and authority to apply the appropriate rules as to amendments to such proceedings, and no pleading or proceeding shall be void by reason of any irregularity or default which can or may be amended or disregarded under the rules and practice of the Court.

R. S., c. 80, § 74.

Enforcement of orders. 63. All orders made by the Court may be enforced in the same manner and by the same officers as in the case of orders of such Court made in any action pending therein.

Judges to make rules, etc. 64. A majority of the Judges of the Supreme Court from time to time shall make, frame, settle, and approve of the forms, rules, and regulations to be followed and observed in proceedings under this Chapter, and shall have power to amend, change, and vary the same, and such forms, rules, and regulations, being first published in the Royal Gazette, shall have the same force and effect as if they had been made and included in this Chapter.

Dissolution of company. Order for dissolution. 65. 1. As soon as the affairs of the company are fully wound up, the liquidators shall make up an account, shewing the manner in which such winding-up has been conducted, and the property of the company disposed of; and thereupon they shall call a general meeting of the members of the company, for the purpose of having the account laid before them, and hearing any explanation that is given by the liquidators; such meeting shall be called by advertisement, specifying the time, place, and object thereof; and the advertisement shall be published one month at least previous thereto. The liquidator shall make a return to the Provincial Secretary of such meeting having been held, and of the date at which the same was held, which return shall be filed in the office of the Provincial Secretary, and on the expiration of three months from the date of filing such return the company shall be deemed to be dissolved. 2. Or, whenever the affairs of the company have been completely wound up, the Court may make an order that the company be dissolved from the date of such order, and the company shall be dissolved accordingly; which order shall be reported by the liquidator to the Provincial Secretary.

R. S., c. 80, §§ 78, 79.

Liquidator's default. 66. If the liquidator makes default in transmitting to the Provincial Secretary the return mentioned in the next preceding section, or in reporting the order (if any) declaring the company dissolved, he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars for every day during which he is in such default.

R. S., c. 80, § 80.

Dividends to be deposited. 67. All dividends deposited in a bank and remaining unclaimed at the time of the dissolution of the company shall be left for three years in the bank where they are deposited, and if still unclaimed shall then be paid over by such bank with interest accrued thereon to the Provincial Treasury, and if afterwards duly claimed shall be paid over to the persons entitled thereto.

R. S., c. 80, § 81.

Deposit of funds, etc. Penalty. Disposal of unclaimed moneys. 68. 1. Every liquidator shall within thirty days after the date of the dissolution of the company deposit in the bank appointed or named, as hereinbefore provided, for any other money belonging to the estate then in his hands not required for any other purpose authorized by this Chapter, with a sworn statement and account of such money, and that the same is all he has in his hands. 2. Every liquidator neglecting to make such deposit shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten dollars for each day during which such neglect continues, and he shall be a debtor to Her Majesty for such money, and may be compelled as such to account for and pay over the same. 3. The money so deposited shall be left for three years in the bank, and shall be then paid over with interest to the Provincial treasury, and if afterwards claimed shall be paid over to the person entitled thereto.

R. S., c. 80, § 82.

Disposal of books, etc. 69. When any company has been wound up under this Chapter and is about to be dissolved, the books, accounts, and documents of the company and of the liquidators may be disposed of in such a way as the company by an extraordinary resolution directs. After the lapse of five years from the date of such dissolution no responsibility shall rest on the company or the liquidators, or any one to whom the custody of such books, accounts, and documents has been committed, by reason that the same or any of them cannot be made forthcoming to any party or parties claiming to be interested therein.

R. S., c. 80, § 82.

d) Rev. St. 1900, c. 130. Of certain Provisions respecting the Contracts of Corporations.

"Corporation." 1. In this Chapter the expression "corporation" includes the city of Halifax, any incorporated town, and any municipal or public corporation, as well as any private company.

Acts, 1891, c. 19, § 4.

Certain contracts heretofore made declared valid. Proviso as to certain other contracts. Effect of affixing of seal. 2. 1. Every contract made or entered into by any corporation within the scope of its charter or Act of incorporation, under such conditions and circumstances and in such manner that the same would be valid and binding if the corporate seal were affixed thereto, shall be so valid and binding notwithstanding the failure or omission to affix a seal. 2. This section shall not make valid any contract of a corporation which, if made by any person other than a corporation, would be invalid for want of a seal. 3. The affixing of a seal to the contract of a corporation shall have the same effect as the affixing of a seal to the contract of an individual.

Acts, 1891, c. 19, §§ 1, 2, 3.

Certain appointments and retainers legalized. 3. No appointment or retainer of an attorney or solicitor by any corporation shall be invalid or defective by reason that the same was not made under seal.

e) Acts, 1901, c. 11. An Act respecting the Changing the Name of Companies incorporated under Special Charter (4th April, 1901).

Power of Governor-in-Council to change name of companies incorporated under special Act. 1. The Governor-in-Council may, by Order-in-Council, upon the application of any company incorporated under and by a special Act of the Legislature of the Province of Nova Scotia, change the name of such company, and such change shall not affect the rights, powers, franchises, or existence of such company, but shall have the same effect as though accomplished by special Act of the said Legislature.

Payment of fee. 2. Before said Order-in-Council is made the company applying for the same shall pay into the Provincial Treasury a sum equal to the fee it would be required to pay in order to secure an Act of the said Legislature making such change.

Company prohibited to take name of other company. 3. Nothing in this Act shall be taken to authorize the name of any such company being changed so as to be the same as that of any other company incorporated under and by any other special Act of said Legislature, or under the provisions of Chapter 128 of the Revised Statutes, 1900.

Notice of change of name, how given. 4. Notice of said change of name shall be given by such company in the Royal Gazette, and in one or more newspapers in the Province of Nova Scotia, published in a county where said company is authorized to carry on business.

Change of name not to affect rights, liabilities, etc. 5. The change of name shall not in any way affect the rights, duties, liabilities, and obligations of the company, nor affect any actions brought by or against the company under the original name; and such actions shall go forward as if such name had not been changed, and judgment and execution may be entered by and against the said company under the changed name.

f) Acts, 1902, c. 8. An Act to amend the Nova Scotia Companies' Act, 1900 (27th March, 1902).

Principal Act. 1. The Nova Scotia Companies' Act is hereinafter referred to as "The Principal Act," and the principal Act and this Act are hereinafter distinguished as and may be cited for all purposes as Nova Scotia Companies' Act, and this Act shall so far as is consistent with the tenor thereof, be construed as one with the principal Act; and the expression "this Act" in the principal Act and any expression referring to the principal Act which occurs in any Act or other document shall be construed to mean the principal Act as amended by this Act.

Provision for application to Court for relief where section 64 of principal Act has not been complied with. Application how to be made. Terms and conditions of order. In certain cases memorandum in writing to be filed. 2. [As amended by Acts, 1905, c. 10, § 1.] 1. Whenever before or after the commencement of this Act any shares in the capital of any company under the principal Act, credited as fully or partly paid up, shall have been or may be issued for a consideration other than cash, and at or before the issue of such shares no contract or no sufficient contract is filed with the Registrar in compliance with section 64 of the principal Act, the company or any person interested in such shares or any of them, may apply to the Court for relief, and the Court, if satisfied that the omission to file a contract or sufficient contract was accidental or due to inadvertence, or that for any reason it is just and equitable to grant relief, may make an order for the filing with the Registrar of a sufficient contract in writing, and directing that on such contract being filed within a specified period it shall in relation to such shares operate as if it had been duly filed with the Registrar aforesaid at or before the issue of such shares. 2. Any such application may be made in the manner in which an application to rectify the register of members may be made under section 60 of the principal Act, and either before or after an order has been made or effective resolution has been passed for the winding-up of such company, and either before or after the commencement of any proceedings for enforcing the liability on such shares consequent on the omission aforesaid, and any such application shall, if not made by the company, be served on the company. 3. Any such order may be made on such terms and conditions as the Court may think fit, and the Court may make such order as to costs as it deems proper, and may direct that an office copy of the order shall be filed with the Registrar aforesaid, and the order shall in all respects have full effect. 4. Where the Court in any such case is satisfied that the filing of the requisite contract would cause delay or inconvenience or is impracticable, it may in lieu thereof direct the filing of a memorandum in writing in a form approved by the Court, specifying the consideration for which the shares were issued, and may direct that on such memorandum being filed within a specified period it shall in relation to such shares operate as if it were duly made in writing within the meaning of section 64 of the principal Act, and have been duly filed with the Registrar aforesaid before the issue of such shares.

Share warrant to bearer. 3. In the case of a company limited by shares, the company, if authorized so to do by its regulations as originally framed or as altered by special resolution, and subject to the provisions of such regulations, may, with respect to any share which is fully paid up, or with respect to stock, issue under their common seal a warrant, stating that the bearer of the warrant is entitled to the share or shares of stock therein specified, and may provide by coupons or otherwise for the payment of the future dividends on the share or shares or stock included in such warrant, hereinafter referred to as a share warrant.

Effect of share warrant. 4. A share warrant shall entitle the bearer of such warrant to the shares or stock specified in it, and such shares or stock may be transferred by the delivery of the share warrant.

Bearer of share warrant entitled to have name entered as member in register. 5. The bearer of a share warrant shall, subject to the regulations of the company, be entitled, on surrendering such warrant for cancellation, to have his name entered as a member in the register of members, and the company shall be responsible for any loss incurred by any person by reason of the company entering in its register of members the name of any bearer of a share warrant in respect of the shares or stock specified therein without the share warrant being surrendered and cancelled.

Bearer of share warrant may be deemed member of company. Proviso. 6. The bearer of a share warrant may, if the regulations of the company so provide, be deemed to be a member of the company within the meaning of the principal Act either to the full extent or for such purposes as may be prescribed by the regulations. Provided that the bearer of a share warrant shall not be qualified in respect of the shares or stock specified in such warrant for being a director or manager of the company in cases where such qualification is prescribed by the regulations of the company.

Further proceedings on issue of share warrant. 7. On the issue of a share warrant in respect of any share or stock the company shall strike out of its register of members the name of the member then entered therein as holding such share or stock as if he had ceased to be a member, and shall enter in the register the following particulars: a) The fact of the issue of the warrant; b) A statement of the shares or stock included in the warrant, distinguishing each share by its number; c) The date of the issue of the warrant; and until the warrant is surrendered the above particulars shall be deemed to be the particulars which are required by the fifty-fifth section of the principal Act to be entered in the register of members of a company; and on the surrender of a warrant the date of such surrender shall be entered as if it were the date at which a person ceased to be a member.

After issue of share warrant annual summary required by section 55 of principal Act shall contain following particulars. 8. After the issue by the company of a share warrant the annual summary required by the fifty-sixth section of the principal Act shall contain the following particulars: the total amount of shares or stock for which share warrants are outstanding at the date of the summary, and the total amount of share warrants which have been issued and surrendered respectively since the last summary was made, and the number of shares or amount of stock comprised in each warrant.

After passing of this Act no letters patent to issue under joint stock companies Act. Cap. 79 Revised Statutes, 5th series. 9. From and after the passing of this Act no letters patent granting a charter for the creation of a body corporate, shall be issued by the Governor-in-Council under the Nova Scotia Joint Stock Companies' Act, Chapter 79 of the Revised Statutes, 5th series, or any amendment thereto.

p) Acts, 1910, c. 16. An Act to amend the Law in Relation to Joint Stock Companies (22d April, 1910).

Bonds kept alive for issue or re-issue. Re-issue by nominee of company. Bonds deposited for advances. Re-issue not a new bond. Issue of new bonds to replace paid off bonds, not prejudiced. Application of Act. 1. 1. Where either before or after the passing of this Act a company has redeemed any bonds or debentures previously issued, the company, unless the special Act incorporating the company or the by-laws or the articles of association of the company or the conditions of issue expressly otherwise provide (or unless the bonds or debentures have been redeemed in pursuance of any obligation of the company so to do, and not being an obligation enforceable only by the person to whom the redeemed bonds or debentures were issued, or his assigns), shall have power, and shall be deemed always to have had power, to keep the bonds or debentures alive for the purposes of re-issue, and where a company has purported to exercise such a power, the company shall have power, and shall be deemed always to have had power, to re-issue the bonds or debentures, either by re-issuing the same bonds or debentures, or by issuing other bonds or debentures in their place, and upon such a re-issue the person entitled to the bonds or debentures shall have, and shall be deemed always to have had, the same rights and priorities as if the bonds or debentures had not previously been issued. 2. Where, with the object of keeping bonds or debentures alive for the purpose of re-issue, they have either before or after the passing of this Act been transferred to a nominee of the company, a transfer from that nominee shall be deemed to be a re-issue for the purposes of this section. 3. Where a company has, either before or after the passing of this Act, deposited any of its bonds or debentures to secure advances on current account or otherwise, the bonds or debentures shall not be deemed to have been redeemed by reason only of the account of the company having ceased to be in debit whilst the bonds or debentures remained so deposited nor by reason of the repayment of the advances. 4. The re-issue of a bond or debenture, or the issue of another bond or debenture in its place, under this section, whether made before or after the passing of this Act, shall not be treated as the issue of a new bond or debenture for any purpose. 5. Nothing in this section shall prejudice any power to issue bonds or debentures in the place of any bond or debenture paid off, or otherwise satisfied or extinguished, reserved to a company by its bonds or debentures, or the securities for the same. 6. This section shall apply to any company heretofore incorporated under the laws of Nova Scotia, whether by the Nova Scotia Joint Stock Companies' Act, being Chapter 79 of the Revised Statutes, fifth Series, or by the Nova Scotia Companies' Act, being Chapter 128 of the Revised Statutes, 1900, or by a special Act of the Legislature.

Sale of Goods.

Acts, 1910, c. 1. An Act for codifying the Law relating to the Sale of Goods (30th March, 1910).

[This Act is identical in all material respects with the Imperial Sale of Goods Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vic. c. 71), except as follows: The Nova Scotia Act applies to contracts for $40 or upwards. There is no provision regarding market overt. § 26 of the Imperial Act relating to writs of execution is omitted. § 32 (3) is extended so as to require notice where goods are sent by a route involving lake or river transit.]

Where an infant trader purchased goods which he subsequently transferred to his boarding-house keeper on account of his board it was held that the fact of the goods being so applied did not render them necessaries, so as to enable the seller to recover. — Jenkins v. Way, (1881), 14 N. S. 394. For a case where under the facts it was held that no sufficient evidence was shown entitling the unpaid seller to have a contract of sale rescinded on the ground of fraud, see Small v. Glasel, (1896), 28 N. S. 245. Where the goods are in esse and in a position to be inspected by the buyer, and there is no fraud on the part of the seller, the maxim caveat emptor applies. — Higgins v. Clish, (1901), 34 N. S. 135. Where the buyer inspects the goods and relies upon his own judgment there is no implied warranty of quality. — Laurie v. Croucher, (1891), 23 N. S. 293. Where the buyer has ample opportunities to inspect the goods purchased, and the seller sells, and the buyer buys, a specific, visible thing, there is no implied warranty of merchantable quality. — Fraser v. Salter, (1869), 7 N. S. 424. — Where a contract for the sale of lime juice provided for an inspection and regauging of the same and a part of the lime juice was inspected by the agent of the buyer, who placed the buyer's initials on several casks for the purpose of identifying them it was held that the buyer was entitled, in addition, to a regauging under the terms of the contract, and that the mere marking of the casks with defendant's initials did not under the circumstances constitute an acceptance within the Statute of Frauds. — Hart v. Anderson, (1892), 24 N. S. 157. The general rule is that whatever is represented by the seller at the time of the sale is a warranty, but a sharp distinction must be drawn between language merely of explanation, estimate, or praise, and that which constitutes a representation or warranty. — Irvine v. Parker, (1904), 40 N. S. 392. Representations made by the seller as to the amount he paid for the article are "dealer's talk," and the rule of caveat emptor applies. — Young v. McMillan, (1894), 40 N. S. 52. Where a horse was sold, warranted sound and without vice, fault, or tricks, and the evidence showed that for a period of eight years prior to the sale the horse was without fault or tricks, but that immediately afterwards, in the hands of the buyer, it balked and kicked when in harness, and was useless for the purposes for which it was purchased, it was held that the buyer was not entitled to recover. — McGill v. Harris, (1903), 36 N. S. 414. The purchaser of goods subject to latent defect, sold with a warranty, is estopped from claiming for a breach of the warranty by reason merely of the fact of having received the goods without objection made at the time. — Smith v. Archibald, (1907), 41 N. S. 211. An undertaking in the sale of a bicycle that the same would carry the purchaser, or bear his weight, implied the condition of reasonably good usage. — Johnston v. Moore, (1901), 34 N. S. 85. — Where the seller disposes of the goods as owner there is an implied warranty of title. — McFatrige v. Robb, (1892), 24 N. S. 506. Where the buyer rejects the object sold on the ground that it does not conform to description he must not make use of the object. Using the object will be regarded as an acceptance thereof. — Thompson v. Cameron, (1906), 41 N. S. 29. Where a sale is sought to be rescinded on the ground that certain stipulations as to quality amounted to a condition the buyer must reject the goods immediately upon learning that they are not in accordance with the contract. — Burke v. Roberts, (1895), 27 N. S. 445. — Where goods when shipped are in merchantable condition and there is a depreciation through exceptional and accidental causes the loss falls upon the buyer. — Barnes v. Waugh, (1906), 41 N. S. 38. Where a contract for the sale of a mowing machine called for delivery in a satisfactory working condition and the machine was brought to the buyer's field, where in the course of a trial which he proceeded to make a wheel became broken, it was held that the seller was not entitled to recover the price, the machine never having been delivered in a satisfactory working condition. — Lawlor v. Mumford, (1882), 16 N. S. 35. In a sale of canned lobsters where the contract provided that the lobsters should be free from stains or black smut and that the contents of the cans should keep in Europe for at least nine months from the date of delivery, it was held that these stipulations amounted to warranties, the proper remedy for the breach of which was an action for damages. — Wurzburg v. Andrews, (1896), 28 N. S. 387. The sale of No. 1 salmon, without express warranty, amounts to a warranty that the fish are in the condition prescribed by law for fish of that brand, and such warranty is violated if the article, owing to a secret defect existing at the time of sale, afterwards becomes deteriorated in value. — Hardy v. Fairbanks, (1847), 2 N. S. 432. Wool was sent to the buyer to be credited at 27  $\epsilon$  per lb., in accordance with a previous offer. The buyer declined to pay the price named and offered 21  $\epsilon$  on the ground that the wool was inferior in quality to that agreed on. The seller declined the offer of 21  $\epsilon$  and agreed to take back the wool, but before it was delivered the buyer used a portion of it, whereupon the seller refused to take back the balance and claimed payment for the wool at 27  $\epsilon$ . It was held (per Ritchie and Townshend, J.J.) that the buyer was bound to keep the wool at the price at which the seller offered to sell; (per McDonald, C. J.); that the buyer was only liable for the actual value; (per Weatherbe, J.), that the sum of 27  $\epsilon$  per lb., never having been agreed upon as the price, the buyer was only bound to pay the actual value. — Eureka Woolen Mills v. Kirk, (1889), 21 N. S. 335. Where goods are sold on credit interest is recoverable on the purchase price from the date at which the credit expires where such is the usage of trade at the place where the goods are sold, although there have been no previous dealings between the parties, no engagement to pay interest and no notes under the statute that interest would be claimed. — Bannerman v. Fullerton, (1862), 5 N. S. 200. Where the facts show an absolute sale and delivery to the buyer, the property vests in the buyer even though the goods were obtained by false representations, until the seller has done some act to disaffirm the transaction. — Outram v. Smith, (1876), 11 N. S. 187. A provision in a bill of lading making the goods deliverable to the order of the consignors is merely prima facie evidence of an intention to preserve the right of transferring the goods and is not conclusive. Other facts may show that the sale is complete and that title in the property has passed to the buyer. — Rugh v. Wyld, (1876), 11 N. S. 177. As to the effect of a partial destruction of the subject matter of the sale before the transaction is completed, see Whitman v. Parker, (1885), 6 R. & G. 155. Where a seller, having on his premises goods of the invoice value of \$ 17,000, executes a conveyance of goods for the invoice value of \$ 6,500, but such conveyance is in general terms and does not specify any particular portion of the stock, and is not followed by any selection or preparation from the stock, or any delivery of any part of it, no property passes by such conveyance. — Ross v. Cameron, (1889), 40 N. S. 126. C. P. obtained a piano from P. & S. on hire, with the privilege of purchasing it for \$ 350 by paying certain instalments within a certain time. The agreement provided that the piano should remain the property of P. & S. until fully paid for, and that in default of any instalment they might resume possession without previous demand and that C. P. should pay interest upon the purchase money at 7 per cent. C. P. paid two instalments amounting to \$ 150 and became insolvent. At a trial of the right of property to the piano between P. & S. and H. L., a creditor of C. P., claiming under an assignment made to him by C. P. as security for a debt and received without knowledge of the agreement with P. & S., which assignment was duly filed and registered, it was held that the usury statute did not apply, that the transaction was a conditional sale, that the claim of P. & S. was not prejudiced by their not having taken back the piano as soon as the time was up, that the agreement between P. & S. and C. P. was not in the nature of a bill of sale and did not require registration, and that P. & S. were entitled to have the piano on paying to H. L. the amount they had received on its account from C. P. — In re Pyke, (1873), 9 N. S. 342. H., engaged in business at Halifax, consigned to J. L. in accordance with the usual course of business between the parties, a lot of hides and sent a note for the price according to his own estimate of weight, etc., subject to rebate if there was any deficiency. The note was signed by J. L. and discounted by H. The goods arrived at their destination and remained there about three weeks, when J. L. sent his lighterman for some other goods, and he, finding the goods shipped by H., brought them up in the lighter. The next day J. L. was informed of their arrival and stored them in the warehouse of D. L., where he had other goods, with instructions to keep them for the parties who had sent them. The same day he sent a telegram to H. as follows: "In trouble, have delivered hides. Appoint someone to take care of them." H. learned what had been done with the hides and expressed himself as satisfied. He asked if he could take them away, but was assured by J. L. that they were all right and left them in the warehouse. Subsequently a levy under execution of the bank that had discounted the note was made against J. L. on all his property, but the goods in question were not included in the levy. Six days later J. L. gave the bank a bill of sale of all his hides in the warehouse of D. L. and the bank indemnified D. L. and took possession under the bill of sale of the hides shipped by H. In a suit by H. against the bank and the warehouseman it was held that the contract of sale between J. L. and H. was rescinded by the action of J. L. in refusing to take possession of the goods when they arrived and handing them over to D. L. with instructions to hold for the consignor and in notifying the consignor, who acquiesced and adopted the act of J. L., whereby the property in and possession of the goods became re-vested in H. There was consequently no title to the goods in J. L. when the bill of sale was made to the bank. — Pictou Bank v. Harvey, (1887), 14 S. C. R. 617; affirming Harvey v. Pictou Bank, (1886), 19 N. S. 196. An agreement contained the following terms: "Received from Messrs. W. F. & Son the following articles of furniture, for which I am to pay \$ 225.25, or more, in monthly payments of \$ 20 each month from date. The said furniture to remain the property of W. F. & Son till paid for in full, and in the event of non-payment monthly the said W. F. & Son can take the furniture back." It was held that where possession was delivered on the conditions above set forth the property did not pass until the condition was fulfilled and part payments made could be forfeited. — Fraser v. Wallace, (1876), 11 N. S. 337; affirmed, Wallace v. Fraser, (1878), 2 S. C. R. 522. Where goods were shipped on board a vessel by the seller under condition that the consignee should pay the freight and the consignee paid for the good before action brought, it was held that the consignee was the proper party plaintiff in an action for damages occasioned by non-delivery of the goods. — Adams v. Crosby, (1881), 2 R. & G. 331. Where a contract provided that the property in the object should remain in the seller until payment in full of the price, which was payable in instalments, but that the buyer, making the payments agreed upon when due, should be entitled to the possession and use of the property, and providing further, that if at any time before payment in full of the price the buyer should fail in the performance of the agreement on his part, the seller should be entitled to immediate possession, it was held (per Weatherbe and Graham, J.J.) that the seller was entitled to elect to sue on the ordinary breach of the contract to pay; (per Ritchie and Meagher, J.J.) that in the event of non-performance by the buyer of the conditions of sale the seller was entitled to retake possession, but was not entitled to sue under the agreement for non-payment of the instalments. — Travis v. Way, (1901), 33 N. S. 551. In a conditional sale where the seller avails himself of the condition of retaking the property the sale is rescinded and all rights and liabilities under the contract cease. — White v. Smith, (1885), 28 N. S. 5. See further as to instalment contracts and conditional sales; Miller Bros. v. Blair, (1904), 37 N. S. 293; Miller v. Curry, (1893), 25 N. S. 537; Guest v. Diack, (1897), 29 N. S. 504; Kent v. Ellis, (1900), 32 N. S. 549; Lapierre v. McDonald, (1906), 39 N. S. 24.

a) Rev. St. 1900, c. 146. Of Factors and Agents.

Short title.

Short title. 1. This Chapter may be cited as The Factors Act.
Acts, 1895, c. 11, § 16.

Interpretation.

Interpretation. 2. In this Chapter unless the context otherwise requires:
a) The expression "mercantile agent" means a mercantile agent having in the customary course of his business as such agent, authority either to sell goods or to consign goods for the purpose of sale, or to buy goods, or to raise money on the security of goods; b) A person shall be deemed to be in possession of goods, or of the documents of title to goods, where the goods or documents are in his actual custody, or are held by any other person subject to his control, or for him or on his behalf; c) The expression "goods" includes wares and merchandise; d) The expression "document of title" includes any bill of lading, dock warrant, warehouse keeper's certificate, and warrant or order for the delivery of goods, and any other document used in the ordinary course of business as proof of the possession or control of goods, or authorizing or purporting to authorize, either by indorsement or by delivery, the possessor of the document to transfer or receive goods thereby represented; e) The expression "pledge" includes any contract pledging, or giving a lien or security, on goods, whether in consideration of an original advance or of any further or continuing advance, or of any pecuniary liability; f) The expression "person" includes any body of persons, corporate or unincorporate.

Dispositions by mercantile agents.

Mercantile agent in possession of goods by consent of owner, any sale, etc., made by him valid as if authorized, provided person acquires in good faith. Consent of owner valid which has been discontinued if person acquiring had not notice of discontinuance. Agent obtaining possession of documents of title by reason of being in possession of the goods deemed to have possession of documents by consent of owner. Consent presumed. 3. 1. Where a mercantile agent is, with the consent of the owner, in possession of goods, or of the documents of title to goods, any sale, pledge, or other disposition of the goods, made by him when acting in the ordinary course of business of a mercantile agent, shall, subject to the provisions of this Chapter, be as valid as if he was expressly authorized by the owner of the goods to make the same, provided that the person taking under the disposition acts in good faith, and has not at the time of the disposition notice that the person making the disposition has not authority to make the same. 2. Where a mercantile agent has, with the consent of the owner, been in possession of goods, or of the documents of title to goods, any sale, pledge, or other disposition which would have been valid if the consent had continued, shall be valid notwithstanding the determination of the consent; provided that the person taking under the disposition has not at the time thereof notice that the consent has been determined. 3. Where a mercantile agent has obtained possession of any documents of title to goods by reason of his being or having been, with the consent of the owner, in possession of the goods represented thereby, or of any other documents of title to the goods, his possession of the first mentioned documents shall, for the purposes of this Chapter, be deemed to be with the consent of the owner. 4. For the purposes of this Chapter the consent of the owner shall be presumed in the absence of evidence to the contrary.

Effect of pledges of documents. 4. A pledge of the documents of title to goods shall be deemed to be a pledge of the goods.

Acts, 1895, c. 11, § 4.

Rights of pledgee, where agent pledges goods. 5. Where a mercantile agent pledges goods as security for a debt or liability due from the pledgor to the pledgee before the time of the pledge, the pledgee shall acquire no further right to the goods than could have been enforced by the pledgor at the time of the pledge.

Acts, 1895, c. 11, § 4.

What consideration in case of sale, pledges, etc., made by an agent is necessary to validity of transaction. 6. The consideration necessary for the validity of a sale, pledge, or other disposition of goods, in pursuance of this Chapter, may be either a payment in cash, or the delivery or transfer of other goods, or of a document of title to goods, or of a negotiable security, or any other valuable consideration; but where goods are pledged by a mercantile agent in consideration of the delivery or transfer of other goods, or of a document of title to goods, or of a negotiable security, the pledgee shall acquire no right or interest in the goods so pledged in excess of the value of the goods, documents, or security when so delivered or transferred in exchange.

Acts, 1895, c. 11, § 5.

Effect of agreement made through clerk of agent. 7. For the purposes of this Chapter an agreement made with a mercantile agent through a clerk or other person authorized in the ordinary course of business to make contracts of sale or pledge on his behalf, shall be deemed to be an agreement with the agent.

Acts, 1895, c. 11, § 6.

Owner giving possession of goods for consignment or sale or shipping in name of another consignee without notice to have same lien as if such person was owner.

Proviso. 8. 1. Where the owner of goods has given possession of the goods to another person for the purpose of consignment or sale, or has shipped the goods in the name of another person, and the consignee of the goods has not had notice that such person is not the owner of the goods, the consignee shall, in respect to advances made to or for the use of such person, have the same lien on the goods as if such person were the owner of the goods, and may transfer any such lien to another person. 2. Nothing in this section shall limit or affect the validity of any sale, pledge, or disposition, by a mercantile agent.

Acts, 1895, c. 11, § 7.

Dispositions by sellers and buyers of goods.

[9—10. Are repealed.]

Document of title transferred to a person as buyer, etc., and by him transferred to person receiving in good faith and for value, last transfer will defeat vendor's lien, etc. 11. Where a document of title to goods has been lawfully transferred to a person as a buyer or owner of the goods, and that person transfers the document to a person who takes the document in good faith, and for valuable consideration, the last mentioned transfer shall have the same effect for defeating any vendor's lien or right of stoppage in transitu as the transfer of a bill of lading has for defeating the right of stoppage in transitu.

Acts, 1895, c. 11, § 10.

Miscellaneous.

Transfer of document by indorsement or delivery, etc. 12. For the purposes of this Chapter the transfer of a document may be by indorsement, or where the document is by custom or by its express terms transferable by delivery, or makes the goods deliverable to the bearer, then by delivery.

Acts, 1895, c. 11, § 11.

Agent not authorized by Chapter to exceed his authority, etc. Nothing herein to prevent owner from recovering goods from agent in certain cases. Nothing to prevent owner recovering price from buyer of goods sold by agent subject to set-off, etc. 13. 1. Nothing in this Chapter shall authorize an agent to exceed or depart from his authority as between himself and his principal, or exempt him from any liability for so doing. 2. Nothing in this Chapter shall prevent the owner of goods from recovering the goods from an agent at any time before the sale or pledge thereof, or shall prevent the owner of goods pledged by an agent from having the right to redeem the goods at any time before the sale thereof, on satisfying the claim for which the goods were pledged and paying to the agent, if by him required, any money in respect to which the agent would, by law, be entitled to retain the goods or the documents of title thereto, or any of them, by way of lien as against the owner, or from recovering from any person with whom the goods have been pledged any balance of money remaining in his hands, as the produce of the sale of the goods, after deducting the amount of his lien. 3. Nothing in this Chapter shall prevent the owner of goods sold by an agent from recovering from the buyer the price agreed to be paid for the same, or any part of that price, subject to any right of set-off on the part of the buyer against the agent.

Acts, 1895, c. 11, § 12.

Provisions of Chapter, how to be construed. 14. The provisions of this Chapter shall be construed in amplification and not in derogation of the powers exercisable by an agent independently of this Chapter.

Acts, 1895, c. 11, § 13.

Bills of Lading.*Rev. St. 1900, c. 148. Of Bills of Lading.

Consignees of goods and indorseees of bills of lading to acquire rights. 1. Every consignee of goods named in a bill of lading and every indorsee of a bill of lading to whom the property in the goods therein mentioned passes upon or by reason of such consignment or indorsement, shall have transferred to and vested in him all rights of action and be subject to the same liabilities in respect to such goods as if the contract contained in the bill of lading had been made to himself.

Not to prejudice right of stoppage in transitu. 2. Nothing in this Chapter contained shall prejudice or affect any right of stoppage in transitu, or any right to claim freight against the original shipper or owner, or any liability of the consignee or indorsee by reason of his being such consignee or indorsee, or of his receipt of the goods by reason or in consequence of such consignment or indorsement.

Acts, 1888, c. 30, § 2.

Bill of lading, when to be evidence of shipment against person signing same. 3. Every bill of lading in the hands of a consignee or indorsee for valuable consideration, representing goods to have been shipped on board a vessel or train, shall be conclusive evidence of such shipment as against the master or other person signing the same, notwithstanding that such goods or some part thereof have not been so shipped, unless such holder of the bill of lading has actual notice at the time of receiving the same that the goods had not in fact been laden on board, or unless such bill of lading has a stipulation to the contrary; but the master or other person so signing may exonerate himself in respect to such misrepresentation by shewing that it was caused without any default on his part, and wholly by the fraud of the shipper, or of the holder, or of some person under whom the holder claims.

Acts, 1888, c. 30, § 2. In the absence of legislative enactments a railway or steamship company may exempt itself from liability for injury, however caused, including injuries caused by the gross negligence, fraud, or dishonesty of its employees. Dodson v. Grand Trunk Railway Co. (1871), 8 N. S. 405. A bill of lading contained the following provision: "Loss or damage from . . . . ."

leakage, breakage, rust, decay, frost, rain, injury to or soiling of wrappers or packages, however caused, . . . excepted; the goods are to be taken from alongside by the consignee immediately the vessel is ready to discharge, or otherwise they will be landed by the master and deposited at the expense of the consignee and at his risk of fire, loss, or injury in the warehouse provided for that purpose on the company's wharf at Halifax, or sent to the public store, as the collector at the port of Halifax shall direct." The vessel proceeded on her arrival in port to the railway wharf, and in order to discharge other goods the consignee's goods were taken out and deposited in a shed on the wharf. The consignee was aware of the arrival of the ship and paid the freight, but was unable to obtain delivery at the railway wharf, as the approach was unfit for teams. The agent of the ship afterwards sent the goods in a lighter to Corbett's wharf. The goods were injured by rain either on the railway wharf or in the shed. Held, that the landing of the goods at the railway wharf did not discharge the carrier, who was liable, notwithstanding the exceptions in the bill of lading, for the injury to the goods by rain. — Robertson v. Dominion Steamship Co. (1879) 13 N. S. 149. Where a bill of lading provided that "claims, if any, for loss by damage, short delivery, or any other cause, shall at the option of the ship's owners be settled direct with the agents of the line in Liverpool, according to British law with reference to which this contract is made, to the exclusion of proceedings in any other country," and the defendant carriers were not residents of Nova Scotia, it was held that as there was an uncertainty as to the sufficiency of the words of the contract to exclude the jurisdiction of the Nova Scotia Court, the proper course was to allow service abroad, leaving the meaning of the provision to be discovered subsequently. — Stairs v. Allan, (1896), 28 N. S. 410. Where a bill of lading provided for the carriage of goods from Nova Scotia to Liverpool and their delivery there to a steamer of the Cunard line, to be carried to a port in Italy, and contained a condition that "any claim or dispute arising on this bill of lading shall be determined according to English law in England," it was held that an action brought against the carrier for failure to deliver the goods to a steamer of the Cunard line, as agreed, could not be brought in a Nova Scotia court. — Hart & Son v. Furness, Withy & Co., (1904), 37 N. S. 74. As to what constitutes a reasonable time for the carriage of certain perishable goods, see Bauld v. Smith, (1901), 40 N. S. 294. Where goods are shipped by rail addressed to the care of the carrier's agent at a particular station the carrier upon the arrival of the goods becomes a bailee and liable for the reasonable care and custody thereof. — Bell v. Windsor & Annapolis Railway Co., (1892), 24 N. S. 521.

Assignments and Creditors' Relief.

a) Rev. St. 1900, c. 145. Of Assignments and Preferences by Insolvent Persons.

Short title.

Short title. 1. This Chapter may be cited as The Assignments Act.

Interpretation.

Interpretation. 2. In this Chapter, unless the context otherwise requires:

a) The expression "insolvent person" means any person who is in insolvent circumstances, or is unable to pay his debts in full, or knows himself to be about to become insolvent; b) The expression "transfer" includes gift, conveyance, assignment, delivery over, or payment of property; c) The expression "property" means goods, chattels or effects, bills, notes, or securities, shares, dividends, premiums, or bonus in any bank, company, or corporation, and every other description of property, real and personal; d) The expression "Judge" means a Judge of the Supreme Court, or the Judge of the County Court for the county in which an assignment under this Chapter is registered.

Confession of judgment, assignment, etc., in fraud of creditors.

Confession of judgment in fraud of creditors made void. 3. If any insolvent person, voluntarily or by collusion with a creditor or creditors, gives a confession of judgment, cognovit actionem, or warrant of attorney to confess judgment, with intent in giving the same: a) To defeat or delay his creditors wholly or in part; or b) Thereby to give one or more of his creditors a preference over his other creditors, or over any one or more of such creditors, every such confession, cognovit actionem, or warrant of attorney to confess judgment shall be deemed and taken to be null and void as against the creditors of the person giving the same, and shall be invalid and ineffectual to support any judgment or writ of execution.

Preferences made void. When transfer deemed to give an unjust preference. "Creditor" includes surety. 4. 1. Every transfer of property made by an insolvent person: a) With intent to defeat, hinder, delay, or prejudice his creditors, or any one or more of them; or b) To or for a creditor with intent to give such creditor an unjust preference over other creditors of such insolvent person, or over any one or more of such creditors; shall as against the creditor or creditors, injured, delayed, prejudiced, or postponed, be utterly void. 2. If any such transfer to or for a creditor has the effect of giving such creditor a preference over the other creditors of such insolvent person, or over any one or more of them, such transfer shall: a) In and with respect to any action or proceeding which is brought, had or taken to impeach or set aside such transfer within sixty days after the giving of the same; or b) If such insolvent person makes an assignment for the benefit of his creditors within sixty days from the giving of such transfer, be presumed to have been made with intent to give such creditor an unjust preference as aforesaid, and to be an unjust preference, whether such transfer was made voluntarily or under pressure. 3. Where the word "creditor" in this section indicates the creditor to whom a preference is given over the other creditors of the insolvent person such word shall be deemed to include any surety, and the indorser of any promissory note, or bill of exchange, who would upon payment by him of the debt, promissory note, or bill of exchange, in respect to which such suretyship was entered into or such indorsement given, become a creditor of the person giving the preference within the meaning of this section.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, § 2. Where an assignment was made to an assignee who was in the employ of the assignor, and the evidence showed that immediately after the making of the assignment the goods were handed to the assignee, who took possession, notified creditors, caused notices to be inserted in the newspapers and proceeded to sell, it was held that there was a sufficient change of possession. — McMullin v. Buchanan, (1893), 26 N. S. 146. — Where a deed of assignment containing preferences is declared void under the statutes of Elizabeth, and subsequently, before any lien has been acquired by creditors in an action to set aside the deed, the assignee pays a preferred creditor, he does not become personally liable; the remedy of the creditors is against the property itself wherever it can be found. — Taylor v. McKinnon, (1896), 29 N. S. 162; Taylor v. Cummings, (1897), 27 S. C. C. 589.

Certain transactions not affected. 5. 1. Nothing in the next preceding section shall apply: a) To any assignment made to an official assignee for the county in which the debtor resides or carries on business for the purpose of paying ratably and proportionately, and without preference or priority, all the creditors of the debtor their just debts; or b) To any bona fide sale or payment made in the ordinary course of trade or calling to innocent purchasers or parties; or c) To any payment of money to a creditor; or d) To any bona fide gift, conveyance, assignment, transfer, or delivery over of any property which is made in consideration of any present actual bona fide payment in money, or by way of security for any present actual bona fide advance of money, or which is made in consideration of any present actual bona fide sale or delivery of property; provided that the money paid, or the property sold or delivered, bears a fair and reasonable relative value to the consideration therefor.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, § 3; 1899, c. 53, § 1. An assignment containing preferences in favour of certain creditors and creating, subject to such preferences, a trust in favour of all the assignor's creditors is an assignment for the general benefit of creditors within the meaning of the Bill of Sale Act, and does not require an affidavit of bona fides. — Kirk v. Chisholm, (1896), 26 S. C. C. 111; approving Durkee v. Flint, (1886), 19 N. S. 487.

Assignments not to official assignee made void. 6. [As amended by Acts, 1901, c. 34, § 1.] Every assignment for the general benefit of creditors not made to the official assignee shall be void.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, § 3 (2); Acts, 1899, c. 53, § 1.

Transfer of consideration. 7. In case of valid sale of goods, securities, or property, and payment or transfer of the consideration or part thereof, by the purchaser to a creditor of the vendor under circumstances which would render void such a payment or transfer, by the debtor personally and directly, the payment or transfer even though valid as respects the purchaser, shall be void as respects the creditor to whom the same is made.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, § 3 (1).

Security given up on void payment restored. 8. If a payment has been made which is void under this Chapter, and any valuable security was given up in consideration of such payment, the creditor shall be entitled to have such security restored, or its value made good to him before, or as a condition of, the return of the payment.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, § 3 (3).

Payment where security given up not affected. 9. Nothing in the preceding provisions shall affect: a) Any payment of money to a creditor, where such creditor, by reason or on account of such payment, has lost or been deprived of, or has in good faith given up, any valid security which he held for the payment of the debt so paid, unless the value of the security is restored to the creditor; or b) Any substitution in good faith of one security for another for the same debt as far as the debtor's estate is not thereby lessened in value to the other creditors.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, § 3 (4). A deed of assignment giving first preference to certain named creditors and naming certain other persons creditors of the assignors as preferential creditors for any sums due to them in consequence of the retirement or payment by them of any bill of exchange or promissory notes upon which they were directly or contingently liable with the assignor, and providing further for the distribution of the residue among the remaining creditors executing the assignment, and finally, to pay the surplus to the remaining creditors not executing the deed, was held to be not of an unreasonable character. — Maguire v. Hart, (1898), 28 S. C. C. 272; affirming Hart v. Maguire, (1896), 29 N. S. 181.

Form, etc., of assignment. 10. Every assignment made under this Chapter for the general benefit of creditors shall be valid and sufficient if it is made to an official assignee and is in the words following, that is to say: all my personal property which may be seized and sold under execution, and all my real property, credits and effects, or if it is in words to like effect; and an assignment so expressed shall vest in the assignee all the real and personal property, rights, credits, and effects, whether vested or contingent, belonging at the time of the assignment to the assignor, except such as are by law exempt from seizure or sale under execution; subject, however, as regards land to the provisions of The Registry Act.

Mistake etc., not to vitiate. 11. No advantage shall be taken or gained by any creditor of any mistake, defect, or imperfection in any assignment under this Chapter for the general benefit of creditors if the same can be amended or corrected, and if there is any mistake, defect, or imperfection therein, the same shall be amended by a Judge on any application of the assignee, or of any creditor of the assignor, on such notice being given to other parties concerned as the Judge thinks reasonable, and the amendment, when made, shall have relation back to the date of such assignment.

Publication and registration of assignment.

Notice of assignment. 12. A notice of any assignment made for the general benefit of creditors under this Chapter shall, as soon as conveniently may be after the execution thereof, be published at least twice in the Royal Gazette, and not less than twice in one newspaper at least having a general circulation in the county in which the property assigned is situated.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, § 13.

Registration of assignment. 13. 1. A counterpart or copy of every assignment made under this Chapter, together with an affidavit of a witness thereto of the due execution of the assignment of which the copy filed purports to be a copy, shall within five days from the execution thereof be filed: a) If the assignor at the time of the execution of such assignment is a resident of Nova Scotia, in the registry of deeds for the registration district in which he resides; or b) If the assignor is not such a resident, in the registry of deeds for the registration district in which the personal property assigned is situated, or if such property is in more than one such district then in the registry of deeds for the district in which the principal part of such property is situated. 2. The Registrar of Deeds shall file all such assignments presented to him for that purpose, and shall number and enter the same in a book to be kept for that purpose, and shall indorse upon each assignment the time the same was received by him, and such assignments shall be kept in such registry for the inspection of all persons interested therein. 3. The Registrar shall be entitled to receive a fee of fifty cents for filing such assignment and affidavit and for making all proper indorsements in connection therewith.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, § 13 (2).

Penalties for failure to publish notice and register. 14. 1. If the said notice of the assignment is not published in the regular number of the Royal Gazette, and of such newspaper as is by this Chapter directed, which are respectively issued first after five days from the execution of the assignment by the assignor, or if the assignment is not registered as directed within five days from the execution thereof, the assignor shall be liable to a penalty of twenty-five dollars for every day which passes after the issue of the number of the newspaper in which the notice should have appeared until the same has been published; and a like penalty for every day which passes after the expiration of five days from the execution of the assignment by the assignor, until the same has been registered. 2. The official assignee shall be subject to a like penalty for failure to publish notice of and to register any assignment for every day which passes after the expiration of five days from the delivery of the assignment to him, or of five days after his assent thereto, the burden of proving the time of such delivery or assent being upon the assignee. 3. One-half of any such penalty when recovered shall go to the person suing therefor and the other half for the benefit of the estate of the assignor. 4. The official assignee shall not be liable for any of the penalties imposed in this section unless he has been paid or tendered the cost of advertising and registering the assignment, nor shall he be compelled to act under the assignment until the costs in that behalf are paid or tendered to him.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, § 14.

Judge may direct publication and registration. 15. If the assignment is not registered, and notice thereof published, an application may be made by any one interested in the assignment to a Judge to compel the publication and registration thereof, and the Judge shall make an order in that behalf, with or without costs, or upon payment of costs by such person as in his discretion he directs to pay the same.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, § 15.

Failure to publish, etc., is not to vitiate. 16. The omission to publish or register as aforesaid, or any irregularity in the publication or registration, shall not invalidate the assignment.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, § 16.

Disposition of estate.

Estate not to be removed out of Province. Moneys to be deposited. Penalty. 17. 1. No property or assets of an estate assigned under the provisions of this Chapter, shall be removed out of Nova Scotia without the order of a Judge. 2. The proceeds of the sales of such estate and any part thereof, and all moneys received on account thereof, shall be deposited by the assignee in an incorporated bank within the Province, and shall not be withdrawn or removed therefrom without the order of a Judge, except in payment of dividends and charges incidental to the winding-up of the estate. 3. Any assignee or other person acting in his stead, or on his behalf, who violates the provisions of this section, shall be liable to a penalty of four hundred dollars, and one half of the said penalty shall go to the person suing therefor, and the other half shall belong to the estate of the assignor; and in default of payment of the said penalty and all costs which are incurred in any action or proceeding for the recovery thereof, such assignee or other person may be imprisoned for any period not exceeding thirty days, and shall be liable to forfeit his office of official assignee.

Change of assignee.

Creditors may change assignee. 18. 1. A majority in number and value of the creditors who have proved claims to the amount of one hundred dollars or upwards, may at their discretion substitute for the official assignee a person residing in the county in which the debtor resided or carried on business at the time of the assignment. 2. An assignee may also be removed and another assignee may be substituted, or an additional assignee may be appointed by a Judge.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, § 8; Acts, 1899, c. 53, § 2.

Estate, how vested on change of assignee. 19. Where a new assignee is appointed the estate shall forthwith vest in him without a conveyance or transfer, and he shall register an affidavit of his appointment in the registry of deeds for the registration district in which the original assignment was filed, and the registration of such affidavit shall have the same effect as the execution and registration of a conveyance from the original assignee.

Recovery of estate.

Assignee, power of to sue. Creditor may take proceedings. 20. 1. Except as in this section is otherwise provided, the assignee shall have the exclusive right of suing for the rescission of agreements, deeds, and instruments or other transactions made or entered into in fraud of creditors, or made or entered into in violation of this Chapter. 2. If at any time any creditor desires to cause any proceeding to be taken which, in his opinion, would be for the benefit of the estate, and the assignee under the authority of the creditors refuses or neglects to take such proceeding, after being duly required so to do, the creditor shall have the right to obtain an order of a Judge authorizing him to take the proceeding in the name of the assignee, but at his own expense and risk, upon such terms and conditions as to indemnity to the assignee, as the Judge prescribes; and thereupon any benefit derived from the proceeding shall belong exclusively to the creditor instituting the same for his benefit: provided that if, before such order is granted, the assignee signifies to the Judge his readiness to institute such proceeding for the benefit of the creditors, the order shall prescribe the time within which he shall do so, and in that case the advantage derived from the proceeding, if instituted within such time, shall appertain to the estate. 3. (Added by Acts, 1902, c. 12, § 3.) After an assignment under this Chapter has been made the assignee shall have the right to be substituted for any party who has commenced proceedings under any of the provisions of this Chapter for the rescissions of agreements, deeds and instruments, or other transactions made and entered into in fraud of creditors or in violation of this Chapter, upon such terms as the Court or a Judge orders.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, § 9.

Money may be recovered as property. 21. [As amended by Acts, 1904, c. 31, § 1.] 1. In the case of a transfer of any property which in law is invalid against creditors, if the person to whom the transfer was made shall have sold or disposed of, realized or collected, the property or any part thereof, the money or other proceeds may be seized or recovered in any action by a person who would be entitled to seize and recover the property if it had remained in the possession or control of the debtor or of the person to whom the transfer was made, and such right to seize and recover shall belong, not only to an assignee for the general benefit of the creditors of the said debtor, but in case there is no such assignment shall exist in favor of all creditors of such debtor. 2. Where there has been no assignment for the benefit of creditors, and the proceeds are of a character to be seizable under execution, they may be seized under the execution of any creditor, and shall be distributable amongst the creditors under The Creditors' Relief Act or otherwise. 3. Where there has been no assignment for the benefit of creditors, and whether the proceeds realized as aforesaid are or are not of a character to be seized under execution, an action may be brought therefor by a creditor (whether an execution creditor or not), on behalf of himself and all other creditors, or such other proceedings may be taken as may be necessary to render the said proceeds available for the general benefit of the creditors. 4. This section shall not apply as against innocent purchasers of the property.

Wages and salaries.

Wages etc., of employees, priority of. 22. Whenever an assignment is made of any real or personal property for the general benefit of creditors under the provisions of this Chapter, the assignee shall pay in priority to the claims of the ordinary or general creditors of the person making the same, the wages or salaries of all persons in the employment of such person at the time of making such assignment or within one month before the making thereof, not exceeding three months' wages or salary; and such persons shall be entitled to rank as ordinary or general creditors for the residue, if any, of their claims.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, § 7.

Meetings of creditors.

First meeting of creditors, how called. 23. It shall be the duty of the assignee immediately upon the execution of the assignment to inform himself, by reference to the assignor and his records of account, of the names and residences of the assignor's creditors, and within five days from the date of assignment to convene a meeting of the creditors for the giving of directions with reference to the disposal of the estate, by mailing prepaid and registered to every creditor known to him a circular calling a meeting of creditors to be held at a convenient place to be named in the notice, not later than twelve days after the mailing of such notice, and by advertisement in the Royal Gazette; and all other meetings to be held shall be called in like manner.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, §§ 17, 18 (2).

Assignee may direct as to meeting. 24. [As amended by Acts, 1901, c. 34, § 2.] If a sufficient number of creditors do not attend such meeting, or fail to give directions with reference to the disposal of the estate, the disposal of the same shall be in the discretion of the assignee.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, § 18 (2).

Creditors may compel calling of meeting. 25. 1. If a request in writing, signed by a majority of the creditors having claims duly proved of one hundred dollars and upwards, computed in the manner hereinafter directed, is made upon the assignee, he shall within two days after receiving such request call a meeting of the creditors at a time not later than twelve days after the receipt by him of such request. 2. If the assignee fails to call such meeting when so requested he shall be liable to a penalty of twenty-five dollars for every day after the expiration of the time limited for the calling of the meeting until the meeting is called.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, § 18.

Voting at meetings.

Voting at meetings, how regulated. 26. At any meeting of creditors any creditor may vote in person, or by proxy authorized in writing, but no creditor whose vote is disputed shall be entitled to vote until he has filed with the assignee an affidavit in proof of his claim, stating the nature and amount thereof.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, § 19.

Calculation of Votes. 27. 1. Except for the purpose of making a change of assignee all questions discussed at meetings of creditors shall be decided by the majority of votes, and for such purpose the votes of creditors shall be calculated as follows: For every claim of or over $ 100, and not exceeding $ 200 — 1 vote. For every claim of or over $ 200, and not exceeding $ 500 — 2 votes. For every claim of or over $ 500, and not exceeding $ 1,000 — 3 votes. For every additional $ 1,000, or fraction thereof — 1 vote. 2. No person shall be entitled to vote on a claim which he has acquired after the assignment unless the entire claim is acquired but this shall not apply to persons acquiring notes, bills or other securities upon which they are liable. 3. In case of a tie, the assignee, or, if there are two assignees, then the assignee appointed by the creditors, or by the Judge, if none has been appointed by the creditors, shall have a casting vote.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, § 20.

Ranking and proof of claims.

Individual and partnership estates, ranking upon. 28. If any assignor executing an assignment under this Chapter for the general benefit of creditors owes debts both individually and as a member of a partnership, or as a member of two different partnerships, the claims shall rank first upon the estate by which the debts they represent were contracted, and shall only rank upon the other after all the creditors of that other have been paid in full.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, § 6.

Secured claims. 29. Every creditor in his proof of claim shall state whether he holds any security for his claim or any part thereof; and if such security is on the estate of the debtor, or on the estate of a third party for whom such debtor is only secondarily liable, he shall put a specified value thereon, and the assignee under the authority of the creditors may either consent to the right of the creditor to rank for the claim after deducting such valuation, or he may require from the creditor an assignment of the security at an advance of ten per cent. upon the specified value, to be paid out of the estate as soon as the assignee has realized such security; and in such case the difference between the value at which the security is retained and the amount of the gross claim of the creditor shall be the amount for which he shall rank and vote in respect to the estate.

Negotiable instruments, ranking in respect to. 30. If a creditor holds a claim based upon a negotiable instrument, upon which the insolvent is only secondarily liable, and which has not matured at the time of proving the claim, such creditor in his proof of claim shall set a value upon the liability of the person primarily liable thereon, and the difference between such value and the amount of the claim shall, until the instrument matures, be the amount at which the claim shall be calculated for the purpose of voting at meetings and other purposes, except the payment of dividends thereon, or collocation in the dividend sheets; but after the maturity of such instrument, the claim shall be calculated for all purposes at the full amount, less any sum paid on account thereof by the person primarily liable on such negotiable instrument.

Valuing of securities. 30 A. [Added by Acts, 1902, c. 12, § 1.] In case a person claiming to be entitled to rank on the estate assigned holds security for his claim or any part thereof, of such a nature that he is required by this Act to value the same, and he fails to value such security, a Judge may, upon summary application by the assignee or by any other person interested in the debtor's estate, of which application ten days' notice shall be given to such claimant, order that unless a specified value shall be placed on such security, and notified in writing to the assignee within a time to be limited by the order, such claimant shall, in respect of the claim, or the part thereof for which the security is held in case the security is held for part only of the claim, be wholly barred of any right to share in the proceeds of such estate; and if a specified value is not placed on such security and notified in writing to the assignee according to the exigency of the said order, or within such further time as the said Judge may by subsequent order allow, the said claim, or the said part, as the case may be, shall be wholly barred as against such estate, but without prejudice to the liability of the debtor therefor.

Set off. 31. The law of set-off shall apply to all claims made against the estate, and also to all actions instituted by the assignee, for the recovery of debts due to the assignor, in the same manner and to the same extent as if the assignor were plaintiff or defendant, as the case may be, except in so far as any claim is affected by the provisions of this Chapter or any other enactment respecting frauds or unjust preferences.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, § 24.

Particulars of claim. 32. Every person claiming to be entitled to rank on the estate assigned shall furnish to the assignee particulars of his claim, proved by affidavit, and such vouchers as the nature of the case admits of.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, § 21 (1).

Proofs of claim, compelling furnishing of. 33. [As amended by Acts, 1901, c. 34, § 3.] If any person claiming to be entitled to rank on the estate assigned does within a reasonable time after receiving notice of the assignment, and of the name and address of the assignee, furnish to the assignee particulars and proofs of his claim as provided by this Chapter, the assignee may issue a final notice by registered letter mailed to such person requiring him within a time stated in the notice to furnish such particulars and proofs of his claim on penalty of being debarred from participation in the proceeds of the estate; and if the particulars and proofs of such claim are not furnished within the time stated in such notice, the same shall be wholly barred, and the assignee shall be at liberty to distribute the proceeds of the estate as if no such claim existed, but without prejudice to the liability of the debtor therefor. The time stated in such notice shall in the case of creditors resident within the Province be not less than thirty days, and of those resident without the Province, not less than sixty days.

Claims not accrued due. 34. A person whose claim has not accrued due shall nevertheless be entitled to prove under the assignment and vote at meetings of creditors, but in ascertaining the amount of any such claim a deduction for interest shall be made for the time which has to run until the claim becomes due.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, § 21 (3).

Contestation of claims.

Contestation of claims. 35. 1. At any time after the assignee receives from any person claiming to be entitled to rank on the estate proof of his claim, notice of contestation of the claim may, at the request of any creditor, be served by the assignee upon the claimant. Within thirty days after the receipt of the notice, or such further time as a Judge on application allows, an action shall be brought by the claimant against the assignee to establish the claim, and a copy of the writ in the action served on the assignee; and in default of such action being brought and writ served within the time aforesaid, the claim to rank on the estate shall be forever barred. 2. The notice by the assignee shall contain the name and place of business of one of the solicitors of the Supreme Court, upon whom service of the writ may be made, and service upon such solicitor shall be deemed sufficient service of the writ.

Dividends.

Accounts to be kept. 36. Upon the expiration of one month from the first meeting of creditors, or as soon as may be after the expiration of such period, but not more than three months thereafter, and afterwards from time to time at intervals of not more than three months, the assignee shall prepare and keep, constantly accessible to the creditors, accounts and statements of his doings as such assignee, and of the position of the estate.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, § 22.

Dividends, duty of assignee to pay. 37. As large a dividend as can with safety be paid shall be paid by every assignee under this Chapter, within twelve months from the date of any assignment made thereunder, and earlier if required by vote of the creditors, and thereafter a further dividend shall be paid every six months, and more frequently if required by the creditors, until the estate is wound up and disposed of.

Dividend sheet. 38. So soon as a dividend sheet is prepared, notice thereof shall be given by letter mailed, postage prepaid, to each creditor, enclosing an abstract of receipts and disbursements, shewing what interest has been received by the assignee for moneys in his hands, together with a copy of the dividend sheet, noting thereon the claims objected to and stating whether any reservation has or has not been made therefor; and after the expiry of eight days from the date of mailing such notice, abstract, and dividend sheet as aforesaid, dividends on all claims not objected to within that period shall be paid.

Official assignees.

Appointment of official assignees. 39. [As amended by Acts, 1904, c. 31, § 2.] 1. The Governor-in-Council may in each county appoint one or more persons to be official assignees, who shall perform the duties and exercise the powers imposed by this Chapter. 2. Every person so appointed shall before entering upon any duties or exercising any powers as an official assignee, file in the office of the Provincial Secretary a bond to His Majesty in such sum and with such sureties as is directed and approved by the Governor-in-Council, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties as such official assignee. 3. Every person at present holding office as an official assignee, under this Chapter, shall within thirty days from the passing of this Act file in the office of the Provincial Secretary a bond to His Majesty in such sum and with such sureties as is directed and approved by the Governor-in-Council, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties as such official assignee. Any such official assignee failing to file such bond within said period shall be subject to immediate removal.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, § 27.

Their remuneration. 40. 1. The assignee shall receive such remuneration as is voted to him by the creditors at any meeting, subject to the review of a Judge, if complained of by the assignee or any creditor. 2. [As amended by Acts, 1902, c. 12, § 4]. If no remuneration is voted to the assignee by the creditors, the amount thereof shall be fixed by a Judge, not exceeding five per cent. of the gross proceed of the estate.

Acts, 1898, c. 11, § 12; Acts, 1899, c. 53, § 7.

Examination of debtor. 41. [Added by Acts, 1902, c. 12, § 2.] 1. Where there has been an assignment for the benefit of creditors the assignee or assignees, upon resolution passed by a majority vote of the creditors present, or represented at a meeting of the creditors of the assignor regularly called, may without an order examine the assignor or any person who is or has been agent, clerk, servant, officer, or employee of any kind of the assignor, upon oath before a master of the Supreme Court or before a Judge or before any official referee, or may by the order of the Court or of such Judge examine the assignor on oath before any person to be specially named in such order, touching the estate and effects of the assignor, and as to the property and means he had when the earliest of the debts or liabilities of the assignor existing at the date of the assignment was incurred, and as to the property and means he still has of discharging his debts and liabilities, and as to the disposal he has made of any property since contracting such debt or incurring such liability, and as to any and what debts are owing to him. 2. The rules and procedure from time to time in force in the Supreme Court for the examination of judgment debtors shall, as far as may be, apply to an examination under this Act of an assignor in all respects as if the assignor were a judgment debtor. 3. In case such assignor does not attend as required by the said appointment and order, as the case may be, and does not allege a sufficient excuse for not attending, or if attending refuses to disclose his property or his transactions respecting the same or does not make satisfactory answers respecting the same, or if it appears from such examination that such assignor has concealed or made away with his property in order to defeat or defraud his creditors, or any of them, the Court or a Judge may order the assignor to be committed to the common gaol of the county in which he resides for any term not exceeding twelve months.

Summons and fees. 42. [Added by Acts, 1902, c. 12, § 2.] 1. Any person liable to be examined under the next preceding section of this Act may be served with an appointment signed by the Judge or officer, or a copy thereof, and where the examination is to take place under an order also with a copy of the order; such service to be made at least forty-eight hours before the time appointed for the examination; and the person to be examined is to be paid the same fees as a witness is paid in cases in the Supreme Court. 2. The examination shall be conducted in the same manner as in the case of an oral examination of an opposite party.

Compulsory attendance of witnesses. 43. [Added by Acts, 1902, c. 12, § 2.] Any person liable to be examined under section 41 of this Act, may be compelled to attend and testify and to produce books and documents in the same manner and subject to the same rules of examination and the same consequences of neglecting to attend or refusing to disclose the matters in respect to which he may be examined as in the case of a witness in an action in the Supreme Court.

Same. 44. [Added by Acts, 1902, c. 12, § 2.] 1. In case any person has, or is believed or suspected to have, in his possession or power, any book, document, or paper of any kind, relating in whole or in part to the debtor, his dealings or property, such person may upon resolution passed by a majority vote of the creditors present or represented at a regularly called meeting of the creditors of the assignor, exclusive of such person (if he is a creditor) be required by the assignee to produce such statement or statements for the information of such assignee. 2. In case such person fails to produce the said book, document, or other paper within four days of his being served with a copy of the said resolution, and a request of the assignee in that behalf, or in case the assignee is not satisfied that full production has been made, the assignee may without an order examine the said person before any of the officers mentioned in section 41 of this Act, touching any book, document, or other paper which he is supposed to have received. 3. Any such person may be compelled to attend and testify, and to produce upon his examination any book, document, or other paper which under this section he is liable to produce, in the same manner and subject to the same rules of examination, and the same consequences of neglecting to attend or refusing to disclose the matters in respect of which he may be examined, as in the case of a witness in an action in the Supreme Court.

Precedence of assignments. 45. [As added by Acts, 1908, c. 21, § 1.] An assignment for the general benefit of creditors under this Chapter shall take precedence of all attachments and of all executions not completely executed by payment; provided, however, that this section shall not apply to lands.

b) Acts, 1901, c. 34. An Act to amend the Assignments Act (4th April, 1901).

c) Acts, 1902, c. 12. An Act to amend Chapter 145 Revised Statutes, 1900, The Assignments Act, (27th March, 1902).

[This Act adds §§ 30 A, 41—44 to R. S. c. 145, and amends §§ 20 and 40 thereof, all of which are there incorporated.]

e) Acts, 1908, c. 21. An Act to amend Chapter 145, Revised Statutes, 1900, The Assignments Act, (16th April, 1908).

f) Acts, 1903, c. 14. An Act to prevent Priority among Execution Creditors (11th April, 1903).

Short title.

Short title. 1. This Act may be cited as The Creditors' Relief Act.

Interpretation.

Interpretation. 2. In this Act the word "sheriff" shall include coroners; the word "judge" shall mean the judge of the County Court of the district in which the claims are filed, and shall include a judge of another district authorized to act for the judge of the County Court for the district in which the claims are filed. The word "clerk" means a clerk of the County Court for a county, and includes local deputy clerks.

Application.

Execution creditors, no priority among. 3. Subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, there shall be no priority among creditors in the distribution of proceeds of personal property taken under execution from the Supreme Court or County Courts.

Sheriff's duties and creditors right in case of levy. 4. 1. In case a sheriff levies money upon an execution against the personal property of a debtor where the amount indorsed to levy is one hundred dollars ($ 100) or upwards he shall forthwith enter in a book to be kept in his office, open to public inspection without charge, a notice stating that such levy has been made, and the amount thereof; and the money shall thereafter be distributed ratably amongst all execution creditors and other creditors whose writs or certificates given under this Act were in the sheriff's hands at the time of the levy, or who shall deliver their writs or certificates to the said sheriff within one month from the entry of the notice; subject, however, to provisions hereinafter contained as to the retention of dividends in the case of contested claims, and to the payment of the costs of the creditor under whose writ the amount was made. 2. The notice shall state the day upon which it was entered, and may be in form "A" given in the Schedule hereto. 3. The two preceding subsections shall not apply to any moneys received by a sheriff as the proceeds of a sale of property by him under an interpleader order; but upon the determination of the interpleader issue in favour of the creditors, the moneys, whether in the sheriff's hands or in Court pending the trial of the issue, shall be distributed by the sheriff among the creditors contesting the adverse claims. 4. Where proceedings are taken by the sheriff or other officer for relief under any provisions relating to interpleader, those creditors only who are parties thereto and who agree to contribute pro rata (in proportion to the amount of their executions or certificates) to the expense of contesting any adverse claim, shall be entitled to share in any benefit which may be derived from the contestation of such claim so far as may be necessary to satisfy their executions or certificates. The Court or judge may direct that one creditor shall have the carriage of the interpleader proceedings on behalf of all creditors interested, and the costs thereof, as between solicitor and client, shall be a first charge upon the moneys or goods which may be found by the proceedings to be applicable upon the executions or certificates. 5. "Adverse claim" in the next preceding subsection, shall mean any claim to contest which an interpleader issue is directed; and upon any interpleader's application the Court or judge shall have a discretion to allow to other creditors who desire to take part in the contest a reasonable time in which to place their executions in the sheriff's hands, upon such terms as to costs and otherwise as may be just and reasonable. 6. In case the sheriff shall subsequently to the entry of the notice, but within the month, levy a further amount from the property of a debtor, the same shall be dealt with as if such amount had been levied prior to the entry of the notice, but if after the month a further amount is levied, a new notice shall be entered, and the distribution to be made of the amount so levied, and of the further amount levied within a month of the entry of the last mentioned notice, shall be governed by the entry thereof in accordance with the foregoing provisions of the section; and so on from time to time.

Creditors entitled to share in distribution of money, when. 5. No creditor shall be entitled to share in the distribution of money levied from the property of a debtor unless, either by the delivery of a writ of execution or otherwise under this Act, he has established a claim against the debtor, either alone or jointly with some other person.

Creditors may institute proceedings for debts overdue or not, when. 6. If a debtor permits an execution issued against him, which is indorsed to levy for one hundred dollars ($ 100) or upwards, under which any of his goods or chattels are seized by a sheriff, to remain unsatisfied in the sheriff's hands till within two days of the time fixed by the sheriff for the sale thereof, or for twenty days after the seizure, the proceedings hereinafter authorized may be taken by other creditors as claimants in respect of debts, whether the same are overdue or not, provided however, that in any proceedings taken in respect of claims not due, there shall be a rebate of interest for the time which would elapse before such debt will be due.

Affidavit of claim.

Affidavit of claim. 7. 1. An affidavit, called the "affidavit of claim," to the effect of form "B" in the Schedule to this Act, of the debt and the particulars thereof may be made in duplicate by the creditor, or by one of the creditors in the case of a joint debt, or by a person cognizant of the facts; and prior to or simultaneously with the filing with the clerk of the County Court of the affidavit, there shall be filed with the clerk the certificate of the sheriff showing that such proceedings have been had against the debtor as entitle the creditor to proceed under this Act. 2. The claimant shall serve on the debtor one of the duplicates, and a notice stating that the claimant intends to file the other duplicate with the clerk of the County Court, by reason of there being in the sheriff's hands a writ of execution against the goods and chattels of the debtor, and that the claimant intends to call on the sheriff to levy the said debt out of the personal property of the debtor under the authority of this Act, which notice is to contain the other particulars shown in form "C", given in the Schedule to this Act. The notice may be either attached to the affidavit served, or indorsed thereon. Where the affidavit and notice are to be served out of Nova Scotia, the judge shall limit the time at which the next step may be taken by the claimant as hereinafter provided. 3. [Is repealed.]

Service upon debtor and claimant. 8. 1. An execution debtor may give notice in writing to the sheriff that any claims to be served upon him may be served upon any solicitor in the Province whose name and address shall be given, or by mailing the same to an address stated in the notice. The sheriff shall thereupon enter the notice in the said book in section 4 mentioned, and so long as any execution which was in the sheriff's hands at the time the notice was given shall remain in his hands, shall repeat such entry immediately below any notice (form "A"), given in respect of the execution, unless the notice be revoked in writing, in which case the entry or entries thereof shall be marked "revoked." 2. So long as the notice is not so revoked, an affidavit of claim made under this Act and the accompanying notice may, where a solicitor is named, be served upon an execution debtor by serving the same upon the solicitor, in accordance with this Act, or if mailing is required, then by mailing the same, enclosed in an envelope, postage prepaid, and registered, to the address given in the notice. 3. In case the notice (form "C") served on a debtor, does not state some place in or within three miles of the office of the clerk of the County Court with whom the affidavit of claim is filed, at which service may be made upon the claimant, or does not give the name and address of some solicitor in the Province who may be served on the claimant's behalf, service of any notice, paper, or document requiring service may be made upon the claimant by mailing the same prepaid and registered, enclosed in an envelope addressed to the claimant at the office of the clerk of the County Court with whom the affidavit of claim is filed. 4. The claimant shall file with the clerk of the County Court of the county the sheriff of which has the execution, one of the said duplicate affidavits of claim, and a copy of the said notice with an affidavit of due service, which affidavit may be in the form "D". 5. [As amended by Acts, 1904, c. 32, § 2.] The copy of the affidavit and the notice shall, where practicable, be personally served upon the debtor by any literate person; but if it be made to appear to a judge that the claimant is unable to effect prompt personal service, the judge may order substituted or other service, or may appoint some act to be done which shall be deemed sufficient service.

Certificate.

Certificate to be given by clerk if claim not contested. 9. 1. If the claim is not contested in manner hereinafter mentioned, the clerk of the County Court with whom the affidavit of claim is filed, after ten days from the day of personal service or services under sub-section 2 of section 8, or within the time mentioned in the order (as the case may be) on application and the filing with him of proof of personal service upon the debtor of an affidavit and notice in accordance with this Act, or proof of compliance with a judge's order in that behalf, or upon the determination of the dispute in favour of the claimant either in whole or in part, shall deliver to the creditor or any one in his behalf a certificate to the effect of form "E" in Schedule hereto, and in case the claim is only disputed as to a part the creditor may elect, by writing, filed with the clerk, to abandon such part and obtain a certificate as to the residue. 2. The certificate shall be delivered to the sheriff, and thereby from the time of the delivery the claimant shall be deemed to be an execution creditor within the meaning of this Act, and to be entitled to share in whatever is made under the executions of creditors in the sheriff's hands, as if he had delivered to the sheriff an execution against the goods, and the certificate shall in like manner bind the goods of the debtor; subject, however, to the debt being afterwards disputed by a creditor as hereinbefore provided. 3. A certificate under this Act shall in interpleader proceedings be deemed to be an execution. 4. If the certificate is obtained by a solicitor, the name and place of abode of the solicitor shall be indorsed thereon; and if the certificate is sued out by the claimant in person there shall be indorsed thereon a statement of some place in or within two miles of the office of the clerk of the County Court with whom the affidavit of claim is filed, at which service may be made upon the claimant, and in default thereof service of any notice, paper, or document requiring service, may be made upon the claimant by mailing the same prepaid and registered, enclosed in an envelope addressed to the claimant at the office of the clerk of the County Court with whom the affidavit of claim is filed. 5. On receiving the certificate, the sheriff shall make a further seizure of the goods and chattels (if any) of the debtor to the amount of the debt so claimed and the sheriff's fees; and so on from time to time, in case more certificates are received after the further seizure so made. 6. A certificate issued under this Act shall remain in force for one year from the date thereof, and no longer unless renewed, but such certificate may from time to time be renewed in the same manner as a writ of execution, but notwithstanding the expiry of a writ or certificate during the month within which a notice of levy having been made is under this Act required to be posted, the said writ and certificate shall, as to any money levied during such month, be deemed to be in full force and effect.

Contestation of claim.

Contestation of claim. 10. 1. The claim may be contested by the execution debtor or by a creditor interested in contesting the same. 2. If the debtor contests the claim he shall for that purpose file with the clerk of the County Court with whom the affidavit of claim is filed, an affidavit stating that he has a good defence to the claim, or to a specified part of the claim, on the merits, but the Judge may dispense with the affidavit on terms or otherwise. 3. The debtor shall file the affidavit and serve upon the claimant a copy thereof, within ten days after the personal service, or service under subsection 2 of section 8, upon him of the affidavit of claim and the notice, or within the time which the judge by an order dispensing with personal service directs, or within any further time the judge may allow. The affidavit shall have indorsed thereon a statement of some place in or within three miles of the office of the clerk of the County Court, with whom the affidavit of claim is filed, at which service may be made upon the debtor, or the address of some solicitor in the Province who may be served on the debtor's behalf, and in default thereof, service of any notice, paper or document, requiring service, may be made upon the debtor by mailing the same, prepaid and registered, enclosed in an envelope and addressed to the debtor at the office of the clerk of the County Court with whom the affidavit of claim is filed. 4. If the contest is by a creditor, he shall for that purpose file with the clerk of the County Court with whom the affidavit of claim is filed, an affidavit to the effect that he has reason to believe that the debt claimed is not really and in good faith due from the debtor to the claimant; the judge may dispense with the affidavit on terms or otherwise. 5. Such affidavit by a creditor may be so filed and a certificate thereof delivered to the sheriff at any time before distribution is made.

Sheriff's duty and proceedings to be taken by claimant when claim contested.

11. 1. In case of a claim being contested by a creditor after a certificate has been placed in the sheriff's hands, the sheriff, unless the judge otherwise orders, shall proceed and levy as if such contestation had not been made, and the sheriff shall until the determination of the contestation, retain in the bank the amount which would be apportionable to the claim if valid, and he shall as soon after the expiry of the said month as practicable distribute the residue of the money made amongst those entitled. 2. The claimant whose claim is contested may apply to a judge for an order allowing his claim and determining the amount; and in case he does not make such application within eight days of his receiving notice of the contestation (or within such further time, if any, as the judge, upon the delay being reasonably accounted for, may allow), he shall be taken to have abandoned his claim; if the contestant is a creditor and there is reason to believe that the contestation is not being carried on in good faith, any other creditor may apply for an order permitting him to intervene in the contest.

Disputed questions, how tried. 12. 1. The judge may determine any question in dispute in a summary manner, or may direct an action or issue for the trial of such question, and may make such order as to the costs of the proceedings as may be just. 2. Where there is a dispute as to material facts, and the sum in controversy appears to be over $ 400, exclusive of costs, the judge shall direct the trial to be in the Supreme Court, and may fix the place of trial, subject to any order which the Supreme Court or a judge thereof may see fit to make in that behalf. In case an issue is directed it shall be tried in all respects as if it had been an action in the Court in which it is ordered to be tried.

Examination of parties before or at trial. 13. The same proceedings may be had for the examination of parties and others either before or at the trial as may be taken in an ordinary action, and such proceedings may also be taken prior to the application to the judge and as a foundation therefor.

Proceedings in other county. 14. When a creditor has taken in one county the prescribed proceedings in respect of his claim, and desires to establish his claim for the purposes of this Act in another county also, he may do so by obtaining from the said County Court clerk another certificate (form "E"), and delivering the same to the sheriff of such other county, and the delivery of the certificate to the sheriff shall have the same effect for the purposes of this Act in the county in which the same takes place, from the day of the delivery, as if a new notice and affidavit of claim had been served for the county, and other proceedings had in respect thereof under the previous provisions of this Act.

Creditors entitled to certificate may sue out execution into any county. 15. A creditor entitled to a certificate from the county clerk may sue out a writ of execution against personal property into any county in the same manner as on an ordinary judgment.

Decision on contested claim in one county determines amount of claim in other counties. 16. In case a claim is contested in one county the decision thereon shall as between the parties to it determine the amount of the claim for the purposes of this Act in all other counties in which the claim is filed and the certificate of the clerk of the County Court of the county in which the trial has taken place of the result thereof shall be prima facie proof of the decision. A certificate shall upon payment of a fee of fifty cents be granted to any party to the proceedings who applies therefor.

Judgment in any Court other than Supreme or County, procedure in case of. 17. A creditor who has recovered a judgment in any Court other than in the Supreme Court or the County Court may serve upon the sheriff a memorandum of the amount of his judgment and of the costs to which he is entitled, certified under the hand of the clerk of the Court, in case there is such clerk, and if not under the hand of the presiding justice, and the memorandum so served shall have the same effect for the purposes of this Act as if the creditor had delivered to the sheriff a writ of execution directed to the said sheriff from a County Court or a certificate from such clerk under the provisions of this Act.

Entries to be made by clerk.

Entries to be made by clerk. 18. 1. The clerk of the county Court shall keep a book in which, before granting a certificate or issuing an execution for a claim, he shall enter the following particulars with reference to every claim in respect of which he gives a certificate under this Act: a) The name of the claimant and of the debtor. b) The date of entry of judgment. c) The amount of debt, exclusive of costs. d) The amount of costs. e) If the proceedings have been set aside, this fact, and shortly the reason therefor. 2. The entry shall for the purposes of this Act be an award of judgment for the debt and costs, and shall, except as to lands, have the same effect as an entry of judgment for non-appearance to a specially indorsed writ. The clerk shall index the entries in the book alphabetically under the name of every debtor. 3. If the original papers are lost or destroyed, a copy of the entry in the book shall be evidence of all matters therein set forth.

Judge may give debtor further time to pay claim in certain cases. 19. 1. With respect to claims, the judge, before or after a certificate is issued by the clerk under this Act or delivered to the sheriff, may, on the application of a debtor and notice to a claimant, give to the debtor further time to pay the claim where the judge is of opinion that this can be done without injustice to the creditor, or may give to the debtor further time on terms which in the opinion of the Judge may be just. There may be successive orders for this purpose, but no claim shall be delayed by such orders for more than three months in all. 2. This section shall not apply to creditors who have obtained judgment in the ordinary way; and the orders for time are not to prejudice executions obtained by such creditors on such judgments.

Payment by debtor. 20. 1. In case the debtor, without any sale by the sheriff, pays the full amount owing in respect of the executions and claims in the sheriff's hands at the time of such payment, and no other claim has been filed with the clerk of the County Court, or in case all executions and claims in the sheriff's hands are withdrawn, and any claims served are paid or withdrawn, no notice shall be entered as required by section 4 of this Act, and no further proceedings shall be taken under this Act against the debtor by virtue of the executions having been in the sheriff's hands. 2. Save as aforesaid, after a certificate has been filed with the sheriff, the withdrawal or expiry of the writ upon which the proceedings are founded, or any stay upon the writ, or the satisfaction of the plaintiff's claims thereon, or the setting aside or return of the writ, shall not affect the proceedings to be taken under this Act, and except so far as the action taken in regard to the writ may affect the amount to be levied, the sheriff shall proceed and levy upon the goods of the debtor as he would have proceeded had the writ or writs remained in his hands in full force to be executed. 3. In case a debtor voluntarily and without any sale by the sheriff pays to the sheriff part of the amount owing in respect of an execution or claim in the sheriff's hands, and there is at the time no other execution or claim in the sheriff's hands, the sheriff shall apply the same on the execution or claim so in his hands, and section 4 of this Act shall not apply to the money so received by the sheriff.

Proceedings on attachment against goods of absconding debtor. 21. If either before or after the receipt by the sheriff of an execution against the goods of a debtor a writ of attachment under the rules of the Supreme Court respecting absconding debtors is placed in the hands of the sheriff before he distributes the estate of a debtor, the sheriff shall realize the estate of the debtor as provided by the rules respecting absconding debtors, but the personal property of the debtor when so realized shall be distributed under the provisions of this Act.

Costs.

Costs and fees. 22. The clerk shall ascertain and state in the said certificate the amount of the costs to which the claimant is entitled as against the debtor. Such costs shall be the following: 1. The fees to be allowed to the sheriff and the clerk of the County Court shall be the same as they respectively are allowed for like proceedings in the County Court. 2. Where there is no contest, the sum of $ 5.00 for the fees of a solicitor (if employed). 3. In case of a contest, such additional costs as the Judge or taxing master may allow according to the scale of the Supreme Court or County Court applicable to the amount in dispute. 4. The costs of obtaining an order for substituted service, or other similar service, and of such service, or the costs of and incidental to service out of the Province, in either case to be taxed by the Judge, except in Halifax county, where they may be taxed before the taxing master.

Distribution.

Fund in Court belonging to debtor, proceedings in case of. 23. Where there is in any Court a fund belonging to an execution debtor, or to which he is entitled, the same or a sufficient part thereof to meet the claims in the sheriff's hands may, on the application of the sheriff or any party interested, be paid over to the sheriff and the same shall be deemed to be money levied under execution within the meaning of this Act.

Where amount levied insufficient to pay debts in full, application of money. 24. Where the amount levied by the sheriff is not sufficient to pay the execution debts and other claims with costs in full, the money shall be applied to the payment ratably of such debts and costs of the creditors after retaining the sheriff's fees, and after payment in full of the taxed costs and the costs of the execution to the creditor at whose instance and under whose execution the seizure and levy were made.

Interest, disbursements on renewal of certificate and solicitors' costs on renewal, when to be levied. 25. The sheriff, if directed by an indorsement upon the certificate, shall, in addition to the amounts named in the certificate, levy interest thereon from the date of the certificate or the date named in that behalf in the certificate, and also the sum of $ 1.35 for the disbursements on every renewal of the certificate; and where such renewal is made upon the application of a solicitor, he shall levy the further sum of $ 1.25 for the solicitor's costs on the renewal.

What poundage sheriff entitled to. 26. Where money is to be distributed by a sheriff under this Act, the sheriff shall not be entitled to poundage as upon separate writs or claims, but only upon the net proceeds of the estate distributable to him, and at the same rate as if the whole amount had been payable upon one writ.

Money made upon a writ taken to be made on all writs, etc., entitled to benefit thereof. 27. 1. Where money is made upon a writ the same shall be taken for the purpose of the sheriff's return, and otherwise to be made upon all the writs or certificates entitled to the benefit thereof, and the sheriff shall, upon payment being made to the person entitled upon such a writ or certificate, indorse thereon a memorandum of the amount so paid, but he shall not, except on the request of the party issuing the writ, or by direction of the Court out of which the same issues, or of a judge having the authority of a judge of such Court, return the writ until the same has been fully satisfied or unless the same has expired by effluxion of time, in which case the sheriff shall make a formal return of the amount made thereon. 2. The like proceedings may be taken to compel payment by the sheriff of money payable in respect to an execution or other claim as can now be had to compel the return by the sheriff of a writ of execution.

Entries to be made by sheriff pending distribution of moneys. 28. The sheriff shall, pending the distribution of moneys levied, keep in the said book mentioned in section 4, in his office a statement according to form "F" in the Schedule hereto, showing, in respect of any debtor of whose property money has been levied, the following particulars: a) The amounts levied and the dates of levy; b) Each execution, certificate or order in his hands at time of entering the notice, "form A," required by section 4, or subsequently received during the month, the amount thereof for debt and costs and the date of receipt, and such statement shall be amended from time to time as an additional amount is levied, or a new execution certificate or order is received.

Reasonable questions to be answered by sheriff. 29. The sheriff shall at all times, without fee, answer any reasonable questions which he may be asked orally in respect to the estate of the debtor by a creditor or any one acting on behalf of a creditor, and shall facilitate the obtaining by him of full information as to the value of the estate, and the probable dividend to be realized therefrom in his county, or any other information in connection with the estate which the creditor may reasonably desire to obtain.

Procedure where money levied insufficient to pay claims in full and time for distribution has come. 30. Where the money levied is insufficient to pay all claims in full and the time has come for distributing the money levied, the sheriff may forthwith distribute the same, as directed by this Act; or he may first prepare for examination by the debtor and his creditors, a list of the creditors entitled to share in the distribution of the amount levied, with the amount due to each for principal, interest, and costs; the list to be arranged so as among other things to show the amount going to each creditor under the provisions of this Act, and the total amount to be distributed; and the sheriff may deliver or send (prepaid and registered) by post, to each creditor or his solicitor, a copy of the list, with the several particulars aforesaid; and in such case the further proceeding may be as follows: 1. If within eight days after all the said copies have been delivered or posted, or within any further time the Judge may allow, no objection is made as provided by this Act, the sheriff shall make distribution forthwith pursuant to such list. 2. In case an objection is made, as provided by this Act, the sheriff shall forthwith distribute such an amount of the money made to such persons pari passu as may not interfere with the effect of the objection in case the same should be allowed. 3. The sheriff may disregard objections which are frivolous or manifestly insufficient to interfere with the distribution proposed, and distribute as if such objections had not been made. 4. Any person prejudiced by the proposed scheme of distribution may contest the same in the manner following, namely, by giving notice in writing to the sheriff, stating therein distinctly his objections to the scheme (or any part thereof), and the grounds of objection, and by at the same time delivering to the sheriff an affidavit of previous service of copy of the notice on the debtor and creditors interested in resisting the objection, unless the Judge shall by order have dispensed with service, or an affidavit of service as the Judge shall have sanctioned. 5. The contestant shall within eight days thereafter apply, upon notice to the Judge for an order adjudicating upon the matter in dispute; and otherwise the contestation shall be taken to be abandoned. The notice may be in the form "G" in the Schedule hereto. 6. The Judge may determine any question in dispute in a summary manner, or may direct an issue or action for the trial of such question, either by a jury or otherwise, and may make such order as to the costs of the proceedings as may be just. 7. In the event of a claimant under a contestation being held not entitled, or only entitled to part of his claim, the money retained pending contestation, or the portion as to which the claimant shall have failed, shall be distributed among the execution creditors and other creditors who would have been entitled thereto, as the same would have been distributed had the claim in respect thereof not been made.

Provision in case several creditors interested in contestation, 31. In case several creditors are interested in a contestation, either for or against the same, the Judge shall give such directions for saving the expense of an unnecessary number of parties and trials, and of unnecessary proceedings, as may be just, and he shall direct by whom and in what proportion any costs incurred in the contestation or in any proceedings thereunder shall be paid, and whether any and what costs shall be paid out of the money levied.

Judge may direct sheriff to levy amount of disputed claim or retain share. 32. 1. The Judge may, if he sees fit, direct the sheriff to levy for the amount sufficient to cover a claim which is in dispute, or part thereof, or in case it appears to the Judge that it is improbable that the defendant has other sufficient property, he may order the sheriff to retain in his hands during the contestation the share which if the claim is sustained will be apportionable to it, or may make an order combining the orders above authorized, or such similar order as may be just. 2. An order to levy under this section shall clothe the sheriff with the same authority as he would possess under a writ of execution duly issued against the debtor, directing the sheriff to levy the right amount out of the goods of the debtor.

Decision of County Court Judge or Supreme Court, in banco, effect of. 33. The decision under this Act of a County Court Judge or the Supreme Court in banco on an appeal, shall bind all creditors, unless it appears that the decision was obtained by fraud or collusion by the parties to the contestation.

Sheriff to deposit money in bank. 34. In case a sheriff has money in his hands which, by reason of the provisions of this Act or otherwise, he can not immediately pay over to the execution creditors or other claimants under this Act, he shall deposit the money, whenever the same amounts to $ 100, in some incorporated bank designated for this purpose, from time to time, by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council. The deposit to be made in the name of the sheriff, but to a special account to his name as trustee for the creditors of ..... (the debtor).

Attaching orders.

Provision respecting attaching orders and applications therefor by sheriff and creditors. 35. 1. Where there are in the sheriff's hands several executions and claims, and there are not or do not appear to be sufficient goods to pay all and his own fees, he may apply for an order attaching any debt owing to the execution debtor by any person resident in the county of such sheriff, whether the debt is owing by such person alone or jointly with another person resident or not resident in such county, and to procure the attachment the sheriff may take the same proceedings as a creditor; and in such case a writ of execution or other writ in the course of the proceedings may be directed to him in the same manner as if the attachment were by a creditor; and the proceeds of the debts attached shall be distributed in the same manner as if he had realized the same under execution. 2. In case the sheriff does not take such proceedings, any person entitled to distribution may take the same for the benefit of himself and all other persons entitled to distribution as aforesaid, and the person owing the attached debt shall pay the same to the sheriff. 3. Any judgment creditor who attaches a debt shall be deemed to do so for the benefit of himself and all creditors entitled under this Act; payment of such debt shall be made to the sheriff, who, in making distribution, shall apportion to such judgment creditor a share pro rata, according to the amount, upon his judgment, of the whole amount to be distributed under the provisions of this Act, but such share shall not exceed the amount recovered by the garnishee proceedings unless the judgment creditor has placed a writ in the sheriff's hands. 4. Money garnisheed and paid into the sheriff's hands shall be deemed to be money levied under execution within the meaning of this Act, except that, unless the garnishee proceedings were taken by him, the sheriff shall only be entitled to charge poundage upon such moneys at the rate of one and a quarter per cent. 5. In case a garnishee under an order of the Court pays to the attaching creditor, or in case a garnishee without notice that the sheriff is entitled, pays the amount of his debt into Court and the same is paid out to said creditor, the sheriff may recover from the said creditor the amount so received, after deducting any costs that may have been allowed to him in such garnishee proceeding.

Appeal.

Appeals. 36. If any party to any contestation, matter, or thing upon which a Judge has made or rendered any final order or judgment is dissatisfied with such order or judgment and the same is in respect to a question involving a sum greater than $ 100, he may appeal therefrom to the Supreme Court in banco, subject to the like practice as nearly as may be as is from time to time in force in respect of appeals from a County Court or Judge, unless and until rules establishing a different practice shall be made under the provisions of the Judicature Act.

Miscellaneous.

Powers of Judge. 37. A Judge for the purpose of giving effect to this Act and carrying out its provisions shall have all the powers which a County Court or a Judge thereof has by law for other purposes; and any proceedings wrongly taken under this Act may be set aside by the Judge with or without costs, as he sees fit.

Provision in case Judge disqualified. 38. If a Judge is disqualified to act in a matter arising under this Act, the Judge of the County Court of an adjoining district shall have jurisdiction to act in his place.

Practice and procedure in Supreme and County Court to apply. 39. Subject to the provisions of this Act the practice and procedure applicable to all proceedings taken under this Act shall be those which for the time being are prescribed for similar proceedings and matters, and under like conditions, in the Supreme and County Courts.

Powers of amendment. 40. No proceedings under this Act shall be void for any defect of form; and the rules for amending or otherwise curing irregularities or defects which may from time to time be in force in the County Court shall apply to this Act.

Fees, further provision. 41. 1. Besides the fees otherwise authorized to be paid to the clerk of the County Court for his own use, there shall be levied upon the filing of every affidavit of claim, where claim exceeds $ 80, the sum of fifty cents, to be paid by law stamp in the same manner as in the case of writs of summons for like amounts. 2. Where the claim is contested on the proceedings after the order, the same fees shall be levied as are now payable on like proceedings in the Supreme Court.

Act not to apply to land. 42. This Act shall not apply to lands.

Act not intended to interfere with insolvency laws. 43. This Act is not intended to interfere with the insolvency laws which may from time to time be in force in this Province, but this Act is intended to be subject to such laws and, subject as aforesaid, to apply to all debtors, whether solvent or not.

Act not to apply to judgment obtained before going into force hereof. 44. This Act shall not apply to any judgment obtained before the going into force hereof.

Act to go into force 1st September, 1903. 45. This Act shall go into force on the first day of September, A. D. 1903.

Application of Law.

10 Edw. 7, c. 45. An Act respecting the Application of the Law of England in certain Matters (7th March, 1910).

Short title. 1. This Act may be cited as The Property and Civil Rights Act.

The law of England on 15th Oct., 1792, to be the rule of decision. 2. 1. In all matters of controversy relative to property and civil rights, resort shall be had to the laws of England as they stood on the 15th day of October, 1792, as the rule for the decision of the same, and all matters relative to testimony and legal proof in the investigation of fact and the forms thereof in the Courts of Ontario shall be regulated by the rules of evidence established in England, as they existed on that day, except so far as such laws and rules have been since repealed, altered, varied, modified or affected by any Act of the Imperial Parliament, still having the force of law in Ontario, or by any Act of the late Province of Upper Canada, or of the Province of Canada, or of the Province of Ontario, still having the force of law in Ontario. 2. Nothing in this section shall extend to any of the laws of England respecting the maintenance of the poor.

Repeal. 3. Chapter 111 of the Revised Statutes of Ontario is repealed.

Partnership.

a) 10 Edw. 7, c. 67. An Act respecting Limited Partnerships (19th March, 1910).<sup>2)</sup>

Short title. 1. This Act may be cited as The Limited Partnership Act.

Limited partnerships may be formed. 2. A limited partnership for the transaction of any mercantile, mechanical, manufacturing or other business within Ontario, except banking, the construction or operation of railways, or the business of insurance, may be formed by two or more persons, upon the terms, with the rights and powers, and subject to the conditions and liabilities hereinafter mentioned.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 151, § 1; Imp. § 4. The business of building and running steam boats may be carried on by a limited partnership. — Bowes v. Holland, (1856), 14 U. C. Q. B. 316.

Of whom to consist. 3. The partnership may consist of one or more persons, who shall be called general partners, and of one or more persons who contribute in actual cash payments a specific sum as capital to the common stock, who shall be called special partners.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 151, § 2; Imp. § 4 (2). Where the special partners do not contribute actual cash towards the capital of the partnership they become liable as general partners. The giving of a note is not sufficient. — Benedict v. Van Allen, (1858), 17 U. C. Q. B. 234; Patterson v. Holland, (1858), 7 Gr. 1; see s. c. (1858), 6 Gr. 414; Watts v. Taft, (1859), 16 U. C. Q. B. 256.

Liability of general and special partners. 4. General partners shall be jointly and severally responsible as general partners are by law, but special partners shall not be liable for the debts of the partnership beyond the amounts by them contributed to the capital.

General partners only to transact business, etc. 5. The general partners only shall be authorized to transact business and sign for the partnership, and to bind the same.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 151, § 4; Imp. § 6.

Certificate to be signed. Contents. 6. The persons desirous of forming such partnership shall make and each of them shall sign a certificate, Form 1, which shall contain: a) The name under which the partnership business is to be carried on; b) The general nature of the business intended to be carried on; c) The names of all the general and special partners, distinguishing which are general and which are special partners, and their usual places of residence; d) The amount of capital which each special partner has contributed; e) The time when the partnership is to commence and the time at which it is to terminate; f) The principal place of business of the partnership.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 151, § 5; Imp. § 8.

Execution of. 7. The certificate shall be signed by the persons forming the partnership, before a notary public, who shall certify to the execution of the same.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 151, § 6.

Where to be filed. 8. The certificate so signed and certified shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the County or District Court of the county or district in which the principal place of business named in the certificate is situate, and shall be recorded by him at full length in a book to be kept for that purpose and open to public inspection.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 151, § 7; Imp. § 8.

Fees. 9. For filing and recording the certificate the clerk shall be entitled to receive the sum of twenty-five cents, and shall also be entitled to receive from every person searching in the book where such certificate is so recorded the sum of ten cents for each search.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 151, § 8.

Partnership not formed until certificate filed. 10. No such partnership shall be deemed to have been formed until the certificate has been made, certified, and filed; and if any false statement is made in the certificate, all the members of the partnership shall be liable for all the engagements thereof as general partners.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 151, § 9; Imp. § 5.

Certificates of continuance. 11. Every renewal or continuance of a partnership beyond the time originally fixed for its duration, shall be certified, filed, and recorded in the manner herein required for its original formation; and every partnership otherwise renewed or continued, shall be deemed a general partnership.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 151, § 10.

What alterations to be deemed a dissolution. 12. Every alteration made in the partnership name, in the names of the partners, in the nature of the business, or in the capital or shares thereof, or in any other manner specified in the original certificate shall be deemed a dissolution of the partnership, and every such partnership in any manner carried on after any such alteration has been made shall be deemed a general partnership, unless renewed as a limited partnership, according to the provisions of the next preceding section.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 151, § 11.

Partnership name. 13. The business of the partnership shall be conducted under a name in which the names of the general partners, or some or one of them only shall be used; and if the name of a special partner is used therein with his privity, he shall be deemed a general partner.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 151, § 12.

Restrictions upon stock of special partners. 14. No part of the sum which a special partner has contributed to the capital shall be withdrawn by him, or paid or transferred to him as dividends, profits, or otherwise, during the continuance of the partnership; but any partner may annually receive interest at a rate not exceeding five per cent. per annum on the sum so contributed by him, if the payment of such interest does not reduce the original amount of the capital; and if, after the payment of such interest, any profits remain to be divided, he may also receive his share of such profits.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 151, § 14.

When special partner liable to refund. 15. If by the payment of interest or profits to a special partner the original capital has been reduced, he shall be liable to restore the amount by which his share of the capital has been so reduced with interest.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 151, § 15.

Privileges of special partners. 16. A special partner may from time to time examine into the state and progress of the partnership business, and may advise as to its management; but he shall not transact any business on account of the partnership, or be employed for that purpose as agent, or otherwise; and if he does so, he shall be deemed a general partner.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 151, § 16; Imp. § 6. See § 5, supra. Where the special partners elected a board of directors to advise the general partner, and the board interfered in the transaction of the business, the members of the board became liable as general partners. — Whittemore v. Macdonell, (1856), 6 U. C. C. P. 547; Bowes v. Holland, (1856), 14 U. C. Q. B. 316. Where a special partner has once become liable under this section, his liability does not cease when he ceases to intermeddle. — Hutchinson v. Bowes, (1856), 15 U. C. Q. B. 156. In such case it is not necessary for the plaintiff to show that the limited partnership was regularly formed under the Act. — Davis v. Bowes, (1856), 15 U. C. Q. B. 280. Semble, where a special partner has become a general partner by intermeddling, he is such not alone as to creditors, but also as to the other partners. — Bowes v. Holland, (1856), 14 U. C. Q. B. 316.

General partners liable to account. 17. The general partners shall be liable to account to each other and to the special partners for their management of the business in like manner as other partners.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 151, § 17.

Creditors preferred to special partners. 18. In case of the insolvency or bankruptcy of the partnership, a special partner shall not, under any circumstances, be allowed to claim as a creditor until the claims of all the other creditors of the partnership have been satisfied.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 151, § 18.

No premature dissolution without notice, etc. 19. No dissolution of such partnership by the acts of the parties shall take place before the time specified in the certificate of its formation or of its renewal, until a notice of such dissolution has been filed in the office in which the original certificate was filed and has been published once in each week, for three weeks, in a newspaper published in the county or district where the partnership has its principal place of business, and for the same time in the Ontario Gazette.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 151, § 19.

Repeal. 20. Chapter 151 of the Revised Statutes, 1897, and all amendments thereto are repealed.

b) 10 Edw. 7, c. 68. An Act respecting the Registration of Partnerships (19th March, 1910).

Short title. 1. This Act may be cited as The Partnership Registration Act.

Persons in partnership to deliver a declaration to the Registrar. When some of the parties are absent. 2. 1. Persons associated in partnership for trading, manufacturing or mining purposes shall cause to be filed with the Registrar of the registry division in which they carry or intend to carry on business, a declaration in writing, Form 1, signed by all the members of the partnership. 2. Where at the time of making the declaration any member is absent from the place where the partnership carries on or intends to carry on business, the declaration shall be signed by the members present in their own names, and also for any absent member, under his special authority to that effect, and such special authority shall at the same time be filed with the Registrar and annexed to the declaration.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 152, § 1. The printing and publishing of a newspaper is a "trading purpose" within the meaning of this section. — Pinkerton v. Ross, (1873), 33 U. C. Q. B. 508.

Requisites of declaration. 3. The declaration shall contain the names, surnames, additions, and residences of every partner, and the name under which they carry on or intend to carry on business and shall state also the time during which the partnership has subsisted, and shall also state that the persons therein named are the only members of the partnership.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 152, § 2.

Time of filing declaration. 4. The declaration shall be filed within six months next after the formation of the partnership.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 152, § 3.

Declaration where change in partnership. 5. 1. A similar declaration shall in like manner be filed whenever any change takes place in the membership of the partnership, or in the name under which it carries on business, and every such declaration shall state the change in the membership of the partnership or in its name. 2. The declaration shall be filed within six months after the change takes place.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 152, § 4. Where a partner retires from a firm and a new firm name is adopted, the retiring partner is not liable on a note given in renewal of a note of the old firm, although signed in the old firm name, where the payee accepted the new note with knowledge of the change in the firm. — Bank of Toronto v. Nixon, (1879), 4 A. R. 346; reversing s. c. (1878), 43 U. C. Q. B. 447. But see § 7, infra.

Allegations in the declaration not to be controvertible by parties signing. 6. The statements made in any declaration shall not be controvertible by any person who has signed the same, nor as against any person not being a member of the partnership by any person who has signed the same, or who was really a member of the partnership therein mentioned at the time the declaration was made.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 152, § 5. This section does not apply to penal actions brought against a member of a firm for neglecting to file the declaration. In such cases the defendant may introduce evidence to show that the partnership was in fact formed at a date different from that set forth in the declaration. — Cassidy v. Henry, (1871), 31 U. C. Q. B. 345.

Declaration of dissolution of partnership. 7. Upon the dissolution of a partnership, any or all of the persons who composed the partnership may sign a declaration, Form 2, certifying the dissolution of the partnership.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 152, § 6. Where a declaration of dissolution is not filed the old partners continue to be liable. — Oakville v. Andrews, (1905), 10 O. L. R. 709; 6 O. W. R. 454; see also s. c. 3 O. W. R. 820.

Persons signing declaration to be deemed partners till new declaration is filed. Liability of partners failing to declare the same. 8. 1. Until a new declaration is made and filed by him, or by his partners or any of them, no person who signed the declaration filed shall be deemed to have ceased to be a partner. 2. Nothing herein shall exempt from liability any person who, being a partner, fails to make and file the prescribed declaration, and such person may, notwithstanding such omission, be sued jointly with the partners mentioned in the declaration, or they may be sued alone, and if judgment is recovered against them, he may be sued on the original cause of action upon which the judgment was recovered.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 152, § 7.

A person whose business style indicates plurality to file a declaration. Form of declaration. 9. 1. Every person engaged in business for trading, manufacturing, or mining purposes, who is not associated in partnership with any other person, but uses as his business style some name or designation other than his own name, or who in such style uses his own name with the addition of "and Company," or some other word or phrase indicating a plurality of members in the firm, shall cause to be filed with the registrar of the registry division in which such person carries on or intends to carry on business, a declaration in writing, signed by such person. 2. Such declaration shall contain the name, surname, addition, and residence of the person making the same, and the name under which he carries on or intends to carry on business, and shall also state that no other person is associated with him in partnership; and such declaration shall be filed within six months of the time when such name is first used.

Penalty for non-compliance. 10. Every member of a partnership or other person required to file a declaration under the provisions of this Act who fails to comply with the requirements thereof shall incur a penalty of $ 100, to be recovered in any Court of competent jurisdiction.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 152, §§ 9—11. The qui tam action may be brought by several plaintiffs jointly, and the mere fact that one of the plaintiffs is not resident within the jurisdiction is immaterial. — Chaput v. Roberts, (1887), 14 A. R. 354.

Registrar to record declaration. Registrar's fee for filing. Registrar to keep two indexes. Form of "Firm Index." Form of "Individual Index." Registrar's fees for certain services. 11. 1. The Registrar shall enter the declarations in the order in which the same are received in a book to be by him kept for that purpose, which shall at all times during office hours be open to the inspection of the public without charge. 2. For filing and entering each declaration the Registrar shall be entitled to receive from the person filing the same fifty cents if it does not contain more than two hundred words, and at the rate of ten cents per hundred words for all above the number of two hundred. 3. The Registrar shall keep two alphabetical index books of all declarations filed with him. 4. In one of such books, hereinafter called, the "Firm Index" the Registrar shall enter in alphabetical order the names of the firms in respect to which declarations have been filed with him, and shall place opposite each entry the names of the persons composing the firm, and the date of the receipt by him of the declaration, in the manner shewn in Form 3. 5. In the second of such books, hereinafter called the "Individual Index," the Registrar shall enter in alphabetical order the names of the respective members of each firm, and shall place opposite the entry the names of the firm of which each person is a member, and the date of the receipt of the declaration, in the manner shewn in Form 4. 6. The Registrar shall be entitled for searches to the following fees and no more:

For searching in Firm Index—each firm ten cents;

For searching in Individual Index—each name ten cents;

For each certificate, when required—twenty-five cents.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 152, §§ 12—16.

Who to furnish registry books. 12. The books required for the purposes of this Act shall be furnished by the municipality whose duty it is to furnish registry books, or in case of his default, by the Registrar, in the same manner as other registry books.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 152, § 17.

Cheese manufacturing companies excepted. 13. This Act shall not apply to associations of individuals for the manufacture of butter or cheese and contributing produce from their dairies for that purpose.

R. S. O. 1897 c. 152, § 18.

Act not to affect rights of partners inter se. 14. Nothing in this Act shall affect the rights of partners with regard to each other.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 152, § 7.

Repeal. 15. Chapter 152 of the Revised Statutes, 1897, and all amendments thereto are repealed.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 1; Imp. § 295.

Interpretation. 2. a) The word "corporation" in this Act includes all companies, whether with or without capital, and whether the capital thereof is divided into shares or not. b) The word "company" in this Act means only a company having a capital divided into shares.

*Part I. Incorporation, Re-incorporation, Amalgamation.Corporations formed for certain purposes may be incorporated by letters patent.

3. [As amended by 8 Edw. 7 c. 43, § 1 and 10 Edw. 7, c. 80, § 1.] 1. The Lieutenant-Governor may, by letters patent, grant a charter to any number of persons, not less than five, of the age of twenty-one years, who petition therefor, constituting such persons and any others who have or may thereafter become subscribers to the memorandum or agreement hereafter referred to, a body corporate and politic with or without capital divided into shares, for any of the purposes to which the authority of the Legislature of Ontario extends, except those of railway companies within the meaning of The Ontario Railway Act, insurance companies within the meaning of The Ontario Insurance Act, and loan corporations within the meaning of The Loan Corporations Act. 2. Notwithstanding anything in this Act, the Provincial Secretary may, under the seal of his office, have, use, exercise, and enjoy any power, right, or authority conferred by this Act on the Lieutenant-Governor, but not including those conferred on the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 9; Imp. § 1. A company incorporated under the authority of a Provincial Legislature to carry on business of fire insurance, is not inherently incapable of entering,

Contents and form of petition. Memorandum of agreement. Petitioners to be bona fide holders of shares. 4. 1. The applicants for incorporation of a company with capital divided into shares, may petition the Lieutenant-Governor, through the Provincial Secretary, for the grant of letters patent. The petition of the applicants shall show: a) The proposed corporate name of the company; b) The objects for which the company is to be incorporated; c) The place within Ontario where the head office of the company is to be situated; d) The amount of the capital of the company, the number of shares, and the amount of each share; e) The name in full, the place of residence, and the calling of each of the applicants; f) The names of the applicants, not less than three, who are to be provisional directors of the company. 2. The petition may be in the form or to the effect set out in Schedule A to this Act, and shall be accompanied by a memorandum of agreement, executed in duplicate in the form or to the effect set out in Schedule B to this Act. 3. Each petitioner shall be the bona fide holder in his own right of the share or shares for which he has subscribed in the memorandum of agreement. 4. The petition may ask to have embodied in the letters patent any provision which, under this Act, might be embodied in any by-law of the company when incorporated.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 10; Imp. § 3. See § 27 for use of the word "Limited." The name "British Columbia Permanent Loan and Savings Co." was held not to be so similar to "Canadian Permanent Loan and Savings Co." as to be calculated to deceive the public. — Canada Permanent v. British Columbia Permanent, (1898), 6 B. C. 377; see also British Columbia Permanent v. Wooton, (1898), 6 B. C. 382. For rule in regard to the use of the word "Royal," see Warde, Shareholders' and Directors' Manual, p. 274. Original subscribers must be persons sui juris. If the applicants form only the minimum number, the infancy of one prevents the company from acquiring a legal existence. — Hamilton v. Townsend, (1886), 13 O. A. R. 534. The objects of the company should be set out with care and precision, since it is well settled that a company can do only those things which are included among its specified objects or are reasonably incidental thereto, or which are specifically authorized by the charter. For an enumeration of the general clauses which should be inserted in the charter, see Masten, Company Law, p. 47. For details of the procedure of incorporation, see Parker and Clark, Company Law, p. 8.

Petition for incorporation without share capital. Memorandum of agreement. 5. 1. The applicants for the incorporation of a corporation not having share capital may petition the Lieutenant-Governor through the Provincial Secretary for the grant of letters patent. The petition of the applicants shall show: a) The proposed corporate name of the corporation; b) The objects for which the corporation is to be incorporated; c) The place within Ontario where its objects are to be carried out; d) The name in full, the place of residence, and the calling of each of the applicants; 2. The petition may be in the form or to the effect set out in Schedule C to this Act. 3. The petition shall be accompanied by a memorandum of agreement signed by the petitioners setting out such regulations as may be deemed expedient: 1. For the selection of members, trustees, directors, and officers; 2. For the holding of meetings of members, trustees, and directors; 3. For the establishment of branches; 4. For the payment of directors, trustees, officers, and employees; 5. For the control and management of the affairs of the corporation. The memorandum shall be expressed in separate paragraphs numbered consecutively, and may be in the form or to the effect set out in Schedule D to this Act, and the petitioners may adopt all or any of its provisions or substitute others in lieu thereof.

Imp. § 3.

Change of name or terms of application. 6. The Lieutenant-Governor on any application for letters patent or supplementary letters patent may give a different name to the corporation than that proposed, and may vary the objects or other provisions or terms.

Imp. § 8.

Creation of capital of corporation without share capital. 7. Any corporation without share capital heretofore or hereafter incorporated upon the consent in writing of all the members of such corporation, may by by-law provide for the creation of a capital divided into shares, and may provide for the allotment and payment of such shares and fix and prescribe the rights and privileges of the shareholders therein: Provided, however, that no such by-law shall be valid until confirmed by letters patent.

Amalgamation of corporations. Joint agreement between directors proposing to amalgamate, etc. To be submitted to shareholders or members of each corporation. 8. 1. Any two or more corporations incorporated under the laws of the Province, and having the same or similar objects within the scope of this Act, may, in the manner herein provided, amalgamate, and may enter into all contracts and agreements necessary to such amalgamation. 2. The corporations proposing to amalgamate as aforesaid, may enter into a joint agreement for the amalgamation, prescribing the terms and conditions thereof, the mode of carrying the same into effect, the name of the new corporation, the names, callings, and places of residence of the first directors thereof, and how and when the subsequent directors shall be elected, with such other details as may be necessary to perfect the amalgamation, and the subsequent management and working thereof, and in cases of companies having capital divided into shares, the number of shares of the capital, the amount of par value of each share, and the manner of converting the share capital of each of the said corporations into that of the new corporation. 3. The agreement shall be submitted to the shareholders or members of each of the said corporations at a general meeting thereof, called for the purpose of taking the same into consideration. 4. At such meetings of shareholders or members the agreement shall be considered, and if two-thirds of the votes of all the shareholders or members of each of such corporations are for the adoption of the agreement, then that fact shall be certified upon the agreement by the secretary of each of such corporations under the corporate seal thereof; thereupon the several corporations by their joint petition may, through the Provincial Secretary, apply to the Lieutenant-Governor for letters patent confirming the said agreement, and on and from the date of the said letters patent the said corporations shall be deemed and taken to be amalgamated and to form one corporation by the name in the letters patent provided, and the corporation so incorporated, shall possess all the properties, real, personal, and mixed, rights, privileges, and franchises and be subject to all the liabilities, contracts, disabilities, and duties of each of the corporations so amalgamated.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 103 (1—4). For details in the process of amalgamation, see Masten, Company Law, pp. 286, et seq; Parker and Clark, Company Law, pp. 311, et seq. See also Pratt v. Consolidated Electric Co., (1894), 34 N. B. 23; In re Standard Fire Insurance Co., Kelly's Case, (1885), 12 O. A. R. 486; Nelles v. Ontario Investment Association, (1889), 17 O. R. 129. Amalgamation can be legally accomplished only pursuant to this Act. A transfer by one company of its assets to another does not constitute amalgamation, and does not merge the companies into one. — Maple Leaf Rubber Co. v. Brodie, (1899), Q. R. 18 S. C. 352. Where the bondholders of a railway company were given, by charter, an option to convert their bonds into preferred stock, and later the company was authorized to amalgamate with another company, it was held that the amalgamation did not extinguish the right of the bondholders to elect to take stock in the new company. — Cayley v. Cobourg Railway Co., (1868), 14 Gr. 571.

Re-incorporation of corporation. 9. Any corporation incorporated for purposes or objects within the scope of this Act, whether under a special or general Act, and being at the time of its application a subsisting and valid corporation, may apply for letters patent under this Act; and the Lieutenant-Governor may grant letters patent incorporating the shareholders or members of the said corporation as a corporation under this Act.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 104 (1); Imp. § 249.

Extension of powers on re-incorporation. 10. Where an existing corporation applies for the issue of letters patent under the provisions of the preceding section, the Lieutenant-Governor may, by letters patent, extend the powers of the corporation to such other objects as the applicant desires, name the first directors of the new corporation, and give to the new corporation the name of the old corporation or any other name.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 105.

Rights of creditors preserved. 11. All rights of creditors against the property, rights, and assets of a corporation amalgamated or re-incorporated under the provisions of this Act, and all liens upon the property, rights, and assets of such corporation, shall be unimpaired by such amalgamation, or re-incorporation, and all debts, contracts, liabilities, and duties of such corporations shall thenceforth attach to the amalgamated or re-incorporated corporation, and may be enforced against it to the same extent as if the said debts, contracts, liabilities, and duties had been incurred or contracted by it.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 103 (6); Imp. § 261.

No action to abate. 12. No action or proceeding shall abate or be affected by such amalgamation or re-incorporation, but for all the purposes of such action or proceeding, such corporation may be deemed still to exist, or the new corporation may be substituted in such action or proceeding in the place thereof.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 103 (7); Imp. § 262. Where application was made for an injunction restraining the Attorney-General from recommending to the Lieutenant-Governor that an order in council be passed annulling the charter of the defendants for carrying on an illegal business, it was held that the Court had no jurisdiction, at the suit of a subject, to restrain the Attorney-General from discharging discretionary functions committed to him by the Crown. — Attorney-General v. Toronto Junction Recreation Club, (1904), 8 O. L. R. 440; 3 O. W. R. 387; 4 O. W. R. 72.

Supplementary letters patent for certain purposes; varying capital stock; re-dividing shares; extending powers; limiting borrowing powers; amending charter; making other provisions. 13. [As amended by 8 Edw. 7, c. 43, § 1 (2).] The directors of any corporation may from time to time pass by-laws authorizing an application, by petition to the Lieutenant-Governor to direct the issue of supplementary letters patent to the corporation embracing any or all of the hereinafter set out matters after such by-law has been confirmed by vote of not less than two-thirds in value of the shareholders or members present in person or by proxy at a general meeting of the corporation duly called for considering the subject of such by-laws: a) Increasing or decreasing the capital; provided, however, that the capital of a company shall not be increased until ninety per centum thereof has been subscribed and ten per centum paid thereon, and further provided, that on a reduction of the capital of a company the liability of shareholders to persons who at the time of such reduction are creditors of the company shall remain as though the reduction had not been made; b) Re-dividing the capital of the company into shares of smaller or larger amount; c) Extending the powers of the corporation to any objects which the corporation may desire; d) Limiting or increasing the amount which the corporation may borrow upon debentures or otherwise; e) Varying any provisions contained in the special Act or letters patent incorporating the corporation; f) Making provision for any other matter or thing in respect of which provision might have been made had the corporation been incorporated under this Act.

R. S. O., c. 191, §§ 17—21, 102, 106; Imp. §§ 7, 9, 40, 41. Subsection (c) "does not empower companies to obtain supplementary letters patent for objects totally different from those set out in the original charter. There must be some degree of similarity in the new objects as compared with the former." — Warde, Shareholders' and Directors' Manual, p. 281. Power to cancel must be created by express words. — Wheeler v. Wilson, (1884), 6 O. R. 421, at p. 426. In Ontario it was held that such power is impliedly excluded by the provisions of this section, which furnish a method of decreasing the capital stock. — Livingston v. Temperance, etc., Society, (1890), 17 O. A. R. 379. A company can not reduce its capital by accepting a surrender of stock. — Ross v. Dusablon, (1883), 10 Q. L. R. 74; Common v. McArthur, (1898), 29 S. C. R. 239. But a company has power to compromise all claims against it, including claims for cancellation of shares for fraud or misrepresentation. — Livingston v. Temperance, etc., Society, supra; Copp's Case, (1885), 10 O. R. 497. Where the charter provided that a shareholder might surrender his shares and that his liability in respect thereof should cease, it was held, in a winding-up proceeding, that those who have surrendered shares are not liable as contributories for the unpaid balances on calls. — In re Ontario Express & Transportation Co., (1893), 24 O. R. 216; Hart v. Ontario Express & Transportation Co., Kirk & Morling's Case, (1893), 24 O. R. 340. No cancellation can affect a past liability. — Fuches v. Hamilton Tribune Co., (1885), 10 O. R. 497, at p. 503.

Preliminary conditions to be established. 14. Before letters patent or supplementary letters patent are issued the applicants shall establish to the satisfaction of the Provincial Secretary the sufficiency of the petition, memorandum of agreement, by-law, resolution, and all documents filed on such application, and shall furnish such evidence of the bona fides of any application as he may deem necessary.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 12.

Conditions may be imposed in letters patent of incorporation. 14a. [Added by 9 Edw. 7, c. 66, § 1.] The letters patent may impose any conditions with respect to the by-laws of a corporation or any amendments thereof, and in such event the corporation shall not carry on its undertaking or any part thereof nor shall the by-laws be of any force or validity until the conditions imposed by the letters patent are complied with.

Letters patent may provide for audit. 14b. [Added by 9 Edw. 7, c. 66, § 1.] The letters patent may confer on the Provincial Secretary the right to appoint an auditor to examine the books of the corporation or an inspector to inspect its undertaking and affairs, or to call a general meeting of its members, upon such terms as may be therein set out.

Return may be required upon any subject. 14c. [Added by 9 Edw. 7, c. 66, § 1.] If the letters patent so provide, the Provincial Secretary may whenever he sees fit require a society to make a return upon any special subject connected with the affairs of the society, and the society shall make such return within the time mentioned in the notice requiring such return.

Proofs of matters under this Act. 15. 1. The Provincial Secretary, or any officer to whom the application may be referred, may, for any purpose under this Act, take evidence in writing, under oath or affirmation. 2. Proof of any matter which may be necessary to be made under this Act, may be made by statutory declaration, affidavit, or deposition before the Provincial Secretary, or officer aforesaid, or before any other person authorized to take affidavits.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 13.

Notice of issuing letters patent. 16. Notice of the granting of letters patent or supplementary letters patent, shall be given forthwith by the Provincial Secretary in the Ontario Gazette, and the corporation shall be deemed to be existing from the date of the letters patent incorporating the same.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 15; Imp. §§ 9 (6), 42.

Powers incident to company. 17. A company having share capital shall possess the following powers as incidental and ancillary to the powers set out in the letters patent or supplementary letters patent: a) To carry on any other business (whether manufacturing or otherwise) which may seem to the company capable of being conveniently carried on in connection with its business or calculated directly or indirectly to enhance the value of or render profitable any of the company's property or rights; b) To acquire or undertake the whole or any part of the business, property, and liabilities of any person or company carrying on any business which the company is authorized to carry on, or possessed of property suitable for the purposes of the company; c) To apply for, purchase, or otherwise acquire, any patents, licenses, concessions, and the like, conferring any exclusive or non-exclusive, or limited right to use, or any secret or other information as to any invention which may seem capable of being used for any of the purposes of the company, or the acquisition of which may seem calculated directly or indirectly to benefit the company, and to use, exercise, develop, or grant licenses in respect of, or otherwise turn to account the property, rights, or information so acquired; d) To enter into partnership or into any arrangement for sharing of profits, union of interests, co-operation, joint adventure, reciprocal concession, or otherwise, with any person or company carrying on or engaged in or about to carry on or engage in any business or transaction which the company is authorized to carry on or engage in, or any business or transaction capable of being conducted so as directly or indirectly to benefit the company; and to lend money to, guarantee the contracts of, or otherwise assist any such person or company, and to take or otherwise acquire shares and securities of any such company, and to sell, hold, re-issue, with or without guarantee, or otherwise deal with the same; e) To take, or otherwise acquire and hold, shares in any other company having objects altogether or in part similar to those of the company or carrying on any business capable of being conducted so as directly or indirectly to benefit the company; f) To enter into any arrangements with any authorities, municipal, local, or otherwise, that may seem conducive to the company's objects, or any of them, and to obtain from any such authority any rights, privileges, and concessions which the company may think it desirable to obtain, and to carry out, exercise, and comply with any such arrangements, rights, privileges, and concessions; g) To establish and support or aid in the establishment and support of associations, institutions, funds, trusts, and conveniences calculated to benefit employees or ex-employees of the company (or its predecessors in business) or the dependants or connections, of such persons, and to grant pensions and allowances, and to make payments towards insurance, and to subscribe or guarantee money for charitable or benevolent objects, or for any exhibition or for any public, general, or useful object; h) To promote any company or companies for the purpose of acquiring all or any of the property and liabilities of the company, or for any other purpose which may seem directly or indirectly calculated to benefit the company; i) To purchase, take on lease or in exchange, hire or otherwise acquire, any personal property and any rights or privileges which the company may think necessary or convenient for the purposes of its business and in particular any machinery, plant, stock-in-trade; j) To construct, improve, maintain, work manage, carry out, or control any roads, ways, tramways, branches or sidings, bridges, reservoirs, watercourses, wharves, manufactories, warehouses, electric works, shops, stores, and other works and conveniences which may seem calculated, directly or indirectly, to advance the company's interests, and to contribute to, subsidize or otherwise assist or take part in the construction, improvement, maintenance, working, management, carrying out, or control thereof; k) To lend money to customers and others having dealings with the company and to guarantee the performance of contracts by any such persons; l) To draw, make, accept, endorse, discount, execute, and issue promissory notes, bills of exchange, bills of lading, warrants, and other negotiable or transferable instruments; m) To sell or dispose of the undertaking of the company or any part thereof for such consideration as the company may think fit, and in particular for shares, debentures, or securities of any other company having objects altogether or in part similar to those of the company; n) To adopt such means of making known the products of the company as may seem expedient, and in particular by advertising in the press, by circulars, by purchase, and exhibition of works of art or interest, by publication of books and periodicals and by granting prizes, rewards, and donations; o) To sell, improve, manage, develop, exchange, lease, dispose of, turn to account, or otherwise deal with all or any part of the property and rights of the company; p) To do all or any of the above things as principals, agents, contractors, trustees, or otherwise, and either alone or in conjunction with others; q) To do all such other things as are incidental or conducive to the attainment of the above objects: Provided, however, that the powers set out in any or all of the foregoing paragraphs may be withheld by the letters patent or supplementary letters patent.

Note that the cases discussed under this section were, for the most part, decided before the enactment of this section, which enumerates the powers incident to companies. Many of the cases, therefore, have been rendered obsolete. The general principle which is to be applied in determining whether or not a given contract is within the powers of a company, is stated as follows by Gwynne, J., in Hovey v. Whiting, (1886), 14 S. C. R. 515, at p. 531: "All deeds executed under the corporate seal of an incorporated company are binding on the company, unless it appears by express provision of some statute creating or affecting the company, or by necessary or reasonable inference from the enactment of such statute, that the Legislature meant that such deed should not be executed." Upon the question of the necessity of the corporate seal, see: National Malleable, etc., Co. v. Smiths Falls, (1907), 14 O. L. R. 22; Bernardin v. Municipality of North Dufferin, (1891), 19 S. C. R. 581, at p. 610; Garland Manufacturing Co. v. Northumberland Paper Co., (1899), 31 O. R. 40. See also other cases discussed by Parker and Clark, Company Law, pp. 243, et seq. Where a contract under seal is produced, the seal is presumed to be regularly affixed. — Woodhill v. Sullivan, (1864), 14 U. C. C. P. 265; Fell v. South, (1864), U. C. Q. B. 196. See also Sheppard v. Bonanza Nickel Co., (1894), 25 O. R. 305; McKain v. Canadian Birbeck Co., (1904), 7 O. L. R. 241. Appointment of managers and other important officials must, in order to be binding, be under seal, and should be made by by-law. — Birney v. Toronto Milk Co., (1902), 1 O. W. R. 736; Gold Leaf Mining Co. v. Clark, (1905), 6 O. W. R. 1035. Companies may engage in matters not primarily contemplated by their founders, provided that these matters are incidental to their proper business or bona fide conducive to their prosperous development. — Ryckman v. Toronto Type Foundry Co., (1904), 3 O. W. R. 434. Where one of the objects for which the company is incorporated is to acquire, sell, and dispose of lands, the company has power to give a mortgage on such lands as security for the purchase money. — Sheppard v. Bonanza Nickel Co., (1894), 25 O. R. 305. Since all companies, incorporated under this Act, have power to acquire, hold, and convey real estate requisite for the carrying on of their undertakings, and since the power to acquire and convey land implies the power to mortgage the same, the rule in Sheppard v. Bonanza Nickel Co., supra, should apply to all companies incorporated under this Act. See In re Nash Brick & Pottery Manufacturing Co., (1873), 9 N. S. 254, where it was held that the power to borrow implies the power to mortgage. A company may not assign all its rights and powers absolutely. — Attorney-General v. Niagara Falls, etc., Co., (1873), 20 Gr. 34. But a railway company may lease a portion of its road to another company and assign all its rights and privileges as to the portion so leased. — Michigan Central Railway Co. v. Wealleans, (1894), 24 S. C. R. 309. But see Hinckley v. Gildersleeve, (1872), 19 Gr. 212, where it was held that such a lease is invalid without the sanction of the Legislature; and see Montreal Telegraph Co. v. Law, (1883), 27 L. C. J. 257, at p. 277. A company is not bound by an executory contract, unless made in pursuance of its charter or under its corporate seal. — Garland

Manufacturing Co. v. Northumberland Paper Co., (1899), 31 O. R. 40. But where the contract has been executed and the company has received the benefits therefrom, it is bound, though the contract was not executed under the corporate seal. — Bernardin v. Municipality of North Dufferin, (1891), 19 S. C. R. 581. Where directors bought goods on the credit of the company, which by the act of incorporation, it had no power to purchase, they were held not liable on a warranty of authority. — Struthers v. Mac Kenzie (1897), 27 O. R. 381. A parol agreement entered into by "the duly authorized agents" of an insurance company to refer certain claims against the company to arbitration, is ultra vires. — Calvin v. Provincial Insurance Co., (1869), 20 U. C. C. P. 267. The assent of every shareholder does not make an ultra vires agreement binding. — Charlebois v. Delap, (1895), 26 S. C. R. 21. The fact that the contract will be beneficial to the company will not validate it if it is otherwise ultra vires. — National Malleable, etc., Co. v. Smiths Falls, (1907), 14 O. L. R. 22. A company, empowered to hold land for definite purposes only, may take a conveyance for other purposes, and the Crown alone can take advantage of the disability. — Becher v. Woods, (1865), 16 U. C. C. P. 29. So also, if the company has power to hold land for a definite period only, without any provision as to reverter, and holds beyond that period, the Crown alone can take advantage. — McDiarmid v. Hughes, (1888), 16 O. R. 570. In actions against the company on contracts entered into with the plaintiffs, the defence of ultra vires was not allowed; Commercial Bank v. Great Western Railway Co., (1862), 22 U. C. Q. B. 233, (money advanced by bankers for purposes beyond company's charter); Western Assurance Co., v. Taylor, (1862), 9 Gr. 471, (mortgage taken by insurance company to secure purchase money of a vessel sold to mortgagor); Hope v. Glass, (1863), 23 U. C. Q. B. 86, (acceptance of a bond as additional security for money overdue upon a mortgage); Reid v. Whitehead, (1864), 10 Gr. 446; Corporation of North Gwiltburg v. Moore, (transfer of a mortgage held by a company to secure a loan at an illegal rate of interest); McDonald v. Bonanza Nickel Co., (1894), 25 O. R. 305, (power to give a purchase money mortgage for land); Michigan Central Railway Co. v. Wealleans, (1894), 24 S. C. R. 309, (lease by a railway company); McCausland v. Hill, (1896), 23 O. A. R. 738, (covenants by a company in partial restriction of trade); Farrell v. Carribou Gold Mining Co., (1897), 30 N. S. 199, (payment of a bonus upon money borrowed); Ritchie v. Vermillion Mining Co., (1902), 1 O. W. R. 624, (sale by a mining company of all its property); National Malleable, etc., Co. v. Smiths Falls Co., (1907), 14 O. L. R. 22, (contract by a company, the fulfilment of which would require an extension of the company's plant). In the following cases the defence of ultra vires was allowed: Ruitz v. The Roman Catholic, etc., Diocese, (1870), 30 U. C. Q. B., 269, (loan to church corporation having no power to borrow); Hearle v. Rhind, (1878), 22 L. C. J. 239, (issue of warehouse receipts by a company not incorporated as a warehouse company); Walmsley v. Rent Guarantee Co., (1881), (discounting of notes by a company carrying on an agency and commission business); Victoria, etc., Insurance Co. v. Thompson, (1882), 32 U. C. C. P. 476; 9 O. A. R. 620, (renewal of promissory notes by an insurance company); Ross v. Fiset, (1882), 8 Q. L. R. 251, (company reducing its capital and purchasing its shares without authority); In re Union Fire Insurance Co., McCord's Case, (1891), 21 O. R. 264, (transfer of shares to manager in trust for company); Twigg v. Thunderhill Mining Co., (1893), 3 B. C. 101, (shares issued at a discount); Northwest Electric Co. v. Walsh, (1898), 29 S. C. R. 33, (shares issued at a discount); Williams Machinery Co. v. Crawford Tug Co., (1908), 16 O. L. R. 245, (guarantee by a company to answer for the debt of an employee); Lindsay v. Imperial Steel & Wire Co., (1910), 15 O. W. R. 105; 16 O. W. R. 406, (allotment of shares to a man of no means). In Charlebois v. Delap, (1896), 26 S. C. R. 221, the Court held that if a company enters into a transaction which is ultra vires and litigation ensues, in the course of which a judgment is entered by consent, such judgment is as binding upon the parties as one obtained after a contest, and will not be set aside because the transaction was beyond the power of the company. But cp. the opinion of Lord Hobhouse in the same case, sub nom., Great Northwest Central Railway v. Charlebois, (1899) A. C. 114, wherein he states, p. 124: "It is quite clear that a company can not do what is beyond its legal powers by simply going into court and consenting to a decree which orders that the thing should be done." An outsider is charged with notice of all provisions of the Act under which the company is incorporated, and the contents of the letters patent. Further than this, however, he can not be taken to have notice. — Royal British Bank v. Turquand, (1856), 6 E. & B. 327, cited with approval in McEdwards v. Ogilvie, (1887), 4 Man. R. 1, at p. 6. See also Sheppard v. Bonanza Nickel Co., (1894), 25 O. R. 305; McKain v. Canadian Birbeck Co., (1904), 7 O. L. R. 241. As to whether third parties are charged with notice of the company's by-laws, see notes to § 41, infra.

Further powers; seal; buildings, etc.; real estate. 18. Any corporation incorporated under this Act shall have power: a) To alter or change its common seal at pleasure; b) To construct, maintain and alter any buildings or works necessary or convenient for the purposes of the corporation; c) To acquire by purchase, lease, or other title and to hold, use, sell, alienate, and convey any real estate necessary for the carrying on of its undertaking, and the corporation shall, upon its incorporation, become and be invested with all the property and rights, real and personal, theretofore held by or for it under any trust created with a view to its incorporation.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 25 (a, d, g). Where it appeared that a mining company had not sufficient assets to develop its lands, it was held that the directors had power under this section to sell all the lands of the company, and an injunction to restrain the sale was refused. — Ritchie v. Vermillion Mining Co., (1901), 1 O. L. R. 654; affirmed, s. c. (1902), 4 O. L. R. 588.

Restrictions to holding real estate. 19. Unless other special statutory enactments apply, no parcel of land or interest therein at any time acquired by the corporation and not required for its actual use and occupation or not held by way of security, or not situate within the limits or within one mile of the limits of any city or town, shall be held by the corporation or by any trustee on its behalf, for a longer period than seven years after the acquisition thereof, or after it has ceased to be required for the ordinary purposes of the corporation, but shall be absolutely sold and disposed of, so that the corporation shall no longer retain any interest therein unless by way of security; and any such parcel of land or any interest therein not within the exceptions hereinbefore mentioned, held by the corporation for a longer period than seven years, without being disposed of, shall be forfeited to His Majesty for the use of this Province; provided that the Lieutenant-Governor may extend the said period from time to time not exceeding in the whole twelve years; and further provided that no such forfeiture shall take effect or be enforced until the expiration of at least six calendar months after notice in writing to the corporation of the intention of His Majesty to claim such forfeiture, and during such six months the corporation may dispose of the same; and it shall be the duty of the corporation to give the Lieutenant-Governor, when required, a full and correct statement of all lands at the date of such statement held by or in trust for the corporation.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 25. A bona fide agreement to sell land is sufficient to prevent a forfeiture under this section, even though the sale has not been carried out, owing to the default of the purchaser. — London & Canadian Loan Co. v. Graham, (1888), 16 O. R. 329. A conveyance of land to a corporation not empowered to hold lands is voidable only and not void, and the lands can be forfeited by the Crown alone. — McDiarmid v. Hughes, (1888), 16 O. R. 570.

Certain informalities not to invalidate letters patent, etc. 20. The provisions of this Act relating to matters preliminary to the issue of the letters patent or supplementary letters patent shall be deemed to be directory only; and no letters patent or supplementary letters patent, notice, order, or other proceedings by or on behalf of the Lieutenant-Governor, Provincial Secretary, or other Government or Departmental officer under this Act shall be held to be void or voidable on account of any irregularity, or otherwise in respect of any matter preliminary to the issue of the letters patent or supplementary letters patent, notice, order, or other proceeding, or of any alterations in any petition or documents submitted in order to make them comply with this Act or with the departmental practice thereunder.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 96.

Forfeiture of charter for non-user. 21. If a corporation incorporated by letters patent does not go into actual operation within two years after incorporation or for two consecutive years does not use its corporate powers, such powers, except so far as is necessary for the winding-up of the corporation, shall be forfeited, and its name in the whole or in part may be granted to another corporation, and in any action or proceeding where such non-user is alleged, proof of user shall lie upon the corporation, provided, however, that no such forfeiture shall affect prejudicially the rights of creditors as they exist at the date of such forfeiture.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 98; Imp. § 242.

Revocation of charter. 22. The letters patent by which a corporation is incorporated and any supplementary letters patent amending or varying the same, may, at any time, be declared to be forfeited and may be revoked and made void by an Order of the Lieutenant-Governor on sufficient cause being shown in that behalf, and such forfeiture, revocation, and making void may be upon such conditions and subject to such provisions as to the Lieutenant-Governor may seem proper.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 99. Under this provision, the charter of the "Bertie Pastime Club" was revoked on the ground that it had been obtained for the purpose of operating a pool-room. — Order in Council, 15th February, 1904. The charter of the "Toronto Junction Recreation Club" was likewise revoked on the ground that the club was organized for unlawful purposes. — Order in Council. 14th February, 1904, cited by Warde, Shareholders' and Directors' Manual, p. 254. "It may be regarded as an accepted principle that the question whether a corporation has forfeited its franchise and ceased to exist, can not, in general, be raised in a collateral proceeding, but can only be raised by the State." — Masten, Company Law, p. 270. But it has been held, in Quebec, that if a company has become completely disorganized and has neither president nor directors, this fact may be alleged by way of defence. — La Compagnie du Cap Gibraltar v. Lalonde, (1889), M. L. R. 5 S. C. 127; Misawippi Valley Railway Co. v. Walker, (1871), 3 Rev. Leg. 450. And it has also been held, in Quebec, that where a company had forfeited its charter, a defendant may have an action brought against him by the company stayed until proceedings can be taken to have the charter annulled. — Windsor Hotel v. Murry, (1878), 1 L. N. 75; see also Quebec, etc., Railway Co. v. Dawson (1851), 1 L. C. R. 356. Where the act of incorporation of a Dominion company provided that operations might be commenced when $ 100 000 of the capital stock was subscribed, it was held that the bona fide subscription of this amount was a condition precedent to the legal organization of the company, and the company having commenced operations when only $ 60 500 was subscribed, the charter was forfeited at the suit of the Attorney-General. — Dominion Salvage & Wreckage Co. v. Attorney-General, (1892), 21 S. C. R. 72. But non-compliance with such a condition, does not, ipso facto, extinguish the company, nor revoke its charter. Forfeiture can only be procured by a suit at the instance of the Attorney-General. — Roy v. La Compagnie du Chemin de Fer Quebec, etc., (1888), 14 Q. L. R. 255; see also Attorney-General v. Bergen, (1896), 29 N. S. 135. So also, where an Act provided that if a certain company did not complete its work within a specified time, it should forfeit its charter, it was held that non-compliance with such a condition subsequent, would not, ipso facto, forfeit the charter, but would only afford grounds for an action by the Attorney-General to have a forfeiture declared. — Hardy v. Pickeral River Co., (1898), 29 S. C. R. 211. For details of procedure to procure a forfeiture, see Masten, Company Law, p. 273.

Company with less than five members. 23. If a corporation exercises its corporate powers when the number of its shareholders or members is less than five, for a period of six months after the number has been so reduced, every person who is a shareholder or member of the corporation during the time that it so exercised its corporate powers after such period of six months and is cognizant of the fact that it is so exercising its corporate powers with less than five shareholders or members shall be severally liable for the payment of the whole of the debts of the corporation contracted during such time, and may be sued for the same without the joinder in the action or suit of the corporation or of any other shareholder or member, but any shareholder or member who has become aware that the corporation is exercising its corporate powers when the number of its shareholders or members is less than five, may serve a protest in writing on the corporation and may by registered letter notify the Provincial Secretary of such protest having been served and of the facts upon which it is based, and such shareholder or member may thereby and not otherwise from the date of his said protest and notification exonerate himself from liability, and if after notice from the Provincial Secretary, the corporation refuses or neglects to bring the number of its shareholders or members up to five, such refusal or neglect may, upon the report of the Provincial Secretary, be regarded by the Lieutenant-Governor as sufficient cause for the revocation of the charter of the corporation. R. S. O., c. 191, § 100; Imp. § 115.

Surrender of charter. 24. The charter of a corporation incorporated by letters patent may be surrendered if the corporation proves to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant-Governor: a) That it has no debts existing or other rights in question, or, b) That it has parted with its property, divided its assets rateably amongst its shareholders or members and has no debts or liabilities; or, c) That the debts and obligations of the corporation have been duly provided for or protected or that the creditors of the corporation or other persons holding them consent; d) And that the corporation has given notice of the application for leave to surrender by publishing the same once in the Ontario Gazette and once in a newspaper published at or as near as may be the place where the corporation has its head office, or if it be without share capital where its operations are carried on; and the Lieutenant-Governor upon a due compliance with the provisions of this section, may accept the charter and direct its cancellation, and may, by his order, fix a date upon and from which the corporation shall be deemed to be dissolved, and the corporation shall thereby and thereupon become dissolved accordingly.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 101. The application must be by a formal petition. For the form of the petition and procedure, see Warde, Shareholders' and Directors' Manual, pp. 292 and 504.

End of existence of corporations. 25. The corporate existence of a corporation incorporated otherwise than by letters patent may be terminated by order of the Lieutenant-Governor upon petition therefor by such corporation under like circumstances, in like manner and with like effect as a corporation incorporated by letters patent may surrender its charter.

26. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, from time to time, make regulations with respect to the following matters, namely: a) The cases in which notice of application for letters patent or supplementary letters patent under this Act must be given; b) The forms of letters patent, supplementary letters patent, notices, and other instruments and documents relating to applications and other proceedings under this Act; c) The form and manner of the giving of any notice required by this Act; and such regulations shall be published in the Ontario Gazette.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 11.

Part II. Name of Corporation.

Use of word "Limited". Penalty. Proviso. Limitation of prosecutions. 27. 1. The corporate name of every company with share capital shall have the word "Limited" as the last word thereof. 2. Wherever the company or any director, manager, officer, or employee thereof uses the name of the company, the word "Limited" shall appear as the last word thereof: Provided, that stamping, writing, printing, or otherwise marking on goods, wares, and merchandise of the company, or upon packages containing the same shall not be deemed to be within the provisions of this section: Provided also that where the word "company," "club," "association," or other equivalent word forms part of the said name the word "Limited" may be abbreviated to "Ltd.," or "Ld." 3. Every company and every director, manager, officer, or other employee making default in complying with the foregoing provisions of this section shall be liable upon summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence: Provided, that the offender upon a subsequent conviction for a similar offence committed after such first conviction shall be liable upon summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars. 4. The prosecution or proceeding to recover a penalty for an offence against the foregoing provisions of this section shall be commenced within six months after the offence has been committed and not afterwards.

63 Vic., c. 23, § 3; Imp. §§ 3, 4, 20. In Howell Lithographic Co. v. Brethour, (1899), 30 O. R. 204, it was held that under 61 Vic. c. 19, § 4, that the use of the abbreviation "Ltd.," was not a compliance with the requirements of the Act.

Name to be free from objection. 28. The name of every corporation shall not on any public ground be objectionable and shall not be that of any known corporation or association incorporated or unincorporated, or of any partnership or of any individual or any name under which any known business is being carried on, or so nearly resembling the same as to deceive; provided, however, that a subsisting corporation, association, partnership, individual, or person may consent that its or his name, in whole or in part, be granted to a new corporation incorporated for the purpose, of acquiring its or his business or promoting its objects.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 10; Imp. § 8. See notes § 4, supra.

Failure to make annual returns. 29. The name of a corporation which has not, for three consecutive years, made the annual summary prescribed by this Act, may be given in whole or in part to a new corporation, unless the defaulting corporation, on notice by the Provincial Secretary by registered letter addressed to the corporation or its president as shown by its last return, proves to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant-Governor that it is still a subsisting corporation; provided, that if at the end of one month from the date of such notice, the Provincial Secretary shall not have received from the corporation or its president response to such notice, the corporation may be deemed to be not a subsisting corporation, and no longer entitled to the sole use of its corporate name; and further provided, that when no annual summary has been filed by a corporation for three years immediately following its incorporation its name may be given to another corporation, without notice, and such corporation shall be deemed not to be subsisting.

1 Edw. 7, c. 18, § 3; Imp. § 8 (1).

Change of name if objectionable. 30. In case it is made to appear to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant-Governor that any corporation is incorporated under a name the same as, or so similar to that of an existing corporation, company, partnership, association, individual, or business as to deceive, the Lieutenant-Governor may by order change the name of the corporation.

R. S. O., c. 191; § 24, Imp. § 8.

Applications to Lieutenant-Governor to change names of companies. In case proposed name is objectionable. 31. 1. Where a corporation is desirous of changing its name, the Lieutenant-Governor, upon being satisfied that the corporation is in a solvent condition, and that the change desired is not for any improper purpose, and is not otherwise objectionable, may by order change the name of the corporation. 2. In case the proposed name is considered objectionable, the Lieutenant-Governor may change the name of the corporation to some unobjectionable name.

R. S. O., c. 215, §§ 1, 3; Imp. § 8 (3).

Notice of change. 32. Notice of the change of the name of a corporation shall be given by the Provincial Secretary by publication in the Ontario Gazette.

Imp. § 8.

Rights of creditors preserved. 33. No such alteration of name of a corporation shall affect the rights or obligations of the corporation; and all proceedings that might have been continued or commenced by or against the corporation by its former name may be continued or commenced by or against the corporation by its new name.

Imp. § 8 (5).

Part III. Meetings of Company.

First meeting. Report at first meeting. Shareholders may call. 34. 1. The provisional directors of a company not offering shares for public subscription, shall call a general meeting of the company to be held at a convenient place within two months from the date of the letters patent for the purpose of electing directors, appointing auditors, sanctioning the by-laws of the company, and transacting such other business as may be necessary to enable the company to carry on its undertaking, and shall, at least ten days before the day on which such meeting is held, give notice of such meeting by registered letter addressed to each shareholder, setting out in detail the business to be transacted and matters to be considered thereat. 2. The provisional directors shall report to such meeting: the number of shares subscribed or underwritten; the names of the subscribers or underwriters; the amount paid thereon; all contracts entered into by or on behalf of the company; the amount of the preliminary expenses and a financial statement of the affairs of the company signed by the auditors (if any). 3. If the said meeting is not called by the provisional directors as aforesaid, any three or more shareholders of the company may call the meeting.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 16; Imp. § 65.

Notice of meeting. 35. In default of other express provisions in such behalf in the special Act, the letters patent, or by-laws of the company, notice of the time and place for holding general meetings of the company, including the annual and special meetings shall be given at least ten days previously thereto by registered letter to each shareholder at his last known address, and by an advertisement in some newspaper published at or as near as may be to the head office and to the chief place of business of the company, if these differ, or in the Ontario Gazette.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 50; Imp. § 67. The fact that a shareholder attended and took part in a meeting called illegally, does not prevent his afterwards filing a bill impeaching the proceedings as irregular and invalid. — Marsh v. Huron College, (1880), 27 Gr. 605; Cannon v. Toronto Corn Exchange, (1880), 5 O. A. R. 268. But see Christopher v. Noxon, (1884), 4 O. R. 672, at p. 680, where an estoppel was raised against the plaintiff.

Annual meeting. 36. 1. The annual meeting of the shareholders of the company shall be held at such time and place in each year as the special Act, letters patent, or by-laws of the company may provide, and in default of such provisions in that behalf the annual meeting shall be held at the place named in the letters patent as the place of the head office of the company, on the fourth Wednesday in January in every year. 2. At such meeting the directors shall lay before the company: a) A balance sheet made up to a date not more than three months before such annual meeting; b) A statement of income and expenditure for the financial period ending upon the date of such balance sheet; c) The report of the auditor or auditors; d) Such further information respecting the company's financial position as the letters patent or the by-laws of the company may require; and, on resolution affirmed by shareholders holding at least five per centum of the capital of the company, shall furnish a copy thereof to every shareholder, personally present at such meeting and demanding the same. 3. [As amended by 8 Edw. 7, c. 43, § 1 (3).] Every balance sheet shall be drawn up so as to distinguish at least the following classes of assets and liabilities, namely: a) Cash; b) Debts owing to the company from its customers; c) Debts owing to the company from its directors, officers, and shareholders; d) Stock in trade; e) Expenditures made on account of future business; f) Land, buildings, and plant; g) Goodwill, franchises, patents, and copyrights, trademarks, leases, contracts, and licenses; h) Debts owing by the company secured by mortgage or other lien upon the property of the company; i) Debts owing by the company but not secured; k) Amount received on common shares; l) Amount received on preferred shares; m) Indirect and contingent liabilities.

Special meetings. 37. The directors may and upon a requisition made in writing by the holders of not less than one-tenth of the subscribed shares of the company shall, convene a special general meeting of the company, to transact the business set out in the notice calling such meeting.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 52; Imp. § 66. A notice calling a special or extraordinary meeting must state particularly the objects of the meeting, and no business can be transacted at the meeting, except in relation to the matter specified, unless the whole of the board is present and unanimously consent. — Waddell v. Ontario Cannery Co., (1889), 18 O. R. 41, at p. 51.

Directors to call meeting. 38. Upon the receipt of such requisition, which shall set out the objects for which such meeting is proposed to be called, and shall be left at the head office of the company, the directors shall forthwith proceed to convene a special general meeting. If they do not cause the same to be held within twenty-one days from the date upon which the requisition was left at the head office of the company, any shareholders, holding not less than one-tenth in value of the subscribed shares of the company, whether they signed the requisition or not, may themselves convene such special general meeting.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 191, §§ 53, 54. R. S. O., (1897), c. 191, §§ 56 and 57, providing for a quorum have been omitted in this Act. "It is questionable whether such is necessary. If all shareholders have notice, as is provided, the business of the company should go on." — Warde, Shareholders' and Directors' Manual, p. 300.

Presiding officer. Chairman to be elected when necessary. 39. The president of the company shall preside as chairman at every general meeting of the company; if there is no president or if at any meeting he is not present within fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding the meeting, the shareholders present shall choose some one of their number to be chairman.

R. S. O., c. 191, §§ 58, 59; Imp. § 67.

Adjournment by consent. 40. The chairman may with the consent of the meeting, and subject to such conditions as the meeting may decide, adjourn any meeting from time to time and from place to place.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 60. In Laren v. Fiske, (1881), 28 Gr. 352, the Court held that, upon the facts, the first meeting was a nullity, and consequently the adjournment to the second meeting was also a nullity, and notice of the new meeting was as much a necessity as if there had been no adjournment of the first meeting.

Procedure as to resolution. 41. At any general meeting, unless a poll is demanded, a declaration by the chairman that a resolution has been carried and an entry to that effect in the proceedings of the company, shall be prima facie evidence of the fact, without proof of the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour of or against such resolution.

Taking vote when poll is demanded. 42. If a poll is demanded, it shall be taken in such manner as the by-laws prescribe, and in case the by-laws make no provision therefor, then as the chairman may direct. In the case of an equality of votes, at any general meeting, the chairman shall be entitled to a second or casting vote.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 62; Imp. § 69 (4). The motive of a shareholder in casting his vote will not be inquired into even though such shareholder has a personal interest, and the result of his vote will be detrimental to the company. — Northwest Transportation Co. v. Beatty, (1887), 12 A. C. 589, at p. 593. But this rule is limited to the case of a shareholder, and does not extend to permitting a director to vote upon questions in which he has a personal interest. — Ibid; see also Burland v. Earle, (1902) A. C. 83. Neither will the fact that shares have been purchased for the purpose of influencing the election of officers, warrant the interference of the Court, provided no fraud is shown. — Toronto Brewing & Malting Co. v. Blake, (1882), 2 O. R. 175; Christopher v. Noxon, (1883), 4 O. R. 672. The Court has jurisdiction to set aside an election on the grounds that the voters were merely nominal holders, and not bona fide subscribers. — Davidson v. Grange, (1854), 4 Gr. 377. This right to the interference of the Court may, however, be lost by acquiescence, and it was held in In re Moore v. Port Bruce Harbor Co., (1857), 14 U. C. Q. B. 365, that a delay of eight months was a bar to an order setting aside the election. See also Beaudry v. Read, (1907), 10 O. W. R. 622, and cases cited in note to Dominion Companies Act § 77, supra.

Votes. Shareholders in arrear not to vote. 43. Subject to the Special Act, letters patent, or by-laws of the company, at all general meetings of the company every shareholder shall be entitled to as many votes as he holds shares in the company, and may vote by proxy, but no shareholder being in arrear in respect of any call shall be entitled to vote at any meeting of the company.

R. S. O., c. 191, §§ 63, 64; Imp. § 67. A proxy given by the transferor, where the shares have not been registered in the name of the transferee, is sufficient to authorize the proxy holder to vote. — Stevenson v. Vokes, (1896), 27 O. R. 696. The improper rejection of proxies is good ground for setting aside an election of directors. — Kelly v. Electrical Construction Co., (1907), 10 O. W. R. 704.

Place of meetings. 44. [As amended by 8 Edw. 7, c. 43, § 1 (4).] All meetings of the shareholders shall be held at the place of the head office of the company, save and except when the company is authorized by the Special Acts, letters patent, or supplementary letters patent, to hold meetings of shareholders or directors out of Ontario.

Application of part. 45. This part of the Act shall apply only to companies having share capital.

Part IV. Shares, Calls.

Share certificate. 46. Every shareholder shall, without payment, be entitled to a certificate under the common seal of the company specifying the share or shares held by him and the amount paid up thereon, provided that in respect of a share or shares held jointly by several persons, the company shall not be bound to issue more than one certificate, and delivery of a certificate for a share to one of the several joint holders shall be sufficient delivery to all.

Imp. § 92.

Lost certificate. 47. If a share certificate is defaced, lost, or destroyed, it may be renewed on payment of such fee, if any, not exceeding twenty-five cents, and on such terms, if any, as to evidence and indemnity, as the directors think fit.

Shares personal estate. 48. [As amended by 8 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 2, and 10 Edw. 7, c. 80, § 2.] 1. The shares of the company shall be deemed personal estate and shall be transferable on the books of the company, in such manner and subject to such conditions and restrictions as by this Act, the Special Act, the letters patent, or by-laws of the company may be prescribed. 2. Should shares in the capital stock of the company be issued in pounds sterling or francs, then shares previously issued in Canadian currency may at the option of the holder be exchanged for shares in pounds sterling or francs, as the case may be. For the purpose of dividends, distribution of assets, voting and all other matters relating to the amount of shares issued in pounds sterling or francs, one pound sterling or twentyfive francs shall be calculated as five dollars. Shares herein shall include share warrants, where the company is authorized to issue the same.

R. S. O., (2) c. 191, § 27; Imp. § 22 (1). See notes, § 52, infra. One who purchases shares in good faith without notice of a defect in the title of his transferor, is entitled to a mandamus ordering a transfer of stock on the books of the company. — In re Dominion Oil Co., (1903), 2 O. W. R. 826. A purchaser of stock is not charged with notice of special restrictions on the transfer of stock contained in the company's by-laws. So, a provision in a certificate that "the articles of this company are a part and parcel of this contract," is not sufficient to make applicable to a purchaser in good faith of the share, a by-law of the company purporting to give to the company a lien on all shares for "any and all amounts that may be owing by the shareholder or his assigns to the company." — In re McKain, etc., Savings Co., (1904), 7 O. L. R. 341; Banard v. Duplessis Independent Shoe Co., (1908), Q. R. 31 S. C. 362. Where the transferor had received from the company no certificate of shares, it was held that the presentation to the company, by the transferee, of an assignment made to him, was sufficient to entitle him to possession of the unissued certificate and to a transfer of the stock in his own name. — Meyers v. Lucknow Electric Co. (1905), 6 O. W. R. 291. Where a company has issued a share certificate to the transferor it is estopped as against the transferee from denying that the transferor is the regular shareholder and entitled to the shares specified in the certificate. — McCracken v. McIntyre, (1877), 1 S. C. R. 479.

Shares in cold storage companies. 49. No shareholder of a co-operative cold storage company or association to which aid has been or may hereafter be granted under the provisions of any statute in that behalf, or of a cheese and butter manufacturing company carried on for co-operative purposes, shall hold shares exceeding $ 1000.

Directors may refuse transfer of shares in certain cases. Their liability if they allow transfers to persons without means. 50. The directors may refuse to allow the entry in any such books, of any transfer of shares whereof the whole amount has not been paid in; and whenever entry is made in such book of any transfer of shares not fully paid in, to a person being of apparently not sufficient means, the directors present when such entry is authorized shall be jointly and severally liable to the creditors of the company in the same manner and to the same extent as the transferring shareholder, but for such entry, would have been; but if any director present, when such entry is allowed, forthwith enters a written protest against the same, and within eight days thereafter causes such protest to be notified, by registered letter, to the Provincial Secretary, such director may thereby, and not otherwise, exonerate himself from such liability.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 28. See notes to § 52, infra. In In re Imperial Starch Co., (1905), 10 O. L. R. 22; 5 O. W. R. 591, it was held that, while directors may refuse to transfer shares whereof the whole amount has not been paid in, this power does not extend to fully paid up shares, and a mandamus compelling the transfer of shares was granted. See also In re Pantou & Cramp Steel Co., (1904), 9 O. L. R. 3; In re Shanz, (1910), 15 O. W. R. 534; 16 O. W. R. 30. But see Nelles v. Windsor, etc., Railway Co., (1908), 16 O. L. R. 359, where a mandamus to compel transfer of shares was refused. Directors have a discretionary power as to registering transfers of shares not fully paid up. — In re McDonald v. Mail Printing Co., (1876), 6 O. P. R. 309. In the absence of evidence to the contrary, it will be presumed that they exercised this discretion reasonably and bona fide. — In re McDonald, etc., supra; see also In re Smith v. Canada Car Co., (1876), 16 O. P. R. 107. For a case where it was held that such discretion was not reasonably exercised, see Smith v. Bank of Nova Scotia, (1882), 8 S. C. R. 558. The insolvency of an assignee of shares has been held to be of itself no objection to the transfer, the only condition for a valid transfer being the payment of all calls. — Moore v. McLaren, (1862), 11 U. C. C. P. 534; In re Provincial Building Society, (1891), 20 N. B. 628. If there is no objection to the transfer, the company must register it within a reasonable time. — Nelles v. Windsor Railway Co. (1908), 11 O. W. R. 463. As to what will constitute a sufficient registration of the transferee on the books of the company, see Hudson's Case, (1905), 6 O. W. R. 514. A mandamus will lie to compel the company to make the transfer on its books. — Smith v. Canada Car Co., (1873), 6 O. P. R. 107; McDonald v. Mail Printing Co., (1876), 6 O. P. R. 309; Goodwin v. Ottawa Railway Co., (1862), 22 U. C. Q. B. 186; Guillot v. Sandwich Road Co., (1867), 26 U. C. Q. B. 246; Crawford v. Provincial Insurance Co., (1859), 8 U. C. C. P. 263; Cunningham v. Beaudet, (1878), 11 Q. L. R. 168; Brady v. Stewart, (1887), 15 S. C. R. 82. But in order to entitle the applicant to such relief, he must show a demand and a refusal to register him. As to what will constitute a sufficient demand and refusal, see In re Goodwin and Ottawa Railway Co., (1863), 13 U. C. C. P. 254; In re Guillot v. Sandwich, etc., Railway Co., (1867), 26 U. C. Q. B. 246; Boulton v. Hugel, (1874), 35 U. C. Q. B. 402. Damages may also be awarded against the company for refusal to transfer. — McMurrich v. Bond Head Harbour Co., (1852), 9 U. C. Q. B. 333. It was also held in the above case that, in the absence of statute, the company was not justified in refusing to register a transfer of shares where the shareholder was indebted to the company, since there was no common law lien on shares. In Provincial Insurance Co. v. Shaw, (1860), 19 U. C. Q. B. 533, a person who had paid one call after a transfer by him had been registered by the company, was not estopped from proving the assignment in an action for subsequent calls. So, a person who has taken a transfer, absolute in form, is not estopped from proving that the assignment was by way of mortgage. — Page v. Austin, (1882), 7 O. A. R. 1; affirmed, s. c. (1884), 10 S. C. R. 132. A company is estopped, as against bona fide transferees, from denying that the transferor, to whom a share certificate has been granted, is a registered shareholder. — McCracken v. McIntyre, (1877), 1 S. C. R. 479. For the liability of a contributory in a winding-up proceeding for unpaid calls on shares, see Dominion Winding-up Act, notes § 51, supra. See § 116, infra, for summary powers of judges to rectify errors and supply omissions of entries in the company's books.

Payment of dividends. 51. The directors, upon the passing of a by-law authorizing the payment of a dividend upon shares of the company, may direct that no entry of transfers shall be made in the books of the company for a period of two weeks immediately preceding the payment of such dividend and payment thereof shall be made to the shareholders of record on the date of closing said books.

Transfer valid only after entry. 52. No transfer of shares unless made by sale under execution, or under the order or judgment of some competent court in that behalf, shall, until entry thereof has been duly made, be valid for any purpose whatever, save only as exhibiting the rights of the parties thereto toward each other, and as rendering the transferee liable, ad interim, jointly and severally with the transferor, to the company and its creditors, until entry thereof has been duly made in the books of the company.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 29. A bona fide assignment or pledge for value of shares, is valid as between the assignor and assignee, notwithstanding that no entry of the transfer has been made on the books of the company. — Morton v. Cowan, (1894), 25 O. R. 529. But, except as between assignor and assignee, registration is necessary to acquire a valid title to stock transferred. Thus, in Smith v. Walkerville, etc., Co., (1896), 23 O. A. R. 95, where stock of a company was assigned for value and the transferee gave no notice to the company of the assignment and did not apply to be registered as a shareholder until after the original shareholder had executed another transfer to another innocent purchaser for value, which latter transfer was registered by the company, it was held, under this section, that the second transferee acquired a legal title to the shares, and that the first transferee had no action against the company for allowing the transfer. In Ontario, it is held that an unregistered transfer of shares is good as against a subsequent attaching creditor of the transferor. — Morton v. Cowan, (1894), 25 O. R. 528; but see Brock v. Ruttan, (1851), 1 U. C. C. P. 218. Shares of stock are choses in action and, at common law, can be transferred by word of mouth. — Kiely v. Smyth, (1879), 27 Gr. 220; Long v. Long, (1870), 17 Gr. 251. In the absence of provisions regulating the mode of acceptance of shares, an actual acceptance by the transferee, followed by a record of the assignment on the books of the company, is sufficient to constitute the transferee a shareholder, without a written acceptance. — Ross v. Machar, (1885), 8 O. R. 417. While shares may be made to pass by delivery, it is settled that they are not negotiable, and a transferee takes them subject to all equities. — Smith v. Walkerville, etc., Co., supra. So, if a certificate is lost or stolen from the owner, without fault on his part, he may recover the same even from a purchaser for value from any intermediate holder. — Smith v. Rogers, (1899), 30 O. R. 256. But where the registered owner of shares gave to her broker, for the purpose of sale, a certificate endorsed in blank, it was held that a bank, with which the broker had improperly deposited the certificate as security for advances, acquired a good title to the shares as against the owner. — Ibid. A transferor of shares is not exempted from liability as a contributory, unless the deed purporting to transfer the shares is completed in accordance with the rules of the society. — In re St. John Building Society, (1889), 28 N. B. 597. As to the effect of irregular transfers see Hamilton v. Grant, (1900), 30 S. C. R. 566; Brock v. Ruttan, (1851), 1 U. C. C. P. 218; Crawford v. Provincial Insurance Co., (1857), 8 U. C. C. P. 263; In re McKain and Canadian, etc., Investing Co., (1904), 7 O. L. R. 241. As to transfers to a "man of straw," see In re Peterboro Cold Storage Co., (1907), 9 O. W. R. 850. A transfer of shares to the manager of a company to hold in trust for the company, such shares being partly paid up, is invalid, since the company has no power to deal in its own stock. — In re Union Fire Insurance Co., McCord's Case, (1891), 21 O. R. 264; see also Paton's Case, (1902), 5 O. L. R. 392, where a defendant, at the request of the president of a company, accepted a transfer of shares partly paid up to enable him to vote, but where no re-transfer was ever made, he was held liable as a contributory. — Ontario Investment Corporation v. Leys, (1893), 23 O. R. 496; see also Kiely v. Smyth (1879) 27 Gr. 220. Long delay on the part of the company in registering a transfer does not release a transferee from his liability as a contributory where the transfer is registered before the winding-up proceeding is commenced. — In re Cole and Canada, etc., Insurance Co., Close's Case, (1885), 8 O. R. 92. For further cases on the liability of contributories, see Dominion Winding-up Act, § 51, notes, supra.

Transferor may be notified. 53. 1. The directors may for the purpose of notifying the person or persons registered therein as owners of such shares, refuse to allow the entry in any such books of a transfer of shares. 2. Such owner may lodge a caveat against the entry of such transfer, and thereupon such transfer shall not be made for a period of forty-eight hours. 3. If within one week from the giving of such notice or the expiration of the said period of forty-eight hours, whichever shall last expire, no order shall have been served upon the company enjoining the entry of such transfer, the company may enter the same. 4. When a transfer is entered after the proceedings heretofore set out the company shall be free from liability in respect of shares so transferred to a person whose rights are purported to be transferred, but without prejudice to any claim which the transferor may have against the transferee.

Restrictions as to transfers. 54. No shares shall be transferable until all previous calls have been fully paid in, or until declared forfeited for non-payment of calls.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 30. Under the Dominion Companies Act, § 67, supra, the directors may decline to register a transfer where the transferor is indebted to the company. The Ontario Act merely restricts transfers until all calls have been paid, and makes no provision for a lien for a general indebtedness to the company. — See McMurrich v. Bondhead Harbour Co., (1852), 9 U. C. Q. B. 333, where it was held that there was no common law lien, and that the company was not justified in refusing to register a transfer when the shareholder was indebted to it. Where directors subscribed for stock making no provision for payment and making no calls thereon, and afterwards, but some time before the company was declared insolvent, transferred their stock to bona fide purchasers for value, upon the representation that the latter would incur no liability thereon, it was held that the transfers were invalid, as being made before all calls had been paid, contrary to the provisions of this section, and that the directors were liable as contributories in the winding up. — In re Peterborough Cold Storage Co., (1907), 14 O. L. R. 475.

Calling in instalments. 55. The directors of the company may call in and demand from the shareholders thereof, the amount unpaid on shares by them subscribed or held, at such times and places and in such payments or instalments as the letters patent or this Act, or the by-laws of the company require or allow; and interest shall accrue at the legal rate for the time being upon the amount of any unpaid call, from the day appointed for payment of such call.

R. S. O., c. 191, § 32. See notes §§ 50 and 54, supra. Power to make calls can not be delegated. — Provident Life Assurance Co. v. Wilson, (1866), 25 U. C. Q. B. 53. Where the letters patent or by-laws of the company provide that a certain notice of calls shall be given, such requirement must be strictly complied with and the full time must be given or the call will be invalid. — St. John Bridge Co. v. Woodward, (1840), 3 N. B. 29; Union Fire Insurance v. O'Gara, (1883), 4 O. R. 359; National Insurance Co. v. Egleson, (1881), 29 Gr. 406. But it is not necessary that calls should be made by by-laws; a resolution is sufficient. — Provident Life Assurance Co. v. Wilson, supra. The resolution need not name the time and place of payment. It will be sufficient if this is stated in the notice. — Union Fire Insurance v. O'Gara, supra. But in view of the wording of § 55, it would appear advisable that if the general by-laws of the company do not contain clauses respecting the time and place of calls to be made, a by-law rather than a resolution should be passed making the same. — Parker and Clark, Company Law, p. 334. A notice of a call, which requires payment on different days from those provided for in the resolution of the directors, is invalid. — London Gas Co. v. Campbell, (1856), 14 U. C. Q. B. 143; see also Provincial Insurance Co. v. Worts, (1883), 9 O. A. R. 56. But where a shareholder has made a payment upon a call which is invalid, owing to such a variation, he can not thereafter raise the question of the invalidity of such call. — Provincial Insurance Co. v. Cameron, (1880), 31 U. C. C. P. 523. Notice of call is duly given at the time of mailing. — Union Fire Insurance Co. v. Fitzsimmons, (1882), 32 U. C. C. P. 602; Union Fire Insurance Co. v. Schoolbred, (1883), 4 O. R. 359. But where the charter provided that notice "shall be given," it was held that proof of mailing was insufficient. — Ross v. Machar, (1885), 8 O. R. 417; see also Buffalo, etc., Railway Co. v. Clarke, (1855), 12 U. C. Q. B. 607. Where shares are held by a firm, notice of a call may be sufficiently given by mailing the notice to one of the partners, and this, even after dissolution, as to matters "which are thereafter to be completed." — National Insurance Co. v. Egleson, (1881), 29 Gr. 406; and semble, notice to one of two joint proprietors of stock would be imputed to the other. — Ibid. A call which appointed no place of payment, was held a nullity. — Provident Life Assurance Co. v. Wilson, (1866), 25 U. C. Q. B. 53. Where it is provided that calls shall be made at certain intervals, several calls can not be made at one time. In computing the interval, the time must be reckoned exclusively of the day on which the previous call was payable. — Bank of Nova Scotia v. Forbes, (1883), 16 N. S. 295; Port Dover, etc., Railway Co. v. Gray, (1875), 36 U. C. Q. B. 425. A shareholder, in an action for calls, may plead a non-compliance with the act of incorporation. — Quebec, etc., Railway Co. v. Dawson, (1851), 1 L. C. R. 366. Where the company began business after the time limited in the charter, and with a fictitious subscription of capital stock, it was held that a subscriber had a good defence to an action for calls. — La Compagnie de Sauvetage de La Puissance v. Brown, (1891), 20 Rev. Leg. 557. But in a proceeding by a receiver of an insurance company for payment of calls, the subscriber can not object that the company's licence had been revoked. — Union Fire Insurance Co. v. Fitzsimmons, (1882), 32 U. C. C. P. 602. Shareholders who sanction a by-law making calls can not thereafter object to any irregularity in the making. — Christopher v. Noxon, (1884), 4 O. R. 672. In the absence of a provision in the act of incorporation, a company may take a note from a subscriber in payment for shares. — St. Stephen Branch Railway Co. v. Black, (1870), 13 N. B. 139. When a company falls into a complete state of disorganization, it can not bring suit for calls without proper authorization. — La Compagnie du Cap Gibraltar v. Lalonde, (1889), M. L. R. 5 S. C. 127. Where a call is made impartially on all shareholders, the Court will not interfere to determine whether or not it was necessary. But if one set of shareholders is discriminated against, semble, the Court will interfere to protect them. — Christopher v. Noxon, (1884), 4 O. R. 672. For cases in which it was held, upon the facts, that there had been no such preference or discrimination between classes of shareholders as would invalidate a call, see European, etc., Railway Co. v. McLeod, (1875), 16 N. B. 3; National Insurance v. Hatton, (1879), 2 L. N. 238. A shareholder who transfers his shares after a call is made remains liable for the amount of the call. — Montreal Mining Co. v. Cuthbertson, (1852), 9 U. C. Q. B. 78. In Harris v. Dry Dock Co., (1859), 7 Gr. 450, the Court issued a mandamus, upon an application by a creditor who was also a shareholder, compelling directors to make calls to discharge the indebtedness of the company. The Statute of Limitations does not commence to run against a company until a call is made and notice given. — In re Haggart Bros. Manufacturing Co., Peaker and Runion's Case, (1892), 19 O. A. R. 582. Upon the question of the sufficiency of evidence to show that directors permitted a transfer of shares with the intention of defeating the liability of shareholders for calls, see Thompson v. Canada Insurance Co., (1885), 9 O. R. 284.

Forfeiture of shares. 56. If, after a demand therefor, any call is not paid within the time and in the manner provided by the Special Act or letters patent or by-laws the directors, by resolution to that effect, reciting the facts and duly recorded in their minutes, may summarily forfeit any shares whereupon such payment is not made; and the same shall thereupon become the property of the company and may be disposed of, as by by-law or otherwise the company may ordain; provided that such forfeiture shall not relieve any shareholder of any liability to the company or any creditor

R. S. O. c. 191, § 35. The power to forfeit shares must be regarded as totally distinct from that of accepting a surrender of shares. In the former case no change is effected in the liability of the holder; in the latter he is relieved from further liability on his shares. The remedy given to the company to enforce payment by forfeiture of shares is cumulative, and, where no forfeiture has been ordered, the right to sue for assessments continues. — Harris v. Dry Dock Co., (1859), 7 Gr. 450. In an action for calls, where no forfeiture has been made, the shareholder can not avail himself of the provisions of this section. The right to order a forfeiture is discretionary with the company. — Ontario Marine Insurance Co. v. Ireland, (1855), 5 U. C. C. P. 135. The power given to the directors to forfeit shares for non-payment of calls is intended to be executed only when the circumstances of the shareholder render it expedient in the interests of the company, and can not be employed for the benefit of the shareholder. — Common v. McArthur, (1898), 29 S. C. R. 239. Forfeiture is strictly construed by the courts. The requirements of the charter with respect to the contents of the notice and the length of time which is to elapse between the notice and the forfeiture must be strictly complied with. It was accordingly held that the notice must state correctly the amount due for non-payment of which the stock was to be forfeited. — Robertson v. Banque de Hochelaga, (1881), 4 L. N. 314; Nelles v. Second Mutual Building Society, (1881), 29 Gr. 399; but see Gilman v. Royal Canadian Insurance Co., (1884), M. L. R. 1 S. C. 1. Where the shareholder is dead, notice should be given to his personal representative. — Glass v. Hope, (1869), 16 Gr. 420. Where no time for payment of the call was limited in the statute, letters patent, or by-laws, the call was held to be illegal, and the attempted forfeiture of stock ineffectual. — Armstrong v. Merchants, etc., Manufacturing Co., (1900), 32 O. R. 387. Where a call was regularly made, and defendant gave to the company a note in payment of such call, the failure on the part of the company to present the note at the proper place for payment did not prevent it from ordaining defendant's shares forfeited, after a subsequent demand for payment and a failure to comply therewith. — Freemen v. Canadian, etc., Insurance Co., (1908), 17 O. L. R. 296. Where the board of directors was not legally appointed, a resolution by them ordering a forfeiture was held invalid. — Christopher v. Noxon, (1884), 4 O. R. 672. For another case where proceedings to forfeit shares were held invalid because of irregularity, see Brady v. Stewart, (1887), 15 S. C. R. 82. The directors of a company, and not the shareholders, are the proper persons to make a call and to give notice of a forfeiture of shares. Hence, the irregular action of the directors in so doing can not be ratified by a resolution passed at a subsequent meeting of shareholders. — Paul v. Kobald, (1906), 3 West. L. R. 407. Where a call is made it is the duty of the directors to use all reasonable means to compel every shareholder to pay the assessment, and directors must bona fide believe that payments can not be obtained before they are justified in invoking the power of forfeiture. — In re D. Wade Co., (1902), 2 Alb. 117; 10 West. L. R. 407.

Issue of share warrants. 57. A company authorized to do so by letters patent or supplementary letters patent and subject to the provisions thereof, may, with respect to any share which is fully paid up, issue under its common seal a warrant stating that the bearer of the warrant is entitled to the share or shares therein specified, and may provide, by coupons or otherwise, for the payment of the future dividends on the share or shares included in such warrant, hereinafter referred to as a share warrant.

Imp. § 37 (1).

Holders of share warrants. 58. A share warrant shall entitle the bearer of such warrant to the shares specified in it and such shares may be transferred by the delivery of the share warrant.

Imp. § 37 (2).

Surrender of share warrants. 59. The bearer of a share warrant shall, subject to the provisions and regulations contained in the letters patent or supplementary letters patent respecting share warrants, be entitled on surrendering such warrant for cancellation, to have his name entered as a shareholder in the register of shareholders, and the company shall be responsible for any loss incurred by any person by reason of the company entering in its register of shareholders the name of any bearer of a share warrant in respect of the shares specified therein without the share warrant being surrendered and cancelled.

Imp. § 37 (3).

Holders of share warrants not to be deemed shareholders for certain purposes. 60. The bearer of a share warrant may, if the regulations respecting share warrants so provide, be deemed to be a shareholder of the company, either to the full extent or for such purposes as may be prescribed by such regulations; provided, that the bearer of a share warrant shall not be qualified in respect of the shares specified in such warrant for being a director of the company in cases where such a qualification is prescribed by the by-laws of the company.

Imp. § 37 (4).

Entries in register where share warrant issued. 61. On the issue of a share warrant in respect of any share, the company shall strike out of its register of shareholders the name of the shareholder then entered therein as holding such share as if he had ceased to be a shareholder, and shall enter in the register the following particulars: 1. The fact of the issue of the warrant; 2. The statement of the shares included in the warrant distinguishing each share by its number; 3. The date of issue of the warrant.

Imp. § 37 (5).

Entries of share warrants. 62. Until the warrant is surrendered the above particulars shall be deemed to be the particulars which are required by section 113 of this Act, to be entered in the register of shareholders of a company; and on the surrender of a warrant the date of such surrender shall be entered as if it were the date at which a person ceased to be a shareholder.

Deposit of share warrants. 63. The bearer of a share warrant may at any time deposit the warrant at the office of the company, and so long as the warrant remains so deposited the depositor shall have the same right of signing a requisition for calling a meeting of the company, and of attending and voting and exercising the other privileges of a member at any meeting held after the expiration of two clear days from the time of deposit, as if his name were inserted in the register of members as the holder of the share included in the deposited warrant. Not more than one person shall be recognized as depositor of the share warrant. The company shall on two days' written notice return the deposited share warrant to the depositor.

Holders of share warrants not to sign requisition for meetings. 64. Subject as herein otherwise expressly provided no person shall, as a bearer of a share warrant, sign a requisition for calling a meeting of the company, or attend, or vote, or exercise any other privilege of a member at a meeting of the company; or be entitled to receive any notices from the company, but the bearer of a share warrant shall be entitled in all other respects to the same privileges and advantages as if he were named in the register of members as the holder of the shares included in the warrant, and he shall be a member of the company.

Lost share warrant. 65. The directors may from time to time make rules as to the terms on which (if they shall think fit) a new share warrant or coupon may be issued by way of renewal in case of defacement, loss, or destruction.

Trusts. 66. The company shall not be bound to see to the execution of any trust, whether express, implied, or constructive, in respect of any share; and the receipt of the shareholder in whose name the same stands on the books of the company shall be a valid and binding discharge to the company for any dividend or money payable in respect of such share, whether or not notice of the trust has been given to the company; and the company shall not be bound to see to the application of the money paid upon such receipt.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 31; Imp. § 27. See Dominion Companies Act, notes to § 161, supra. The entry of shares as being "in trust," is sufficient of itself to show that the title of the seller is not absolute, and to put the purchaser on inquiry as to the title of the vendor. — Sweeny v. Bank of Montreal, (1885), 12 S. C. R. 661; Raphael v. McFarlane, (1890), 18 S. C. R. 183; cp. London & Canadian, etc., Co. v. Duggan, (1893) A. C. 506. Where plaintiff purchased shares from defendants and received from them a certificate made out in the name of a third person and by him endorsed with a transfer in blank, it was held that this completed the duty of the defendants and that it was not incumbent upon them to see that the plaintiff should become registered as owner of the shares upon the books of the company. — Boulton v. Wills, (1908), 15 O. L. R. 227.

Trustees, etc., may vote. Mortgagor of stock may vote. Joint holders of stock. 67. 1. Every executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee shall represent the shares in his hands, at all meetings of the company, and may vote accordingly as a shareholder, and every person who mortgages or hypothecates his shares may, nevertheless, represent the same at all such meetings, and may vote accordingly as a shareholder, unless in the instrument creating the mortgage or hypothecation he shall have expressly empowered the holder of such mortgage or hypothecation to vote thereon in which case only such holder or his proxy may vote in respect of said shares. 2. If shares be held jointly by two or more persons, any one of them present at a meeting may, in the absence of the other or others, vote thereon, but if more than one joint shareholder be present or be represented by proxy, they shall vote together on the shares jointly held.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 36.

Liability of shareholders. 68. Each shareholder, until the whole amount of his shares has been paid up, shall be individually liable to the creditors of the company to an amount equal to that not paid up thereon, but shall not be liable to an action therefor by any creditor before an execution against the company has been returned unsatisfied in whole or in part; and the amount due on such execution, but not beyond the amount so unpaid on his said shares, shall be the amount recoverable, with costs, against such shareholders.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 37 (1); Imp. § 123. See Dominion Companies Act, note to § 39, supra. Where defendants took stock in a company which they paid for in land considerably over-valued, it was held that the stock must be considered as fully paid up since the transaction was not shown to be fraudulent. — Jones v. Miller, (1893), 24 O. R. 268; see also Sloan's Case, (1894), 23 S. C. R. 644; In re North Bay Supply Co., (1905), 6 O. W. R. 85. Shares may likewise be paid for in services. — Ingles v. Wellington Hotel Co., (1878), 29 U. C. C. P. 387. If, however, the consideration is grossly inadequate, the directors may be personally liable for misfeasance. — In re Manes Tailoring Co., (1907), 14 O. L. R. 89. Upon the question of whether an allotment is necessary to constitute a subscriber a shareholder, see notes to Dominion Winding-up Act, § 51, supra. In order to bring an action, in Ontario, against a shareholder of a company whose head office is in another Province, it is sufficient to show a return of execution unsatisfied in such other Province. — Bryce v. Monro, (1885), 12 O. A. R. 453. The fact that the company has fallen into a complete state of disorganization does not discharge the shareholders from their liability on shares to creditors of the company. — Hughes v. La Compagnie de Villas du Cap Gibraltar, (1889), M. L. R. 5 S. C. 129. After a winding-up order has been made, a judgment creditor of the company can not bring an action, under this section, against a contributory for payment of the amount unpaid on his shares. A proposed incorporator who, before incorporation, takes an active part in the prosecution of the intended business of the company, and who sanctions or ratifies the conduct of affairs by some act not being a mere subscription to shares, is liable to contribute to an obligation properly incurred in carrying out the objects of the projected company. — Sandusky Coal Co. v. Walker, (1896), 27 O. R. 677. In the following cases, in which defendant was sought to be charged with the statutory liability of a shareholder, under this section, the question at issue was whether or not defendant had entered into a valid contract of membership. The liability sought to be imposed in these cases was one accruing while the company was solvent, and should be distinguished from the liability which arises under a winding-up proceeding. R. 80, (signature of a memorandum which did not accompany the petition as prescribed by § 5 (3) of this Act); Twin City Oil Co. v. Christie, (1909), 18 O. L. R. 324, (invalid allotment by an officer who had no authority to make it). As to distinction between an application for shares and an offer by the company to sell, which latter may be accepted by the applicant, so that the offer and acceptance close the bargain, see McDowell v. Macklem, (1904), 4 O. W. R. 482. As to liability on shares held as collateral security, see In re Perrin Flour Co., (1908), 11 O. W. R. 186.

Set-off. 69. Any shareholder may plead by way of defence, in whole or in part, any set-off which he could set up against the company, except a claim for unpaid dividend, or a salary or allowance as a president or a director of the company.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 37 (2). As to when a shareholder will be allowed to set off a debt due from the company in an action by a creditor for unpaid shares, see Field v. Galloway, (1884), 5 O. R. 502. A shareholder can not set up, as a defence to an action to recover the amount of a judgment against the company, that such judgment was recovered on notes which the company gave in fraud of creditors. Such defence may be raised only in the original action against the company. — Shaver v. Cotton, (1894), 16 O. P. R. 278. For a case where a counter-claim, set up by a shareholder under this section, was not allowed, see Grills v. Farah, (1910), 16 O. W. R. 285.

Shareholders not liable beyond unpaid amount. 70. The shareholders shall not, as such, be held responsible for any act, default, or liability whatsoever, of the company, or of any engagement, claim, payment, loss, injury, transaction, matter, or thing whatsoever, relating to or connected with the company, beyond the unpaid amount on their respective shares.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 37 (3); Imp. § 128.

Trustees not personally liable. 71. No person holding shares as executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee, shall be personally subject to liability as a shareholder; but the estates and funds in the hands of such person shall be liable in like manner and to the same extent as the testator or intestate or the minor, ward, or person, interested in the trust fund, would be, if living and competent to act and holding such shares.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 38.

Mortgagees. 72. No person holding shares as collateral security shall, prior to foreclosure, be personally subject to liability as a shareholder, but the person transferring such shares as collateral security shall, until foreclosed, be considered as holding the same, and shall be liable as a shareholder in respect thereof.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 39. Where a mortgagee of shares had taken a transfer absolute in form and entered as such on the books of the company, he was allowed, nevertheless, to prove the transaction to be a mortgage. — Page v. Austin, (1884), 10 S. C. R. 132, affirming s. c. (1882), 7 O. A. R. 8 which reversed s. c. (1879), 30 U. C. C. P. 108. But a loan company, which advances money on shares, which shares are transferred to it by an absolute assignment, can not escape liability as a contributory on the ground that it is merely a trustee for the borrower. — In re Central Bank of Canada, Home Savings & Loan Case, (1891), 18 O. A. R. 489; see also In re Union Fire Insurance Co., McCord's Case, (1891), 21 O. R. 264. Where partly paid-up shares were transferred to the defendant for the purpose of voting at a meeting of shareholders and no re-transfer was made, defendant was held liable as a contributory in the winding-up proceeding. — Ontario Investment Association v. Leys, (1893), 23 O. R. 496; and see In re President, etc., Bank, (1869), 12 N. B. 514.

Part V. Preference and Debenture Stock, Debentures and Mortgages.

Powers of directors. 73. [As amended by 8 Edw. 7, c. 43, § 1 (5, 6).] The directors of a corporation may make by-laws: a) For borrowing money; b) For issuing bonds, debentures, or other securities; c) For pledging or selling such bonds, debentures, or other securities for such sum and at such prices as may be deemed expedient or be necessary. And the directors of companies with share capital may make by-laws: 1. For creating and issuing any part of the capital as preference shares; 2. For creating and issuing debenture stock; 3. For the conversion of preference shares into common shares or debentures or debenture stock, debentures into debenture stock or preference shares, or any class of shares or securities into any other class. Provided, however, that nothing in this part of this Act shall apply to promissory notes, bills of exchange, bills of lading, warehouse receipts, or other securities of a commercial nature issued in the ordinary course of business.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 49. The phraseology of this section gives rise to the contention that there is no power to borrow or to create a mortgage except by a by-law. "The weight of opinion, however, seemed to be in favour of the view that a company might validly borrow money and create a valid mortgage where no by-law had been passed, and that the lack of a by-law was an irregularity only, and that outsiders were not affected with notice of such irregularity. — Sheppard v. Bonanza Nickel Co., (1894), 25 O. R. 305; MacEdwards v. Ogilvie, (1887), 4 Man. R. 1, at p. 6; McKain v. Canadian Birbeck Co., (1904), 7 O. L. R. 241; Trusts & Guarantee Com. v. Abbott Mitchell Co., (1902), 11 O. L. R. 403." — Parker and Clark, Company Law, p. 266. As to whether, in the absence of express authorization, the power to borrow and mortgage will be implied, see notes § 17, supra. Persons dealing with the company are affected with notice of the Act under which it is incorporated, and where a corporation is prohibited from buying on credit, there is no remedy against the company or the directors upon an implied warranty. — Struthers v. Mackenzie, (1887), 28 O. R. 381. "Except in British Columbia and Nova Scotia, where the Imperial form of Act obtains, outsiders dealing with the company are not affected with constructive notice of its by-laws or want of by-laws. This view is upheld by Mr. Justice Killam in the case of McEdwards v. Ogilvie Milling Co. (1887), 4 Man. R., 1 at p. 6, where he says, 'In this case, of course, the plaintiff must be taken to have notice of all the provisions of the Joint Stock Companies Act, under which the defendant company was incorporated, and it may be, also, that he must be taken to have notice of the contents of the letters patent incorporating the company, as he could become acquainted with them by search in the office of the proper department, but further than that he could not be expected to go,' and the view of the Chancellor in the case of Sheppard v. Bonanza, etc., (1894), 25 O. R. 305, has given strength to the same view. See also Thompson v. Brantford Electric, etc., Co., (1895), 25 O. A. R. 346; Merchants' Bank v. Hancock, (1884), 6 O. R. 289; McDougall v. Lindsay Paper Mill Co., (1883), 10 O. P. R. 247." — Masten, Company Law, p. 161. For cases upon the lender's rights against the company where borrowing has been ultra vires, see Bridgewater Cheese Co. v. Murphy, (1896), 23 O. A. R. 66; Cayley v. McDonnell, (1852), 8 U. C. Q. B. 454; Clark v. Sarnia, etc., Co., (1877), 42 U. C. Q. B. 39; Burnham v. Peterboro, (1860), 8 Gr. 366. As to the classes of securities to which the term "debenture" is applied, see Bank of Toronto v. Cobourg, etc., Railway Co., (1884), 7 O. R. 1, at p. 7. Upon the question as to whether debentures payable to bearer are negotiable, see: Trust & Loan Co. v. Hamilton, (1858), 7 U. C. C. P. 98; Gott v. Gott, (1862), 9 Gr. 165; Geddes v. Toronto Street Railway Co., (1864), 14 U. C. C. P. 513; Parish of St. Cesaire v. McFarlane, (1887), 14 S. C. R. 738; Young v. McNider, (1895), 25 S. C. R. 272. For cases defining the rights of mortgaged debentures in the property of the company, see: Fellowes v. Ottawa Gas Co., (1869), 19 U. C. C. P. 174; Smith v. Port Dover Railway Co., (1885), 12 O. A. R. 288; Phelps v. St. Catharines Railway Co., (1890), 19 O. R. 501; In re Farmers Loan & Savings Co., (1898), 30 O. R. 337. A floating charge may be created upon present and future property. The nature of such charge is explained in Johnston v. Wade, (1909), 11 O. W. R. 598. When the business ceases to be a going concern, the floating charge becomes a specific charge. — Ibid. See also Phelps v. St. Catharines Railway Co., (1890), 19 O. R. 501. The words "guaranteed by the capital and assets of the company invested in mortgages on real estate," were held sufficient to create a general charge. In Johnston v. Wade, supra, it was held that debentures issued by the directors, though purporting to create a lien or charge on the property of the company, were not mortgages within the meaning of the Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act, and were not, therefore, void against the assignee of the company for the benefit of creditors, because not registered according to the provisions of that Act. In Diehl v. Carrett, (1907), 15 O. L. R. 202, leave was given to bring an action against the receiver of a company incorporated under this Act to restrain him from carrying out a certain scheme for a fresh bond issue, notwithstanding that the legality of the scheme had been upheld by a Judge of the High Court of Justice in England. For a case involving the sufficiency of a by-law authorizing the hypothecation of the company's securities and the validity of the endorsement by the company's officers of such securities, see Standard Bank of Canada v. Stephens, (1908), 16 O. L. R. 115. For a discussion of the power of a company to mortgage its franchise, see Bickford v. Grand Junction Railway Co., (1877), 1 S. C. R. 696; Whiteside v. Bell Chamber, (1872), 22 U. C. C. P. 241; Peto v. Welland Railway Co., (1862), 9 Gr. 455.

Sanction of by-law. 74. [As amended by 8 Edw. 7, c. 43, § 1 (7).] No by-law referred to in the last preceding section shall take effect until it has been confirmed by a vote of not less than two-thirds in value of the shareholders or members present in person or by proxy at a general meeting of the company, duly called for considering the same, by notice specifying the terms of the by-law to be confirmed or unanimously sanctioned in writing by the shareholders or members of the company.

By "two-thirds in value of the shareholders" is meant that the votes are to be computed on the face value of the shares held, and not upon the amount paid upon such shares. — Purdum v. Ontario Loan Co., (1892), 22 O. R. 597. Where the notice did not state the purpose of the meeting or that a proposed by-law was to be submitted to the shareholders, it was held that there was no compliance with this section, and, therefore, no valid confirmation of the by-laws. — Meyers v. Lucknow Elevator Co., (1905), 6 O. W. R. 291. For a case where an allotment of new shares, issued upon the approval of two-thirds of the shareholders, but allotted by the directors to themselves for the purpose of acquiring control of the company, was declared invalid, see, Martin v. Gibson, (1908), 15 O. L. R. 623.

Terms of issue of preference shares. 75. [As amended by 8 Edw. 7, c. 43, § 1 (8).] A by-law for the creation and issue of preference shares or for the conversion of shares, debentures, or debenture stock into preference shares may provide that the holders of such shares shall have such preference as regards dividends and repayment on dissolution or winding-up as may be therein set out; may have the right to select a certain stated proportion of the board of directors, or such other control over the affairs of the company as may be considered expedient; or may limit the right of the holders thereof to specific dividends or control of the affairs of the company or otherwise, not contrary to law or to this Act, and may provide for the purchase or redemption of such shares by the company as therein set out; provided, however, that any term or provision of such by-law, whereby the rights of holders of such shares are limited or restricted, shall be fully set out in the certificate of such shares, and in the event of such limitations and restrictions not being so set out they shall not be deemed to qualify the rights of holders thereof.

Consent of holders to redemption. 76. Unless preference shares, debenture stock, debentures, or bonds are issued subject to redemption or conversion, the same shall not be subject to redemption or conversion without the consent of the holders thereof.

Supplementary letters patent in certain cases. 77. No such by-law which has the effect of increasing or decreasing the capital of the company or otherwise varying any term or provision of the Special Act or letters patent of the company shall be valid or acted upon until confirmed by supplementary letters patent.

Mortgages to secure debentures, etc. 78. The directors may charge, hypothecate, mortgage, or pledge any or all of the real or personal property, rights and powers, undertaking, franchises, including book debts and unpaid calls of the corporation, to secure any bonds, debentures, or other securities or any liability of the corporation and a duplicate original of such charge, mortgage or other instrument of hypothecation or pledge made to secure bonds, debentures, or other securities, shall be forthwith filed in the office of the Provincial Secretary as well as registered under the provisions of any other Act in that behalf.

Before the word "franchises" was added, it was held under the old Act, (R. S. O. 1897, c. 191, § 49), that the words "real or personal property, rights, and powers of the company" probably covered a mortgage of the franchise of a trading company. — See Bickford v. Grand Junction Railway Co., (1877), 1 S. C. R. 696, at p. 737. But the right of a railway to be a corporation can not be mortgaged. — Ibid. p. 738; nor taken on an execution against the company. — Peto v. Welland Railway Co., (1862), 9 Gr. 455. A mortgage by a street railway company on after acquired property is valid. — Bank of Montreal v. Kirkpatrick, (1901), 2 O. L. R. 113. Where the directors of a company had mortgaged all its estate and assets to plaintiffs, the condition of the mortgage being that the company could continue to carry on business, and could pledge or mortgage its stock in trade, it was held that, notwithstanding the mortgage, the directors had power to pledge certain materials and debts to a bank without a two-thirds vote of the shareholders, that the transfer of the debts to the bank was a necessary power in the directors in order to carry on the business, and that the pledge was valid in the hands of the bank. — Trust & Guarantee Co. v. Abbott Mitchell, etc., Co., (1902), 11 O. L. R. 403.

Part VI. Directors and their Powers, etc.

Provisional directors. 79. The persons named as provisional directors in the Special Act or in letters patent shall be the directors of the company, until replaced by the same number of others duly elected in their stead, and shall be eligible for election.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 41. Provisional directors are merely temporary officers who exercise limited powers until the permanent organization may be perfected. Their powers and duties are defined in Michie v. Erie & Huron Railway, (1876), 26 U. C. C. P. 566. But see Johnston v. Wade, (1909), 17 O. L. R. 372; 11 O. W. R. 598, where, semble, provisional directors were deemed to possess for the time being, all the powers properly exercisable by permanent directors. Quære, whether provisional directors have power to pass a by-law authorizing the borrowing of money, to issue bonds and debentures of the company, and to pledge real and personal property to secure such bonds and debentures. — Ibid. Quære, whether provisional directors have power to deal with such matters as transfers of shares. — In re Wakefield Mica Co., (1906), 7 O. W. R. 104. See Monarch Life v. Broty, (1907), 14 O. L. R. 1, where the powers of provisional directors were limited. A person who is employed by a provisional director to do certain work on behalf of the company, such provisional director being intrusted by the company with the duty of promoting the undertaking, and the work having been done with the knowledge of his co-directors, may recover from the company for the value of his work. — Allen v. Ontario, etc., Railway Co., (1898), 29 O. R. 510; see also North Sydney Co. v. Greener, (1898), 31 N. S. 41; Odell v. Boston, etc., Coal Co., (1895), 29 N. S. 385; North Simcoe Railway Co. v. Toronto, (1874), 36 U. C. Q. B. 101. As to powers of provisional directors of railways, see North Simcoe Railway Co., supra; Michie v. Erie & Huron Railway Co., (1876), 26 U. C. C. P. 66. As to the number of provisional directors, see Manes Tailoring Co. v. Willson, (1907), 14 O. L. R. 89.

Board of directors. 80. The affairs of the company shall be managed by a board of not less than three directors, who shall be elected by the shareholders in general meeting of the company.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 40. Where one of three directors disposed of his stock, it was held that he ceased to be a director and that the board, ipso facto, became incompetent to manage the affairs of the company. — Toronto Brewing & Malting Co. v. Blake, (1882), 2 O. R. 175; see also First Natchez Bank v. Coleman, (1903), 2 O. W. R. 358. Directors must act at regularly constituted meetings of which proper notice of the time and purpose of the meeting should be given. A notice calling a special or extraordinary meeting must state particularly the objects of calling such meeting, and no business can be transacted except in relation to the matters specified, unless all members of the board are present and unanimously consent. — Waddell v. Ontario Canning Co., (1889), 18 O. R. 41, at p. 51. An election of directors at a meeting of which all the shareholders have not been notified, is void. — Milot v. Perrault, (1886), 12 O. L. R. 193.

Business must be transacted by quorum of board. 81. [As amended by 8 Edw. 7, c. 43, § 1 (9).] 1. Except as in this section provided no business of a company shall be transacted by its directors unless at a meeting of directors at which a quorum of the board shall be present. Such quorum shall consist of a majority of the directors of the company. 2. Whenever it shall happen that from any cause there is not a quorum of directors in office the requisition mentioned in section 37 of this Act may be served on such directors of the company as are still in office, and such directors, though less in number than a majority of the board, may nevertheless call a meeting under section 38 for the election of directors to fill the vacancies in the board, and in default of their doing so the requisitionists or other shareholders may call such meeting as in section 38 provided. 3. This section shall not apply to a sole director remaining in office. If there be no directors remaining in office a meeting to elect directors may be called without service of any requisition. 4. So long as a quorum of directors remains in office casual vacancies in the board may be filled by such directors as remain in office.

Vacancies occurring in the board of directors may, unless the by-laws otherwise direct, be filled for the unexpired term by the board from among the qualified shareholders of the company. Seem, this power of the board is only exercisable in the interval between the vacancy arising and the date of the next election; after that the vacancy must be filled by the shareholders. — Kielly v. Kielly, (1878), 3 O. A. R. 438, at p. 443. The case above cited was decided before the present section was adopted, and Parker and Clark believe that the present section would not be capable of such construction. — Company Law, p. 220. And see Sovereign Mitt Co. v. Whiteside, (1906), 12 O. L. R. 638. Where a director is disqualified from voting on a particular matter, there must be a quorum present without counting him. — Wade v. Kendrick, (1905), 37 S. C. R. 32, at p. 44.

Executive committee. 82. [As amended by 8 Edw. 7, c. 43, § 1 (10).] The shareholders of a company, having more than six directors, may, at a general meeting called for that purpose, by resolution of two-thirds of the shareholders present in person or by proxy, authorize the directors to delegate any of their powers to an executive committee, consisting of not less than three, to be elected by the directors from their number. Any committee so formed shall, in the exercise of the powers so delegated, conform to any regulations that may be imposed on them by such resolution or by the directors.

3 Edw. 7, c. 7, § 35.

Qualifications of directors. 83. No person shall hold office as a director unless he is a shareholder absolutely in his own right, and not in arrear in respect of any call thereon, and where any person, who is a director, ceases to be a bona fide holder of shares, he shall thereupon cease to be a director.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 42. See Kiely v. Smyth, (1879), 27 Gr. 220, at p. 254, where it was held that two directors, who assigned stock to a third in order to qualify him to act as a director, were afterwards estopped from alleging that he held such stock merely as trustee for them. Quare, whether a mortgage, pledge, or transfer of shares, as collateral security, would disqualify a director. — Cp. Warde, Director's and Shareholder's Manual, p. 73.

Yearly elections. Ballot. President and officers. 84. 1. The election of directors shall take place at the annual meeting, all the members of the board retiring, and (if otherwise qualified) being eligible for re-election. 2. Election of directors shall be by ballot, if demanded. 3. The directors shall, from time to time, elect from among themselves a president of the company, and shall also appoint, and may remove at pleasure, all other officers thereof.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 43. Where the shareholders confirmed a by-law made by the directors, fixing their term of office at one year, the shareholders were bound by it, and could not themselves pass another by-law providing that the appointment should be terminable by resolution. — Stephenson v. Vokes, (1896), 27 O. R. 691. An election of officers obtained by trick or artifice is illegal; but where shares have been actually purchased and paid for, the fact that they were purchased for the purpose of influencing the election is no objection. — Toronto Brewing & Malting Co. v. Blake, (1882), 2 O. R. 175. But see Davidson v. Grange, (1854), 4 Gr. 377, where the Court set aside an election of directors by persons who were merely nominal and not bona fide holders. Directors may not act as scrutineers.

— Dickinson v. McMurray, (1881), 28 Gr. 533. Quo warranto will not lie, in the case of an ordinary trading company, to challenge the claim of directors to their offices. — The Queen v. Hespeler, (1854), 11 U. C. Q. B. 222. But semble, such proceedings may be taken if the company is of a semi-public nature. — In re Moore and Port Bruce Harbour Co., (1857), 14 U. C. Q. B. 365. As to the right to proceed by mandatory injunction, see Toronto Brewing & Malting Co., supra. An election of directors before the time of office of their predecessors has expired, is, semble, a nullity, and a mandamus will lie ordering the company to proceed to another election on the day fixed by the charter. — Queen v. Bank of Upper Canada, (1849), 5 U. C. Q. B. 338. Where there is an irregular election of directors, the Court will not interfere at the instance of individual shareholders, unless the individual can secure the consent of the company to sue in the company's name. — Kelly v. Electrical Construction Co., (1908), 16 O. L. R. 232; 10 O. W. R. 704. A shareholder who has participated in the benefits of an illegal election can not, either individually or suing on behalf of the general body of creditors, maintain an action against the directors of the company. — Stickney v. Buckel, (1905), 6 O. W. R. 751.

Failure to elect directors how remedied. 85. If at any time an election of directors is not made, or does not take effect at the proper time, the company shall not be held to be thereby dissolved; but such election may take place at any general meeting of the company duly called for that purpose; and the directors shall continue in office until their successors are duly elected.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 44. As to the meaning of the phrase "general meeting of the company duly called for that purpose," see Austin Mining Co. v. Gemmell, (1886), 10 O. R. 696, at p. 706.

Change by by-law of number of directors or of head office in Ontario. 86. [As amended by 8 Edw. 7, c. 43, § 1 (11).] 1. A company may, by by-law, vary the number of its directors, but so that the number shall be not less than three, or may change the company's head office in Ontario. 2. No by-law for either of the said purposes shall take effect until confirmed by a vote of not less than two-thirds in value of the shareholders present in person or by proxy at a meeting of the company duly called for considering the same. A copy of the by-law certified under the seal of the company shall be forthwith filed in the office of the Provincial Secretary and published in the Ontario Gazette; and in case of the removal of the head office, twice in a newspaper published in each of the places where the head office was fixed and to where it is to be removed, or as near thereto as may be.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 45 (1). For a case where the number of directors had not been reduced in accordance with the provisions of this section, and where an issue of preferred shares by the reduced number of directors was, consequently, held invalid, see Manes Tailoring Co. v. Willson, (1907), 14 O. L. R. 89.

Powers of directors. 87. The directors may, from time to time, make by-laws not contrary to law, or to the letters patent of the company, or to this Act, to regulate: a) The allotment of shares; the making of calls thereon; the payment thereof; the issue and registration of certificates of shares; the forfeiture of shares for non-payment; the disposal of forfeited stock and of the proceeds thereof; the transfer of shares; b) The declaration and payment of dividends; c) The term of service, manner of selection, and the qualification of the directors; d) The time at which and place where the meetings of the company shall be held; the calling of meetings of the company; the requirements as to proxies; and the procedure in all things at such meetings; e) The imposition and recovery of all penalties, and forfeitures admitting of regulation by by-law, and f) The conduct in all other particulars of the affairs of the company; and may from time to time repeal, amend, or re-enact the same; but every such by-law, and every repeal, amendment, or re-enactment thereof, unless in the meantime confirmed at a general meeting of the company duly called for that purpose, shall only have force until the next annual meeting of the company; and in default of confirmation thereat shall, at and from that time only, cease to have force; and in that case no new by-law to the same or the like effect or re-enactment thereof, shall have any force until confirmed at a general meeting of the company; provided, however, that the company shall have the power either at a general meeting called as aforesaid, or at the annual meeting of the company, to repeal, amend, vary, or otherwise deal with any by-laws which have been passed by the directors, but no act done or right acquired under any by-law shall be prejudicially affected by any such repeal, amendment, variation, or other dealing.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 47. Directors, though elected for a year only, may engage managers and other agents for a longer period. — Howarth v. Singer Manufacturing Co., (1883), 8 O. A. R. 264, at p. 270; see also Falkiner v. Grand Junction Railway, (1883), 4 O. R. 350. Directors of a mercantile company, acting through their manager, may deposit goods in a warehouse, and raise money on security of the same. — Merchants Bank v. Hancock, (1883), 6 O. R. 285. In Real Estate Investment Co. v. Metropolitan Building Society, (1883), 3 O. R. 476, a company was held liable on a covenant of warranty made by directors, the covenant not being ultra vires the company. But where the engagement on behalf of the company is not in the ordinary course of business, the company is not bound unless it ratifies it. — Hamilton, etc., Railway v. Gore Bank, (1873), 20 Gr. 190, at p. 194. Such ratification, however, need not be expressed; it will be implied from an acquiescence for a sufficient time. — Conant v. Niall, (1870), 17 Gr. 574; Brightwater Cheese Co. v. Murphy, (1896), 23 O. A. R. 66; Merchants Bank v. Hancock, (1883), 6 O. R. 285; Herford v. The Queen, (1894), 24 S. C. R. 1. P. R. 206. Where the managing director, without special authorization from the board of directors, entered into a contract to supply materials, the fulfilment of which would require an extension of the company's plant, it was held that such extension of the plant would fall within the scope of the managing director's authority, and that, in an action by plaintiff to recover for breach of contract, the company could not set up that the act of the manager was beyond his power. — National Malleable Co. v. Smiths Falls Co., (1907), 14 O. L. R. 22. In Kunz v. Silver Spring Co., (1910), 15 O. W. R. 826, an application for an injunction, restraining the company and directors from selling out the plant to its president at an alleged under-valuation, and from paying sums to directors for services, was denied.

Payments to president or directors. 88. No by-law for the payment of the president or any director shall be valid or acted upon until the same has been confirmed at a general meeting.

60 Vic. c. 28, § 46. This section applies only to payment for services of a director qua director, and for services of the president as presiding officer of the board. — In re Ontario

Express & Transportation Co., (1894), 25 O. R. 587. The managing director is a working member of the company, and not a mere servant, and can only receive remuneration so far as there is express provision made therefor in the charter or by-laws of the company. Where a director, who is also president of the company, was appointed by the board of directors, and acted as solicitor for the company, it was held, in winding-up proceedings, that he was entitled to costs in respect of causes conducted by him in court, but not in respect of business done out of court. — In re Mimico, etc., Co., (1895), 26 O. R. 289. Shareholders can authorize remuneration to directors only out of the assets properly divisible among the shareholders themselves, and not out of capital. — In re Publishers Syndicate, (1902), 5 O. L. R. 392. Directors are not entitled to remuneration in any capacity, except by virtue of a by-law of the company regularly adopted. — Birney v. Toronto Milk Co., (1902), 5 O. L. R. 1; Benor v. Canadian Mail Order Co., (1907), 10 O. W. R. 899; Beaudy v. Reid, (1907), 10 O. W. R. 622. Where the president and vice-president of a company, for several years and without proper authority, but with the acquiescence of their co-directors elected by and closely connected with the majority of shareholders, drew large sums ostensibly as salaries as general manager and managing director, it was held that dissatisfied shareholders could object to such payments, although the majority were prepared to ratify them. — Earle v. Burland, (1902), 27 O. A. R. 540; reversed on another point, Burland v. Earle, (1902) A. C. 83; see also Gardner v. Canadian Manufacturing Co., (1900), 31 O. R. 488. As to the right of a director to payment of commissions on sale of stock, see Stickney v. Buckel, (1905), 6 O. W. R. 751; to payment for past services, see Bertram v. Birtwistle, (1908), 11 O. W. R. 315; to expenditures made on behalf of the company, see Benor v. Canadian Mail Order Co., (1907), 10 O. W. R. 899; to payment of profit made by a lease of the company's plant, see Meyers v. Cain, (1905), 6 O. W. R. 834. In an action by the president of a company to recover for services as president, where it appeared that a by-law had been passed by the directors providing that the president, among other officers, should receive such remuneration as might by resolution of the board be determined, and that such by-law had been confirmed at a general meeting of the shareholders, it was held that this was a sufficient compliance with this section, and that there was no necessity that each contract for payment should be confirmed by the shareholders. — McKenzie v. Maple Mountain Mining Co., (1910), 15 O. W. R. 728, reversing decision of Divisional Court, (1909), 20 O. L. R. 170; 14 O. W. R. 1266.

Directors not to vote on contracts in which they have a personal interest, etc.
89. No director of any company shall at any directors' meeting vote in respect of any contract or arrangement made or proposed to be entered into with the company in which he is interested either as vendor, purchaser, or otherwise, and any director who may be in any way interested in any contract or arrangement proposed to be made with the company shall disclose the nature of his interest at the meeting of the directors at which such contract or arrangement is determined on, if his interest then exists, or in any other case at the first meeting of the directors after the acquisition of his interest, and in case he discloses the nature of his interest, and refrains from voting, he shall not be accountable to the company by reason of the fiduciary relationship existing for any profit realized by such contract or arrangement; provided, however, that no director shall be deemed to be in any way interested in any contract or arrangement, nor shall he be disqualified from voting or be held liable to account to the company by reason of his holding shares or being a director in any other company with which a contract or arrangement is made or contemplated; provided, also that this section shall not apply to any contract by or on behalf of a company to give the directors or any of them security by way of indemnity.

2 Edw. 7, c. 24. § 1. Where a contract, fair in its terms and within the powers of the company, has been entered into by its directors with one of their number as sole vendee, such director may vote as a shareholder at a general meeting of shareholders to ratify the contract even though he controls the majority of the votes. — Northwest Transportation Co. v. Beatty, (1887), 12 A. C. 589. A sale by directors to one of their number may be ratified by the shareholders. — Ellis v. Norwich Broom Co., (1906), 8 O. W. R. 25. Where a director had a judgment against the company and, upon a foreclosure and sale of the company's property, purchased the same, he was held a trustee for the company, and accountable for any profit received on a re-sale. — In re Iron, etc., Manufacturing Co., (1889), 19 O. R. 113. The above case defines the duties and liabilities of directors resulting from their fiduciary relations with the company. Upon the appointment of a liquidator in winding-up proceedings, the fiduciary relation between the directors and the company is at an end. — Chatham National Bank v. McKeen, (1895), 24 S. C. R. 348. See Dominion Winding-up Act, notes to § 31, supra. See also § 178 (6), infra. Directors are as free as any other shareholders in dealing with their shares. They are not trustees for the general body of creditors, except, perhaps, with respect to their qualification shares. — Thompson v. Canada Fire Insurance Co., (1885), 9 O. R. 284. Where directors issued to themselves debentures of the company at a discount of 25% in satisfaction of their claims against the company it was held that, inasmuch as the transaction was not ultra vires, it was incompetent for other debenture holders to question the transaction, and that the company was the only party to complain. — Bank of Toronto v. Cobourg Railway, (1883), 10 O. R. 376.

Not to purchase shares of any other corporations. 90. [As amended by 8 Edw. 7, c. 18, § 2.] The company shall not, unless authorized by the Special Act, letters patent, or supplementary letters patent, use any of its funds in the purchase of shares of any other corporation except as hereinbefore provided until the directors have been expressly authorized by a by-law passed by them for the purpose and confirmed by a vote of not less than two-thirds in value of those shareholders present in person or by proxy at a general meeting of the company duly called for considering the same.

Liability of directors declaring a dividend when company is insolvent, etc. How a director may void such liability. 91. The directors of the company shall not declare or pay any dividend when the company is insolvent, or any dividend the payment of which renders the company insolvent, or diminishes the capital thereof; but if any director present when such dividend is declared, forthwith, or if any director then absent, within twenty-four hours after he has become aware thereof, and able so to do, enters his written protest against the same, and within eight days thereafter causes such protest to be notified, by registered letter, to the Provincial Secretary, such director may thereby, and not otherwise, exonerate himself from liability.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 83. In general, it is for the directors, and not the stockholders, to determine whether or not a dividend should be declared and, in the absence of bad faith or neglect of duty, the Court will not interfere with the exercise of their discretion. In Burland v. Earle, (1902) A. C. 83, the Privy Council held, (reversing the Court of Appeals for Ontario, (1900), 27 O. A. R. 540), that the company is not bound to distribute all its profits among its shareholders. It can legally reserve any part thereof, at the discretion of the directors. The undivided part may be invested in such securities as the directors may select, subject to the general control of the meeting, but not restricted to such investments as trustees are authorized to make. See also Montreal Street Railway Co. v. Ritchie, (1889), 16 S. C. R. 622. In Banque d'Epargne v. Geddes, (1890), M. L. R. 6 S. C. 243, it was held that directors who declare fictitious or unlawful dividends are personally liable, except as to shareholders who knew and approved of such dividends, or who failed to attend a meeting duly called at which they might have learned of the same. In Northern Navigation Co. v. Long, (1905), 11 O. L. R. 230, the company was permitted to recover from the estate of a deceased president for damages suffered by the company by reason of false statements as to the financial condition of the company, laid before the directors by the deceased, which statements induced them to declare a dividend which they would not have declared had they been aware of the true condition of the company; see also Parker v. McQuesten, (1872), 32 U. C. Q. B. 273.

Stock dividends. 92. For the amount of any dividend which the directors may lawfully declare payable, in money, they may declare a stock dividend and issue therefor shares of the company as fully paid or partly paid, as the case may be, or may credit the amount of such dividend on the shares of the company already issued but not fully paid and the liability of the holders of all shares mentioned in this section shall be reduced by the amount of such dividend.

No loan by company to shareholders. 93. No loan shall be made by the company to any shareholder, and if such loan is made all directors and other officers of the company making the same and in any wise assenting thereto, shall be jointly and severally liable to the company for the amount thereof, and also to third parties to the extent of such loan with legal interest, for all debts of the company contracted from the time of the making of the loan to that of the repayment thereof.

Liability of directors for wages. 94. [As amended by 8 Edw. 7, c. 43, § 1 (13).] The directors of the company shall be jointly and severally liable to the labourers, servants, and apprentices thereof for all debts not exceeding one year's wages due for services performed for the company while they are such directors respectively; but no director shall be liable to an action therefor, unless the company has been sued therefor within one year after the debt became due, nor unless such director is sued therefor within one year from the time when he ceased to be such director, nor before an execution against the company has been returned unsatisfied in whole or in part; and the amount due on such execution shall be the amount recoverable with costs against the directors.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 85. A person employed as foreman, who hires and dismisses men, pays out wages, and does no manual labor, and in addition to receiving a salary is paid for the use of machinery belonging to him, is not a labourer, servant, or apprentice within the meaning of this section. — Welch v. Ellis, (1895), 22 O. A. R. 255. But see Turner v. Fee, (1904), 24 C. L. T., (Occ. N.) 402, where plaintiff, who did manual labor, but was also a supervisor over other labourers was held to be a "labourer or servant" within the meaning of a similar section, (2 Edw. 7, c. 15, § 41), and entitled to succeed in an action against the directors of the company for unpaid wages. As to right of an assignee of wages to sue, see In re American Tire Co., (1903), 2 O. W. R. 29; In re Ritchie, Hearn Co., (1905), 6 O. W. R. 474; cp. Fayne v. Langley, (1899), 31 O. R. 254, decided under the Ontario Wages Act. In Lee v. Friedman, (1909), 20 O. L. R. 49, an equitable assignee of labourers, was allowed to sue directors after execution against the company had been returned unsatisfied, notwithstanding that the judgment against the company was irregular, no fraud having been shewn.

Part VII. Prospectus, and Directors' Liability.

"Prospectus," meaning of. Application of this Part. 95. 1. In this Act the word "prospectus" shall mean any prospectus, notice, circular, advertisement, or other invitation offering for subscription or purchase any shares, debentures, or other securities of a company, or published or issued for the purpose of being used to promote or aid in the subscription or purchase of such shares, debentures or securities, and the word "company" shall mean any company incorporated or proposed to be incorporated. 2. This part of this Act shall apply to every company whether formed before or after the commencement of this Act, which offers for subscription or sale, shares, debentures, or other securities and to every company whether incorporated under the laws of the Province of Ontario or otherwise, the shares, debentures, or other securities of which are dealt in within the Province of Ontario.

Imp. § 285.

Commissions. Capital not to be applied in paying commissions except as authorized. Brokerage may be paid. 96. 1. Upon any offer of shares to the public for subscription, it shall be lawful for a company to pay a commission to any person in consideration of his subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, whether absolutely or conditionally, for any shares in the company, or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions, whether absolute or conditional, for any shares in the company, if the payment of the commission and the amount or rate per cent, of the commission paid or agreed to be paid are respectively authorized by the letters patent or supplementary letters patent and disclosed in the prospectus, and the commission paid or agreed to be paid does not exceed the amount or rate so authorized. 2. Save as aforesaid, no company shall apply any of its shares or capital money either directly or indirectly in payment of any commission, discount, or allowance, to any person in consideration of his subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, whether absolutely or conditionally, for any shares of the company or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions, whether absolutely or conditionally, for any shares in the company, whether the shares or money be so applied by being added to the purchase money of any property acquired by the company or to the contract price of any work to be executed for the company, or the money be paid out of the nominal purchase money or contract price, or otherwise. 3. Nothing in this section shall affect the power of any company to pay such brokerage as it has heretofore been lawful for a company to pay.

Imp. § 89. What is a reasonable brokerage depends on circumstances and, where the contradicted testimony was that the amount was not unreasonable, a commission was allowed. — In re Co-operative Cycle Co., (1902), 1 O. W. R. 778.

What companies must file prospectuses. 97. 1. Every company heretofore or hereafter incorporated under any general or Special Act, the number of shareholders of which is increased to a number greater by ten than the number of applicants for incorporation or which has its debentures or other securities held by more than ten persons, and every company incorporated otherwise than as above set out which has more than ten shareholders or holders of debentures or other securities within Ontario, shall file a prospectus in the manner hereafter set out. 2. All purchases, subscriptions, or other acquisitions of shares, debentures, or other securities of any company required in the manner above provided to file a prospectus, shall be deemed as against the company or the signatories to the prospectus to be induced by such prospectus, and any term, proviso, or condition of such prospectus to the contrary shall be void. 3. No subscription for stock, debentures, or other securities, induced or obtained by verbal representations, shall be binding upon the subscriber, unless prior to his so subscribing he shall have received a copy of the prospectus.

Date of prospectus. Prospectus to be signed and filed. Not to be issued until filed. 98. 1. Every prospectus issued by or on behalf of a company or in relation to any intended company shall be dated, and that date shall, unless the contrary be proved, be taken as the date of publication of the prospectus. 2. A copy of every such prospectus shall be signed by every person who is named therein as a director or proposed director or provisional director of the company, or by his agent authorized in writing, and shall be filed with the Provincial Secretary, on or before the date of its publication. 3. The Provincial Secretary shall not receive or file any prospectus unless it is so dated and signed. No prospectus shall be issued until so filed, and every prospectus shall state on the face of it that it has been so filed.

What to be disclosed in prospectus. 99. 1. Every prospectus issued by or on behalf of a company or in relation to any intended company or by or on behalf of any person who is or has been engaged or interested in the formation or promotion of the company, shall state: a) The names, descriptions, and addresses of the original incorporators, and the number of shares subscribed for by them respectively; b) The number of shares, if any, fixed as the qualification of a director, and any provision in the by-laws of the company as to the remuneration of the directors; c) The names, descriptions, and addresses of the directors or proposed directors; d) The minimum subscription on which the directors may proceed to allotment, and the amount payable on application and allotment on each share; and, in the case of a second or subsequent offer of shares, the amount offered for subscription on each previous allotment, and the amount actually allotted; e) The time or times at which under the by-laws of the company a further call or calls may be made upon shares subscribed for; f) The number and amount of shares issued, or agreed to be issued, as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash, and in the latter case the extent to which they are so paid up, and the number and amount of bonds, debentures, or other securities issued or to be issued and allotted to any person; g) The names and addresses of the vendors of any property purchased or acquired by the company, or proposed so to be purchased or acquired, which is to be paid for wholly or partly out of the proceeds of the issue offered for subscription by the prospectus, or the purchase or acquisition of which has not been completed at the date of publication of the prospectus and the amount payable in cash, shares, bonds, debentures, or other securities to the vendor, and where there is more than one separate vendor, or the company is a sub-purchaser, the amount so payable to each vendor; h) The amount (if any) paid or payable as purchase money in cash, shares, or debentures of any such property as aforesaid, specifying the amount payable for good-will; i) The amount (if any) paid or payable as commission for subscribing, or agreeing to subscribe, or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions for any shares in the company, or for underwriting or procuring underwriting of any securities issued or to be issued by the company or the rate of any such commission; j) The amount or estimated amount of preliminary expenses; k) The amount paid or intended to be paid in cash, shares, or debentures to any promoter, and the consideration for any such payment; l) The dates of and parties to every material contract, and a reasonable time and place at which any material contract or a copy thereof may be inspected; provided that this requirement shall not apply to a contract entered into in the ordinary course of the business carried on or intended to be carried on by the company, or to any contract entered into more than three years before the date of publication of the prospectus; m) The names and addresses of the auditors (if any) of the company; n) Full particulars of the nature and extent of the interest (if any) of every director in the promotion of or in the property proposed to be acquired by the company, with a statement of all sums paid or agreed to be paid to him in cash or shares by any person either to qualify him as a director or otherwise for services rendered by him in connection with the formation of the company. 2. For the purposes of this section the word "vendor" shall extend to and include a vendor who has entered into any contract, absolute or conditional, for the sale or purchase or for any option of purchase of any property to be acquired by the company in any case where: a) The purchase money is not fully paid at the date of publication of the prospectus; or b) The purchase money is to be paid or satisfied wholly or in part out of the proceeds of the issue offered for subscription by the prospectus; or c) The contract depends for its validity or fulfilment on the result of such issue. 3. Where any of the property to be acquired by the company is to be taken on lease this section shall apply as if the expression "vendor" included the lessor, and the expression "purchase money" included the consideration for the lease and the rent, and the expression "sub-purchaser" included a sub-lessee. 4. This section shall not apply to a circular or notice inviting existing shareholders or debenture holders of a company to subscribe for further shares or debentures; but subject as aforesaid, this section shall apply to any prospectus whether issued on or with reference to the formation of a company or subsequently; provided that a) The requirements as to the original incorporators and the qualification, remuneration, and interest of directors, the names, descriptions, and addresses of directors or proposed directors, and the amount or estimated amount of preliminary expenses, shall not apply in the case of a prospectus published more than one year after the date of the first general meeting, and b) In the case of a prospectus published more than one year after the date of such meeting, the obligation to disclose all material contracts shall be limited to a period of two years immediately preceding the publication of the prospectus. 5. Any condition requiring or binding any applicant for shares or debentures to waive compliance with any requirement of this section, or purporting to affect him with notice of any contract, document, or matter not specifically referred to in the prospectus shall be void. 6. Where any such prospectus as is mentioned in this section is published as a newspaper advertisement, it shall not be necessary to specify the names of original incorporators and the number of shares subscribed for by them.

Imp. § 81. See Dominion Companies Act, notes to § 43, supra.

Penalty. Liability under general law not affected. 100. [As amended by 8 Edw. 7, c. 43, § 1 (14, 15).] 1. Every provisional director, director, or other person responsible for the issue and publication of such prospectus shall for every violation of the provisions of the next preceding three sections be liable on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding $200 and costs, provided that no provisional director, director, or other person responsible for the prospectus shall incur any liability by reason of non-compliance with the said sections: a) As regards any matter not disclosed, if he was not cognizant thereof; or b) If the non-compliance arose from an honest mistake of fact on his part, And provided that in the event of non-compliance with the requirements contained in paragraph n) of subsection 1. of section 99, no director or other person shall incur any liability in respect of such non-compliance, unless it is proved that he had knowledge of the matters not disclosed. 2. Nothing in this section or the said preceding three sections shall limit or diminish any liability which any person may incur under the general law apart from this Act.

Imp. § 81.

Capital to be correctly stated in advertisements, etc. Penalty. Who may prosecute. Application of penalty. 101. [As amended by 8 Edw. 7, c. 43, § 1 (16).] 1. Where any advertisement, letter head, account, or document issued or published by any corporation or any officer, agent, or employee, of any such corporation, purports to state the capital of the corporation, then the capital actually and in good faith subscribed and no more shall be so stated. 2. Any such corporation, officer, agent, or employee who causes to be inserted an advertisement or who publishes, issues, or causes to be published or issued any advertisement, letter-head, account, or document which states as the capital of such corporation any larger sum than the amount of such subscribed capital so actually and in good faith subscribed as aforesaid, or which contains any false statement as to the incorporation, control, supervision, management, or financial standing of such corporation shall be liable, upon summary conviction, to a penalty not exceeding $200 and costs, and not less than $50 and costs. 3. Any one may be prosecutor or complainant under this section, and one-half of any fine imposed by virtue of this Act, shall, when received, belong to His Majesty for the use of the Province, and the other half shall belong to the prosecutor or complainant.

R. S. O. c. 217.

Liability for statements in prospectus. 102. 1. Where after the passing of this Act a prospectus or notice invites persons to subscribe for shares in, or debentures or debenture stock or other security of a company, every person who is a director of the company at the time of the issue of the prospectus or notice, and every person who having authorized such naming of him is named in the prospectus or notice as a director of the company or as having agreed to become a director of the company either immediately or after an interval of time, and every promoter of the company and every person who has authorized the issue of the prospectus or notice, shall be liable to pay compensation to all persons who shall subscribe for any shares, debentures, or debenture stock or other security on the faith of such prospectus or notice for the loss or damage they may have sustained by reason of any untrue statement in the prospectus or notice, or in any report or memorandum appearing on the face thereof or by reference incorporated therein or issued therewith, unless it is proved that having consented to become a director of the company he withdrew his consent before the issue of the prospectus or notice, and that prospectus or notice was issued without his authority or consent, or that the prospectus or notice was issued without his knowledge or consent, and that on becoming aware of its issue he forthwith gave reasonable public notice that it was so issued without his knowledge or consent, or that after the issue of such prospectus or notice and before allotment thereunder, he, on becoming aware of any untrue statement therein, withdrew his consent thereto, and caused reasonable public notice, of such withdrawal and of the reason therefor to be given. 2. A promoter in this section means a promoter who was a party to the preparation of the prospectus or notice, or of the portion thereof containing such untrue statement, but shall not include any person by reason of his acting solely in a professional capacity for persons engaged in procuring the formation of the company.

Imp. § 84 (1).

Statements in prospectus for raising further capital. 103. Where any company, which has issued shares or debentures or other securities, shall be desirous of obtaining further capital by subscriptions for shares or debentures or other securities, and for that purpose shall issue a prospectus or notice, no director of such company shall be liable in respect of any statement therein, unless he shall have authorized the issue of such prospectus or notice, or have adopted or ratified the same.

Imp. § 84 (2).

Indemnity where name of person has been improperly inserted. 104. Where any such prospectus or notice as aforesaid contains the name of a person as a director of a company, or as having agreed to become a director thereof, and such person has not consented to become a director or has withdrawn his consent before the issue of such prospectus or notice, and has not authorized or consented to the issue thereof, the directors of the company (except any without whose knowledge or consent the prospectus or notice was issued) and any other person who authorized the issue of such prospectus or notice shall be liable to indemnify the person named as director of the company, or as having agreed to become a director thereof as aforesaid, against all damages, costs, charges, and expenses to which he may be made liable by reason of his name having been inserted in the prospectus or notice, or in defending himself against any action or legal proceedings brought against him in respect thereof.

Imp. § 84 (3); 54 Vic. c. 34, § 5; 60 Vic. c. 3, § 3; c. 28, § 95 (3).

Contribution from co-director. 105. Every person who by reason of his being a director, or named as a director, or as having agreed to become a director, or of his having authorized the issue of the prospectus or notice, has become liable to make any payment under the provisions of this Act, shall be entitled to recover contribution, as in cases of contract from any other person who, if sued separately, would have been liable to make the same payment.

54 Vic. c. 34, § 6; 60 Vic. c. 3, § 3; c. 28, § 95 (4); Imp. § 84 (4).

Part VIII. Companies offering Shares for public Subscription.

Restrictions on allotment. 106. 1. No allotment shall be made of any share capital by a company offering shares for public subscription, unless the following conditions have been complied with, namely: a) The amount (if any) named in the prospectus as the minimum subscription upon which the directors may proceed to allotment, or b) If no amount is so fixed and named, then the whole amount of the share capital so offered for subscription has been subscribed, and the sum payable on application for the amount so fixed and named, or for the whole amount offered for subscription has been paid to and received by the company. 2. The amount so fixed and named and the whole amount aforesaid shall be reckoned exclusively of any amount payable otherwise than in cash, and is in this Act referred to as the minimum subscription. 3. The amount payable on application on each share shall not be less than five per centum of the nominal amount of the share. 4. If the conditions aforesaid have not been complied with on the expiration of ninety days after the first issue of the prospectus, all money received from applicants for shares shall be forthwith repaid to the applicants without interest, and if any such money is not so repaid within one hundred days after the issue of the prospectus, the directors of the company shall be jointly and severally liable to repay that money with interest at the rate of five per centum per annum from the expiration of the ninety days; provided that a director shall not be liable if he proves that the loss of the money was not due to any misconduct or negligence on his part: Provided, however, that the Provincial Secretary may from time to time extend the times herein limited. 5. Any condition requiring or binding any applicant for shares to waive compliance with any requirement of this section shall be void. 6. This section, except subsection 3. thereof, shall not apply to any allotment of shares subsequent to the first allotment of shares offered to the public for subscription.

Imp. § 85.

Effect of irregular allotment. 107. 1. An allotment made by a company to an applicant in contravention of the foregoing provisions of this part of this Act shall be voidable at the instance of the applicant within one month after the holding of the statutory meeting of the company, and not later, and shall be so voidable notwithstanding that the company is in course of being wound up. 2. If any director of a company knowingly contravenes or permits or authorizes the contravention of any of the foregoing provisions of this part of this Act with respect to allotment he shall be liable to compensate the company and the allottee respectively for any loss, damages, or costs which the company or the allottee may have sustained or incurred thereby; provided that proceedings to recover such loss or damage or costs shall not be commenced after the expiration of two years from the date of the allotment.

Imp. § 86.

Restrictions on commencement of business. 108. 1. A company shall not commence any business or exercise any borrowing powers unless: a) Shares, held subject to the payment of the whole amount thereof in cash, have been allotted to an amount not less in the whole than the minimum subscription; and b) Every director of the company has paid to the company on each of the shares taken or contracted to be taken by him, and for which he is liable to pay in cash, a proportion equal to the proportion payable on application and allotment on the shares offered for public subscription; and c) There has been filed with the Provincial Secretary a statutory declaration by the secretary or one of the directors, in the prescribed form, that the aforesaid conditions have been complied with. 2. The Provincial Secretary may, on the filing of this statutory declaration, certify that the company is entitled to commence business, and that certificate shall be conclusive evidence that the company is so entitled; provided, however, that upon it being shewn that such certificate was made upon any false statement or upon the withholding of any material statement, the Provincial Secretary may cancel and annul such certificate. 3. Any contract made by a company before the date at which it is entitled to commence business shall be provisional only, and shall not be binding on the company until that date, and on that date it shall become binding. 4. Nothing in this section shall prevent the simultaneous offer for subscription of any shares and debentures or the receipt of any application. 5. If any company commences business or exercises borrowing powers in contravention of this section, every person who is responsible for the contravention shall, without prejudice to any other liability, be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding fifty dollars for every day during which the contravention continues.

Imp. § 87. "It would seem, however, that a company may at least issue a prospectus, allot stock and enter into provisional contracts of various kinds, which contracts become binding on the company the moment it is entitled to receive the official certificate. See Howland v. McNab, (1860), 8 Gr. 47; Goodwin v. Ottawa & Prescott Railway, (1863), 13 U. C. C. P. 254; Dominion Salvage v. Attorney-General, (1892), 21 S. C. R. 72; Hardy v. Pickersel River Co., (1898), 29 S. C. R. 211." — Parker and Clark, Company Law, p. 307.

Moneys to be held in trust. 109. All sums received by the company or by any promoter director, officer, or agent thereof shall be held in trust by the company or such promoter, director, officer, or agent until the same may be deposited in a chartered bank to the credit of the company and shall there remain in trust until the issue of the aforesaid certificate by the Provincial Secretary.

Return of allotments. 110. 1. Whenever a company makes any allotment of its shares the company shall, within one month thereafter, file with the Provincial Secretary: a) A return of the allotments, stating the number and nominal amount of the shares comprised in the allotment, the names, addresses, and descriptions of the allottees, and the amount (if any) paid or due and payable on each share; and b) In the case of shares allotted in whole or in part for consideration other than cash, a contract in writing constituting the title of the allottee to such allotment, together with any contract of sale, or for services or other consideration in respect of which such allotment was made, and a return stating the number and nominal amount of shares so allotted, the extent to which they are to be treated as paid up, and the consideration for which they have been allotted. 2. If default is made in complying with the requirements of this section every director, manager, secretary, or other officer of the company who is, knowingly, a party to the default, shall be liable upon summary conviction to a fine not exceeding fifty dollars for every day during which the default continues.

Imp. § 88 (1, 3).

Statutory meetings. 111. 1. Every company shall, within a period of not less than one month nor more than three months from the date at which the company is entitled to commence business, hold a general meeting of the shareholders of the company, which shall be called the statutory meeting. 2. The directors shall, at least ten days before the day on which the meeting is held forward to every shareholder of the company a report certified by not less than two directors of the company, stating: a) The total number of shares allotted, distinguishing shares allotted as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash, and stating in the case of shares partly paid up the extent to which they are so paid up, and in either case the consideration for which they have been allotted; b) The total amount of cash received by the company in respect of such shares, distinguished as aforesaid; c) An abstract of the receipts and payments of the company on capital account to the date of the report, and an account or estimate of the preliminary expenses of the company; d) The names, addresses, and descriptions of the directors, auditors (if any), manager (if any), and secretary of the company; and e) The particulars of any contract, the modification of which is to be submitted to the meeting for its approval, together with the particulars of the modification or proposed modification. 3. The report shall, so far as it relates to the shares allotted by the company, and to the cash received in respect of such shares, and to the receipts and payments of the company on capital account, be certified as correct by the auditors, if any, of the company. 4. The directors shall cause a copy of the report, certified as by this section required, to be filed with the Provincial Secretary forthwith after the sending thereof to the members of the company. 5. The directors shall cause a list showing the names, descriptions, and addresses of the shareholders of the company, and the numbers of shares held by them, respectively, to be produced at the commencement of the meeting, and to remain open and accessible to any shareholder of the company during the continuance of the meeting. 6. The shareholders of the company present at the meeting shall be at liberty to discuss any matter relating to the formation of the company, or arising out of the report, whether previous notice has been given or not, but no resolution of which notice has not been duly given may be passed. 7. The meeting may adjourn from time to time, and at any such adjourned meeting any resolution of which notice has been duly given, either before or subsequently to the former meeting, may be passed, and the adjourned meeting shall have the same powers as an original meeting. 8. If default is made in filing such report as aforesaid or in holding the statutory meeting, then at the expiration of fourteen days after the last day on which the meeting ought to have been held any shareholder may petition the Court for the winding-up of the company in the manner hereinafter provided in that behalf, and, upon the hearing of the petition, the Court may either direct that the company be wound up or give directions for the report being filed or a meeting being held, or make such other order as may be just, and may order that the costs of the petition be paid by any persons who, in the opinion of the Court, are responsible for the default.

Imp. § 65.

Application of this part. 112. This Part of this Act shall apply to all companies offering shares for public subscription and shall not apply to a company incorporated before the commencement of this Act.

Part IX. Books, Inspections, and Auditors.

Record book to be kept and what to contain. 113. The corporation shall cause the secretary, or some other officer especially charged with that duty, to keep a book or books wherein shall be kept recorded: a) A copy of the letters patent incorporating the corporation and of any supplementary letters patent issued to the corporation, and if incorporated by Special Act, a copy of such Act; b) The names, alphabetically arranged, of all persons who are or have been shareholders or members of the corporation; c) The post office address and calling of every such person while such shareholder or member; d) The names, post office addresses, and callings of all persons who are or have been directors of the corporation, with the several dates at which each person became or ceased to be such director. And in cases of companies having share capital: e) The number of shares held by each shareholder; f) The amounts paid in, and remaining unpaid, respectively, on the shares of each shareholder; g) The date and other particulars of all transfers of shares in their order.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 71; Imp. § 25.

Books to be kept at head office. Proviso. 114. The books referred to in the preceding section as well as those referred to in section 120 shall be kept at the head office of the company within the Province, whether the company is permitted to hold its meetings out of Ontario or not. Any director, officer, or employee of a company who shall remove or assist in removing such books from Ontario, or who shall act contrary to the provisions of this section shall be liable on summary conviction to a penalty of $ 200; provided, however, that upon necessity therefor being shewn and adequate assurance being given that such books may be inspected within Ontario by any person entitled thereto after application for such inspection to the Provincial Secretary, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may relieve any company permitted to hold its meetings out of Ontario from the provisions of this section upon such terms as may be fit.

Imp. § 30 (1).

Penalty for false entries. 115. No director, officer, or servant of the corporation shall knowingly make or assist to make any untrue entry in any book or books of the company, or shall refuse or neglect to make any proper entries therein; and any person violating wilfully the provisions of this section shall, besides any criminal liability which he may thereby incur, be liable in damages for all loss or injury which any person interested may have sustained thereby.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 72; Imp. § 216.

Powers of Judges as to entries in, omissions from, and rectification of books.

Decision as to title. Appeal. 116. 1. If the name of any person is without sufficient cause, entered in or omitted from such book or books of the corporation, or if default is made or unnecessary delays take place in entering in said books the fact of any person having ceased to be a shareholder or member of the corporation, the person or shareholder or member aggrieved, or any shareholder or member of the corporation, or the corporation itself may apply to a Judge of the High Court of Justice for an order that the book or books be rectified, and the Judge may either refuse such application or he may make an order for the rectification of the said book or books, and may direct the corporation to pay the costs of such motion or application and any damages the party aggrieved may have sustained. The Judge may in any proceeding under this section, decide on any question relating to the title of any person who is a party to such proceeding to have his name entered in or omitted from the said books of the corporation, whether such question arises between two or more shareholders, or alleged shareholders or members, or between any shareholders or alleged shareholders or members and the corporation, and the Judge may in any such proceeding decide any question which it may be necessary or expedient to decide for the rectification of the said books. 2. The Judge may direct an issue to be tried in which any question of law may be raised. 3. An appeal shall lie from the decision of such Judge as if the same had been given in an action. 4. This section shall not deprive any Court of any jurisdiction it may have. 5. The costs of any proceeding under this section shall be in the discretion of the Judge.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 73; Imp. § 32. See cases cited in notes to § 48, supra. There should be a demand on the proper officers of the company, and a refusal or unreasonable delay in complying with the same before resort be had to the remedy afforded by this section. — Nelles v. Windsor Railway Co., (1908), 11 O. W. R. 463; see also In re Dominion Oil Co., (1903), 2 O. W. R. 826.

Books to be open for inspection. 117. The books referred to in section 113 shall during reasonable business hours of every day, except Sundays and holidays, be kept open for the inspection of shareholders, members, and creditors of the corporation and their personal representatives or agents, at the head office or chief place of carrying on its undertaking, and every such shareholder, member, creditor, agent, or representative, may make extracts therefrom.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 74; Imp. § 30 (1, 2). An application for the issue of an injunction is not the proper proceeding to compel a company to allow a shareholder to inspect its books. — Plamondon v. Blouin, (1905), Q. R. 28 S. C. 149.

Liability for refusal to allow inspection of books. 118. Any director or officer who refuses to permit any person entitled thereto to inspect such book or books, or make extracts therefrom, shall be liable upon summary conviction to a penalty of $ 100.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 75; Imp. § 30 (3).

Books to be prima facie evidence. 119. Such books shall be prima facie evidence of all facts purporting to be thereby stated, in any action or proceeding against the corporation or against any shareholder or member.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 76; Imp. § 220.

Books of account to be kept. 120. The directors shall cause proper books of account to be kept containing full and true statements: a) Of the financial transactions of the corporation; b) Of the assets of the corporation; c) Of the sums of money received and expended by the corporation, and the matters in respect of which such receipt or expenditure takes place; and d) Of the credits and liabilities of the corporation; and also a book or books containing minutes of all the proceedings and votes of the corporation, or of the board of directors, respectively, and the by-laws of the corporation, duly authenticated, and such minutes shall be verified by the signature of the president, or other presiding officer of the corporation.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 77. See § 114, supra.

False returns, etc. 121. If any person in any return, report, certificate, balance-sheet, or other document required by or for the purposes of this Act, wilfully makes a statement false in any material particular he shall be liable on summary conviction to imprisonment not exceeding three months, with or without hard labour, and to a fine of $ 100 in lieu of or in addition to such imprisonments aforesaid.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 97; Imp. § 281.

The Court may appoint an inspector. Examination by company. Powers and duties of inspector. Production of books and documents. Examination on oath. Penalty for non-production. 122. 1. Upon an application by not less than one-fifth in value of the shareholders of a company, or one-fifth in number of the members of a corporation without share capital, a Judge of the High Court of Justice may appoint an inspector to investigate the affairs and management of the corporation. Such inspector shall report thereon to the Judge, and the expense of such investigation shall, in the discretion of the Judge, be defrayed by the corporation or by the applicants, or partly by the corporation and partly by the applicants, as he may order, and he may require the applicants to give security to cover the probable cost of the investigation, and he may make rules and prescribe the manner in which and the extent to which the investigation shall be conducted; or the Judge may examine the officers or directors of the company under oath as to matters that shall come in question. 2. A corporation may by resolution passed at the annual meeting, or at a special general meeting called for the purpose, appoint an inspector to examine into the affairs of the corporation. The inspector so appointed shall have the same powers and perform the same duties as an inspector appointed by a Judge of the High Court of Justice, and he shall make his report in such manner and to such persons as the corporation by said resolution directs. 3. It shall be the duty of all officers and agents of the corporation to produce for the examination of any such inspector all books and documents in their custody or power. Any such inspector may examine upon oath the officers and agents of the corporation in relation to its business, and may administer such oath accordingly. If any officer or agent refuses to produce any book or document hereby directed to be produced, or to answer any question relating to the affairs of the corporation, he shall upon summary conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding $ 20, in respect of each offence.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 80; Imp. §§ 109, 110.

Accounts shall be audited. 123. The accounts of the corporation shall be examined once at least in every year, and the correctness of the balance-sheet shall be ascertained by an auditor or auditors.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 87; Imp. § 112.

First auditors. 124. The first auditors of the corporation may be appointed by the directors before the first meeting of the shareholders or members, and the auditors so appointed shall hold office until the first general meeting.

Imp. § 112 (5).

Appointment of auditors. 125. Thereafter the auditors shall be appointed by resolution at a general meeting of the corporation; they shall hold office until the next annual meeting, unless previously removed by a resolution of the shareholders or members in general meeting.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 88; Imp. § 112 (1).

Auditors may be shareholders. 126. The said auditors may be shareholders or members of the corporation, but no person shall be eligible as an auditor who is interested, otherwise than as a shareholder or member, in any transaction of the corporation, and no director or other officer of the corporation shall be eligible during his continuance in office.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 89; Imp. § 112 (3).

Provincial Secretary may appoint. 127. If an appointment of auditors is not made at an annual meeting, the Provincial Secretary may, on the application of any member or shareholder of the corporation, appoint an auditor of the corporation for the current year, and fix the remuneration (if any) to be paid to him by the corporation for his services.

Imp. § 112 (2).

Directors may fill vacancies. 128. The directors of a corporation may fill any casual vacancy in the office of auditor, but while any such vacancy continues the surviving or continuing auditor or auditors (if any) may act, and any auditor shall be eligible for re-appointment.

Imp. § 112 (6).

Remuneration of auditors. 129. The remuneration of the auditors of a corporation shall be fixed by the corporation in general meeting, except that the remuneration of any auditors appointed before the first general meeting or to fill any casual vacancy may be fixed by the directors.

Imp. § 112 (7).

Rights and duties of auditors. 130. Every auditor of a corporation shall have the right of access at all times to the books, accounts, and vouchers of the corporation, and shall be entitled to require from the directors and officers of the corporation such information and explanation as may be necessary for the performance of his duties, and the auditors shall sign a certificate at the foot of the balance-sheet stating whether or not their requirements as auditors have been complied with and shall make a report to the shareholders or members on the accounts examined by them, and on every balance-sheet laid before the corporation in general meeting during their tenure of office; and in every such report shall state whether, in their opinion, the balance-sheet referred to in the report is properly drawn up so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the state of the corporation's affairs as shown by the books of the corporation; and such report shall be read before the corporation in general meeting.

Imp. § 113.

Part X. Returns and Fees.

Annual summary of the affairs of the company. Contents of summary. List of shareholders. Deposit with Provincial Secretary. Penalty for default. When section not to apply. 131. [As amended by 8 Edw. 7, c. 43, § 1 (18).] 1. The corporation shall, on or before the first day of February in every year, make out a summary, verified as hereinafter required, containing as of the thirty-first day of December preceeding, correctly stated, the following particulars: a) The corporate name of the corporation; b) The manner in which the corporation is incorporated, whether by Special Act, or by letters patent, and the date thereof; c) The name, residence, and post office address of the president, secretary, and treasurer of the corporation; d) The name, residence, and post office address of each of the directors of the corporation; e) The date upon which the last annual meeting of the corporation was held. In case of companies having share capital in addition; f) The place of the head office, giving street and number when possible; g) The amount of the capital of the company and the number of shares into which it is divided; h) The number of shares subscribed for and allotted; i) The number of shares (if any) issued fully paid as consideration for any transfer of assets, good will or otherwise; if none is so issued, this fact to be stated; j) The amount of calls made on each share; k) The total amount of calls received; l) The total amount of shares forfeited; m) The total amount of shares issued as preference shares and the rate of dividend thereon; n) The total amount paid on such shares; o) The total amount of debentures, debenture stock, or bonds authorized, and the rate of interest thereon; p) The total amount of debenture stock, bonds, or debentures issued; q) The total amount realized from debentures, debenture stock, and bonds; r) The total number of share warrants issued and the names and addresses of the persons to whom same were issued. If the company be a mining company: s) The number of shares sold or otherwise disposed of at a discount or premium; t) The rate at which such shares were sold or disposed of; u) Whether a sworn copy of the by-laws, if any, providing for the sale of stock at a discount or otherwise, was sent to the Provincial Secretary; v) The date, or dates, upon which such by-laws, if any, were passed and sanctioned. 2. In cases of companies having share capital the summary shall also contain a list of persons who, on the thirty-first day of December previously, were shareholders of the company; and such list shall state the names alphabetically arranged, and the address and occupation of each such person; the amount of stock held by each; and the amount, if any unpaid and still due by each such person. 3. A duplicate of such summary with the affidavit of verification, shall be posted up in a conspicuous position in the head office of the company on or before the second day of February in each year, and shall be available for inspection by any shareholder or creditor of the company; and the company shall keep the same so posted until another summary is posted under the provisions of this Act. 4. The summary of every corporation shall be verified by the affidavit of the president and secretary, and if there are no such officers, or they, or either of them, are, or is, at the proper time out of this Province or otherwise unable to make the same, by the affidavit of the president or secretary and one of the directors, or two of the directors, as the case may require; and if the president or secretary does not make or join in the affidavit the reason thereof shall be stated in the substituted affidavit. 5. The summary, verified as aforesaid, shall, on or before the eighth day of February next after the time hereinbefore fixed for making the summary, be transmitted to the Provincial Secretary. 6. If a corporation makes default in complying with the provisions of this section, the corporation shall incur a penalty of $ 20 for every day during which the default continues, and every director, manager or secretary of the corporation, who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits such default, shall incur the like penalty, but such penalties shall be recoverable only by action at the suit of or brought by a private person suing on his own behalf with the written consent of the Attorney-General of the Province of Ontario. 7. This section shall not apply to any corporation until the first day of February next after the thirty-first day of December of the year in which the corporation was organized, or has gone into actual operation, whichever shall first happen. 8. Corporations heretofore incorporated under any Act hereby repealed, except chapter 191 of the Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1897, and Act and Acts consolidated therewith or for which the said Act was substituted shall make such returns under the section as are required from corporations without share capital.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 79; Imp. § 26.

Fees on letters patent, etc., to be fixed by Order-in Council. 132. 1. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may from time to time, establish, alter, and regulate the tariff of fees to be paid to the Provincial Secretary on applications, returns, filings, and all transactions under this Act; and may prescribe the form of proceedings and record in respect thereof, and all other matters requisite for carrying out the objects of this Act. 2. Such fees may be made to vary in amount, under any rule or rules—as to nature of the corporation, amount of capital, and otherwise—that may be deemed expedient. 3. No step shall be taken in the Department towards the issue of any letters patent or supplementary letters patent, or the filing of any document under this Act, until all fees therefor and all fees due the Department for any other service have been duly paid.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 95; Imp. § 118.

No compliance with Act to file returns, etc., without payment of fees. 133. No tender or transmission of any return, by-law, or other document shall be deemed to be a due compliance with the provisions of this Act unless and until the prescribed fee for receiving and filing the same has been paid to and has been accepted by the Provincial Secretary.

Evidence of by-laws. 134. A copy of any by-law of the corporation under its seal and purporting to be signed by any officer of the corporation or a certificate, similarly authenticated, to the effect that a person is a shareholder or member of the corporation that a call or calls or dues, assessments, or other payments has or have been made are due and have not been paid shall be received as prima facie evidence of the by-law or of the statements contained in such certificate in all Courts in Ontario.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 66.

Authentication of summons and notices. 135. Any writ, notice, order, or proceeding requiring authentication by the corporation may be signed by any director, manager, or other authorized officers of the corporation, and need not be under the seal of the corporation.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 67; Imp. § 117.

Service of notices. 136. A notice or demand to be served or made by the corporation upon a shareholder or member may be served or made either personally or by post, registered, and addressed to the shareholder or member at his place of abode as it last appeared on the books of the corporation.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 68.

Time of service. Proof of service. 137. A notice or other document served by post by the corporation on a shareholder or member shall be held to be served at the time when the registered letter containing it would be delivered in the ordinary course of post; and to prove the fact and time of service it shall be sufficient to prove that such letter was properly addressed and registered, and was put into the post office, and the time when it was put in, and the time requisite for its delivery in the ordinary course of post.

R. S. O. c. 191, § 69.

138. Any by-law by this Act required to be sanctioned by a two-thirds vote of the shareholders at a general meeting specially called for considering the same may in lieu thereof be validly sanctioned by the consent in writing of all the shareholders.

Case of death of contributory. 171. If a contributory dies either before or after he has been placed on the list of contributories hereinafter mentioned, his personal representatives, heirs and devisees shall be liable in due course of administration to contribute to the assets of the corporation in discharge of the liability of such deceased contributory, and such personal representatives, heirs, and devisees shall be deemed to be contributories accordingly.

Nature of liability of contributory. 172. The liability of any person to contribute to the assets of a corporation under this Act, in the event of the same being wound up, shall be deemed to create a debt accruing due from such person at the time when his liability commenced, but payable at the time or respective times when calls are made as hereinafter mentioned for enforcing such liability.

Voluntary winding-up. 173. A corporation may be wound up voluntarily under this Act: 1. Where the period, if any, fixed for the duration of the corporation by the Act, charter, or instrument of incorporation has expired; or where the event (if any) has occurred, upon the occurrence of which it is provided by the Act or Letters Patent or instrument of incorporation that the corporation is to be dissolved and the corporation in general meeting has passed a resolution requiring the corporation to be wound up; 2. Where the corporation in general meeting called for that purpose has passed a resolution requiring the corporation to be wound up; 3. Where the corporation (though it may be solvent as respects creditors) has passed a resolution in general meeting to the effect that it has been proved to its satisfaction that the corporation cannot by reason of its liabilities continue its business, and that it is advisable to wind up the same.

Commencement of winding-up. 174. A winding-up shall be deemed to commence at the time of the passing of the resolution authorizing the winding-up.
R. S. O. 1887, c. 183, § 6.

Corporation to cease business. 175. Whenever a corporation is wound up voluntarily, the corporation shall, from the date of the commencement of such winding-up, cease to carry on its undertaking, except in so far as may be required for the beneficial winding-up thereof, and all transfers of shares, except transfers made to or with the sanction of the liquidators, or alteration in the status of the members of the corporation, taking place after the commencement of such winding-up, shall be void, but its corporate state and all its corporate powers shall, notwithstanding it is otherwise provided by its constating instrument or by-laws, continue until the affairs of the corporation are wound up.

R. S. O. c. 222, § 8.

Notice of resolution to be given. 176. Notice of any resolution passed for winding up a corporation voluntarily shall be given by advertisement in the Ontario Gazette and filed in the office of the Provincial Secretary.

No suit or action against corporation after winding-up. 177. After the commencement of the winding-up, no suit, action, or other proceeding shall be proceeded with or commenced against the corporation, and no attachment, sequestration, distress, or execution shall be put in force against the estate or effects of the corporation. Provided, however, that after a winding-up order has been made by the Court as hereinafter provided, such suit action or other proceeding, attachment, sequestration, distress, or execution may be proceeded with by leave of the Court and subject to such terms as the Court may impose. And further provided that this section shall not apply to any proceeding taken under The Winding up Act of the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada or other Act respecting insolvency or bankruptcy for the time being in force.

Consequences of winding-up. Privilege of claims of clerks and employees allowed to a certain extent. 178. The following consequences shall ensue upon the voluntary winding-up of a corporation: 1. The property of the corporation shall be applied in satisfaction of all its liabilities pari passu, and, subject thereto, shall, unless it be otherwise provided by the by-laws of the corporation, be distributed pro rata amongst the members or shareholders according to their rights and interests in the corporation; 2. In distributing the assets of the corporation, the salary or wages of all clerks and wage earners in the employment of the corporation due at the date of the commencement of the winding-up or within one month before, not exceeding three months' salary or wages, shall be paid in priority to the claims of the ordinary general creditors, and such persons shall be entitled to rank as ordinary or general creditors for the residue of their claims; 3. Liquidators shall be appointed for the purpose of winding-up the affairs of the corporation and distributing the property; 4. The corporation in general meeting shall appoint such person or persons as it thinks fit to be liquidators or a liquidator, and may fix the remuneration to be paid to them or him; 5. If one person only is appointed, all the provisions herein contained in reference to several liquidators shall apply to him; 6. Upon the appointment of liquidators all the powers of the directors shall cease except in so far as the corporation in general meeting or the liquidators may sanction the continuance of such powers; 7. When several liquidators are appointed, every power hereby given may be exercised by such one or more of them as may be determined at the time of their appointment, or in default of such determination by any number not less than two; 8. The liquidators shall settle the list of contributories of the corporation and any list so settled shall be prima facie evidence of the liability of the persons named therein to be contributories; 9. The liquidators may at any time after the passing of the resolution for winding up the corporation and before they have ascertained the sufficiency of the assets of the corporation, call on all or any of the contributories, for the time being settled on the list of contributories, to the extent of their liability to pay all or any sums they deem necessary to satisfy the debts and liabilities of the corporation, and the costs, charges, and expenses of winding it up, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves, and the liquidators may in making a call take into consideration the probability that some of the contributories upon whom the same is made may partly or wholly fail to pay their respective portions of the same; 10. The liquidators shall pay the debts of the corporation and adjust the rights of the contributories, shareholders, or members amongst themselves.

R. S. O., c. 222, § 8.

Payment of costs and expenses. 179. All costs, charges, and expenses properly incurred in the voluntary winding-up of a corporation, including the remuneration of the liquidators, shall, after taxation by a taxing officer of the High Court who is hereby empowered to tax the same, be payable out of the assets of the corporation in priority to all other claims.

R. S. O., c. 222, § 20.

Power of liquidator. 180. The liquidators shall have power to do the following things: 1. To bring or defend any action, suit, or prosecution, or other legal proceeding, civil or criminal, in the name and on behalf of the corporation; 2. To carry on the business of the corporation so far as may be necessary for the beneficial winding-up of the same; 3. To sell the real and personal property, effects, and things in action of the company by public auction or private contract, with power to transfer the whole thereof to any person or corporation, or to sell the same in parcels; 4. To do all acts and execute, in the name and on behalf of the corporation, all deeds, receipts, and other documents, and for that purpose to use, when necessary, the corporation's seal; 5. To draw, accept, make, and endorse any bill of exchange or promissory note in the name and on behalf of the corporation, also to raise upon the security of the assets of the corporation, from time to time, any requisite sum or sums of money; and the drawing, accepting, making, or endorsing of every such bill of exchange or promissory note as aforesaid on behalf of the corporation shall have the same effect with respect to the liability of such corporation as if such bill or note had been drawn, accepted, made, or endorsed by or on behalf of such corporation in the course of carrying on the business thereof; 6. To take out, if necessary, in his official name, letters of administration to the estate of any deceased contributory and to do in his official name any other act that may be necessary for obtaining payment of any moneys due from a contributory or from his estate and which act can not be conveniently done in the name of the corporation; and in all cases where he takes out letters of administration or otherwise uses his official name for obtaining payment of any moneys due from a contributory, such moneys shall, for the purpose of enabling him to take out such letters or recover such moneys, be deemed to be due to the official liquidator himself; 7. To do and execute all such other things as may be necessary for winding-up the affairs of the corporation and distributing its assets.

R. S. O. c. 222, § 9; Imp. §§ 151, 186. Where the liquidator of a company which was being wound up voluntarily sold the assets en bloc to a private individual, without the sanction of the contributories, and obtained an order from the County Court approving the sale, it was held that the order was made without authority, and was a nullity. — In re D. A. Jones Co., (1892), 19 O. A. R. 63. As the main purpose of the Act is an expeditious division of the assets of the company among the creditors and members, the power to carry on the business, and thus to postpone the final winding-up, is one that can be exercised only in exceptional cases. — In re Haggert Bros. Manufacturing Co., (1893), 20 O. A. R. 597.

Inspectors. 181. A corporation about to be wound up voluntarily, or in the course of being wound up voluntarily, may, by resolution, delegate to any committee of its members, contributories, or creditors, hereinafter referred to as inspectors, the power of appointing liquidators and filling any vacancies in the office of liquidators, or may by a like resolution enter into any arrangement with respect to the powers to be exercised by the liquidators and the manner in which they are to be exercised; and any act done by the said inspectors in pursuance of such delegated power shall have the same effect as if it had been done by the corporation.

Imp. § 160.

Deposit in bank by liquidators. Separate deposit account to be kept; withdrawal from account. Liquidators to produce bank pass book at meetings, etc. Liquidator to produce bank pass book when ordered. 182. 1. The liquidators shall deposit at interest in some chartered bank to be indicated by the inspectors all sums of money which they may have in their hands, belonging to the corporation, whenever such sums amount to $ 100. 2. Such deposit shall not be made in the name of the liquidator generally, on pain of dismissal; but a separate deposit account shall be kept for the corporation of the moneys belonging to the corporation, in the name of the liquidator as such, and of the inspectors (if any); and such moneys shall be withdrawn only on the joint cheque of the liquidator and one of the inspectors, if there be any.

3. At every meeting of the shareholders or members of the corporation the liquidators shall produce a pass-book, showing the amount of deposits made for the corporation, the dates at which the deposits were made, the amounts withdrawn and dates of such withdrawal; of which production mention shall be made in the minutes of the meeting, and the absence of such mention shall be prima facie evidence that the pass-book was not produced at the meetings. 4. The liquidator shall also produce the pass-book whenever so ordered by the Court at the request of the inspectors or a member of the corporation, and on his refusal to do so, he shall be treated as being in contempt of court.

R. S. O. c. 222, § 19 (3—6); Imp. § 154.

Meetings of corporation during winding-up. 183. Where a corporation is being wound up voluntarily, the liquidators may from time to time, during the continuance of such winding-up, summon general meetings of the corporation for the purpose of obtaining the sanction of the corporation by resolution, or for any other purposes they think fit; and in the event of the winding-up continuing for more than one year, the liquidators shall summon a general meeting of the corporation at the end of the first year and of each succeeding year from the commencement of the winding-up, and shall lay before such meeting an account shewing their acts and dealings, and the manner in which the winding-up has been conducted during the preceding year.

R. S. O. c. 222, § 22 (2, 3); Imp. § 219.

Vacancy in office of liquidator. 184. If any vacancy occurs in the office of liquidators appointed by the corporation, by death, resignation, or otherwise, the corporation in general meeting may, subject to any arrangement they may have entered into upon the appointment of inspectors, fill up such vacancy, and a general meeting for the purpose of filling up such vacancy may be convened by the continuing liquidators, if any, or by any contributory of the corporation, and shall be deemed to have been duly held in manner prescribed by the by-laws of the corporation, or in default thereof in the manner prescribed by this Act for calling general meetings of the shareholders or members of the corporation.

R. S. O. c. 222, § 25 (1); Imp. § 189.

Liquidators may distribute assets after expiration of time fixed. 185. The provisions of section 38 of chapter 129 of The Revised Statutes of Ontario shall apply mutatis mutandis to liquidators.

Arrangements may be authorized with creditors. 186. The liquidators may, with the sanction of a resolution of the corporation or the inspectors, make such compromise or other arrangements as the liquidators deem expedient, with any creditors, or persons claiming to be creditors, or persons having or alleging to have any claim, present or future, certain or contingent, ascertained or sounding only in damages, against the corporation whereby the corporation may be rendered liable.

R. S. O. c. 222, § 11; Imp. § 191.

Power to compromise with debtors and contributories. Take security. 187. The liquidators may, with the sanction of a resolution of the corporation or of the inspectors, compromise all calls and liabilities to calls, debts and liabilities capable of resulting in debts, and all claims, whether present or future, certain or contingent, ascertained or sounding only in damages, subsisting or supposed to subsist between the corporation and any contributory or other debtor or person apprehending liability to the corporation and all questions in any way relating to or affecting the assets of the corporation, or the winding-up of the corporation, upon the receipt of such sums, payable at such times, and generally upon such terms as may be agreed upon; and the liquidators to take any security for the discharge of such debts and liabilities, and give a complete discharge in respect of all or any such calls, debts, or liabilities.

R. S. O. c. 222, § 12; Imp. 151.

Power to accept shares, etc., as a consideration for sale of property to another company. Sale or arrangement by liquidators binding unless a member objects. Proceedings on objection. Special resolution not invalid because prior to resolution to wind up. Price payable to dissentient member. 188. 1. Where a corporation is proposed to be or is in the course of being up, and the whole or a portion of its business or property is proposed to be transferred or sold to another corporation, the liquidators of the first mentioned corporation, with the sanction of a resolution of the corporation by whom they were appointed conferring either a general authority on the liquidators, or an authority in respect of any particular arrangement, may receive, in compensation or in part compensation for such transfer or sale, shares or other like interest in such other corporation, for the purpose or distribution amongst the members of the corporation which is being wound up or may in lieu of receiving cash, shares, or other like interests, or in addition thereto, participate in the profits of or receive any other benefit from the purchasing corporation.

2. Any sale made or arrangement entered into by the liquidators in pursuance of this section shall be binding on the shareholders or members of the corporation which is being wound up, subject to the proviso that if any member of the corporation which is being wound up, who has not voted in favour of the resolution passed by the corporation of which he is a member, expresses his dissent from any such resolution, in writing, addressed to the liquidators or one of them, and left at the head office of the corporation, or the place where its undertaking is carried on, not later than seven days after the date of the meeting at which such resolution was passed, such dissentient member may require the liquidators to do one of the following things as the liquidators may prefer, that is to say, either: a) To abstain from carrying such resolution into effect, or b) To purchase the interest held by such dissentient member, at a price to be determined in manner hereinafter mentioned, such purchase money to be paid before the corporation is dissolved, and to be raised by the liquidators in such manner as may be determined by resolution.

3. No resolution shall be deemed invalid for the purposes of this section by reason that it is passed antecedently to or concurrently with any resolution for winding-up the corporation or for appointing liquidators.

4. The price to be paid for the purchase of the interest of any dissentient member may be determined by agreement; but if the parties dispute about the same such dispute shall be settled by arbitration under the provisions of The Arbitration Act.

R. S. O. c. 222, § 13 (1—4); Imp. § 192.

Appeals. 189. The liquidator or liquidators or any creditor affected by the provisions of section 188 of this Act or the inspectors may at any time apply to the Master-in-Ordinary in the County of York or the Local Master in any other county or union of counties for his opinion, advice, or direction in any matter arising in the liquidation, and the said master may give such opinion, advice, or direction after hearing such parties as he shall direct to be notified or after such steps as he may prescribe have been taken, and such advice, opinion, or direction shall be followed and shall be binding upon all parties in the liquidation subject to an appeal to a Judge of the High Court of Justice in Chambers if leave to appeal is given by such master, and the order of such Judge of the High Court of Justice shall be final and binding in the liquidation.

8 Edw. 7, c. 43, § 1 (24).

Winding-up by Court. 190. A corporation may be wound up by order of the Court: 1. Where it may be wound up voluntarily; 1. Where proceedings have been taken to wind up voluntarily and it appears to the Court that it is in the interests of contributories and creditors that it should be wound up under the supervision of the Court; 3. Where on the application of a contributory the Court is of the opinion that it is just and equitable that the corporation should be wound up; 4. When the letters patent or supplementary letters patent have been declared forfeited or revoked or made void under the provisions of sections 22 or 148.

Imp. § 199.

Who may apply. 191. The winding-up order may be made on petition to a Judge or Local Judge of the High Court in Chambers by the liquidator or by any contributory, shareholder, member or when the corporation is being wound up voluntarily by a creditor having a claim of $ 200 or upwards.

Imp. § 199. A shareholder who has fully paid for his shares may be a contributory so as to entitle him to initiate winding-up proceedings. — In re Macdonald & Noxon Bros. Manufacturing Co., (1888), 16 O. R. 368.

Commencement of winding-up. 192. Where a winding-up order is made by the Court without prior voluntary winding-up proceedings, the winding-up shall be deemed to commence at the time of service of notice of motion for the order.

Imp. §§ 139, 183.

Powers of Court. 193. The Court may make the order applied for or may dismiss the petition with or without costs; may adjourn the hearing conditionally or unconditionally, or may make any interim or other orders as may be just, and upon the making of the order may, according to the practice and procedure of such court, refer the proceedings for the winding-up and may also delegate any powers of the Court conferred by this Act to a Master or Referee of the Court.

Imp. § 141.

Appointment of liquidator. 194. The Court in making the winding-up order may appoint a liquidator or liquidators of the estate and effects of the corporation; but no such liquidator shall be appointed unless a previous notice is given to the creditors, contributories, shareholders, or members in the manner and form prescribed by the Court. Provided, however, that if a liquidator has already been appointed in a voluntary liquidation such notice need not be given.

Imp. § 202.

Appointment by Court. Removal of liquidator. The case of no liquidator. 195.

1. If from any cause there is no liquidator acting either provisionally or otherwise, the Court may on the application of a member of the corporation, appoint a liquidator or liquidators. 2. The Court may also on due cause shewn, remove a liquidator and appoint another liquidator. 3. When there is no liquidator the estate shall be under the control of the Court until the appointment of a new liquidator.

R. S. O. c. 222, § 25 (2—4); Imp. § 202.

Proceeding in winding-up after order. 196. When a winding-up order has been made proceedings for the winding-up of the corporation shall be taken in the same manner and with the like consequences as hereinbefore provided for a voluntary winding-up. Provided, however, that the list of contributories shall be settled by the Court except where the same has been settled by the liquidator prior to the winding-up order, when such list shall be subject to review by the Court, and that all proceedings in said winding-up shall be subject to the order and discretion of the Court.

Imp. § 199.

Meetings of members of company may be ordered. Chairman. Order for delivery by contributories and others of property, etc. Inspection of books. 197. The Court may direct meetings of the shareholders or members of the corporation to be summoned, held, and conducted in such manner as the Court thinks fit for the purpose of ascertaining their wishes, and may appoint a person to act as chairman of any such meeting, and to report the result of such meeting to the Court. 2. The Court may require any contributory for the time being settled on the list of contributories, or any trustee, receiver, banker, or agent or officer of the corporation to pay, deliver, convey, surrender, or transfer forthwith, or within such time as the Court directs, to or into the hands of the liquidator, any sum or balance, books, papers, estate, or effects which happen to be in his hands for the time being, and to which the corporation is prima facie entitled. 3. The Court may make such order for the inspection by the creditors and contributories of the corporation of its books and papers as the Court thinks just; and any books and papers in the possession of the company may be inspected in conformity with the order of the Court, but not further or otherwise.

R. S. O. c. 222, § 23 (5, 6, 10); Imp. §§ 164, 219, 221.

Examination of persons before Court or liquidator. Power of Court to assess damages against delinquent directors, etc. 198. 1. The Court may, at any time after the commencement of the winding-up of the corporation, summon to appear before the Court or liquidator any officer of the corporation, or any other person known or suspected to have in his possession any of the estate or effects of the corporation, or supposed to be indebted to the corporation, or any person whom the Court may deem capable of giving information concerning the trade, dealings, estate, or effects of the corporation, and in case of refusal to appear and answer to questions submitted, he may be committed and punished by the Judge as for a contempt. 2. Where in the course of winding-up a corporation under this Act, it appears that any person who has taken part in the formation or promotion of the corporation or any past or present director, manager, official or other liquidator, or any officer of the corporation has misapplied, or retained in his own hands, or become liable or accountable for, moneys of the corporation, or been guilty of any misfeasance or breach of trust in relation to the corporation, the Court may, on the application of a liquidator, or of any contributory of the corporation, notwithstanding that the offence is one for which the offender is criminally responsible, examine into the conduct of such promoter, director, manager, or other officer, and compel him to repay the moneys so misapplied or retained, or for which he has become liable or accountable, together with interest, at such rate as the Court thinks just, or to contribute such sums of money to the assets of the corporation by way of compensation in respect of such misapplication, retainer, misfeasance, or breach of trust, as the Court thinks just.

R. S. O. c. 222, § 23 (11, 17); Imp. §§ 174, 215. Subsection (2) is not broad enough to authorize the setting aside as a breach of trust, on the summary application of the liquidator, of a sale of land by the company through a director, or to the wife of a director at the latter's direction. — In re Essex Centre Manufacturing Co., (1890), 19 O. A. R. 125.

Proceedings by contributories at their own expense and for their own benefit only. 199. If at any time a member of the corporation desires to cause any proceeding to be taken which, in his opinion, would be for the benefit of the corporation, and the liquidator, under the authority of the members of the corporation or of the inspectors, refuses or neglects to take such proceeding, after being duly required so to do, the member of the corporation shall have the right to obtain an order of the Court authorizing him to take such proceeding in the name of the liquidator or corporation, but at his own expense and risk, upon such terms and conditions as to indemnity to the liquidator, as the Court may prescribe; and thereupon any benefit derived from such proceeding shall belong exclusively to the member of the corporation instituting the same, for his benefit and that of any other member of the corporation who may have joined him in causing the institution of such proceeding; but if, before such order is granted, the liquidator signifies to the Court his readiness to institute such proceeding for the benefit of the corporation, an order shall be made prescribing the time within which he shall do so and in that case the advantage derived from such proceeding shall appertain to the corporation.

R. S. O. c. 222, § 24.

Powers of Court to be in addition to other powers. 200. Any powers by this Act conferred on the Court shall be deemed to be in addition to any other power, of instituting proceedings against any contributory, or against any debtor of the corporation for the recovery of any call or other sums due from such contributory, or against any debtor of the corporation, for the recovery of any call or other sum due from such contributory or debtor, or his estate, and such proceedings may be instituted accordingly.

R. S. O. c. 222, § 28; Imp. § 177.

Stay of proceedings. 201. The Court at any time after an order has been made for winding-up a corporation may, upon the application by motion of any contributory, and upon proof to the satisfaction of the Court that all proceedings in relation to the winding-up ought to be stayed, make an order staying the same, either altogether or for a limited time, on such terms and subject to such conditions as the Court deems fit.

R. S. O. c. 222, § 33; Imp. § 144.

Appeals. 202. Any party who is dissatisfied with any order or decision of the Court or of a Master or Referee in any proceeding under this Act, may appeal therefrom to a Judge of the High Court as in the case of a like order made in any action.

Imp. § 181. An order rescinding an order to wind-up is an appealable order. — In re Equitable Savings, etc., Assn., (1903), 4 O. L. R. 479; 6 O. L. R. 26; 2 O. W. R. 366. And see McNabb v. Oppenheimer, (1885), 11 O. P. R. 214.

Rules of procedure. 203. The Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council may from time to time make rules of practice and procedure for the due carrying out of the provisions of this part of the Act, and until such rules have been made the practice shall be the same as in cases of administration of estates so far as the same are applicable, or in the Master's Office in cases under the Winding-up Act (Canada).

Imp. §§ 237, 238.

Account of winding-up to be made by liquidator to a general meeting. Return of holding of meeting to be sent to Provincial Secretary. Dissolution of company.

204. 1. As soon as the affairs of the corporation are fully wound up, the liquidators shall make up an account shewing the manner in which the winding-up has been conducted, and the property of the corporation disposed of; and thereupon they shall call a general meeting of the members or shareholders of the corporation for the purpose of having the account laid before them, and hearing any explanation that may be given by the liquidators; the meeting shall be called in the manner provided by the by-laws for calling general meetings of the shareholders or members of the corporation. 2. The liquidator shall make a return to the Provincial Secretary of such meeting having been held, and of the date at which the same was held; which return shall be filed in the office of the Provincial Secretary; and on the expiration of three months from the date of the filing of such return, the corporation shall be deemed to be dissolved.

R. S. O. c. 222 § 40; Imp. § 195.

Order for dissolution. Report to Provincial Secretary. 205. Whenever the affairs of the corporation have been completely wound up, the Court may make an order that the corporation be dissolved from the date of such order, and the corporation shall be dissolved accordingly; which order shall be reported by the liquidator to the Provincial Secretary.

R. S. O. c. 222, § 41; Imp. § 172 (1, 2).

Penalty on default in reporting by liquidator or in making return. 206. [As amended by 8 Edw. 7, c. 43, § 1 (25).] If the liquidator makes default in transmitting to the Provincial Secretary the return mentioned in section 204 (2), or in reporting the order (if any) declaring the corporation dissolved, he shall be liable on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding $ 20 for every day during which he is in default.

R. S. O. c. 222, § 42.

Disposition of unclaimed dividends. 207. All dividends deposited in a bank and remaining unclaimed at the time of the dissolution of the corporation, shall be left for three years in the bank where they are deposited, and if still unclaimed, shall then be paid over by such bank, with interest accrued thereon, to the Treasurer of Ontario, and, if afterwards duly claimed, shall be paid over by the Treasurer to the person entitled thereto.

R. S. O. c. 222, § 43; Imp. § 224.

Deposit by liquidator after dissolution of moneys with sworn statement. Penalty on omission. Money to remain on deposit for three years. Disposal of books, etc., after winding-up. After five years responsibility as to custody of books, etc., to cease. 208. 1. Every liquidator shall, within thirty days after the date of the dissolution of the corporation, deposit in the bank appointed or named as hereinbefore provided for any other moneys belonging to the estate then in his hands not required for any other purpose authorized by this Act, with a sworn statement and account of such money, and that the same is all he has in his hands; and he shall be liable on summary conviction to a penalty of not exceeding $ 10 for every day on which he neglects or delays such payments; and he shall be a debtor to His Majesty for such money and may be compelled as such to account for and pay over the same. 2. The money so deposited shall be left for three years in the bank, and shall be then paid over, with interest, to the Treasurer of the Province, and if afterwards claimed shall be paid over to the person entitled thereto. 3. Where a corporation has been wound up under this Act and is about to be dissolved, the books, accounts, and documents of the corporation and of the liquidators may be disposed of in such a way as the corporation by resolution directs in case of voluntary winding-up or the Court in case of winding-up under order. 4. After the lapse of five years from the date of such dissolution, no responsibility shall rest on the corporation or the liquidators, or any one to whom the custody of such books, accounts, and documents has been committed, by reason that the same or any of them are not forthcoming to any party claiming to be interested therein.

R. S. O. c. 222, § 44; Imp. §§ 222, 224.

Part XV. Application of Act and Repeal.

Powers of existing corporations may be varied. 209. The Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council may by supplementary letters patent upon the application of a corporation, a shareholder, a creditor, a holder of bonds, debentures, or other securities or obligations thereof, or any person, firm, or corporation with whom the company may have dealings, relieve the corporation from any duty, obligation, or other disability, or may limit any right, power, or other advantage which may have been cast or conferred upon the corporation by the repeal of the general Act under which the said corporation was incorporated and by the enactment of this Act. Notice shall thereupon be given in the Gazette by the Provincial Secretary of such supplementary letters patent setting out the manner in which any such duty, obligation, or other disability has been relieved or in which such right, power, or other advantage has been limited.

Repeal. Proviso. 211. The Acts mentioned in Schedule E to this Act are hereby repealed to the extent specified in the third column of that Schedule; provided, that: 1. Any letters patent, supplementary letters patent, Order-in-Council, certificate, by-law, rule, or regulation made or granted with respect to any company, corporation, or association within the scope of this Act under any enactment hereby repealed, shall continue in force as if it had been made or granted under this Act; 2. The corporate existence and powers of all companies, associations, or other corporations within the scope of this Act incorporated otherwise than by letters patent under any enactment hereby repealed shall continue as if such companies, associations, or other corporations had been incorporated under this Act; 3. The corporate existence, rights and powers of any and all corporations, associations and societies, registered as friendly societies, and incorporated under any Act respecting benevolent, provident and other societies, or any other Act of this Province, and all the rights and privileges of the members thereof and their beneficiaries are (subject to the provisions of The Ontario Insurance Act and all amendments thereto) hereby continued notwithstanding the repeal of any Act hereunder, and notwithstanding anything in this Act hereinbefore contained; 4. Saving and excepting those corporations referred to in subsection 3 hereof, any document referring to any Act or enactment hereby repealed shall be construed to refer to this Act or to the corresponding enactment of this Act. 5. Any penalty may be recovered and any offence may be prosecuted under this Act for any matter or thing provided for under the Acts hereby repealed.

Commencement of Act. 212. This Act shall, except as otherwise expressed, come into operation on the first day of July, one thousand nine hundred and seven.

Schedule D.

Memorandum of Agreement of the Association, made and entered into this ..... day of ..... 19 .

1. We, the undersigned, do hereby severally covenant and agree each with the other to become incorporated under the provisions of The Ontario Companies Act as a corporation without share capital for the purposes and objects following:

2. The subscribers shall be the first members, and it shall rest with the directors to determine the terms and conditions on which subsequent members shall from time to time be admitted.

3. The following shall be the first directors of the corporation:

4. Any member may transfer his interest in the corporation by instrument in writing, signed both by the transferor and transferee and duly registered with the corporation.

5. The first general meeting shall be held at such time, not being more than two months after the incorporation of the corporation, and at such place as the directors may determine.

6. Subsequent general meetings shall be held at such time and place as may be prescribed by the corporation in general meeting; and if no other time or place is prescribed, a general meeting shall be held on the fourth Wednesday in January in every year, at such place as may be determined by the directors.

7. The directors may, whenever they think fit, and they shall upon a requisition made in writing by any five or more members, convene a general meeting.

8. Any requisition made by the members shall express the object of the meeting proposed to be called, and shall be left at the office of the corporation.

9. Upon the receipt of such requisition the directors shall forthwith proceed to convene a general meeting. If they do not proceed to convene the same within twenty-one days from the date of the requisition, the requisitionists or any other five members may themselves convene a meeting.

10. Ten days' notice at the least, specifying the place, the day, and the hour of meeting, and in case of special business the general nature of such business shall be given to the members in the manners hereinafter mentioned, or in such other manner, if any, as may be prescribed by the corporation in general meeting, but the non-receipt of such notice by any member shall not invalidate the proceedings at any general meeting.

11. If within one hour from the time appointed for the meeting a quorum of members is not present, the meeting, if convened upon the requisition of the members, shall be dissolved. In any other case, it shall stand adjourned to the same day in the following week, at the same time and place; and if at such adjourned meeting a quorum of members is not present, it shall be adjourned sine die.

12. The chairman (if any) of the directors shall preside as chairman at every general meeting of the corporation. If there is no such chairman, or if at any meeting he is not present at the time of holding the same, the members present shall choose some one of their number to be chairman at such meeting.

13. The chairman may, with the consent of the meeting, adjourn any meeting from time to time, and from place to place, but no business shall be transacted at any adjourned meeting other than the business left unfinished at the meeting from which the adjournment took place.

14. At any general meeting, unless a poll is demanded, a declaration by the chairman that a resolution has been carried and an entry to that effect in the minutes of proceedings of the corporation, shall be sufficient evidence of the fact, without proof of the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour of or against such resolution.

15. If a poll is demanded, the same shall be taken in such manner as the chairman directs, and the result of such poll shall be deemed to be the resolution of the corporation in general meeting.

16. With the consent in writing of all members, a general meeting may be convened on shorter notice than seven days, and in any manner which such members think fit.

17. The quorum of a general meeting shall be . . . . . members present in person.

18. Until otherwise determined by special resolution, every member shall have one vote.

19. Votes may be given either personally or by proxy. The instrument appointing a proxy shall be in writing, under the hand of the appointor, or if such appointor is a corporation, under its common seal, and shall be attested by one or more witness or witnesses; no person shall be appointed a proxy who is not a member of the corporation.

20. A resolution signed by all the directors shall be as valid and effectual as if had been passed at a general meeting of the directors duly called and constituted.

21. The future remuneration of the directors, and their remuneration for services performed previously to the first general meeting, shall be determined by the corporation in general meeting.

22. The affairs of the corporation shall be managed by the directors, who may pay all expenses incurred in incorporating the corporation, and may exercise all such powers of the corporation as are not by the foregoing Act, or by these articles, required to be exercised by the corporation in general meeting, subject, nevertheless, to any regulations of this memorandum, to the provisions of the foregoing Act, and to such regulations, being not inconsistent with the aforesaid regulations or provisions, as may be prescribed by the corporation in general meeting; but no regulation made by the corporation in general meeting shall invalidate any prior act of the directors which would have been valid if such regulation had not been made. The continuing directors may act notwithstanding any vacancy in their body.

23. The office of director shall be vacated: a) If he holds any other office or place of profit under the corporation; b) If he is concerned in or participates in the profits of any contract with the corporation. But the above rules shall be subject to the following exceptions: that no director shall vacate his office by reason of his being a shareholder of any corporation which has entered into contracts with or done any work for the corporation of which he is a director; nevertheless, he shall not vote in respect of such contract of work, and if he does so vote his vote shall not be counted, and no addition thereto, a director shall vacate his office if and when he is requested by the corporation in general meeting to resign.

24. A retiring director shall be re-eligible. The corporation at the general meeting at which any directors retire in manner aforesaid shall fill up the vacated offices by electing a like number of persons.

25. If at any meeting at which an election of directors ought to take place the places of the vacating directors are not filled up, the meeting shall stand adjourned till the same day in the next week, at the same time and place; and if at such adjourned meeting the places of the vacating directors are not filled up, the vacating directors, or such of them as have not had their places filled up, shall continue in office until the ordinary meeting in the next year, and so on from time to time until their places are filled up.

26. The corporation may, from time to time, in general meeting, increase or reduce the number of directors, and may also determine in what rotation any such increased or reduced number is to go out of office.

27. Any casual vacancy occurring in the board of directors may be filled up by the directors, but any person so chosen shall retain his office so long only as the vacating director would have retained the same if no vacancy had occurred.

28. The corporation in general meeting may, by a special resolution, remove any director before the expiration of his period of office, and may, by an ordinary resolution, appoint another person in his stead; the person so appointed shall hold office during such time only as the director in whose place he was appointed would have held the same if he had not been removed.

29. The directors may meet together for the dispatch of business, adjourn, and otherwise regulate their meetings as they think fit, and determine the quorum necessary for the transaction of business. Questions arising at any meeting shall be decided by a majority of votes. In case of an equality of votes the chairman shall have a second or casting vote. A director may at any time summon a meeting of the directors.

30. The directors may elect a chairman of their meetings, and determine the period for which he is to hold office; but if no such chairman is elected, or if at any meeting the chairman is not present at the time appointed for holding the same, the directors present shall choose some one of their number to be chairman of such meeting.

31. The directors may delegate any of their powers to committees consisting of such member or members of their body as they think fit. Any committee so formed shall, in the exercise of their powers so delegated, conform to any regulations that may be imposed on them by the directors.

32. A committee may elect a chairman of their meetings. If no such chairman is elected, or if he is not present at the time appointed for holding the same, the members present shall choose one of their number to be chairman of such meeting.

33. A committee may meet and adjourn as they think proper. Questions arising at any meeting shall be determined by a majority of votes of the members present, and in case of an equality of votes the chairman shall have a second or casting vote.

34. All acts done by any meeting of the directors, or of a committee of directors, or by any person acting as a director shall, notwithstanding that it be afterwards discovered that there was some defect in the appointment of any such directors or persons acting as aforesaid, or that they, or any of them, were disqualified, be as valid as if every such person had been duly appointed and was qualified to be a director, but it shall not be necessary to give notice of a meeting of the directors to a director who is not within the Province. In testimony whereof we have hereunto set our hand and affixed our seals.

d) 63 Vic. c. 24. An Act respecting the Licensing of Extra Provincial Corporations (30th April, 1900).

Extra provincial corporations, meaning of. 1. In this Act the expression "Extra provincial corporation" means a corporation created otherwise than by or under the authority of an Act of the Legislature of Ontario.

Corporations which do not require license. 2. [As amended by 1 Edw. 7, c. 19, § 1.]

Extra provincial corporations of the classes mentioned in this section are not required to take out a license under this Act, viz., corporations created by or under the authority of: Class I. An Act of the Legislature of the late Province of Upper Canada, or by Royal Charter of the Government of that Province; Class II. An Act of the Legislature of the late Province of Canada, or by Royal Charter of the Government of that Province, and carrying on business in Ontario at the date of the commencement of this Act; Class III. Corporations which have before the commencement of this Act received from the Government of Ontario a license to carry on business in Ontario, or which have been authorized by Act of the Legislature of Ontario to carry on business in Ontario, provided that such license or Act is in force at the date of the commencement of this Act; Class IV. Corporations now or hereafter licensed or registered under the provisions of The Ontario Insurance Act, or of The Loan Corporations Act; Class V. Corporations liable to payment of taxes imposed by Chapter 8 of the Ontario Statutes for 1899, intitled An Act to supplement the revenues of the Crown in the Province of Ontario; or by chapter 31 of the said Statutes for 1899, intitled An Act respecting Brewers' and Distillers' and other Licenses; Class VI. Corporations not having gain for any of their objects.

63 Vic. c. 24, § 2; 1 Edw. 7, c. 19, § 1.

Corporations which require license. 3. Extra provincial corporations of the classes mentioned in this section are required to take out a license under this Act, viz., corporations (other than those mentioned in section 2) created by or under the authority of: Class VII. An Act of the Legislature of the late Province of Canada or by Royal Charter of the Government of that Province, authorized to carry on business in Upper Canada, but not carrying on business in Ontario at the date of the commencement of this Act; Class VIII. An Act of the Dominion of Canada, and authorized to carry on business in Ontario; Class IX. Corporation not coming within any of the foregoing classes.

Right to license when within VII. or VIII. 4. A corporation coming within Class VII. or VIII. shall, upon complying with the provisions of this Act and the regulations made hereunder, receive a license to carry on its business and exercise its powers in Ontario.

Right to license when within IX. 5. A corporation coming within Class IX. may, upon complying with the provisions of this Act and the regulations made hereunder, receive a license to carry on the whole or such parts of its business and exercise the whole or such parts of its powers in Ontario as may be embraced in the license; subject, however, to such limitations and conditions as may be specified therein.

Where the agent of plaintiff, a foreign corporation not licensed to do business in Ontario, sold engines to defendant, it was held that the agent was a representative of an extra provincial corporation, within the meaning of this Act, and, since it had taken out no license, it could not maintain the action. — Bessemer Gas Engine Co. v. Mills, (1904), 8 O. L. R. 647; see also Kerlin Bros. v. Ontario Pipe Line Co., (1908), 11 O. W. R. 797. In International Text Book Co. v. Brown, (1906), 13 O. L. R. 644, it appeared that the plaintiffs were incorporated in the State of Pennsylvania for the purpose of giving, by correspondence, various forms of instruction. The company had offices in Toronto and text books were sent from the head office to Toronto and afterwards forwarded to students. Held, that plaintiffs were carrying on business in Ontario within the meaning of this Act so as to necessitate their taking out a license, and their omission to do so precluded them from maintaining an action for money claimed to be due from one of the enrolled students. Cp. International Text-Book Co. v. Pigg, (1910), 30 U. S. Sup. Ct. Rep. 481. In Halifax v. Jones, (1896), 28 N. S. 452, defendants were agents of a steamship company incorporated in England with a head office at Liverpool and carried on business at Halifax through their agents. It was held that as the company carried on business in Halifax they were liable to be taxed the license fee imposed on companies doing business in Nova Scotia.; but cp. the above cases with Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Co. v. Standard, etc., Co., (1910), Q. R. 37 S. C. 33 where it was held that a foreign company, though of the class described as "Extra Provincial Corporations" in 4 Edw. 7, c. 34, and though it had not been granted a license to do business, was not debarred from exercising its rights and for redressing its wrongs under the law. The consequence of its failure to comply with the provisions of the statute is confined to the incurring of the penalty therein provided. Quære, whether companies incorporated by the Dominion Parliament have a different status from strictly foreign companies in regard to their rights to carry on business within the limits of a Province of the Dominion. § 3, supra would seem clearly to include companies incorporated under the Dominion Act. However, Masten submits that "where companies are incorporated by a foreign jurisdiction, prohibition against the exercise of any corporate power until a license had been obtained and a fee paid would doubtless be considered as a reasonable exercise of sovereignty. But companies incorporated by the Dominion have rights which the Dominion can confer, and as long as the powers they exercise are those which the Dominion alone can authorize, the Province can not prevent their doing business." — Company Law, p. 335. Parker and Clark accord with this view. — Company Law, p. 326. Both writers submit cases touching the constitutionality of this provision, but it is submitted the cases are not directly in point. Later cases decided in jurisdictions other than Ontario seem not to doubt the constitutionality of this section as applied to Dominion companies. In Rex v. Massey, (1908), 6 Terr. L. R. 26, where the statute under which the case was decided clearly included Dominion companies, it was held that the statute was intra vires the Territorial Legislature and extended to companies incorporated by the Dominion to carry on, throughout Canada, a business which the Territorial Legislature might have authorized it to carry on in the Territories. Where the plaintiff, incorporated under the Dominion Companies Act, but not licensed in British Columbia, attempted to bring suit on a contract entered into in British Columbia, it was held that the securing of a license was a pre-requisite to doing business and bringing suit in British Columbia. It was held further, that § 123 of the British Columbia Companies Act of 1897 requiring such a license was not in conflict with the Dominion Companies Act and was not ultra vires the power of the Provincial Legislature. The Dominion Act gives a company the "capacity or status to carry on certain business throughout Canada consistently with the laws of that particular Province in which it seeks to extend its operations." — Per Morrison, J., in Waterous Engine Works Co. v. Okanagan Lumber Co., (1908), 14 B. C. R. 328. See also articles in Canadian Law Times, Vol. 30, pp. 705—721, and Canada Law Journal, Vol. 46, pp. 513—523.

Carrying on business without license prohibited. 6. [As amended by 1 Edw. 7, c. 19, § 2.] No extra provincial corporation coming within Class VII. or VIII. or IX. shall carry on within Ontario any of its business unless or until a license under this Act so to do has been granted to it, and unless such license is in force; and no company, firm, broker, agent, or other person shall, as the representative or agent of or acting in any other capacity for any such extra provincial corporation, carry on any of its business in Ontario unless and until such corporation has received such license and unless such license is in force. Provided that taking orders for or buying or selling goods, wares, or merchandise by travellers or by correspondence, if the corporation has no resident agent or representative or no office or place of business in Ontario, shall not be deemed a carrying on of business within the meaning of this Act. Provided further that this section shall not apply until the first day of November, A. D. 1900, to any such corporation which at the date of the commencement of this Act is carrying on business in Ontario. Provided also that the onus of proving that a corporation has no resident agent or representative and no office or place of business in Ontario, or that it was at the date of the commencement of this Act carrying on business in Ontario, shall in any prosecution for an offence against this section rest upon the accused.

Application for license. 7. [As amended by 1 Edw. 7, c. 19, § 3.] An extra provincial corporation coming within Class VII. or VIII. or IX. may apply to the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council for a license to carry on its business or part thereof, and exercise its powers or part thereof in Ontario; and upon the granting of such license such corporation may thereafter while such license is in force carry on in Ontario the whole or such parts of its business and exercise in Ontario the whole or such parts of its powers as may be embraced in the license; subject however to the provisions of this Act and to such limitations and conditions as may be specified in the license. Provided always that no limitations or conditions shall be included in any such license which could limit the rights of a corporation coming within Class VII. or Class VIII., to carry on in Ontario all such parts of its business, and to exercise in Ontario all such parts of its powers as by its Act or charter of incorporation it may be authorized to carry on and exercise therein.

Regulations by Order-in-Council. Special Orders-in-Council. 8. The Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council may from time to time make regulations respecting the following matters namely: a) The evidence required, upon the application for a license under this Act, respecting the creation of the corporation applying and its powers and objects and its existence as a valid and subsisting corporation; b) The appointment and continuance by the corporation of a person or company as its representative in Ontario on whom service of process, notice, or other proceedings may be made, and the powers to be conferred on such representative; c) The forms of licenses, powers of attorney, applications, notices, statements, returns, and other documents relating to applications and other proceedings under this Act; and such regulations shall be published in The Ontario Gazette. The Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council may make orders with respect to particular cases where the general regulations may not be applicable or where they would cause unnecessary inconvenience or delay.

Proof to be furnished on application for license. 9. Upon the application for a license the applicant shall establish to the satisfaction of the Provincial Secretary, or such other officer as may be charged by him to report thereon, that the provisions of this Act and the regulations made hereunder have been complied with; and the Provincial Secretary, the Assistant Provincial Secretary, or such other officer may for the purposes aforesaid or for any other purpose under this Act take any requisite evidence in writing under oath or affirmation. Proof of any matter which may be necessary to be made under this Act may be made by statutory declaration or by affidavit or by deposition before the Provincial Secretary, or Assistant Provincial Secretary or other officer as aforesaid or before any Justice of the Peace or commissioner for taking affidavits, or notary public, who for this purpose are hereby authorized and empowered to administer oaths or to take affirmations. Or if made outside of Ontario may be made before any person authorized to take affidavits under The Registry Act.

Dealing with real estate. 10. A corporation receiving a license under this Act may, subject to the limitations and conditions of the license, and subject to the provisions of its own charter, Act of Incorporation or other creating instrument, acquire, hold, mortgage, alienate, and otherwise dispose of real estate in Ontario and any interest therein to the same extent and for the same purposes and subject to the same conditions and limitations as if such corporation had been incorporated under The Ontario Companies Act with power to carry on the business and exercise the powers embraced in the license.

Notice of granting license. 11. Notice of the granting of a license under this Act shall be given by the Provincial Secretary in The Ontario Gazette and a copy of such Gazette containing such notice shall be prima facie evidence, in all proceedings by and against the corporation and otherwise under this Act or otherwise, of the granting of the license and of the terms thereof mentioned in the notice; and a copy of the license certified by the Provincial Secretary or Assistant Provincial Secretary shall be sufficient evidence of the license before all courts and tribunals.

Return to be made by licensees. 12. A corporation receiving a license under this Act shall on or before the eighth day of February in every year during the continuance of the license, make and transmit to the Provincial Secretary a statement, under oath and according to a form approved of by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, containing information similar to that required under section 131 of The Ontario Companies Act, or so much thereof or such additional information as may be prescribed in such form, and the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council may at any time require the corporation to supply such further and other information as shall seem to him to be reasonable and proper.

Suspension, cancellation, or restoration of license after default of licensee. Notice. 13. If a corporation receiving a license under this Act makes default in observing or complying with the limitations and conditions of such license, or the provisions of section 12 of this Act, or the regulations respecting the appointment and continuance of a representative in Ontario, the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council may suspend or revoke such license in whole or in part, and may remove such suspension or cancel such revocation and restore such license. Notice of such suspension, revocation, removal, or restoration shall be given by the Provincial Secretary in The Ontario Gazette.

Penalty for carrying on business without a license. Proviso. 14. If any extra provincial corporation coming within Class VII. or VIII. or IX. shall, contrary to the provisions of section 6 hereof, carry on in Ontario any part of its business, such corporation shall incur a penalty of fifty dollars for every day upon which it so carries on business; and so long as it remains unlicensed under this Act it shall not be capable of maintaining any action, suit, or other proceeding in any Court in Ontario in respect of any contract made in whole or in part within Ontario in the course of or in connection with business carried on contrary to the provisions of said section 6. Provided, however, that upon the granting or restoration of the license, or the removal of any suspension thereof, such action, suit, or other proceeding may be maintained as if such license had been granted or restored or such suspension had been removed before the institution thereof.

Penalty for agent of unlicensed corporation carrying on business. 15. If any company, firm, broker, agent, or other person shall, contrary to the provisions of section 6 hereof, as the representative or agent of or acting in any other capacity for an extra provincial corporation, carry on any of its business in Ontario such company, firm, broker, agent, or other person shall incur a penalty of twenty dollars for every day upon which it, he, or they carry on such business.

Power to remit penalties or costs. 16. The Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council may, when or after granting a license, remit in whole or part any penalty incurred under this Act by the corporation receiving the license or by any representative or agent thereof, and may also remit in whole or in part the costs of any action or proceeding commenced for the recovery of any such penalty, and thereupon the whole or such part of the costs as the case may be, shall not be recoverable.

Penalties, how recoverable. 17. The penalties imposed by this Act shall be recoverable only by action at the suit of or brought with the written consent of the Attorney-General of Ontario, and any action or proceeding to recover any such penalty shall be commenced within six months after the liability for such penalty has been incurred, and not afterwards.

Fees on license and returns. Fees to be paid by companies on filing statements. 18. [As amended by 3 Edw. 7, c. 7, § 53.] There shall be paid to His Majesty for the public uses of Ontario by every corporation requiring a license under this Act such fees as may from time to time be approved of by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council. There shall be paid to His Majesty for the public uses of Ontario, upon transmitting to the Provincial Secretary the statement required by section 12 hereof the fee of five dollars, if the capital stock of the company does not exceed the sum of one hundred thousand dollars, and a fee of ten dollars if the capital stock of the company exceeds the said sum of one hundred thousand dollars, and until such fee has been paid such statement shall be deemed not to have been made and transmitted as required by said section.

Fees payable by extra provincial corporations. 18 A. The fees payable by extra provincial corporations coming within Class III. of section 2 of chapter 24 of the Acts passed in the 63rd year of the reign of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, intituled An Act respecting the licensing of Extra Provincial Corporations, for filing the annual statement or return required of such corporations shall be as follows, viz.: $ 5 if the capital stock of the company does not exceed $ 100,000, and $ 10 if it does exceed $ 100,000.

Granting license as to real estate to other corporations. 19. An extra provincial corporation which is not required by this Act to take out a license may apply for and receive a license authorizing it, subject to the limitations and conditions of the license, and subject to the provisions of its own charter, Act of incorporation or other creating instrument, to acquire, hold, mortgage, alienate, and otherwise dispose of real estate in Ontario and any interest therein to the same extent and for the same purposes and subject to the same conditions and limitations as if such corporation had been incorporated under The Ontario Companies Act with power to carry on the business or exercise the powers embraced in the license. For such license there shall be paid to His Majesty for the public uses of Ontario such fee as the Lieutenant-Governor may prescribe, and compliance with section 12 hereof may be dispensed with by the Lieutenant-Governor in whole or in part.

Annual return as to licenses issued. 20. A statement showing the licenses issued under this Act during the preceding calendar year and the authorized capital stocks of the companies licensed and the fee paid for each license shall be laid the Legislature at each session thereof.

Notice of passing of Act. 21. Notice of the passing of this Act in such form and with such particulars thereof as the Provincial Secretary may think proper shall be published by him in The Ontario Gazette and in The Canada Gazette and in the official gazette or other official publication of each Province of Canada, for such time as to him may seem best.

Commencement of Act. 22. This Act shall commence and take effect on and after the first day of July, A. D. 1900, and on and after that day section 107 of The Ontario Companies Act shall be and the same is hereby repealed.

Factors.

10 Edw. 7, c. 66. An Act respecting Contracts in relation to Goods in the Possession of Agents and others (19th March, 1910).<sup>1)</sup>

Short title. 1. This Act may be cited as The Factors Act.

Interpretation. 2. In this Act: a) "Document of title" shall include any bill of lading and warehouse receipt, as defined by The Mercantile Law Amendment Act, any warrant or order for the delivery of goods, and any other document used in the ordinary course of business as proof of the possession or control of goods, or authorizing or purporting to authorize, either by endorsement or delivery, the possessor of the document to transfer or receive goods thereby represented; b) "Goods" shall include wares and merchandise; c) "Mercantile agent" shall mean a mercantile agent having in the customary course of his business as such agent authority either to sell goods, or to consign goods for the purpose of sale, or to buy goods, or to raise money on the security of goods; d) "Pledge" shall include any contract pledging or giving a lien or security on goods, whether in consideration of an original advance or of any further or continuing advance or of any pecuniary liability. 2. A person shall be deemed to be in possession of goods or of the documents of title to goods where the goods or documents are in his actual custody or are held by any other person subject to his control or for him or on his behalf.

Imp. § 17. As to facts showing the existence of the relation of principal and factor, instead of that of pledgor and pledgee, see Mitchell v. Sykes, (1883), 4 O. R. 501.

Dispositions by mercantile agents.

Powers of mercantile agent as to disposition of goods. Revocation of consent. Derivative documents. Presumption. 3. 1. Where a mercantile agent is, with the consent of the owner, in possession of goods or of the documents of title to goods, any sale, pledge, or other disposition of the goods, made by him when acting in the ordinary course of business of a mercantile agent, shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be as valid as if he were expressly authorized by the owner of the goods to make the same; provided that the person taking under the disposition acts in good faith, and has not at the time thereof notice that the person making the disposition has not authority to make the same. 2. Where a mercantile agent has, with the consent of the owner, been in possession of goods or of documents of title to goods, any sale, pledge, or other disposition which would have been valid if the consent had continued, shall be valid notwithstanding the determination of the consent; provided that the person taking under the disposition acts in good faith and has not at the time thereof notice that the consent has been determined. 3. Where a mercantile agent has obtained possession of any documents of title to goods by reason of his being or having been, with the consent of the owner, in possession of the goods represented thereby, or of any other documents of title to the goods, his possession of the first mentioned documents shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be with the consent of the owner. 4. For the purposes of this Act the consent of the owner shall be presumed in the absence of evidence to the contrary.

Imp. § 2. Where a person by a representation that he had a customer for a piano induced a piano manufacturer to consign to him at a certain place a piano on condition that he should sell the same on commission, and then shipped the same to another place where he pledged it under an assumed name, it was held that he was not a factor within the meaning of this Act, so as to enable him to pledge the piano. — Bush v. Fry, (1887), 15 O. R. 122. A partner entrusted with the possession of the goods of his firm for the purpose of sale may, either in his capacity as a partner or as a factor, pledge the same for advances made to him personally. — Dingwall v. McBean, (1900), 30 S. C. R. 441. In order to constitute a person a factor within the meaning of this Act it is necessary that he be entrusted with the possession of the goods as agent in a mercantile transaction. Where he obtains possession of the goods without the authority of the owner, or of a person authorized to act for the owner, he can not transfer title. — Moshier v. Keenan, (1900), 31 O. R. 658.

Effect of pledge of documents of title. 4. A pledge by a mercantile agent of the documents of title to goods shall be deemed to be a pledge of the goods.

Imp. § 3.

Pledge for antecedent debt. 5. Where a mercantile agent pledges goods as security for a debt due from or liability incurred by the pledgor to the pledgee before the time of the pledge, the pledgee shall acquire no further right to the goods than could have been enforced by the pledgor at the time of the pledge.

Imp. § 4.

Rights acquired by exchange of goods or documents. 6. The consideration necessary for the validity of a sale, pledge, or other disposition of goods by a mercantile agent, in pursuance of this Act, may be either a payment in cash, or the delivery or transfer of other goods, or of a document of title to goods, or of a negotiable security or any other valuable consideration; but where goods are pledged by a mercantile agent in consideration of the delivery or transfer of other goods, or of a document of title to goods, or of a negotiable security or of other valuable consideration, the pledgee shall acquire no right or interest in the goods so pledged in excess of the value of the goods, document, security, or other valuable consideration when so delivered or transferred in exchange.

Imp. § 5.

Agreements through clerks, etc. 7. For the purposes of this Act an agreement made with a mercantile agent through a clerk or other person authorized in the ordinary course of business to make contracts of sale or pledge on his behalf shall be deemed to be an agreement with the agent.

Imp. § 6.

Provisions as to consignors and consignees. 8. 1. Where the owner of goods has given possession of the goods to another person for the purpose of consignment or sale, or has shipped the goods in the name of another person, and the consignee of the goods has not had notice that such person is not the owner of the goods, the consignee shall, in respect of advances made in good faith to or for the use of such person, have the same lien on the goods as if such person were the owner of the goods, and may transfer any such lien to another person. 2. Nothing in this section shall limit or affect the validity of any sale, pledge, or disposition by a mercantile agent.

Imp. § 7.

Disposition by sellers and buyers of goods.

Disposition by seller remaining in possession. 9. Where a person having sold goods continues or is in possession of the goods or of the documents of title to the goods, the delivery or transfer by that person, or by a mercantile agent acting for him, of the goods or documents of title under any sale, pledge, or other disposition thereof, or under any agreement for sale, pledge, or other disposition thereof to any person receiving the same in good faith and without notice of the previous sale, shall have the same effect as if the person making the delivery or transfer were expressly authorized by the owner of the goods to make the same.

Imp. § 8.

Disposition by buyer retaining possession. Exception as to contracts under The Conditional Sales Act. 10. 1. Where a person, having bought or agreed to buy goods, obtains with the consent of the seller possession of the goods or of the documents of title to the goods, the delivery or transfer by that person or by a mercantile agent acting for him, of the goods or documents of title, under any sale, pledge, or other disposition thereof, or under any agreement for sale, pledge, or other disposition thereof, to any person receiving the same in good faith and without notice of any lien or other right of the original seller in respect of the goods, shall have the same effect as if the person making the delivery or transfer were a mercantile agent in possession of the goods or documents of title with the consent of the owner. 2. This section shall not apply to goods the possession of which are obtained under a contract coming within the meaning of The Conditional Sales Act where the seller has complied with the provisions of that Act.

Imp. § 9.

Effect of subsale or pledge by buyer. 11. Subject to the provisions of this Act the unpaid seller's right of lien or retention or stoppage in transitu shall not be affected by any sale or other disposition of the goods which the buyer may have made unless the seller has assented thereto; Provided that where a document of title to goods has been lawfully transferred to any person as buyer or owner of the goods and that person transfers the document to a person who takes the same in good faith and for valuable consideration, then if such last mentioned transfer was by way of sale the unpaid seller's right of lien or retention or stoppage in transitu shall be defeated; and if such last mentioned transfer was by way of pledge or other disposition for value the unpaid seller's right of lien or retention or stoppage in transitu can only be exercised subject to the rights of the transferee.

Imp. 56 & 57 Vic. c. 71, § 47.

Supplemental.

Mode of transferring documents. 12. For the purposes of this Act the transfer of a document of title may be by endorsement, or where the document is by custom or by its express terms, transferable by delivery, or makes the goods deliverable to the bearer, then by delivery.

Imp. § 11.

Saving for rights of true owner. 13. 1. Nothing in this Act shall authorize an agent to exceed or depart from his authority as between himself and his principal, or exempt him from any liability for so doing. 2. Nothing in this Act shall prevent the owner of goods from recovering them from his agent at any time before the sale or pledge thereof, or shall prevent the owner of goods pledged by an agent from having the right to redeem the goods at any time before the sale thereof, on satisfying the claim for which the goods were pledged, and paying to the agent, if by him required, any money in respect of which the agent would by law be entitled to retain the goods or the documents of title thereto, or any of them, by way of lien as against the owner, or from recovering from any person with whom the goods have been pledged any balance of money remaining in his hands as the produce of the sale of the goods after deducting the amount of his lien. 3. Nothing in this Act shall prevent the owner of goods sold by an agent from recovering from the buyer the price agreed to be paid for the same, or any part of that price, subject to any right of set off on the part of the buyer against the agent.

Imp. § 12.

Saving for common law powers of agents. 14. The provisions of this Act shall be construed in amplification and not in derogation of the powers exercisable by an agent independently of this Act.

Imp. § 13.

Repeal. 15. Chapter 150 of the Revised Statutes, 1897, and all amendments thereto are repealed.

Commencement of Act. 16. This Act shall come into force and take effect on, from and after the 1st day of September, 1910.

Bills of Lading and Warehouse Receipts.

Acts, 1910, c. 63. An Act to amend the Mercantile Law (19th March, 1910)

Short title. 1. This Act may be cited as The Mercantile Law Amendment Act. R. S. O. 1897, c. 145, § 1.

Interpretation. 2. In this Act: a) "Bill of lading" shall include all receipts for goods accompanied by an undertaking to transfer the same from the place where they were received to some other place by any mode of carriage whatever, whether by land or water or partly by land and partly by water: b) "Goods" shall include wares and merchandise: c) "Warehouse receipt" shall mean any receipt given by any person for any goods, in his actual, visible, and continued possession as bailee thereof in good faith and not as of his own property, and shall include: i) A receipt given by any person who is the owner or keeper of a harbour, cove, pond, wharf, yard, warehouse, shed, storehouse, or other place for the storage of goods, delivered to him as bailee, and actually in the place or in one or more of the places owned or kept by him whether such person is engaged in other business or not; ii) A receipt given by any person in charge of logs or timber in transit from timber limits or other lands to the place of destination of such logs or timber, and iii) A specification of timber.

[3—6. Relate to the rights of sureties, etc., paying the principal debt, to assignment thereof, the rights of co-sureties, co-contractors, etc., inter se, etc.]

Rights and liabilities of consignees and endorsees of bills of lading. Certain rights and liabilities not effected. Bills of lading as evidence against signer. 7. 1. Every consignee of goods named in a bill of lading and every endorsee of a bill of lading to whom the property in the goods therein mentioned passes upon or by reason of such consignment or endorsement, shall have and be vested with all rights of action, and be subject to the same liabilities in respect of the goods as if the contract contained in the bill of lading had been made with him. 2. Nothing in this section shall prejudice or affect any right of stoppage in transitu, or any right to claim freight against the original shipper or owner, or any liability of the consignee or endorsee, by reason or in consequence of his being such consignee or endorsee, or of his receipt of the goods by reason of or in consequence of such consignment or endorsement. 3. Every bill of lading in the hands of a consignee or endorsee for valuable consideration representing goods to have been shipped on board a vessel, train, or conveyance of any kind, shall be conclusive evidence of shipment as against the master or other person signing the same, notwithstanding that the goods or some part thereof may not have been so shipped, unless the holder of the bill of lading has actual notice at the time of receiving the same that the goods had not in fact been laden on board, or unless the bill of lading has a stipulation to the contrary; but the master or other person so signing, may exonerate himself in respect to such misrepresentation, by shewing that it was caused without any default on his part, and wholly by the fraud of the shipper, or of the holder, or some person under whom the holder claims.

Imp. 18 & 19, Vic. c. 111. R. S. O. 1897, c. 145, § 5. See Dominion Bills of Lading Act, supra. The provisions of this section making a bill of lading conclusive evidence of the shipment of the goods represented thereby, does not apply to cases between the carrier and the shipper, but only between the carrier and consignees or indorsees for value. — Allen v. Chisholm, (1873), 23 U. C. Q. B. 237. Semble this section creates no estoppel as to the condition of the goods when shipped. The carrier may show that the goods were not in good order and well condition when shipped, although the bill of lading states that the goods shipped were in good order and well condition. — Chapman v. Zealand, (1874), 24 U. C. C. P. 421. A custom of the port in order to be binding upon the public generally must be generally known to all persons whose interests are affected by its existence. In any event a port custom is not binding where inconsistent with the express provisions of the bill of lading. — Parsons v. Hart, (1900), 30 S. C. R. 473. The construction of a bill of lading is for the Court, not for the jury. — Merritt v. Ives, M. T. 4 Vic., cited in Digest Ontario Case Law, c. 6444. Where a bill of lading provides that "All deficiency in cargo to be paid for by the carrier and deducted from the freight, and any excess in the cargo to be paid for to the carrier by the consignee," the carrier, at least in the absence of a custom to the contrary, is not entitled to retain the excess in cargo. — Murton v. Kingston & Montreal Forwarding Co., (1882), 32 U. C. C. P. 366. The insertion of the word "train" makes this section applicable to railways. A signing of a shipping note by the agent of a railway company is a sufficient execution of a bill of lading within this section. — Royal Canadian Bank v. Grand Trunk Railway Co., (1873), 23 U. C. C. P. 225. As to responsibility where there are several connecting carriers, and where the bill of lading is signed by the agent severally and not jointly for such carriers, see Hately v. Merchants Despatch Transportation Co., (1885), 12 O. A. R. 201.

Warehouse receipts, etc., as collateral security.

Assignment of warehouse receipts. 8. 1. The owner of or other person entitled to receive the goods included in a warehouse receipt or bill of lading, may transfer such warehouse receipt or bill of lading by endorsement thereon signed by himself, his attorney or agent to any other person as collateral security for any debt owing by such person. 2. The endorsement shall from the date thereof vest in the transferee all the right and title of the endorser to or in such goods subject to the right of the endorser to have such warehouse receipt or bill of lading re-transferred to him if the debt is paid when due. 3. If the debt is not paid when due the person to whom such warehouse receipt or bill of lading was so transferred may sell the goods and retain the proceeds or so much thereof as will be equal to the amount of the debt, and shall return the overplus, if any, to the endorser.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 145, § 7.

Warehouse receipt or bill of lading given by owner who is a warehouse man.

9. Where a person by whom a warehouse receipt or bill of lading might be given for goods in his capacity as a miller, or the owner or keeper of a harbour, cove, pond, wharf, yard, warehouse, shed, storehouse, or other place for the storage of goods delivered to him as bailee, master of a vessel or carrier, is the owner of or entitled himself otherwise than in such capacity, to receive the goods, any warehouse receipt or bill of lading or any acknowledgment or certificate intended to answer the purpose thereof, given and endorsed by such person, shall be as valid and effectual for the purposes of this Act as if the warehouse receipt, bill of lading, acknowledgment, or certificate had been given by one person and endorsed by another.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 145, § 8.

As to goods manufactured from articles pledged. 10. If goods are manufactured or produced from the goods or any of them, included in or covered by any warehouse receipt, while so covered, the person holding such warehouse receipt shall hold or continue to hold such goods during the process and after the completion of such manufacture or production, with the same right and title and for the same purposes and upon the same conditions, as he held or could have held the original goods.

R. S. C. 1906, c. 29, § 89 (1).

Limit of time for holding goods in pledge. 11. 1. No goods other than timber, boards, deals, staves, sawlogs, or other lumber shall be held in pledge for any period exceeding six months. 2. No lumber, boards, deals, staves, sawlogs, or other lumber shall be held in pledge for any period exceeding twelve months. 3. No transfer of a bill of lading or warehouse receipt shall be made under this Act to secure the payment of any debt unless the debt is contracted at the time of the acquisition of the bill of lading or warehouse receipt or upon the written promise or agreement that such bill of lading or warehouse receipt would be given to such person.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 145, §§ 9, 10 (1).

Prior claim of person making advance over unpaid vendor. Proviso. 12. All advances made on the security of a bill of lading or warehouse receipt, shall give to the person making the advances a claim for the repayment of the advances on the goods therein mentioned, or into which they have been converted, prior to and by preference over the claim of any unpaid vendor or other creditor save and except claims for wages for labour performed in making and transporting timber, boards, deals, staves, sawlogs, or other lumber: Provided that such preference shall not be given over the claim of an unpaid vendor who had a lien upon the goods at the time of the acquisition by such person of the bill of lading or warehouse receipt, unless the same was acquired by him without knowledge of such lien.

Sale of goods on non-payment of debt. Notice of sale of timber, etc. Notice of sale of other goods. Sale to be by auction. 13. In the event of the non-payment at maturity of any debt or liability secured by a bill of lading or warehouse receipt, the holder thereof may sell the goods mentioned therein or so much thereof as will suffice to pay such debt or liability with interest and expenses, returning the surplus, if any, to the person from whom the bill of lading or warehouse receipt, or the goods mentioned therein, as the case may be, were acquired: Provided that such power of sale shall be exercised subject to the following provisions: a) No sale of any timber, boards, deals, staves, sawlogs, or other lumber shall be made under this Act without the consent in writing of the owner until notice of the time and place of such sale has been given by registered letter to the last known address of the pledgor at least thirty days before the sale thereof; b) No goods other than timber, boards, deals, staves, sawlogs, or other lumber shall be sold under the provisions of this section without the consent of the owner until notice of the time and place of sale has been given by a registered letter to the last known address of the pledgor thereof at least ten days before the sale thereof; c) Every sale under such power of sale without the consent of the owner shall be made by public auction after notice thereof by advertisement, in at least two newspapers published in or nearest to the place where the sale is to be made, stating the time and place thereof.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 145, §§ 9, 10, 11; R. S. C. c. 29, § 89.

Transfer of warehouse receipts for crude petroleum issued by incorporated companies. 14. 1. Every transportation receipt, warehouse receipt, accepted order and certificate for crude petroleum, issued by any incorporated company authorized to carry on the business of warehousing, shall be transferable by endorsement, either special or in blank, and upon being endorsed in blank shall become transferable by delivery, and every such endorsement or transfer by delivery shall transfer all right of property and possession of the petroleum mentioned in any such transportation or warehouse receipt, accepted order or certificate, to the endorsee or transferee thereof, subject to the terms and conditions of such transportation or warehouse receipt, accepted order or certificate, as fully and completely as if a sale of the petroleum mentioned therein had been made in the ordinary way. 2. On the delivery of any petroleum mentioned in such document, by such company, in good faith, to a person in possession of such transportation or warehouse receipt, accepted order or certificate so endorsed or transferred, the company shall be freed from all further liability in respect thereof, and the endorsee or transferee or holder of every such transportation or warehouse receipt, accepted order or certificate, to whom the property in the petroleum mentioned therein passes by reason of such endorsement or delivery, shall have transferred to and vested in him all rights of action and be subject to the same liabilities in respect of such petroleum as if the contract contained in the transportation or warehouse receipt, accepted order or certificate had been made by the company with himself.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 145, § 12.

Repeal. 15. Chapter 145 of the Revised Statutes, 1897, and all amendments thereto are repealed.

Commencement. 16. This Act shall come into force and take effect on, from, and after the first day of September, 1910.

Acts, 1910, c. 64. An Act respecting Assignments and Preferences by Insolvent Persons (7th March, 1910).

Short title. 1. This Act may be cited as The Assignments and Preferences Act.

The British North America Act, 1867, § 91, gives to the Dominion Parliament, exclusive authority to deal with all matters relating to bankruptcy and insolvency. The Provincial Legislatures are vested with exclusive jurisdiction over property and civil rights. — Ibid, § 92. A Dominion Act relating to bankruptcy and insolvency is intra vires the Dominion Parliament although it interferes with property, civil rights, and procedure in the Provinces. Cushing v. Dupuy, (1880), 5 A. C. 409; Tennant v. Union Bank of Canada, (1894) A. C. 31. As to the power of the Dominion Parliament to pass laws relating to the compulsory winding-up of companies, see note to Dominion Winding-up Act, § 1. In the absence of a Dominion Act relating to bankruptcy and insolvency, the Provinces have power to pass laws relating to assignment and fraudulent preferences. — Attorney General of Ontario v. Attorney General of Canada, (1894) A. C. 189; reversing In re Assignments and Preferences Act, (1893), 20 O. A. R. 489; overruling Union Bank v. Neville, (1891), 21. O. R. 152; see also: Clarkson v. Ontario Bank, (1887), 15 O. A. R. 166; In re Killam, (1878), 14 C. L. J. (N. S.) 242; Bleasdel v. Townsend, (1883), 3 C. L. T. 509. In In re Bergman v. Armstrong, (1902), 4 O. L. R. 717; 1 O. W. R. 799, it was held, that an action for a declaration of right to rank against an insolvent estate vested in the assignee under the Assignments Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, was not within the jurisdiction of a Division Court.

Interpretation. 2. In this Act; "Judge" shall mean a Judge of the County or District Court of the county or district in which the assignment is required to be registered.

Where judge disqualified. 3. Where a Judge is disqualified to act in a matter arising under this Act, a Judge of the County or District Court of an adjoining county or district shall have jurisdiction to act in his place.

Fraudulent judgments and assignments.

Certain confessions of judgment to be void. 4. Every confession of judgment, cognovit actionem, or warrant of attorney to confess judgment given by a person being at the time in insolvent circumstances or unable to pay his debts in full or knowing himself to be on the eve of insolvency, voluntarily or by collusion with a creditor with intent thereby to defeat, hinder, delay, or prejudice his creditors, wholly or in part, or to give one or more of his creditors a preference over his other creditors or over any one or more of them, shall be null and void as against the creditors of the person giving the same and shall be ineffectual to support any judgment or execution.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 1. A judgment by confession is a judgment entered for the plaintiff in case the defendant, instead of entering a plea, confesses the action, or, at any time before trial, confesses the action and withdraws his plea or other allegation. — Bouvier, Law Dictionary, h. v. A cognovit actionem is a written confession of an action by a defendant, subscribed but not sealed, and authorizing the plaintiff to take judgment, generally for a sum named. — Ibid. A warrant of attorney differs from a cognovit in that the former is under seal and is generally given before suit is brought. — Ibid. Cognovits and warrants of attorney are not within the Statute 13 Eliz. and are good at common law, though their effect is to prefer one creditor over another. — Holbird v. Anderson, (1793), 5 T. R. 255. As to the meaning of "insolvent circumstances" and "eve of insolvency," see notes to § 5, infra. The terms "confession of judgment," "cognovit actionem," and "warrant of attorney" are strictly construed, and are limited to the instruments known by those names at the time of the passage of the Act. Thus, a withdrawal of a defence under § 113 of the Division Courts Act, R. S. O. 1887, c. 51 (now 10 Edw. 7, c. 113) does not come within the prohibition of this section. — Bailey v. Bank of Hamilton, (1894), 21 O. A. R. 156. Neither does striking out a defence. — Davis v. Wickson, (1882), 1 O. R. 369; nor availing oneself of a term of credit and taking a discount in lieu thereof. — King v. Duncan, (1881) 29 Grant, 113; MacDonald v. Crombie, (1883), 2 O. R. 243; see also, Turner v. Lucas, (1882), 1 O. R. 623; nor to defend one of two actions and to forego defence on the other. — Young v. Christie, (1859), 7 Grant, 312; McKenna v. Smith, (1862), 10 Grant, 40; Labatt v. Bixell, (1881), 28 Grant, 593; Hermans v. Searle, (1881), 29 Grant, 278. Where an action is brought upon a bona fide debt, another creditor can not object to a judgment merely because there was a defence arising out of formal defects in the papers which the debtor might have set up in the action. — Bowerman v. Philips, (1888), 15 O. A. R. 679. Where there is no collusion, "pressure" will prevent the transaction from being voluntary, and its validity will be sustained. The pressure must be "the causa causans of the payment, and not any intention of giving a preference to particular creditors" (per Cairns, L. J.), in Tomkins v. Saffery, (1887), 3 A. C. 225. It must be the dominating or governing motive impelling the action of the debtor. — Parker, Frauds on creditors, p. 182. Although interpreting another (now obsolete) provision of the Assignments Act, the following cases may still be looked to, to ascertain the nature of pressure sufficient to destroy the voluntary character of the Act; Davison v. Ross, (1876), 24 Grant, 22; Stephens v. McArthur, (1891), 19 S. C. R. 446; Molson Bank v. Halter, (1890), 18 S. C. R. 88; Long v. Hancock, (1885), 12 S. C. R. 532; Slater v. Oliver, (1884), 7 O. R. 158; Beattie v. Wenger, (1897), 24 O. A. R. 72; Brayley v. Ellis & Taylor, (1884), 9 O. A. R. 565; Powell v. Calder, (1885), 8 O. R. 505; Whitney v. Toby, (1882), 6 O. R. 54. The practical importance of the rights given to creditors under this section has been considerably lessened by the passage of the Creditors Relief Acts. As to meaning of words "null and void," see notes to next section.

Gifts, transfers, etc., made by insolvents which defeat or prejudice creditors to be void. "Creditor" for certain purposes to include surety and endorser. 5. 1. Subject to the provisions of section 6, every gift, conveyance, assignment, or transfer, delivery over or payment of goods, chattels, or effects, or of bills, bonds, notes, or securities, or of shares, dividends, premiums, or bonus in any bank, company or corporation, or of any other property, real or personal, made by a person at a time when he is in insolvent circumstances, or is unable to pay his debts in full, or knows that he is on the eve of insolvency with intent to defeat, hinder, delay, or prejudice his creditors, or any one or more of them, shall as against the creditor or creditors injured, delayed, or prejudiced, be null and void. — 2. Subject to the provisions of section 6 every such gift, conveyance, assignment, or transfer, delivery over or payment made by a person being at the time in insolvent circumstances, or unable to pay his debts in full, or knowing himself to be on the eve of insolvency, to or for a creditor with the intent to give such creditor an unjust preference over his other creditors or over any one or more of them shall, as against the creditor or creditors injured, delayed, prejudiced, or postponed, be null and void. — 3. Subject to the provisions of section 6, if such a transaction with or for a creditor has the effect of giving that creditor a preference over the other creditors of the debtor or over any one or more of them, it shall in and with respect to any action or proceeding which, within sixty days thereafter, is brought, had, or taken to impeach or set aside such transaction, be presumed prima facie to have been made with the intent mentioned in subsection 2, and to be an unjust preference within the meaning hereof whether the same is made voluntarily or under pressure. — 4. Subject to the provisions of section 6, if such a transaction with or for a creditor has the effect of giving that creditor a preference over the other creditors of the debtor or over any one or more of them, it shall, if the debtor within sixty days after the transaction makes an assignment for the benefit of his creditors be presumed prima facie to have been made with the intent mentioned in subsection 2, and to be an unjust preference within the meaning hereof, whether the same be made voluntarily or under pressure. — 5. The word "creditor" in the fifth and sixth lines of subsection 2, in the second and third lines of subsection 3, and in the second and third lines of subsection 4, shall include any surety and the endorser of any promissory note or bill of exchange who would upon payment by him of the debt, promissory note or bill of exchange, in respect of which such suretyship was entered into or such endorsement was given become a creditor of the person giving the preference within the meaning of these subsections.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 2. The words used in the corresponding section of the Act of 1897 are "utterly void," while in § 1 (§ 4 of the present Act) the words are "null and void." In both of the sections of the present Act, the words are "null and void." It is submitted that there is no difference in the meaning of the two clauses. Following the general rule of statutory construction, that when the word "void" is introduced for the benefit of the parties only, it is used in the sense of "voidable," the Ontario Courts have, in general, held that the transactions are voidable, only at the instance of the creditors whose rights are affected. — Menden v. Braden, (1894), 21 O. A. R. 352. In interpreting the words "absolutely null and void" in the Ontario Chattel Mortgage Act, Strong, C. J. said: "I am not impressed with the soundness of the construction which reads the terms 'absolutely null and void' as 'voidable.' So to cut down the words of the Act is, I venture to say, in direct conflict with the manifest policy of the Legislature." — Clarkson v. McMaster, (1895), 25 S. C. R. 96. But see Heaton v. Flood, (1897), 29 O. R. 87; Meharg v. Lumbers, (1896), 23 O. A. R. 51, commenting on Clarkson v. McMaster, supra. In Mundell v. Tinkes, (1883), 6 O. R. 625, Boyd, J. said at page 628: "The decided weight of authority . . . is that, after the property passes, whether by execution or a written instrument, or by other means, sufficient in law, it is not for the fraudulent grantor to undo the matter either out of Court or by aid of the Court"; and again at page 637: "I have always understood the rule of equity to be expressed by Esten, V. C., in Phelan v. Fraser, 6 Grant, 336, that the Court never assists a person who has placed his property in the name of another in order to defraud his creditors." In Johnson v. Cline, (1888), 16 O. R. 129, at p. 138, Ferguson, J. commenting upon the above quotation, said: "This proposition is supported by many other authorities and is, I think, doubtless a correct one." See also Day v. Day, (1889), 17 O. A. R. 157; Langlor v. Baby, (1864), 11 Grant, 21; Ernes v. Barber, (1867), 15 Grant, 679. "The weight of authority greatly preponderates in favour of the view that, in order to work a fraudulent preference of a creditor under R. S. O. c. 118 (now this Act), there must be a concurrence of intent to do so on the part of both debtor and creditor. The views expressed by the Judges in Hepburn v. Park, 6 O. R. 472; Brown v. Sweet, 7 O. A. R. 725; Brayley v. Ellis, 9 O. A. R. 565, which have been acted upon in Lancey v. Merchants Bank, 10 O. R. 169 must govern me as against the opposite view expressed in the case of Ivy v. Knox, 8 O. R. 635." (Per Boyd, C.) in Burn v. Mackay, (1885), 10 O. R. 167; McRoberts v. Steinoff, (1886), 11 O. R. 369; Johnson v. Hope, (1890), 17 O. A. R. 12; Ashley v. Brown, (1890), 17 O. A. R. 500; Dana v. McLean, (1901), 2 O. L. R. 466. This doctrine is criticised as judicial legislation, but followed in Lamb v. Young, (1890), 10 O. R. 104; Molson's Bank v. Halter, (1890), 18 S. C. R. 88. Where the conveyance is in pursuance of a previous promise, it will be upheld. — McRoberts v. Steinoff, (1886), 11 O. R. 369. "The statute 13 Eliz., c. 5, § 6, saves from its operation conveyances, etc. made upon good consideration and bona fide to persons not having, at the time, any notice or knowledge of the fraud. It is remarkable that there is no similar general provision in our statute. In one number alone, § 3—1 (now § 6) the exception is extended to persons who are described as innocent purchasers or parties; which, of course, must mean persons without notice or knowledge. But there, the word 'bona fide' is used throughout, and, it would seem to follow that the legislature did not intend to involve persons having neither knowledge or notice, in the disabling and penal consequences of the acts thereby forbidden. It would paralyze trade and mercantile business altogether, if transactions entered into in all honesty and good faith, and for valuable consideration, with persons apparently solvent and prosperous, were liable to be undone upon its being afterwards discovered and proved that such persons were, at the time, in embarrassed circumstances or unable to pay their debts in full. Such a construction of the Act would make it a trap and snare instead of an enactment salutary and beneficial to the mercantile community. It has always been the policy of the law to protect, as far as possible, persons acting bona fide and without notice of fraud or other wrong doing, and so I think a person who deals bona fide with an embarrassed debtor, and who, at the time of the dealing, has no knowledge or notice of his embarrassed condition, is saved from all the consequences enacted by the Statute. It is hard to imagine how a transaction can be otherwise than bona fide with reference to what is forbidden in this statute, if it has been entered into without knowledge or notice of the embarrassments of the debtor." — Per Maclellan, J. A. in Johnson v. Hope, (1890), 17 O. A. R. 12. An adjudication of bankruptcy, or open and notorious insolvency, is not necessary, in order to show that a person is in insolvent circumstances or in unable to pay his debts in full. Cp. Davidson v. Douglas, (1868), 15 Grant, 347. Strictly speaking, a person is insolvent if his assets, when disposed of at an execution sale, would be insufficient to pay his debts in full. "A debtor is legally insolvent when he has not sufficient property to pay all his debts if sold under legal process, and commercially insolvent when he has not the means to pay off and discharge his civil obligations as they become due in the ordinary course of business." — Per Rose, J., in Rae v. McDonald, (1887), 13 O. R. 352. But in the same case, it was said: "In determining whether a debtor is insolvent, etc., his assets or effects are not to be estimated at what they might bring at a forced sale under execution, but at the fair value in cash in the market at any ordinary sale." — Per Cameron, C. J., Ibid. Rae v. McDonald, supra, was discussed in Warnock v. Kloepper, (1887), 14 O. R.

288; 15 O. A. R. 324; 18 S. C. R. 701, and it was there said that a person is in insolvent circumstances if he does not pay his debts and is unable to meet the current demands of his creditors, and if he has not the means of paying them in full out of his assets realized upon a sale for cash, or its equivalent. In Dominion Bank v. Cowan, (1887), 14 O. R. 465, it was said that a debtor is insolvent if he has not sufficient property subject to execution to pay all his debts if sold under legal process at a sale fairly and reasonably conducted. Where there is a duty to convey, the intent to injure creditors is negatived. — Stuart v. Thomson, (1893), 23 O. R. 503. The mere fact that all the assets are either mortgaged or under warehouse receipts, is not, of itself, sufficient to show insolvency. The value of the equity of redemption must be taken into consideration in determining the debtor's financial position. — Dominion Bank v. Cowan, (1887), 14 O. R. 465. The value of the assets is to be estimated at the date of the impeached transaction. — Clarkson v. Sterling, (1887), 14 O. R. 460; Parker, Frauds on creditors, p. 108. In Langley v. Palter, (1909), 13 O. W. R. 951, an action by the assignee for the benefit of creditors for the conversion of certain goods were dismissed, the prima facie presumption of fraud being rebutted by the manager of the insolvent company swearing that he did not intend to give a preference, and proof that the defendant did not know the hopeless condition of the insolvent's affairs. In Casserley v. Hughes, (1905), 5 O. W. R. 599; 6 O. W. R. 70, the Court upheld a conveyance by an insolvent to his daughter, holding that there was nothing to show that the daughter was, at the time, aware of her father's insolvency. The following cases determine the question of what evidence is sufficient to satisfy the burden of rebutting the presumption of fraud, where an assignment is presumed, prima facie, to have been made with intent to delay, defeat or injure creditors: Crawford v. Magee, (1905), 6 O. W. R. 44; Attwood v. Pett, (1907), 9 O. W. R. 173, 748; Falls v. Gibb, (1906), 8 O. W. R. 397; Allen v. Bank of Ottawa, (1908), 11 O. W. R., 148; McNiell v. Dawson, (1902), 1 O. W. R. 24; Allen v. McLean, (1906), 8 O. W. R. 223, 761; Keenan v. Richardson, (1902), 1 O. W. R. 333; Baldocchi v. Spade, (1907), 38 S. C. R. 577; affirming s. c., (1906), 7 O. W. R. 325; 8 O. W. R. 705; Dana v. McLean, (1902), 2 O. L. R. 466; Desmarlean v. Dingman, (1908), 11 O. W. R. 101; Elwell v. Crate, (1910), 15 O. W. R. 261. As to what evidence is sufficient, in an action by the assignee to set aside a mortgage made by the insolvent, to prove absence of knowledge by the mortgagee of the insolvency, see Wade v. Elliot, (1907), 10 O. W. R. 206; 11 O. W. R. 378. At the revision of the Ontario Statutes in 1897, the words "prima facie" were inserted after the word "presumed," which occurs in sub-sections 3 and 4 of section 2 of c. 147 and the doubt whether the presumption was rebuttable was thereby set at rest; but even under the language of subsection 2 (b) of section 2 of the Act of 1887, i. e. without the words "prima facie", the presumption was rebuttable; and in the case of a mortgage of land to secure a debt followed one week later by an assignment by the mortgagor to the plaintiff for the benefit of creditors, defendants were entitled to show that there was no intent to prefer. — Craig v. McKay, (1906), 12 O. L. R. 121; affirming s. c., (1904), 8 O. L. R. 651; 4 O. W. R. 274; 6 O. W. R. 160; 7 O. W. R. 507; following Lawson v. McGeoch, (1892), 20 O. A. R. 464. An insolvent trader sold out his business to his wife, who was one of his creditors, who had means of her own and who actually raised the money to make the purchase. It was held that the sale was valid, notwithstanding that the wife knew of her husband's insolvency and that he intended to prefer certain of his creditors to others by payments out of the purchase money. — Langlay v. Beardsley, (1909), 18 O. L. R. 67; 13 O. W. R. 348. Where a debtor in August, 1899, procured the consent of his creditors to payment of his debts by notes at different times extending to the following March, and where one creditor insisted upon more prompt payment and took from the debtor notes payable in September, an assignment having been made the following November, it was held, affirming the judgment of the Court of Appeals, (1901), 3 O. L. R. 5 that the debtor, having paid the note voluntarily and without coercion could not, himself, have recovered back the amount and that his assignee was in no better position. — Langley v. Van Allen, (1902), 32 S. C. R. 174; see also Elgin Loan & Savings Company v. Orchard, (1904), 7 O. L. R. 695. One who has a right of action for tort and subsequently recovers judgment, is not a creditor in a position to attack a transaction entered into by the tortfeasor prior to commencement of the action in tort. — Ashley v. Brown, (1890), 17 O. A. R. 500.

Assignments for benefit of creditors and bona fide sales, etc., protected. Transfer to creditor of consideration for sale invalid. General assignment not in accordance with Act, when voidable. Security given up upon void payment to be returned. Payment of wages protected. Exchange of securities protected. Certain assignments to be valid. 6. 1. Nothing in the next preceding section shall apply to an assignment made to the sheriff of the county or district in which the debtor resides or carries on business or with the consent of a majority of his creditors having claims of $ 100 and upwards computed according to the provisions of section 24, to another assignee resident within Ontario, for the purpose of paying rateably and proportionately and without preference or priority all the creditors of the debtor their just debts; nor to any bona fide sale or payment made in the ordinary course of trade or calling to an innocent purchaser or person, nor to any payment of money to a creditor, nor to any bona fide conveyance, assignment, transfer, or delivery over of any goods or property of any kind, which is made in consideration of a present actual bona fide payment in money, or by way of security for a present actual bona fide advance of money, or which is made in consideration of a present actual bona fide sale or delivery of goods or other property where the money paid, or the goods or other property sold or delivered bear a fair and reasonable relative value to the consideration therefor. — 2. In the case of a valid sale of goods or other property, and payment or transfer of the consideration or part thereof by the purchaser to a creditor of the vendor, under circumstances which would render void such a payment or transfer by the debtor personally and directly, the payment or transfer, even though valid as respects the purchaser, shall be void as respects the creditor to whom the same is made. — 3. Every assignment for the general benefit of creditors, which is not void under section 5, but is not made to the sheriff, nor to any other person with the prescribed consent of creditors, shall be void as against a subsequent assignment which is in conformity with this Act, and shall be subject in other respects to the provisions thereof until and unless a subsequent assignment is executed in accordance therewith. — 4. Where a payment has been made which is void under this Act, and any valuable security was given up in consideration of the payment, the creditor shall be entitled to have the security restored, or its value made good to him before, or as a condition of, the return of the payment. — 5. Nothing herein shall: a) Affect The Wages Act, or prevent a debtor providing for payment of wages due by him in accordance with the provisions of that Act; b) Affect any payment of money to a creditor, where such creditor by reason or on account of such payment, has lost or been deprived of, or has in good faith given up, any valid security which he held for the payment of the debt so paid, unless the security is restored or its value made good to the creditor; c) Apply to the substitution in good faith of one security for another security for the same debt so far as the debtor's estate is not thereby lessened in value to the other creditors; or d) Invalidate a security given to a creditor for a preexisting debt where, by reason or on account of the giving of the security, an advance in money is made to the debtor by the creditor, in the bona fide belief that the advance will enable the debtor to continue his trade or business and to pay his debts in full.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 3. A sheriff who sells at auction land assigned to him under this Act, does not sell in the same capacity as if he were selling it under an execution and he is not the agent of the person who bids. — McIntyre v. Faubert, (1895), 26 O. R. 427. Since he takes an assignment as a public officer, he can not disclaim. After his term of office expires, his duties fall upon his successors and in case of his death before such expiration, his rights and duties as an assignee devolve upon his deputy. — Brown v. Grove, (1889), 18 O. R. 311. An assignment, although not made to a sheriff and without the consent of creditors, is valid; but a subsequent assignment executed with such consent will supersede the first. — Anderson v. Glass, (1889), 16 O. R. 592. Consent of creditors may be obtained subsequent to the assignment. — Hall v. Fortye, (1889), 17 O. R. 435. An assignment executed without the assent or knowledge of creditors is revocable. — Cooper v. Dickson, (1884), 10 O. A. R. 50; Clark v. Ried, (1896), 27 O. R. 618; Rennie v. Black, (1896), 26 S. C. R. 356; but such an assignment, if executed at the instance of creditors, or if acted upon by creditors, can not be objected to, even by an execution creditor. — Nolan v. Donnelly, (1884) 4 O. R. 440; Ball v. Tennant, (1895), 25 O. R. 50. The solicitor of a creditor may assent on his client's behalf. — Nelles v. Maltby, (1884), 5 O. R. 263. Acceptance of payment of a dividend waives a creditor's right to object to the assignment. — Beemer v. Oliver, (1884), 10 O. A. R. 656. So, a creditor who attends a meeting and who acts as inspector can not thereafter attack the assignment. — Gardner v. Kloefer, (1885), 7 O. R. 603. But if a creditor attacks an assignment and is unsuccessful, he is not thereafter barred from coming in as a creditor and ranking for his claim. — Kloefer v. Gardner, (1886), 10 O. R. 415; s. c., (1886), 14 O. A. R. 60; s. c., (1887), 15 S. C. R. 390. The assignment, to be valid, must be made for the general benefit of all the creditors without the imposition of unreasonable terms by the debtor, or the retention of any benefit for himself. — Whitman v. Union Bank of Halifax, (1889), 16 S. C. R. 410; Jennings v. Hyman, (1886), 11 O. R. 65. After an assignment is made, its effect is placed beyond the control of the assignor. — Re Unitt and Prott, (1892), 23 O. R. 78. If the interests of the creditors demand it, the business may be carried on for a reasonable time by the assignee, before being disposed of. — O'Brien v. Clarkson, (1884), 10 O. A. R. 603; Ontario Bank v. Lamont, (1885), 6 O. R. 147; Slater v. Budenach, (1884), 10 S. C. R. 296. It is well settled that in order to constitute a "bona fide sale or payment," good faith on the part of the purchaser is sufficient. Fraudulent intent on the part of the assignor will not vitiate the transaction. — MacKintosh v. Pagose, (1895), 1 Ch. 505. For further discussion of this principle see notes to § 5, supra. As to what constitutes "payment of money to a creditor", see: Campbell v. Roche, (1891), 18 O. A. R. 646; Davidson v. Fraser, (1896), 23 O. A. R. 439; s. c., (1897), 28 S. C. R. 272, overruling Armstrong v. Hemstreet, (1895), 23 O. R., 336; see also, Halwell v. Wilmot, (1897), 24 O. A. R. 628; Building Loan Association v. Palmer, (1887), 12 O. R. 1. Payment in good faith by the purchaser at the vendor's request, of part of the purchase money to the vendor's creditor, is a payment that can not be impeached. — Gordon v. Union Bank, (Armour, C. J.), May 6th, 1898. So, where a debtor, at his brother's instance, sells his stock to a bona fide purchaser and pays the proceeds to the holder of his notes, endorsed by his brother, the payment is good under this section. — Harvey v. McNaughton, (1884), 10 O. A. R. 616. In Stephens v. Boisseau, (1896), 23 O. A. R. 230, s. c., (1896), 26 S. C. R. 437, it was held that a mortgagee who, in good faith, realizes his security, can retain, as against the mortgagor's assignee the surplus proceeds of the sale of mortgaged chattel in satisfaction of a unsecured debt. The "advance of money" must be made directly to the debtor and must be in actual cash. — Stoddart v. Wilson, (1889), 16 O. R. 17; see also Burns v. Wilson, (1897), 28 S. C. R. 207, which in effect overruled the decision in Gibbons v. Wilson, (1889), 17 O. A. R. 1. It has been held that security for the price of goods to be delivered in the future is valid. — Goulding v. Deeming, (1888), 15 O. R. 201. The question of "fair and reasonable value" is one of fact, to be decided upon the evidence in each case. — Came on v. Perrin, (1887), 14 O. A. R. 565. As to what is the giving up of "valuable security," see Nelles v. Paul, (1879), 4 O. A. R. 1; Beattie v. Wenger, (1897), 24 O. A. R. 72. Where there is an existing debt, and a creditor, in good faith, makes an additional loan, he may take security to cover both the old and the new debts. — Hyman v. Cuthbertson, (1886), 10 O. R. 443; Ross v. Dunn, (1889), 16 O. A. R. 562. But the new advance must bear a substantial relation to the value of the security taken. — Kalus v. Hergert, (1876), 1 O. A. R. 75; Miller v. Reid, (1879), 4 O. A. R. 479. The Court will examine into the objects and intentions of the parties to ascertain whether or not the true object is to secure merely the old debt. — Rielle v. Reid, (1898), 28 O. R. 497. Where an insolvent's manager made a statutory declaration as to the assets and liabilities of the insolvent, showing a surplus of assets, a mortgage given to secure a past indebtedness and to cover future advances, the mortgagee believing the truth of such statement, was upheld. — Bell v. Robinson, (1909), 13 O. W. R. 696. It has been held that payment of other claims at the debtor's request, taking security for the amount so paid, and also for the original debt, is not an "advance" within the meaning of this section. — Boyd v. Glass, (1883), 8 O. A. R. 632; see also Morphy v. Cowell, (1904), 3 O. L. R. 314, following Molson Bank v. Halter, (1890), 18 S. C. R. 88. In Goulet v. Greenway, (1902), 1 O. W. R. 550, payments made by an insolvent debtor were examined into and were held to be within the provisions of this section and therefore valid. Where a member of an insolvent firm, although not aware of the insolvency, sold his stock in trade and deposited the cheque received for the sale, to his credit with his banker, to whom he was indebted upon an overdue promissory note that had been, without his knowledge, charged against his account and where, within two days after making the deposit, the insolvent gave the bank a cheque to cover the amount of the note, it was held, in an action to have the transfer of the cheque set aside, that the transaction was a payment to a creditor within the meaning of this section, and was not, under the circumstances, void as against creditors. — Robinson v. McGillwray, (1907), 39 S. C. R. 281, affirming s. c., (1907), 13 O. L. R. 232.

Assignee must reside in the Province. 7. No person other than a permanent and bona fide resident of Ontario shall be assignee under an assignment within the provisions of this Act, nor shall any assignee delegate his duties as assignee to or appoint as deputy any person who is not a permanent and bona fide resident of Ontario; and no charge shall be made or recoverable against the assignor or his estate for any services or other expenses of any such assignee, deputy, or delegate of any assignee who is not a permanent and bona fide resident of Ontario.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 4. In Tennant v. Macewan, (1896), 24 O. A. R. 132, it was held that an assignee, who was a resident of Ontario, could not recover commissions, where the estate was managed by his partner, a resident of Quebec.

Form of assignment for general benefit of creditors. 8. Every assignment made under this Act, for the general benefit of creditors if the property is described in the words "all my personal property which may be seized and sold under execution and all my real estate, credits, and effects," or in words to the like effect, shall vest in the assignee all the real and personal estate, rights, property, credits, and effects, whether vested or contingent, belonging at the time to the assignment to the assignor, except such as are by law exempt from seizure or sale under execution, subject, however, as regards land, to the provisions of The Registry Act and The Land Titles Act.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 5. A statutory assignment has no extraterritorial effect. — Macdonald v. Georgian Bay Lumber Co., (1878), 2 S. C. R. 364. In Ball v. Tennant, (1894), 21 O. A. R. 602, the Court held that the benefit of a covenant to indemnify the assignor against the payment of a mortgage did not pass under an assignment. As to the construction of the phrase "exempt from seizure or sale under execution," see: Re Unitt & Prott, (1892), 23 O. R. 78; Wright v. Hollingshead, (1896), 23 O. A. R. 1; Field v. Hart, (1895), 22 O. A. R. 449. In Reinhardt v. Hunter, (1905), 6 O. W. R. 412, the interest of a judgment debtor in the estate of his deceased father was held to pass under his assignment for the benefit of creditors; following Re Unitt & Prott, (1892), 23 O. R. 78. An assignment may be made by a partnership, but one partner can not assign firm assets without the consent of his copartner. — Nolan v. Donnelly, (1883), 4 O. R. 440; Nelles v. Maltby, (1884), 5 O. R. 263; see also Ball v. Tennant, (1894), 25

O. R. 50; s. c., (1894), 21 O. A. R. 602; Powell v. Calder, (1885), 8 O. R. 505. Upon an assignment of land, purchased by the assignor subject to a mortgage, the equity of redemption passes to the assignee, free from the claim of dower on the part of the assignor's wife. — Gardner v. Brown, (1890), 19 O. R. 202. But see In Re Music Hall Block, Dumble v. McIntosh, (1884), 8 O. R. 225; see also Beavis v. McGuire, (1882), 7 O. A. R. 704; Morris v. Martin, (1890), 19 O. R. 564.

All assignments for general benefit of creditors to be subject to this Act. 9. Every assignment for the general benefit of creditors, whether it is or is not expressed to be made under or in pursuance of this Act, and whether the assignment does or does not include all the real and personal estate of the assignor, shall vest the estate, whether real or personal or partly real and partly personal, thereby assigned in the assignee therein named for the general benefit of creditors, and such assignment and the property thereby assigned shall be subject to all the provisions of this Act, and the same shall apply to the assignee named in such assignment.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 6. In Blain v. Peaker, (1889), 18 O. R. 109, the court held that an assignment of the insolvent's personal property only, did not fall within the provisions of the Act, R. S. O. 1887, c. 124; "and the principle of this case was carried further in subsequent cases in which it was held that excepting from the assignment the assignor's book debts to even a small amount took it out of the Act; and this section was added by 58 Vic. c. 23, to overcome this difficulty, and to prevent advantage being taken of a non-statutory form of assignment." — Cassels, Ontario Assignments Act (3rd Ed.) p. 45.

How claims are to rank where different estates. 10. If an assignor executing an assignment under this Act for the general benefit of his creditors owes debts both individually and as a member of a partnership, or as a member of different partnerships, the claims shall rank first upon the estate by which the debts they represent were contracted, and shall only rank upon the other or others after all the creditors of such other estate or estates have been paid in full.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 7. Where the origin of a debt, for which plaintiff claims to rank against the separate estate of a partner, is on a contract entered into with the firm, which also failed and has existing assets, the plaintiff, as such firm creditor, can not rank against the separate estate of the partner. — Frost v. Stoddart, (1908), 12 O. W. R. 1133. This section does not apply unless there is an administration of separate and joint estates; so that creditors having claims against an assignor, as a partner in a former firm, are entitled to rank pari passu with his subsequent creditors. — MacDonald v. Balfour, (1893), 20 O. A. R. 404; see also Re Walker, (1880), 6 O. A. R. 169. The rule of distribution laid down in this section is that, generally adopted, in the administration of estates in insolvency. As bearing upon this rule, see: Bank of Toronto v. Hall, (1884), 6 O. R. 644; Martin v. Evans, (1884), 6 O. R. 238; Re McDonagh v. Jephson, (1889), 16 O. A. R. 107; Barthelmes v. Condie, (1906), 8 O. W. R. 717. Where a member of a partnership joined with the partnership in making a note for the price of goods supplied to the firm by the plaintiff, it was held that plaintiff was entitled to rank upon the insolvent estate of the partner for the amount of the note, rateably with the individual creditors of the partner. In this case, the plaintiff, having elected, before accepting a dividend from the insolvent estate of the partnership, to pursue his remedy against the estate of the partner, the question whether, under the statute, it was necessary to elect, did not arise. — Gordon v. Matthews, (1909), 19 O. L. R. 564; affirming s. c., (1909), 18 O. L. R. 340; 13 O. W. R. 649, which reversed s. c., (1908), 12 O. W. R. 1274; see also, Frost and Wood Company v. Stoddart, (1908), 12 O. W. R. 1133. As to proof between partners, see In re Ruby, Trusts Corporation of Ontario, (1897), 24 O. A. R. 509.

Appointment of substituted assignee. Estate to vest in substituted assignee.

11. 1. A majority in number and value of the creditors who have proved claims to the amount of $ 100 or upwards, may substitute for the sheriff, or for an assignee under an assignment to which subsection 3 of section 6 applies, a person residing in the county or district in which the assignor resided or carried on business at the time of the assignment. 2. An assignee may be removed, and another substituted, or an additional assignee appointed by the Judge. 3. Where an assignee dies a new assignee may be appointed in the manner provided by subsection 2. 4. Where a new or additional assignee is appointed the estate shall vest in him or in him jointly with his co-assignee without a conveyance or transfer, and he shall register a verified copy of the resolution of the creditors or of the order appointing him in the office in which the assignment was registered. 5. A verified copy of the resolution or of the order may be registered in the proper registry or land titles office and the registration thereof shall have the same effect as the registration of a conveyance.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, s. 8 (1, 2); 4 Edw. 7, c. 10, § 33. See §§ 23, 24, and 25, infra, and notes thereto, upon questions of proof of claim and rights of creditors to vote. Upon question of remuneration of a removed assignee, see In re Tilsonburg, Lake Erie & Pacific Railway Company, (1897), 24 O. A. R. 378. If an assignee dies, a new assignee may be appointed by the creditors.

In re Williams, (1895), 22 O. A. R. 196; For cases where applications were made to remove assignees, see: Orillia, Export Lumber Company v. Burson, (1903), 2 O. W. R. 1110; Brock v. Cline, (1906), 8 O. W. R. 144. Notice of motion to remove an assignee should state the grounds of the application. Re Wilson, (1903), 6 O. L. R. 564.

Rights of assignee.

Rights of assignee. Creditor may proceed in certain cases if assignee refuses.

12. 1. Except as in this section is otherwise provided, the assignee shall have the exclusive right of suing for the rescission of agreements, deeds, and instruments or other transactions made or entered into in fraud of creditors, or in violation of this Act. 2. Where a creditor desires to cause any proceeding to be taken which, in his opinion, would be for the benefit of the estate, and the assignee under the authority of the creditors or inspectors refuses or neglects to take such proceeding after being required so to do, the creditor shall have the right to obtain an order of the Judge authorizing him to take the proceeding in the name of the assignee, but at his own expense and risk upon such terms and conditions as to indemnity to the assignee as the Judge may prescribe, and thereupon any benefit derived from the proceeding shall, to the extent of his claim and full costs, belong exclusively to the creditor instituting the same for his benefit, but if, before such order is obtained, the assignee signifies to the Judge his readiness to institute the proceeding for the benefit of the creditors, the order shall prescribe the time within which he shall do so, and in that case the advantage derived from the proceeding, if instituted within such time, shall belong to the estate.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 9. The "exclusive right of suing" on the part of the assignee is limited to matters specifically mentioned in the first clause of this section. — Campbell v. Halley, (1895), 22 O. A. R. 217; Doull v. Capman, (1895), 22 O. A. R. 447. This section does not apply to the acts of the assignee. Hence, a creditor may, in his own name, attack a fraudulent sale by the assignee, of the assets of the estate. — Hargrave v. Elliot, (1898), 28 O. R. 152. In Adams v. Watson Manufacturing Company, (1888), 15 O. R. 218; s. c., (1889), 16 O. A. R. 2, it was held that the assignee of a firm of two partners can not attack a security given by these two partners and a third person when previously in partnership with that third person. In Clarkson v. Me Master, (1895), 25 S. C. R. 96, the Court seems to have accorded to the assignee higher rights than those to which the assignor was entitled. But in other cases it has been held that, apart from the special statutory provisions, an assignee under this Act is subject to all the equities affecting the assignor. — See: Lumsden v. Scott, (1883), 4 O. R. 323; Kitching v. Hicks, (1883) 6 O. R. 739; Coats v. Kelly, (1886), 15 O. A. R. 81; see also, Armstrong v. Merchants Mantle Manufacturing Company, (1900), 32 O. R. 387. Where the assignor, while in insolvent circumstances, made a lease with intent to defraud creditors, it was held that a mortgagee of the lands leased, had no right to attack the lease and that such right could only be claimed by the assignee. — Bank of Hamilton v. Anderson, (1904), 8 O. L. R. 153. While an assignee can ratify a fraudulent sale and sue the purchaser for consideration, he can not repudiate the transaction and, at the same time, claim the benefits thereof. — Wood v. Reesor, (1895), 22 O. A. R. 57. Seemle, in order that a creditor may proceed, in case the assignee refuses to do so, it is not necessary that his claim be due. — Macdonald v. McCall, (1878), 2 O. A. R. 593; s. c., (1885), 13 S. C. R. 247; Ivey v. Knox, (1885), 8 O. R. 635. If the action is brought by the creditor, with the consent of the assignee, the recovery will be for the benefit of the estate. — Doull v. Kopnam, (1895), 22 O. A. R. 447. The assignee may, in good faith, compromise any claim; and in the absence of fraud or bad faith, (Campbell v. Hally, (1895), 22 O. A. R. 217), no creditor can, thereafter, attack such a compromise. — Keys v. Kirkpatrick, (1890), 19 O. R. 572. Creditors are not prejudiced by acts of an assignee performed in his personal capacity. — MacTavis v. Rogers, (1896), 23 O. A. R. 17.

Following proceeds of property fraudulently transferred. Taking proceeds under execution. Creditor suing on behalf of himself and other creditors. Protection of innocent purchasers. 13. 1. In the case of a gift, conveyance, assignment, or transfer of any property, real or personal, which is invalid against creditors, if the person to whom the gift, conveyance, assignment, or transfer was made shall have sold or disposed of, realized, or collected the property or any part thereof, the money or other proceeds may be seized or recovered in any action by a person who would be entitled to seize and recover the property if it had remained in the possession or control of the debtor or of the person to whom the gift, conveyance, transfer, delivery, or payment was made, and such right to seize and recover shall belong, not only to an assignee for the general benefit of the creditors 2f the debtor, but where there is no such assignment, to all creditors of the debtor. a. Where there is no assignment for the benefit of creditors, and the proceeds ore of such a character as to be seizable under execution, they may be seized under the execution of any creditor, and shall be subject to the provisions of The Creditors' Relief Act. 3. Where there is no assignment for the benefit of creditors, and whether the proceeds are or are not of such a character as to be seizable under execution, an action may be brought therefor by a creditor, whether an execution creditor or not, on behalf of himself and all other creditors, or such other proceedings may be taken as may be necessary to render the proceeds available for the general benefit of the creditors. 4. This section shall not apply as against innocent purchasers of the property.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 10. In the absence of the Statute, the proceeds of property fraudulently acquired could not be followed, unless capable of identification. — Davis v. Wickson, (1882), 1 O. R. 369; Stuart v. Tremain, (1884), 3 O. R. 190; Robertson v. Holland, (1888), 16 O. R. 532; Harvey v. McNaughton, (1884), 10 O. A. R. 16. But see Martin v. McAlpine, (1883), 8 O. A. R. 675. The assignee, or, in a proper case, the creditors, may proceed directly against the person who has received the proceeds; it is not necessary to set aside the transfer. — Beattie v. Holmes, (1898), 29 O. R. 264.

Assignments to take precedence of attachments, etc. 14. An assignment for the general benefit of creditors under this Act shall take precedence of attachments, garnishee orders, judgments, executions not completely executed by payment, and orders appointing receivers by way of equitable execution subject to the lien, if any, of an execution creditor for his costs where there is but one execution in the sheriff's hands or to the lien, if any, for his costs of the creditor who has the first execution in the sheriff's hands.

3 Edw. 7, c. 7, § 29. Where the sheriff, under a writ of fieri facias, seized the interest of a judgment debtor in certain lands and where, three days prior to the sale, the judgment debtor made an assignment for the benefit of creditors, and where the assignee gave notice to the sheriff of the assignment, but made no tender of the costs incurred, it was held that the assignment did not stand in the way of the sale under the writ of execution and that a subsequent sale by the assignee was void. — Elliott v. Hamilton, (1902), 4 O. L. R. 585; 1 O. W. R. 705; 2 O. W. R. 141; following Gillard v. Millegan, (1897), 28 O. R. 645. Where one who obtained an assignment of a judgment of foreclosure of a mortgage and who paid the amount due to the mortgagee, the mortgagor having made an assignment before the date fixed for redemption, it was held that the assignee of the mortgagor could only redeem upon payment to the assignee of the judgment, of the total sum due under the mortgage and the judgment assigned to him. — Scott v. Swanson, (1907), 38 S. C. R. 229. Where a chattel mortgage was given on the same day as an action was begun by a third party against the mortgagor, the fieri facias having been placed in the sheriff's hand a month later, priority was given to the judgment creditor, the mortgage having been found fraudulent. — Union Bank v. Schechter, (1909), 13 O. W. R. 231, 604; see also Honsinger v. Kunz, (1909), 14 O. W. R. 233. Where goods in possession of the assignee were destroyed by fire two days after the assignment, the goods having been insured by the assignor, and the policy having been transferred to the assignee, it was held that the landlord of the assignor, to whom the assignor was indebted for rent, which had accrued within one year prior to the date of the assignment, was not entitled to a preferential lien upon the moneys paid to the assignor, even though the landlord could have made the whole of the rent due, by distress at or before the date of the assignment. — Miller v. Tew, (1909), 2 O. L. R. 77, distinguishing In re McCracken (1879), 4 O. A. R. 466 and Lazier v. Handerson, (1898), 29 O. R. 639. For cases involving the preferential rights of landlords, see notes, § 25, infra. In Abraham v. Abraham, (1890), 19 O. R. 256; s. c. (1891), 18 O. A. R. 436, a judgment for alimony entered against the defendant was held not to be affected by his assignment for the benefit of creditors. In order that an execution be completely executed by payment, it must be paid to the sheriff. — Clarkson v. Severs, (1889), 17 O. R. 592; see also, Carter v. Stone, (1891), 20 O. R. 340. The first execution creditor has a lien not only for the costs of execution but for the whole costs for which he obtained judgment. — Clarkson v. Ryan, (1889), 16 O. A. R. 311; s. c., (1890), 17 S. C. R. 251. Upon the question of lien for costs, see also, Gillard v. Milligan, (1897), 28 O. R. 645; Tremear v. Lawrence, (1890), 20 O. R. 137.

Amendment of assignment by Judge. 15. No advantage shall be obtained by any creditor by reason of any mistake, defect, or imperfection in any assignment under this Act for the general benefit of creditors if the same can be amended or corrected, and any such mistake, defect, or imperfection shall be amended by the Judge on the application of the assignee or of any creditor of the assignor, and on such notice to other parties concerned as the Judge shall think reasonable, and the amendment, when made, shall have relation back to the date of the assignment, but not so as to prejudice the rights of innocent purchasers.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 12. It was held, in Blain v. Peaker, (1889), 18 O. R. 109, that the omission of reference to real property, was not such a mistake or defect as could be remedied by amendment under this section.

Notice and registration of assignment.

Notice of assignment to be published. Assignment to be registered. 16. 1. A notice of the assignment shall forthwith after the delivery thereof to him or his assent thereto, be published by the assignee at least once in the Ontario Gazette and not less than twice in one newspaper having a general circulation in the county or district in which the property assigned is situate. 2. The assignment or a copy thereof shall also within five days from the execution thereof be registered by the assignee, together with an affidavit of a witness thereto of the due execution of the assignment in the office of the clerk of the County or District Court of the county or district in which the assignor, if a resident in Ontario, resided at the time of the execution thereof, or if not a resident then in the office of the clerk of the County or District Court of the county or district where the personal property so assigned or where the principal part thereof is at the time of the execution of such assignment; and the clerk shall number and enter such assignments and endorse thereon the time of receiving the same, and the same shall be open for the inspection of all persons desiring to inspect the same. 3. The clerk shall be entitled to the same fees for services as if the assignment had been registered under The Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act. 4. For the purposes of subsection 2 the Provisional County of Haliburton shall be deemed part of the County of Victoria.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 13.

Penalty for neglecting publication or registration. Liability of sheriff. 17. 1. If the notice is not published as provided by the next preceding section, or if the assignment is not registered within five days from the delivery thereof to the assignee or his assent thereto, the assignee shall incur a penalty of $ 10 for each and every day during which the default continues. 2. The burden of proving the time of such delivery or assent shall be upon the assignee. 3. Where the assignment is made to a sheriff, he shall not incur the penalty unless he has been paid or tendered the cost of advertising and of registering the assignment, nor shall he be bound to act under the assignment until his costs in that behalf are paid or tendered to him.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 14.

Compelling publication and registration. 18. If the assignment is not registered, or notice thereof is not published, the Judge may, upon the application of any person interested in the assignment, by order enforce the registration of the assignment or the publication of the notice.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 15.

Assignment not to be invalidated by omission to publish, etc. 19. The omission to publish or register as required by section 16 shall not, nor shall any irregularity in the publication or registration, invalidate the assignment.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 16.

Meetings of creditors and inspectors.

Assignee to call meeting of creditors. 20. 1. It shall be the duty of the assignee immediately to inform himself, by reference to the assignor and his records of account, of the names and residences of the assignor's creditors, and within five days from the date of the assignment to call a meeting of the creditors for the appointment of inspectors and the giving of directions with reference to the disposal of the estate, by mailing prepaid and registered to every creditor known to him, a notice calling the meeting to be held in his office or some other convenient place to be named in the notice not later than twelve days after the mailing thereof, and by advertisement in the Ontario Gazette. 2. All other meetings to be held shall be called in like manner.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 17.

Inspectors may be appointed. 21. 1. The creditors at any meeting may appoint one or more inspectors who shall superintend and direct the proceedings of the assignee in the management and winding-up of the estate and may also at any subsequent meeting for that purpose revoke the appointment of any inspector. 2. Where the appointment of an inspector is revoked or where an inspector dies, resigns his office, or leaves Ontario, the creditors at any meeting may appoint another inspector to take his place. 3. An inspector shall not directly or indirectly purchase any part of the stock-in-trade, debts or other assets of the assignor.

Meeting of creditors by request of majority thereof. Judge to give directions in case creditors do not attend. 22. 1. In case of a request in writing signed by a majority of the creditors having claims duly proved of $ 100 and upwards, computed according to the provisions of section 24, it shall be the duty of the assignee within two days after receiving such request to call a meeting of the creditors for a day not later than twelve days after he receives the request, and in case of default the assignee shall incur a penalty of $ 25 for every day after the expiration of the time limited for calling the meeting until it is called. 2. In case a sufficient number of creditors do not attend the meeting mentioned in section 20, or fail to give directions with reference to the disposal of the estate, the Judge may give such directions as he may deem necessary for that purpose.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 18. If the creditors failed to give directions as to the disposal of the estate, the Judge of the County Court may give such directions. — Morrison v. Watts, (1892), 19 O. A. R. 622. The assignee can not, himself, purchase the assets, even with the consent of the inspectors. Ibid.

Voting at meeting. 23. At any meeting of creditors the creditors may vote in person, or by proxy authorized in writing, but no creditor whose vote is disputed shall be entitled to vote until he has filed with the assignee an affidavit in proof of his claim stating the amount and nature thereof.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 19.

Scale of votes. Upon claims acquired after assignment. Casting vote. Creditors to value securities. Right to re-value in certain cases. When creditor holding security fails to value same. 24. 1. Subject to the provisions of section 11, all questions at meetings of creditors shall be decided by the majority of votes, and for such purpose the votes of creditors shall be calculated as follows: For every claim of or over $ 100, and not exceeding $ 200, 1 vote; For every claim of or over $ 200, and not exceeding $ 500, 2 votes; For every claim of or over $ 500, and not exceeding $ 1000, 3 votes; For every additional $ 1,000 or fraction thereof, 1 vote. 2. No person shall be entitled to vote on a claim acquired after the assignment unless the entire claim is acquired, but this shall not apply to persons acquiring notes, bills or other securities upon which they are liable. 3. In case of a tie the assignee or, if there are two assignees, the assignee nominated for that purpose by the creditors, or by the Judge if none has been nominated by the creditors, shall have a casting vote. 4. Every creditor in his proof of claim shall state whether he holds any security for his claim or any part thereof; and if such security is on the estate of the assignor, or on the estate of a third person for whom the assignor is only secondarily liable, he shall put a specified value thereon and the assignee under the authority of the creditors may either consent to the creditor ranking for the claim after deducting such valuation, or he may require from the creditor an assignment of the security at an advance of ten per cent. upon the specified value to be paid out of the estate as soon as the assignee has realized such security; and in such case the difference between the value at which the security is retained and the amount of the gross claim of the creditor shall be the amount for which he shall rank and vote in respect of the estate. 5. If a creditor's claim is based upon a negotiable instrument upon which the assignor is only indirectly or secondarily liable, and which is not mature or exigible, such creditor shall be considered to hold security within the meaning of this section, and shall put a value on the liability of the person primarily liable thereon as being his security for the payment thereof; but after the maturity of such liability and its non-payment, he shall be entitled to amend his claim and revalue his security. 6. Where a person claiming to be entitled to rank on the estate holds security for his claim, or any part thereof, of such a nature that he is required by this Act to value the same, and he fails to value such security, the Judge, upon summary application by the assignee or by any other person interested in the estate, of which application at least three days' notice shall be given to the claimant, may order that, unless a specified value be placed on such security and notified in writing to the assignee within a time to be limited by the order, the claimant shall, in respect of the claim, or the part thereof for which the security is held, in case the security is held for part only of the claim, be wholly barred of any right to share in the proceeds of such estate. 7. If a specified value is not placed on such security, and notified in writing to the assignee according to the exigency of the order, or within such further time as the Judge may by subsequent order allow, the claim, or the part, as the case may be, shall be wholly barred as against such estate but without prejudice to the liability of the assignor therefor.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 20. In the absence of statute, a creditor can not be compelled to value securities held by him. He may rank for the full amount of his claim and may realize any securities as well, provided that he does not receive, in all, more than the amount of his claim. — Eastman v. Bank of Montreal, (1885), 10 O. R. 79; Molsons' Bank v. Cooper, (1896), 23 O. A. R. 146. If the security held by the creditor is of such a nature that he is not required to value it, the omission to refer to it does not render the affidavit defective. — Martin v. McMullen, (1899), 1 O. A. R. 230. If the security can not be valued when the claim is filed, the claim should be amended as soon as the value of the security is ascertained. — Wyld v. Clarkson, (1886), 12 O. R. 589. The creditor need not value, as a security, a guarantee of a debt given by a third person. — Martin v. McMullen, (1890), 19 O. R. 230; s. c., (1890), 20 O. R. 257; s. c., (1891), 18 O. A. R. 559. Upon question of the valuation of the liability of the purchaser's estate where the vendor seeks to rank on the guarantor's estate, see: Wyld v. Clarkson, (1886), 12 O. R. 589; Tillie v. Springer, (1892), 21 O. R. 589. Under the similar section of the Insolvent Act, it has been held that the creditor holding security may give it up and prove for the whole claim, or that he may value it and prove for the balance, or that he may keep it and not prove at all. — Deacon v. Drifil, (1879), 4 O. A. R. 335; see also, Re Beatty, (1880), 6 O. A. R. 40; Bell v. Ross, (1885), 11 O. A. R. 658. In Bell v. Ottawa Trust and Deposit Company, (1897), 28 O. R. 519, the Court held that a partner who joins as an accommodation maker in a note by the firm, is primarily liable to the holder under subsection 5, and that such holder may rank against his estate without valuing the liability of the firm. A Judge of the High Court of Justice has no jurisdiction to entertain an appeal or give leave to appeal from an order of a County Court, as to the valuation of securities under this section. He should refer such a motion to a Judge of the Court of Appeals. — In re Aaron Erb, No. 1, (1908), 16 O. L. R. 554.

Proof of claim.

Proof of claim. Limiting time for proof of claim. Creditor may prove claim not due. 25. 1. Every person claiming to be entitled to rank on the estate shall furnish to the assignee particulars of his claim proved by affidavit and such vouchers as the nature of the case admits of. 2. Where a person claiming to be entitled to rank on the estate does not within a reasonable time after receiving notice of the assignment and of the name and address of the assignee, furnish to the assignee satisfactory proofs of his claim as provided by this and the preceding sections, the Judge, upon summary application by the assignee or by any other person interested in the estate, of which application at least three days' notice shall be given to the claimant, may order that unless the claim be proved to the satisfaction of the Judge within a time to be limited by the order, the claimant shall no longer be deemed a creditor of the estate, and shall be wholly barred of any right to share in the proceeds thereof. 3. If the claim is not so proved within the time so limited, or within such further time as the Judge may by subsequent order allow, the same shall be wholly barred, and the assignee shall be at liberty to distribute the proceeds of the estate as if no such claim existed, but without prejudice to the liability of the assignor therefor. 4. The two next preceding subsections shall not interfere with the protection afforded to assignees, by section 38 of The Trustee Act. 5. A person whose claim has not accrued due shall nevertheless be entitled to prove under the assignment and to vote at meetings of creditors, but in ascertaining the amount of any such claim a deduction for interest shall be made for the time which has to run until the claim becomes due.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 21. One who has a claim arising out of an action commenced before the assignment and obtains a judgment after the assignment for damages for breach of contract or for slander, is not entitled to rank. The debt, forming the basis of the claim, must be either actually due or payable in futuro. — Grant v. West, (1896), 23 O. A. R. 533; Gurofski v. Harris, (1896), 27 O. R. 201; see also Ashley v. Brown, (1890), 17 O. A. R. 500; Magann v. Ferguson, (1898), 29 O. R. 235. As to whether a creditor is entitled to rank for rights under a conditional contract where the condition has not been satisfied at the time of the consignment, see Mail Printing Company v. Clarkson, (1898), 25 O. A. R. 1; reversing s. c., (1897), 28 O. R. 236. The Crown has no priority in rank. — Clarkson v. Attorney General of Canada, (1889), 16 O. A. R. 202. Neither has a domestic creditor any preference over a foreign creditor. — Milni v. Moore, (1894), 24 O. R. 456. An assignee, who is also a creditor, may rank. — Robinson v. Cook, (1884), 6 O. R. 590. A cestui que trust has no preference in the estate of his trustee unless the trust fund can be identified. — Culhane v. Stuart, (1884), 6 O. R. 97. A principal is entitled to money or goods intrusted to his agent if such money or goods are in the hands of his agent at the time of the assignment. — Long v. Carter, (1896), 23 A. R. 121; s. c., (1896), 26 S. C. R. 430. As to when a surety may rank upon the estate of his principal, see: Martin v. McMullen, (1890), 19 O. R. 230; s. c., (1890), 20 O. R. 257; s. c., (1891), 18 O. A. R. 559; see also Young v. Spiers, (1888), 16 O. R. 672. In Pett v. Attwood, (1907), 9 O. W. R. 178, the Court allowed the wife of an insolvent to rank upon his estate in the hands of an assignee upon a claim for the value of property conveyed by the wife to the husband. For other cases involving the rights of relatives of the assignee, see: Re Miller, (1877), 1 O. A. R. 393; Totten v. Bowen, (1882), 8 O. A. R. 602; Warner v. Murray, (1889), 16 S. C. R. 720. In an action by the father of an insolvent to rank on the estate as a creditor, it was held that, under a contract of the insolvent to pay the father a certain sum in the event of the insolvent's selling land, the assignment was not equivalent to a sale. — Ryan v. Malone, (1908), 11 O. W. R. 575. In an action to establish a right to prove and rank upon an estate for the value of a certain amount which the insolvent, before the date of the assignment, covenanted to pay quarterly during his life, it was held that such payments were in their nature contingent debts, and were not provable under this Act. — Carswell v. Langley, (1902), 3 O. L. R. 261; 1 O. W. R. 107, following Grant v. West, (1896), 23 O. A. R. 533 and Mail Printing Company v. Clarkson, (1898), 25 O. A. R. 1. A tenant who holds under a lease containing a covenant against an assignment, may be ejected, without notice, upon an assignment for the benefit of creditors. — Argles v. McMath, (1894), 26 O. R. 224; s. c., (1896), 23 O. A. R. 44. But there must be an election to forfeit. — Palmer v. Mail Printing Co., (1897), 28 O. R. 656; Linton v. Imperial Hotel Company, (1889), 6 O. A. R. 337. Upon the question of waiver of right of the landlord to claim a forfeiture, by the acceptance of rent from the assignee after the assignment, see Loper v. Littlejohn, (1901), 31 S. C. R. 572; reversing s. c., (1901), 1 O. L. R. 172. An assignee of part of the reversion can not enforce the right of forfeiture. Mitchell v. McCauley, (1893), 20 O. A. R. 272. In the absence of chattels upon which a distress can be levied, the landlord ranks as an ordinary creditor. — Linton v. Imperial Hotel Company, supra; In re Hoskins, (1877), 1 O. A. R. 379; In re McCracken, (1879), 4 O. A. R. 486. In re Hoskins, supra, decided under the Insolvency Act of 1875, it was held that a provision in a lease for acceleration of payments, was a fraud upon creditors. But, see Baker v. Atkinson, (1886), 11 O. R. 735; s. c., (1887), 14 O. A. R. 409. In Semi-Ready Limited v. Tew, (1909), 19 O. L. R. 247; 13 O. W. R. 476; 14 O. W. R. 393, a claim made by a lessor on an assignment for the benefit of creditors, to rank as a preferred creditor under an acceleration clause in the lease was denied. See also, Bessemer Gas Engine v. Mills, (1904), 18 O. L. R. 647. For further cases, upon the question of the landlord's right to rank as a creditor for rent due under an acceleration clause, see: Linton v. Imperial Hotel Company, supra; Graham v. Lang, (1885), 10 O. R. 248; Clark v. Reed, (1896), 27 O. R. 618. Semble, a landlord can not rank on a claim for future rent. — Grant v. West, (1896), 23 O. A. R. 533; Connolly v. Coon, (1896), 23 O. A. R. 37. In re Hart v. Ontario Express Company, (1892), 22 O. R. 510. The effect of the Landlord and Tenant Act, R. S. O., 1897, c. 170, is to place the assignee who has elected, by notice in writing, to retain the premises occupied by the assignor at the time of the assignment for the unexpired term of the lease, in the same position, as respects the lease, as the assignor would have been in had not the assignment been made. — Kennedy v. McDonald, (1901), 1 O. L. R. 250. In Regan v. Langley, (1908), 12 O. W. R. 1101, plaintiff was allowed to rank as a preferential creditor for wages and as an ordinary creditor for money advanced and for wages earned prior to the sixty days' period. If a creditor neglects to prove his claim, the assignee should not ignore it but should call upon such creditor to furnish proof. — Carling Brewing & Malting Co. v. Black, (1884), 6 O. R. 441. Although an assignee who gives notice to a creditor, pursuant to the statute, is protected, semble, an unpaid creditor who has failed to file his claim, has a right to enforce contribution from other creditors. Cp. rule of distribution of estates of deceased persons. — Chamberlen v. Clark, (1882), 9 O. A. R. 273. Claims allowed under subsection 5 are those in which the debts are owing but not presently payable. — Mail Printing Company v. Clarkson, (1898), 25 O. A. R. 1. For example, a debt payable in annual instalments would be provable under this subsection. — Tillie v. Springer, (1892), 21 O. R. 585.

Contestation of claim. 26. 1. At any time after the assignee receives from any person claiming to be entitled to rank on the estate proof of his claim, notice of contestation of the claim may be served by the assignee upon the claimant. 2. Within thirty days after the receipt of the notice, or within such further time as the Judge may allow, an action shall be brought by the claimant against the assignee to establish the claim, and a copy of the writ in the action or of the summons in case the action is brought in a Division Court shall be served on the assignee; and in default of such action being brought and writ or summons served within the time limited, the claim to rank on the estate shall be forever barred. 3. The notice by the assignee shall contain the name and place of business of a solicitor, upon whom service of the writ or summons may be made; and service upon him shall be deemed sufficient service.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 22. The right to contest a claim may be lost by laches on the part of the assignee. — Bell v. Ross, (1885), 11 O. A. R. 458. In re Hague, Traders Bank v. Murray, (1887), 13 O. R. 727, it was held that a claim which had passed into judgment before the assignment, could not be contested. But see: Bowerman v. Phillip, (1888), 15 O. A. R. 679; Allan v. McTavish, (1891), 18 O. A. R. 440; Young v. Ward, (1897), 24 O. A. R. 147, decided under the Imperial Bankruptcy Act, in which judgments fraudulently obtained were contested. A creditor who brings an action to establish his claim is limited, in his recovery, to the claim set up in his affidavit and his judgment should direct merely a declaration of the right to rank; not an absolute recovery. — Grant v. West, (1896), 23 O. A. R. 533. Under subsection 2, it was held in Johnston v. Burns, (1893), 23 O. R. 582 that failure to bring an action within the prescribed time merely forfeits the claimant's right of action against the estate, but does not bar the right to set off the claim against the purchaser from the assignee, of a debt alleged to be due by the claimant.

Procedure where assignee is satisfied with proof of claim and debtor desires to dispute same. 27. 1. If the assignee is satisfied with the proof adduced in support of a claim, but the assignor disputes the same, the assignor shall do so by notice in writing to the assignee, stating the grounds upon which he disputes the claim; and such notice shall be given within ten days after the assignor is notified in writing by the assignee that he is satisfied with the proof adduced and not afterwards unless by leave of the Judge. 2. If upon receiving such notice of dispute the assignee does not deem it proper to require the claimant to bring an action to establish his claim, he shall notify the assignor in writing of the fact, and the assignor may thereupon, and within ten days of his receiving such notice, apply to the Judge for an order requiring the assignee to serve a notice of contestation. 3. The order shall be made only if after notice to the assignee the Judge is of opinion that there are good grounds for contesting the claim. 4. If the assignor does not make such an application the decision of the assignee shall, as against him, be final and conclusive. 5. If upon the application the claimant consents in writing, the Judge may, in a summary manner, decide the question of the validity of the claim. 6. If an action is brought by the claimant against the assignee, the assignor may intervene at the trial, either personally or by counsel for the purpose of calling and examining or cross-questioning witnesses.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 23.

Disposal of assets of estate.

Assets not to be removed out of the Province and moneys to be deposited in a bank. Penalty. 28. 1. No property or assets of an estate assigned under the provisions of this Act shall be removed out of Ontario without the order of the Judge, and the proceeds of the sale of any such property or assets, and all moneys received on account of any estate shall be deposited by the assignee in an incorporated bank within Ontario, and shall not be withdrawn or removed without the order of the Judge, except in payment of dividends and charges incidental to winding up the estate. 2. An assignee or any person acting in his stead who violates the provisions of this section shall incur a penalty of $500. 3. One-half of the penalty shall go to the person suing therefor, and the other half shall belong to the estate. 4. In default of payment of the penalty and all costs incurred in any action or proceeding for the recovery thereof, within the time limited by the judgment, the Court in which the action is brought may order that such assignee or person may be imprisoned for any period not exceeding thirty days, and such assignee or person shall be disqualified from acting as assignee of any estate while such default continues.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 24.

Accounts to be kept accessible. 29. Upon the expiration of one month from the first meeting of creditors, or as soon as may be thereafter, and afterwards from time to time at intervals of not more than three months, the assignee shall prepare, and keep constantly accessible to the creditors, accounts and statements of his doings as such assignee, and of the position of the estate.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 25. As to the duty of the assignee to prepare and furnish accounts and statements to the creditors, see: Randall v. Borrows, (1865), 11 Grant, 364; Sandford v. Porter, (1889), 16 O. A. R. 565.

Set-off. 30. The law of set-off shall apply to all claims made against the estate and also to all actions instituted by the assignee for the recovery of debts due to the assignor, in the same manner and to the same extent as if the assignor were plaintiff or defendant, as the case may be, except in so far as any claim for set-off shall be affected by the provisions of this or any other Act, respecting frauds or fraudulent preferences.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 26. The fundamental principles of set-off, viz., that the debt sought to be set off must be owing to a person in the same capacity as the claim, upon which he is sued, is due from him, governs in set-offs under this Act. — Graham v. Toms, (1877), 25 Grant, 184. A judgment debtor of the assignor may set-off, as against the judgment rendered in favour of the assignor before the assignment, a debt due by the assignor to him. — Moody v. Canadian Bank of Commerce, (1891), 14 O. P. R. 258. A holder of claims against the assignor, bought up at a discount before the assignment, may set off the full amount of such claims against a debt owing to the assignor. — Thibaudeau v. Garland, (1896), 27 O. R. 39. A chattel mortgage may set-off an unsecured debt against the claim of the mortgagor's assignee, to surplus proceeds. of the sale of mortgaged goods. — Stephens v. Boisseau, (1896), 26 S. C. R. 437; affirming s. c., (1896), 23 O. A. R. 230.

Dividends when to be paid. 31. As large a dividend as can with safety be paid, shall be paid by every assignee within twelve months from the date of the assignment and earlier if required by the inspectors; and thereafter a further dividend shall be paid every six months, and more frequently if required by the inspectors until the estate is wound up and disposed of.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 28. Failure to distribute the estate within a year, casts upon the assignee, in the absence of special difficulties, the burden of justifying the delay. — Ontario Bank v. Lamont, (1883), 6 O. R. 147. In Lucas v. Tegart, (1903), 2 O. W. R. 458, an action by a creditor against the assignee, in which the plaintiff alleged that no dividends had been paid and charged that the assignor had converted assets of the estate, the Court ordered the funds in the hands of the assignee to be distributed.

Notice of dividend sheet. 32. So soon as a dividend sheet is prepared, notice thereof shall be given by registered letter to each creditor, inclosing an abstract of receipts and disbursements, shewing what interest has been received by the assignee for moneys in his hands, together with a copy of the dividend sheet, noting thereon the claims objected to, and stating whether any reservation has or has not been made therefor; and after the expiry of eight days from the date of mailing such notice, abstract and dividend sheet, dividends on all claims not objected to within that period shall be paid.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 29. The assignee is liable for interest from the time payment of dividends should have been made. — Brock v. Tew, Falconbridge, J. April 5th, 1898. See also: McCollough v. Newlove, (1896), 27 O. R. 627; McCollough v. Clemow, (1895), 26 O. R. 467; City of London v. Citizens Insurance Company, (1887), 13 O. R. 713. A creditor's right to call the assignee to account for funds alleged to have been misappropriated is not waived by the receipt of a dividend. — Morrison v. Watts, (1892), 19 O. A. R. 622; Bemmer v. Oliver, (1884), 10 O. A. R. 656. But, see Miller v. Hamlin, (1883), 2 O. R. 103.

Distributing moneys and determining claims as provided by 9 Edw. VII. c. 48. 33. 1. The assignee may take the proceedings authorized by section 33 of The Creditors Relief Act to be taken by a sheriff, and in that case sections 33 and 34 of that Act shall apply mutatis mutandis to proceedings for the distribution of moneys and determination of claims arising under an assignment made under this Act, with the substitution of "assignee" for "sheriff"; but this section shall not relieve the assignee from mailing to each creditor the abstract and other information required by section 32 of this Act to be sent to creditors, so far as the same is not contained in the list sent by him under section 33 aforesaid. 2. A Judge of the County or District Court of the county or district where the assignment is required to be registered shall be the Judge to whom applications under this section shall be made.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 30.

Remuneration of assignee and inspectors.

Remuneration of assignee. 34. The assignee shall receive such remuneration as shall be voted to him by the creditors at any meeting called for the purpose after the first dividend sheet has been prepared, or by the inspectors, in case the creditors fail to provide therefor, subject to review by the Judge upon complaint of the assignee or of any creditor.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 31. The principles regulating remuneration of ordinary trustees should govern in the case of assignees. — Archer v. Severn, (1887), 13 O. R. 316; In re Prittie Trusts, (1887), 13 O. P. R. 19; see also, In re Central Bank, Lye's Claim, (1892), 22 O. R. 247. An assignee is not entitled to charge against the estate, costs paid by him in an action, not authorized by creditors, to set aside a chattel mortgage. — Hyman v. Howell, (1887), 13 O. R. 400. If a general investigation of the accounts is desired, an action is necessary; but in Stewart v. Miller, November 22nd, 1897, Boyd, C., held that it was improper to bring an action merely for the purpose of settling the question of remuneration.

Where remuneration not fixed before the final dividend. 35. Where the remuneration of the assignee has not been fixed under the next preceding section before the final dividend, the assignee may insert in the final dividend sheet, and retain as his remuneration, a sum not exceeding five per cent. of the cash receipts, subject to review by the Judge; but no application by the assignee to review the allowance shall be entertained unless the question of his remuneration has been brought before a meeting of creditors competent to decide the same before the preparation of the final dividend sheet.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 32

Remuneration of inspectors. 36. 1. An assignee shall not make any payment or allowance to an inspector beyond his actual and necessary travelling expenses in and about his duties as inspector, except under the authority of a resolution of the creditors passed at a meeting regularly called, fixing the amount thereof, and in the notice calling the meeting the fixing of the remuneration of the inspectors shall be specially mentioned as one of the subjects to be brought before the meeting. — 2. An inspector shall not be allowed more than four dollars a day besides actual travelling expenses.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 33. For powers of inspectors defined in this Act, see §§ 31 and 34, supra, and § 37, infra. Inspectors are in the nature of trustees for the creditors, so that they can not purchase the estate without the consent of the creditors. — Morrison v. Watts, (1892), 19 O. A. R. 622; see also, Thompson v. Clarkson, (1891), 21 O. R. 421. Neither can they make a profit at the expense of the estate. — Segsworth v. Anderson, (1894), 26 O. R. 573; s. c., (1894), 21 O. A. R. 242; s. c., (1894), 24 S. C. R. 699. Seemle, an inspector may act as solicitor for the estate. — Strachan v. Ruttan, (1892), 15 O. P. R. 109; In re Mimico Sewer Pipe & Brick Manufacturing Company, Pearson's case, (1895), 26 O. R. 289.

Examination of assignor or employees. 37. 1. Upon a resolution passed by a majority vote of the creditors present or represented at a meeting of creditors regularly called, or upon the written request of a majority of the inspectors, or upon an order made by the Judge, the assignee may examine upon oath before a Master, Local Master, Local Registrar, Deputy Clerk of the Crown of the High Court, Judge of the County or District Court, Special Examiner, Official Referee, or any other person named in the order, the assignor or any person who is or has been his agent, clerk, servant, officer, or employee of any kind touching the estate and effects of the assignor and as to the property and means he had when the earliest of his debts or liabilities existing at the date of the assignment was incurred and as to the property and means he still has of discharging his debts and liabilities and as to the disposal he has made of any property since contracting such debt or incurring such liability and as to any and what debts are owing to him, and the person examined may be required by the assignee to produce upon such examination any property, book, document, or paper in his custody, power or control. 2. Unless otherwise ordered the examination shall take place in the county or district within which the person to be examined resides. 3. The Rules and procedure of the High Court as to the examination of a judgment debtor or any clerk or employee or former clerk or employee of a judgment debtor, shall, so far as may be, apply to an examination held under subsection 1.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, §§ 34 and 35. On an examination of an assignor under this section, it is sufficient to serve a copy of the appointment of the special examiner upon the assignor; it is not necessary to show him the original appointment unless sight of it is demanded. — In re Ferguson, (1908), 17 O. L. R. 576; 12 O. W. R. 1143.

Examination of persons having custody of property of assignor. 38. Any person who has or is believed or suspected to have in his possession or power any book, document, or paper of any kind relating in whole or in part to the assignor, his dealings or property, and who refuses or fails to procedure the same for the inspection of the assignee within four days after demand in writing by the assignee may by order of the Judge be examined before the Judge or any of the officers mentioned in section 37 touching such book, document, or paper and he shall be subject to the same consequences in the case of neglect to attend or refusal to disclose the matters in respect of which he may be examined or to make such production as are mentioned in section 40.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 39.

When assignor does not attend or refuses to answer questions. 39. If the assignor does not attend for examination and does not allege a sufficient excuse for not attending, or if attending, he refuses to disclose his property or his transactions respecting the same, or does not make satisfactory answers respecting the same, or if it appears from such examination that assignor has concealed or made away with his property in order to defeat or defraud his creditors or any of them, the Judge may order the assignor to be committed to the common gaol of the county or district in which he resides, for any period not exceeding twelve months.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 36. For a case where the assignor was committed for refusal to disclose property and transactions and for fraudulent disposal of his property, see Re McLarty, (1908), 12 O. W. R. 1171.

Compelling attendance and production of books. 40. Any person other than the assignor liable to be examined shall be subject to the same consequences in case of neglect to attend or refusal to disclose the matters in respect of which he may be examined or to make production as a witness in an action in the High Court.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, § 38.

Repeal. 41. Chapter 147 of the Revised Statutes, 1897, and all amendments thereto are repealed.

Law in force.

The common law of England, except as modified by Imperial Acts in force in the Province or by Dominion or local Acts is in force.

a) Acts, 1862, c. 13. An Act relating to Limited Partnerships (17th April, 1862).

[1—15. Two or more persons may form a limited partnership for the transaction of any mercantile, mechanical, or manufacturing business, except banking or insurance. General partners are liable as in ordinary partnership; special partners are not personally liable. A certificate must be signed by the partners setting forth the names of the general and special partners, distinguishing between them, the amount of capital contributed by the special partners, the general nature of the partnership business, and the time when the partnership is to commence and terminate. The certificate must be acknowledged before a justice of the peace, and registered, and a copy published for three months in the Royal Gazette. Where a partner withdraws a certificate must be drawn up, acknowledged, registered, and published in a similar manner. The name of a special partner must not form part of the firm name. Capital stock must not be withdrawn nor a division of profits made so as to reduce the capital below that mentioned in the certificate. Special partners participating in such improper division must refund. Assignments in case of insolvency must be for the benefit of all creditors. Suits by or against the partnership are to be in the names of the general partners, except that in cases where a special partner has incurred the liability of a general partner such special partner may be made a party defendant. Dissolution, except by operation of law, must be effected by a certificate made and registered as in the case of the original certificate, and published for six weeks in the Royal Gazette.]

b) Acts, 1876, c. 8. An Act relating to Partnerships (29th April, 1876).

[1—10. All partnerships engaged in mercantile, mechanical, or manufacturing business, except banking or insurance, must be registered. A certificate must be drawn up containing the firm name, the names and residences of the partners, the general nature of the business, and the time when the partnership is to commence and when it shall terminate. The certificate must be made in the presence of witnesses, and be registered in a book kept for that purpose, and open to public inspection. An unregistered partnership can not recover in any suit. Withdrawals by partners and a dissolution of the firm in any manner other than by operation of law, as well as any change in the partnership by the addition of new members must be registered in the same manner. But an incoming partner is liable for firm debts even though no certificate filed.]

Companies.

a) Acts, 1888, c. 14. The Prince Edward Island Joint Stock Companies Act (28th April, 1888).<sup>1)</sup>

[1—88. The Lieutenant-Governor in council may grant a charter to any number of persons not less than five, who may petition therefor, to form a company for any purposes to which the legislative authority of the Province extends, except the construction and working of railroads, the business of insurance, or the management of trades unions, friendly societies, building societies and other associations of like character. The applicants must give two weeks' notice by publication in the Royal Gazette, setting forth the proposed name, the object, the place of business, the amount of capital stock (which shall not be less than $ 500 actually subscribed,) the number of shares and the amount of each share, the full names, address, and calling of the applicants, with special mention of the names of not less than three of their members who are to be the first or provisional directors of the company. Within one month after the last publication of such notice the applicants may petition for the issue of letters patent, setting forth in such petition the facts contained in the notice, and further stating the amount of stock taken by each applicant and also the amount, if any, paid in upon the stock of each applicant. The aggregate of the stock so taken must be at least half of the total amount of the stock of the company. The petition must also state whether the amount is paid in cash or by transfer of property, or how otherwise. The publication of the notice is dispensed with where the capital stock of the company does not exceed $ 5000. Notice of the granting of the letters patent is published in the Royal Gazette. A company so incorporated may hold and convey real estate, subject to the conditions set forth in the letters patent, in so far as such real estate is necessary for the carrying on of the undertaking of the company. The name of the company may be changed by the issue of supplementary letters patent. By a resolution passed by a vote of at least two-thirds in value of the total shareholders of the company at a special general meeting called for the purpose the company may apply for supplementary letters patent, extending the powers of the company to other purposes and objects. The affairs of every company must be managed by a board of not less than three directors. Directors must be shareholders in their own right and to the amount required by the by-laws of the company, and must not be in arrears in respect of any calls thereon. Directors are elected annually and, in default of express provisions to the contrary, all the members of the board retire annually, but are eligible for re-election. Notice of the time and place for holding general meetings must be given at least fourteen days prior thereto by publication. The officers of the company are elected by the directors. The number of directors may be increased or decreased. The directors may, subject to the letters patent, regulate the allotment of stock, the making of calls thereon, the payment thereof, the issue and registration of certificates of stock, the forfeiture of stock for non-payment, the disposal of forfeited stock and of the proceeds thereof, the transfer of stock, the declaration and payment of dividends, the time and place of meeting and other matters. The issue of stock at a greater discount than what had been previously authorized at a general meeting is invalid and may not be acted upon until the same has been confirmed at the annual meeting or at a general meeting duly called for that purpose. One-fourth part in value of the shareholders may demand the calling of a special meeting. After the whole capital stock of the company has been taken up and fifty per cent. thereon paid in the directors of the company may make a by-law for increasing the capital stock. The directors may also make by-laws for decreasing the capital stock. By-laws for increasing or decreasing the capital stock or subdividing the shares must be sanctioned by a vote of not less than two-thirds in value of the shareholders at a general meeting of the company duly called for the purpose and afterwards confirmed by supplementary letters patent. Shares are personal estate. The directors may from time to time make calls on shares. Not less than ten per cent. upon the allotted stock of the company, must be called in within one year from the date of incorporation. No shares are transferable until all previous calls have been fully paid in and the directors may decline to register any transfer of shares belonging to any member who is indebted to the company. Shareholders in arrears in respect of calls are not entitled to vote at any meeting of the company. Shareholders are individually liable to the creditors of the company to an amount equal to that not paid up on the shares. Companies may not use their funds in the purchases of stock of any other company unless expressly authorized by by-law confirmed at a general meeting. The watering of stock is prohibited.]

b) Acts, 1883, c. 11. An Act relating to the Acts of the Dominion Parliament respecting Insolvent Banks, Insurance Companies, Loan Companies, Building Societies, and Trading Corporations (27th April, 1883).

[1—2. Orders of a Court or Judge for the payment of moneys or costs, charges or expenses, shall be deemed a judgment of the Supreme Court of the Province, and upon a minute thereof being registered in the Prothonotary's Office bind property in the Province.]

c) Acts, 1895, c. 1. An Act to provide for the Incorporation of Cheese and Butter Manufacturing Associations (5th April, 1895).

[Five or more persons may incorporate for the purpose of manufacturing cheese and butter. Such company has the ordinary powers of a company. No member may own shares in excess of $ 1000. The capital stock must be not less than $ 1000 nor more than $ 20 000. At least $ 1000 must be subscribed before operations are commenced. The liability of shareholders is limited to the unpaid balance on shares.]

d) Acts, 1906, c. 19. An Act respecting Returns of certain Corporations, Associations, and Companies (21st April, 1906).

[This Act requires corporations, associations, and companies receiving subsidies from the Provincial Government to make annual financial statements.]

Bills of Lading.

Acts, 1860, c. 23. An Act to amend the Laws relating to Bills of Lading (2d May, 1860).

[1—3. These sections are identical with those contained in the Imperial Act, 18 & 19 Vic. c. 111.]

Assignments.

Acts, 1898, c. 4. An Act respecting Assignments for the Benefit of Creditors (14th May, 1898).<sup>1)</sup>

[1—28. Confessions of judgment, cognovits actionem, or warrants of attorney to confess judgment given by an insolvent debtor with intent to defeat or delay creditors or to give a preference to any creditor are void as against creditors. Similarly, assignments of goods made with similar intent are void. The intent to delay or defeat creditors is presumed if the effect of the assignment is to prefer one creditor to others, if the action to impeach the assignment be brought within sixty days. The fact that the assignment was made under pressure is not a defence. Assignments made to innocent purchasers for present value are protected, as are also payments to a creditor where such creditor, by reason or on account of such payment, has lost or been deprived of, or has in good faith given up, any valid security held for the payment of the debt so paid, unless the value of the security is restored to the creditor. If an assignor executing an assignment for the general benefit of his creditors owes debts, both individually and as a member of a partnership the claims shall rank first upon the estate by which the debts they represent were contracted. The wages or salaries of persons in the employment of the assignor at the time of making the assignment or within one month before the making thereof are given a priority to the extent of three months' wages or salary. A similar priority is accorded to farmers in respect of the price of products of such farmers' farms sold to the assignor during the three months immediately preceding the date of the assignment. The assignee must call a meeting of creditors. Creditors may vote in person or by proxy. The Act fixes a scale of votes for the purpose of ascertaining a majority.]

IX. Quebec.

Law in force.

Prior to the cession to England (1763) the law in force in Quebec consisted of the Coutume de Paris, and the Ordinances in force within the jurisdiction of Paris, the Arrêts de Conseil du Roi and the Ordinances proclaimed between 1663 and 1763, in so far as they had been registered in Quebec, the local ordinances, and the judgments of the Courts. The old law was continued in force as regards civil matters by an Act of 1774. A Civil Code was enacted in 1866<sup>2)</sup>.

Statutes.<sup>3)</sup>

Partnership.

a) Civil Code.<sup>4)</sup>

Title Eleventh. Of Partnership.

Chapter First. General Provisions.

1830. It is essential to the contract of partnership that it should be for the common profit of the partners, each of whom must contribute to it property, credit, skill, or industry.

1831. Participation in the profits of a partnership carries with it an obligation to contribute to the losses. Any agreement by which one of the partners is excluded from participation in the profits is null. An agreement by which one partner is exempt from liability for the losses of the partnership is null only as to third persons.

C. N. 1855.

1832. If no time for the commencement of the partnership be designated, it takes effect from the date of the contract.

C. N. 1843.

1833. If the term of the partnership be not designated it is considered to be for the life of the partners; subject to the provisions contained in the fifth chapter of this title.

C. N. 1892, 1895; C. C. 1895.

1834. In partnerships for trading, manufacturing, or mechanical purposes, or for the construction of roads, dams, and bridges, or for the purpose of colonization, or of settlement, or of land traffic, the partners must deliver to the prothonotary of the Superior Court in each district, and to the registrar of each county, in which they carry on business, a declaration in writing, in the form and subject to the rules provided in the statute intituled: An Act respecting Partnerships. The omission to deliver such declaration does not render the partnership null; it subjects the contravening parties to the penalties and liabilities imposed by the statute.

Vide R. S. Q. 1909, §§ 7437—7445.

1834a. A similar declaration must be also made by any person carrying on business alone under a firm name.

1835. The allegations contained in the declaration mentioned in the last preceding article, can not be controverted by any person who has signed the same, nor can they be controverted, as against any party being a partner, by a person who has not signed but was really a member of the partnership at the time the declaration was made; and no partner, whether he has signed or not, is deemed to have ceased to be a partner until a new declaration has been made and filed as aforesaid, stating the alteration in the partnership.

1836. Any partner, although not mentioned in the declaration, may be sued jointly and severally with the partners mentioned therein, or the latter may be sued alone, and, if judgment be recovered against them, any other partner or partners may be sued on the original cause of action on which such judgment was rendered.

1837. When persons are associated as partners in Lower Canada for any of the purposes mentioned in article 1834, and no declaration has been filed as aforesaid, any action which might be brought against all the members of the partnership, may also be brought against any one or more of them, as carrying on or as having carried on trade jointly with others, without naming such others in the writ or declaration, under the name and style of their partnership firm, and if judgment be recovered against him or them, any other partner or partners may be sued jointly or severally on the original cause of action on which such judgment has been rendered; but when any such action is founded on an obligation or instrument in writing in which all or any of the partners bound by it are named, then all the partners named therein must be made parties to such action.

1838. The service of summons or process, for any claim or demand founded upon any liability of an existing partnership, at the office or place of business of such partnership within the province of Canada, has the same effect as a service made upon the members of such partnership personally, and any judgment rendered against any member of such existing partnership, for a partnership debt or liability, may be enforced by process of execution against the partnership property in the same manner as if the judgment had been rendered against the partnership.

C. C. P., 122, 139.

Chapter Second. Of the Obligations and Rights of Partners among Themselves.

1839. Each partner is a debtor to the partnership for all that he has agreed to contribute to it. When such contribution consists of a certain thing and the partnership is evicted of it, the partner is subject to warranty in the same manner as a seller is in favor of the buyer.

C. N. 1845; C. C. 1508 et seq.

1840. A partner who fails to pay any sum of money which he has agreed to contribute to the partnership is liable for interest on such sum from the day of his default. [He is also liable for interest upon any sum taken by him from the partnership funds for his particular benefit, from the day that he has withdrawn it.

C. C. 1846.

1841. The provisions contained in the last two preceding articles are without prejudice to the rights of the other partners to damages against the partner in default, and to obtain a dissolution of the partnership, according to the rules contained in the title of obligations and in article 1896.

1842. A partner can not carry on privately any business or adventure which deprives the partnership of a portion of the skill, industry, or capital, which he is bound to employ therein. If he do so, he is obliged to account to the partnership for the profits of such business.

C. N. 1847.

1843. When a partner is creditor individually of a person who is also indebted to the partnership, and both debts are actually payable, the imputation of any payment received by him from the debtor, is made upon both debts in proportion to their respective amounts, although by the receipt, he may have imputed it upon his private debt only; but if by the receipt he impute the payment wholly upon the partnership debt, such imputation is to be maintained.

C. N. 1848.

1844. When a partner has been paid his full share of a debt due to the partnership, and the debtor becomes insolvent, such partner is obliged to return to the partnership what he has received, although he may have given a discharge specially for his part.

C. N. 1849.

1845. Each partner is liable to the partnership for damages caused by his fault. He can not set up in compensation of such damages the profits which the partnership has derived from his industry in other affairs.

C. N. 1850.

1846. A certain and determinate thing which does not consume by use, and of which the enjoyment only is contributed to the partnership, is at the risk of the partner who is the owner of it. Things which consume by use or deteriorate by keeping, or which are intended to be sold, or are contributed to partnership at a fixed valuation, are at the risk of the partnership.

C. N. 1851; C. C. 1893.

1847. A partner has a right against the partnership not only to recover money disbursed by him for it, but also to be indemnified for obligations contracted by him in good faith in the business of the partnership, and for the risks inseparable from his management.

C. N. 1852.

1848. When there is no agreement concerning the shares of the partners in the profits and losses of the partnership, they share equally.

C. N. 1853.

1849. A partner charged with the management of the business of the partnership by a special clause in the contract, may perform all acts connected with his management, notwithstanding the opposition of the other partners, provided he act without fraud. Such power of management can not be revoked without sufficient cause, while the partnership continues; but if the power be given by an instrument posterior to the contract of partnership, it is revokable in the same manner as a simple mandate.

C. N. 1856.

1850. When several of the partners are charged with the management of the business of the partnership generally, and without a provision that one of them shall not act without the others, each of them may act separately; but if there be such a provision, one of them can not act in the absence of the others, although it be impossible for the latter to join in the act.

C. N. 1857, 1858.

1851. If there be no special stipulation as to the management of the business of the partnership, the following rules apply: 1. The partners are presumed to have mutually given to each other a mandate for the management, and whatever is done by one of them binds the others; saving the right of the latter, together or separately, to object to any act before it is concluded; 2. Each partner may use the things belonging to the partnership, provided he apply them to their customary and destined use, and that he do not use them against the interest of the partnership, or in a manner to prevent his co-partners from making use of them according to their right; 3. Each partner may compel his co-partners to bear with him the expenses which are necessary for the preservation of the property of the partnership; 4. One of the partners can not make alterations in the immoveable property of the partnership without the consent of the others, although he should establish that such alterations are advantageous.

C. N. 1859.

1852. A partner who has no right of management can not alienate or otherwise dispose of anything which belongs to the partnership; saving the rights of third persons as hereinafter declared.

C. N. 1860.

1853. Each partner may, without the consent of his co-partners, associate with himself a third person in the share he has in the partnership. He can not without such consent associate him in the partnership.

C. N. 1861.

Chapter Third. Of the Obligations of Partners toward Third Persons.

1854. Partners are not jointly and severally liable for the debts of the partnership. They are liable to the creditor in equal shares, although their shares in the partnership may be unequal. This article does not apply in commercial partnerships.

C. N. 1862, 1863; C. C. 1105, 1873.

1855. A stipulation that the obligation is contracted for the partnership binds only the partner contracting when he acts without the authority, express or implied, of his co-partners, unless the partnership is benefited by his act, in which case all the partners are bound.

C. N. 1864.

1856. The liabilities of partners for the acts of each other are subject to the rules contained in the title of Mandate, when not regulated by any article of this title.

Chapter Fourth. Of the different Kinds of Partnerships.

1857. Partnerships are either universal or particular; they are also either civil or commercial.

C. N. 1835.

Section I. Of Universal Partnerships.

1858. Universal partnership may be either of all the property or of all the gains of the partners.

C. N. 1836.

1859. In universal partnership of property, all the property of the partners, moveable and immoveable, and all their gains, as well present as future, are put in common.

C. N. 1837.

1860. Parties contracting a universal partnership are presumed to intend only a partnership of gains, unless the contrary is expressly stipulated.

C. N. 1839.

1861. In a universal partnership of gains is included all that the partners acquire by their industry in whatever employment they are engaged during the continuance of the partnership. The moveable property and the enjoyment of the immoveables possessed by the partners at the date of the contract are also included; but the immoveables themselves are not included.

C. N. 1838.

Section II. Of Particular Partnerships.

1862. Particular partnerships are those which apply only to certain determinate objects. A partnership contracted for a single enterprise or for the exercise of any art or profession is also a particular partnership.

C. N. 1811, 1842.

Section III. Of Commercial Partnerships.

1863. Commercial partnerships are those which are contracted for carrying on any trade, manufacture, or other business of a commercial nature, whether general or limited to a special branch or adventure. All other partnerships are civil partnerships.

1864. Commercial partnerships are divided into: 1. General partnerships; 2. Anonymous partnerships; 3. Partnerships en commandite, or limited partnerships; 4. Joint stock companies. They are governed by the rules common to other partnerships, when these are not inconsistent with the rules contained in this section, and with the laws and usages specially applicable in commercial matters.
C. N. 1873, C. C. 1854.

§ 1. Of General Partnerships.

1865. General partnerships are those contracted for the purpose of carrying on business under a collective name or firm consisting ordinarily of the names of the partners or of one or more of them, all of whom are jointly and severally liable for the obligations of the partnership.

1866. The partners may make such stipulations among themselves concerning their respective powers in the management of the partnership business as they see fit, but with respect to third persons dealing with them in good faith, each partner has an implied power to bind the partnership for all obligations contracted in its name and in its general course of dealing and business.

1867. The partners are liable for obligations contracted by one of them, in his own name, only when the obligation is for objects which are in the usual course of dealing and business of the partnership, or are applied to its use.

1868. Dormant or unknown partners are, during the continuance of the partnership, subject to the same liabilities toward third persons as ordinary partners under a collective name.

C. C. 1900, § 5.

1869. Nominal partners, and persons who give reasonable cause for the belief that they are partners, although not so in fact, are liable as such to third parties dealing in good faith under that belief.

C. C. 1730.

§ 2. Of Anonymous Partnerships.

1870. In partnerships having no name or firm, whether they are general or confined to a single object or adventure, the partners are subject to the same liabilities in favour of third persons as in ordinary partnerships under a collective name.

§ 3. Of Partnerships en commandite or Limited Partnerships.

1871. Partnerships en commandite, or limited partnerships, for the transaction of any mercantile, mechanical, or manufacturing business, other than the business of banking and of insurance, may be formed under the statute intituled: An Act Respecting Limited Partnerships.

See R. S. Q. § 7443. infra.

1872. Such partnerships consist of one or more persons called general partners, and of one or more persons who contribute in cash payments a specific sum or capital to the common stock and who are called special partners.

1873. The general partners are jointly and severally responsible in the same manner as ordinary partners under a collective name; but special partners are not liable for the debts of the partnership beyond the amount contributed by them to the capital.

1874. The general partners only can be authorized to transact business and sign for the partnership, and to bind the same.

1875. Persons contracting limited partnerships are bound to make and severally sign a certificate containing: 1. The name or firm of the partnership; 2. The general nature of the business to be carried on; 3. The names of all the general and special partners, distinguishing which are general and which special, and their usual place of residence. 4. The amount of capital stock contributed by each special partner. 5. The period at which the partnership commences and that of its termination. Such certificate is to be made, filed, and recorded in the form and manner prescribed in the statute specified in article 1871.

1876. The partnership is not deemed to be formed until the certificate is made, filed, and recorded, as indicated in the last preceding article.

1877. If any false statement be made in the certificate, all the persons interested in the partnership are liable for its obligations, in the same manner as ordinary partners under a collective name.

1878. In case of any renewal or continuance of the partnership beyond the time originally fixed for its duration, a certificate thereof must be made, filed, and recorded in the manner required for the original formation. Any partnership otherwise renewed or continued is deemed a general partnership.

1879. Every alteration in the name of the general partners, in the nature of the business, or in the capital or shares, or in any matter, other than the name of the special partners, specified in the original certificate, is deemed a dissolution of the partnership; and if it be carried on after such alteration, it is deemed a general partnership, unless renewed as a limited partnership in the manner provided in the last preceding article.

C. C. 1892, s. 9.

1880. The business of the partnership is to be conducted under a partnership name or firm, in which the name of the general partners only, or of one or more of them, is used; and if the name of a special partner be used in the firm with his privity, he is deemed a general partner.

1881. Suits in relation to the business of the partnership may be brought and conducted by and against the general partners, in the same manner as if there were no special partners.

1882. No part of the sum which any special partner has contributed to the capital stock can be withdrawn by him or paid or transferred to him in the form of dividends, profits, or otherwise, during the continuance of the partnership; but he may annually receive lawful interest on the sum so contributed by him, if the payment of such interest do not reduce the original amount of the capital and he may also receive his portion of the profits.

1883. If by the payment of interest or supposed profits the original capital be reduced, the partner receiving the same is bound to restore the amount necessary to make good his share of the deficient capital with interest.

1884. A special partner may, from time to time, examine into the state and progress of the affairs of the partnership, and may advise as to its management; but he can not transact any business on account of the partnership, not be employed by it as agent, attorney, or otherwise. If he act in contravention of the provisions of this article, he is deemed a general partner.

1885. The general partners are liable to account to each other and to the special partners for the management of the business of the partnership, in the same manner as ordinary partners under a collective name.

1886. In case of the insolvency or bankruptcy of the partnership, no special partner is allowed, under any circumstances, to claim as a creditor, until the claims of all the other creditors of the partnership have been satisfied.

1887. No dissolution of the partnership by the acts of the parties can take place previously to the time specified in the certificate of its formation, or the certificate of its renewal, until notice of such dissolution has been filed and published in the manner provided in the act specified in article 1871.

1888. Partnerships for the business of banking are regulated by special Acts of incorporation, and by the federal Act respecting banks and banking.

R. S. Q. 6241; C. C. 367.

Chapter Fifth. Of the Dissolution of Partnership.

1892. Partnership is dissolved: 1. By the efflux of time; 2. By the extinction or loss of the partnership property; 3. By the accomplishment of the business for which it was contracted; 4. By bankruptcy; 5. By the death of one of the partners; 6. By the civil death, or interdiction, or bankruptcy, of one of the partners; 7. By the will of one or more of the partners, not to continue the partnership, according to articles 1895 and 1896; 8. By the business of the partnership becoming impossible or unlawful. Limited partnerships are also determined by the causes declared in article 1879, to which article the causes of dissolution declared in the above paragraphs 5 and 6 are subjected. The causes of dissolution declared in paragraphs 5, 6, 7 do not apply to joint stock companies formed under the authority of a royal charter or of an Act of the legislature. Commercial partnerships are also terminated by judgment maintaining, at the instance of a creditor of one of the partners, the seizure of such partner's share in the stock of partnership, or at the instance of one of the partners after such seizure.

C. N. 1865; 60 V. c. 50, § 32; C. C. P. 698.

1893. When one of the partners has promised to put in common the property in a thing, the loss of such thing before the contribution of it has been made, dissolves the partnership with respect to all the partners. The partnership is equally dissolved by the loss of the thing when only the enjoyment of it is put in common, and the property of the thing remains with the partner. But the partnership is not dissolved by the loss of the thing of which the property has already been brought into the partnership; unless such thing constitutes the whole capital stock of the partnership or is so important a part of it that the business of the partnership can not be carried on without it.

C. M. 1867.

1894. It may be stipulated that in case of the death of one of the partners, the partnership shall continue with his legal representative, or only between the surviving partners. In the latter case, the representative of the deceased partner is entitled to a division of the partnership property, only as it exists at the time of the partner's death. He can not claim the benefit of any transaction subsequent thereto, unless such transaction is a necessary consequence of something done before the death occurred.

C. N. 1868.

1895. Those partnerships only which are not limited as to duration can be dissolved at the will of any one of the partners, by a notice to all the others of his renunciation. Such renunciation must be in good faith, and not made at a time unfavourable for the partnership.

C. N. 1869; C. C. 1833.

1896. The dissolution of a partnership limited as to duration may be demanded by one of the partners before the expiration of the stipulated term, upon just cause shown, or when another partner fails to fulfill his engagement, or is guilty of gross misconduct, or from habitual infirmity or physical impossibility is unable to attend to the business of the partnership, or when his condition and status are essentially changed, and in other cases of a like nature.

C. N. 1871; C. C. 1841.

1896a. If a partnership be dissolved or a judicial demand be made for such dissolution, the court or the judge, upon the demand of one of the partners, after notice given to the others, has power to appoint one or more liquidators. The liquidators so appointed must be sworn to well and faithfully perform the duties of their office. They immediately give notice of their appointment by an advertisement to that effect published in the Quebec Official Gazette, and in two newspapers, one in the French and the other in the English language, published at the place of business of the partnership or at the nearest place, and in such other manner as the Court or Judge may prescribe. They become pleno jure seized of the assets of the partnership for the purposes of the liquidation; they furnish the security prescribed by the Court or Judge, and are in all respects subject to the summary jurisdiction of such Court or Judge. They possess all the powers and are subjected to all the obligations of judicial sequestrators, with the exception of the putting into possession, which is done without the intermediary of a bailiff. Acts, exceeding those of administration, cannot be performed by the liquidators without the consent of all the partners, and in default of such consent, only with the approval of the court or judge, after previous notice to the members of the partnership. The remuneration of the liquidators is fixed by the Court or Judge. Proceedings respecting the appointment of liquidators and the performance of the duties of their office are summary. Provisional execution takes place notwithstanding the appeal, saving the right of the Court to which the cause is taken in appeal to summarily suspend such execution. Two Judges of the Court seized of the appeal may also give such order for suspension after notice to the adverse party.

Chapter Sixth. Of the Effects of Dissolution.

1897. The mandate and powers of the partners to act for the partnership cease with its dissolution, except for such acts as are a necessary consequence of business already begun; nevertheless whatever is done in the usual course of dealing and business of the partnership, by a partner acting in good faith and in ignorance of the dissolution, binds the other partners, in the same manner as if the partnership still subsisted.

1898. Upon the dissolution of the partnership, each partner or his legal representative may demand of his co-partners an account and partition of the property of the partnership; such partition to be made according to the rules relating to the partition of successions, in so far as they can be made to apply. Nevertheless, in commercial partnerships these rules are to be applied only when they are consistent with the laws and usages specially applicable in commercial matters.

C. N. 1872; C. C. 689 et seq.; C. C. P. 1037 et seq.

C. C. 1991.

1900. The dissolution of a partnership by the terms of the contract, or the voluntary act of the partners, or by the expiration of time or by the death or retirement otherwise of a partner, does not affect the rights of third persons dealing afterwards with any of the partners on account of the partnership firm; except in the cases following: 1. When notice is given as required by law or the usage of trade; 2. When the partnership is limited to a particular enterprise or adventure which is terminated before the transaction takes place; 3. When the transaction is not within the usual course of dealing and business of the partnership; 4. When the transaction is in bad faith or illegal, or otherwise void. 5. When the partner sought to be charged is a dormant or unknown partner, to whom no credit is actually given, and who has retired before the transaction takes place.

b) Registration of Partnerships.

§ 1. Declaration to be made by Persons entering into Partnership for certain Purposes.

Declaration to be made by persons associated in partnership for certain purposes.

Contents of declaration. When to be filed. Declaration in case of alteration in membership. 7437. 1. The declaration to be transmitted to the prothonotary and Registrar under the Civil Code by all persons associated in partnership, in the Province, for trading, manufacturing, or mechanical purposes, or for purposes of construction of roads, dams, bridges, or other works, or for purposes of colonization, or of settlement, or of land traffic, shall be signed by the several members of such partnership, and if any of the said members be absent from the Province at the time, then by the members present, in their own names and for their absent co-members, under their special authority to that effect. 2. Such declaration shall be according to form A and shall contain the names, surname, addition and residence of every partner, and the name, style, or firm, under which they carry on or intend to carry on such business. 3. It shall state the time during which the partnership has existed, and declare that the persons therein named are the only members of such partnership. 4. Such declaration shall be filed within sixty days after the formation of the partnership, and a similar declaration shall be filed in like manner when and so often as any change or alteration takes place in the membership thereof, or in the name, style, or firm under which they intend to carry on business.

R. S. Q. § 5635.

Declaration not to be registered if name similar to another firm. If made, may be annulled. 7438. No such declaration can be registered, if it gives to any partnership the name, style, or firm name of an existing partnership, or a name, style, or firm name so similar that the public may be led into error. Every registration made contrary to the provisions of this article, may be annulled by the Superior Court of the district, upon petition of which notice has been given to the parties interested, to the prothonotary and to the registrar.

R. S. Q. § 5635a; 61 Vic., c. 42, § 1.

§ 2. Declarations to be made by Persons making Use of a Firm Name.

Declaration to be made by trader who uses a style indicating a plurality of members. Form and contents of declaration. When declaration to be made. Changes to be re- gistered. 7439. 1. Every person who, not being associated in partnership with any other person, for the purposes mentioned in article 7437, uses alone, or uses with his own name as his business style, some name, or designation other than his own name alone, or uses his own name with the addition of "and company," or some other word or phrase indicating a plurality of members under the said style, must also transmit a declaration, according to form B, containing the name, surname, quality, and residence of such person, and the style, or firm name under which he carries on or intends to carry on business, and state that no other person is associated with him. 2. Such declaration shall be deposited within sixty days of the time when such style is first used. 3. All changes in the style mentioned in such registered declaration, shall also be registered in the same manner; and so also when the person ceases carrying on business under such style or using such style so registered.

R. S. Q. § 5636.

Entry of declaration. Fees, etc., thereon. Fee on certificate. 7440. The prothonotary and the Registrar shall enter such declaration in a book which they shall keep for that purpose, which book shall, at all times during office hours, be open to public inspection free of charge. Each of such officials may require from the person delivering such declaration, the sum of fifty cents for registering it, if it does not contain more than two hundred words, and the sum of five cents for each additional hundred words. The fee shall be the same for every certificate required and delivered.

R. S. Q. § 5637.

Indexes to be kept by Registrar and prothonotary. 7441. In the case of declarations registered in conformity with article 7439, two indexes, according to form C shall be kept by the prothonotary and Registrar, in which they shall enter, as soon as received, according to alphabetical and filing order: in the first column of one of such books, the firm name mentioned in the declarations delivered to them; in the second column, the name of the person; in the third column the date of the receipt of the declaration; in the first column of the other index the name of the person; in the second column, the style; and, in the third column, the date of the filing of the same.

R. S. Q. § 5638.

§ 3. Penalties.

Penalty for not complying with provisions of this section. Application of penalty. Other provisions applicable to this section. 7442. Every member of a partnership, or person doing business under a co-partnership style, failing to comply with the provisions of this section or of the third paragraph of article 1834 of the Civil Code, is liable to a fine of one hundred dollars, to be recovered before any court of competent civil jurisdiction by any person suing therefor. One half of such fine belongs to the Crown, for the uses of the Province, and the other half to the party suing for the same, unless the suit be brought on behalf of the Crown alone, in which case the whole of the penalty belongs to His Majesty, for the uses aforesaid. The provisions of the law respecting penal actions apply to suits for penalties under this section.

R. S. Q. § 5639; 9 Edw. 7. c. 61. § 2.

Companies.

a) Civil Code.

Title eleventh. Of Corporations.

Chapter First. Of the Nature and Creation of Corporations, and of their different Kinds.

352. Every corporation legally constituted is an artificial or ideal person, whose existence and succession are perpetual, or sometimes for a fixed period only, and which is capable of enjoying certain rights and liable to certain obligations.

353. Corporations are constituted by act of Parliament, by royal charter, or by prescription. Those corporations also are reputed to be legally constituted which existed at the time of the cession of the country and which have been since continued and recognized by competent authority.

354. Corporations are aggregate or sole. Corporations aggregate are those composed of several members; corporations sole are those consisting of a single individual.

355. Corporations are either ecclesiastical or religious, or they are lay or secular. Ecclesiastical corporations are aggregate or sole. They are all public. Secular corporations are either aggregate or sole. They are either public or private.

356. Secular corporations are further divided into political and civil; those that are political are governed by the public law, and only fall within the control of the civil law in their relations, in certain respects, to individual members of society. Civil corporations constituting, by the fact of their incorporation ideal or artificial persons, are as such governed by the laws affecting individuals; saving the privileges they enjoy and the disabilities they are subjected to.

Chapter Second. Of the Rights, Privileges, and Disabilities of Corporations.

Section I. Of the rights of corporations.

357. Every corporation has a corporate name, which is given to it at its creation or which has since been recognized and approved by competent authority. Under such name the corporation is known and designated, sues and is sued, and does all its acts and exercises all the rights which belong to it.

358. The rights which a corporation may exercise, besides those specially conferred by its title, or by the general laws applicable to its particular kind, are all those which are necessary to attain the object of its creation; thus it may acquire, alienate, and possess property, sue and be sued, contract, incur obligations, and bind others in its favour.

359. For these objects, every corporation has the right to select from its members officers whose number and denominations are determined by the instrument of its creation or by its by-laws or regulations.

360. These officers represent the corporation in all acts, contracts or suits, and bind it in all matters which do not exceed the limits of the powers conferred on them. These powers are either determined by law, by the by-laws of the corporation, or by the nature of the duties imposed.

361. Every corporation has a right to make, for its internal government, for the order of its proceedings and for the management of its affairs, by-laws and regulations which its members are bound to obey, provided they are legally and regularly passed.

Section II. Of the Privileges of Corporations.

362. Beside the special privileges which may be granted to each corporation by its title of creation or by special law, there are others which result from the fact of incorporation and which exist of right in favour of all corporate bodies, unless taken away, restrained or modified by such title or by law.

363. The principal of these privileges is that which limits the responsibility of the members of a corporation to the interest which each possesses therein, and exempts them from all personal liability for the payment of obligations contracted by the corporation within the scope of its powers and with the formalities required.

Section III. Of the Disabilities of Corporations.

364. Corporations are subject to particular disabilities which either prevent or restrain them from exercising certain rights, powers, privileges, and functions, which natural persons may enjoy and exercise; these disabilities arise either from their corporate character or they are imposed by law.

A corporation is responsible in damages for libel. — Brown v. Mayor of Montreal, (1871), 17 L. C. J. 46. An action for libel may be brought by one corporation against another corporation. — L'Institut Canadien v. Le Nouveau Monde, (1873), 17 L. C. J. 296.

365. In consequence of the disabilities which arise from their corporate character, they can neither be tutors nor curators, nor can they take part in meetings of family councils. They can not be entrusted with the execution of wills or any other administration which necessitates the taking of an oath or imposes personal responsibility. They can not be summoned personally, nor appear in court otherwise than by attorney. They can not sue nor be sued for assaults, battery or other violence to the person. They can not serve as witnesses nor as jurors before the courts. They can neither be guardians nor judicial sequestrators, nor can they be charged with any other functions or duties the exercise of which might entail imprisonment.

366. The disabilities arising from the law are: 1. Those which are imposed on each corporation by its title, or by any law applicable to the class to which such corporation belongs. 2. Those comprised in the general laws of the country respecting mortmains and bodies corporate, prohibiting them from acquiring immoveable property or property so reputed, without the permission of the crown, except for certain purposes only, and to a fixed amount or value. 3. Those which result from the same general laws imposing, for the alienation or hypothecation of immoveable property held in mortmain or belonging to corporate bodies, particular formalities, not required by common law.

Modern civil corporations established for commercial and trading purposes, as joint stock companies or incorporated banking, manufacturing, or railway companies can not be considered mortmain corporations, nor do the restrictions placed by law on such corporations apply to them. — Kierzkowski v. Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada, (1857), 4 L. C. R. 3; s. c., (1859), 10 L. C. R. 47; The provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure Arts 364—366 are general and apply to all corporations without distinction. Therefore, a building society incorporated by the Dominion Parliament, to carry on operations through the Dominion, is subject to disability imposed by C. C. 366, and can not acquire immovable property in the Province of Quebec without the permission of the Crown or the authority of the local legislature. — Cooper v. McIndoe, (1887), 15 Rev. Leg. 276, M. L. R., 7 Q. B. 481; affirming s. c., (1885), M. L. R., 2 S. C. 388. The Code contains no restrictions as to bequests in favour of corporations, to be thereafter formed; and as to devises, the prohibitions contained in articles 366 and 836 relate to the acquisition of immovable property by corporations already formed. A devise, by which property is given, not to trustees with power of perpetual succession, but simply to trustees directed to convey to a corporation only in the event of its being lawfully created, with permission to possess it, is not within the scope of said articles. — Abbott v. Fraser, (1874), 20 L. C. J. 197, 6 Rev. Leg. 365.

366a. All corporations which, under the provisions of their charters or of the law, can not acquire real estate, except to a limited amount, have the right, whenever they dispose of or alienate any real estate belonging to them, to apply the price thereof to the acquisition of other real estate, and also to receive the revenues thereof and to employ the same for the objects for which they were constituted.

367. All corporations are prohibited from carrying on the business of banking unless they have been specially authorized to do so by their title of creation.

Chapter Third. Of the Dissolution of Corporations and the Liquidation of their Affairs.

Section I. Of the Dissolution of Corporations.

368. Corporations are dissolved: 1. By any act of the legislature declaring their dissolution. 2. By the expiration of the term or the accomplishment of the object for which they were formed, or the happening of the condition attached to their creation. 3. By forfeiture legally incurred. 4. By the natural death of all the members, the diminution of their number, or by any other cause of a nature to interrupt the corporate existence, when the right of succession is not provided for in such cases. 5. By the mutual consent of all the members, subject to the modifications and under the circumstances hereinafter determined. 6. By voluntary liquidation in the cases by law provided.

A Judge in chambers has no jurisdiction to appoint a curator to a dissolved corporation until its dissolution has been judicially pronounced in due course of law. — In re Montreal Patent Guano Company, (1874), 18 L. C. J. 129.

369. Ecclesiastical and secular corporations of a public nature, other than those formed for the mutual assistance of their members, can not be dissolved by mutual consent without a formal and legal surrender or the authority of the legislature, as the case may be. The same rule applies to banks, to railway, canal, telegraph, toll-bridge, and turnpike companies, and generally to private corporations who have obtained privileges which are exclusive or exceed those resulting by law from incorporation.

370. Public corporations formed for the mutual assistance of their members, and those of a private nature not included in the preceding article, may be dissolved by mutual consent, on conforming to the conditions, which may have been specially imposed on them, and saving the rights of third parties.

Section II. Of the Liquidation of the Affairs of dissolved Corporations.

371. Saving the case of the voluntary liquidation of joint stock companies, a dissolved corporation is, for the liquidation of its affairs, in the same position as a vacant succession. The creditors and others interested have the same recourse against the property which belonged to it, as may be exercised against vacant successions and the property belonging to them.

Although an incorporated company has ceased to do business and has ceased to elect directors for carrying it on, the rights of creditors to execute their judgments against the company are not impaired. — Hughes v. Lalonde, (1889), 18 Rev. Leg. 205. Whatever may be the state of disorganization into which a company has fallen, the creditors are entitled to exercise their rights against it and the shareholders. — Hughes v. La Cie. de Villas du Cap Gibraltar, (1889), 34 L. C. J. 245 affirming s. c., (1889), M. L. R., 5 S. C. 129.

372. In order to facilitate such recourse, a curator who represents such corporation and is seized of the property which belonged to it, is appointed by the proper court with the formalities observed in the case of vacant estates.

373. Such curator must be sworn; he must give security and make an inventory. He must also dispose of the moveables, and must proceed to the sale of the immoveable property, and to the distribution of the price between the creditors and others entitled to it, in the manner prescribed for the discussion, distribution and division of the property of vacant estates to which a curator has been appointed, and in the cases and with the formalities required by the Code of Civil Procedure.

373a. In the case of the voluntary liquidation of a joint stock company, one or more liquidators are appointed in the manner required by law, for the purpose of winding up the affairs and of distributing the assets of the company.

§ 4. Of Joint Stock Companies.

1889. Joint stock companies are formed either under the authority of a royal charter, or of an act of the legislature, and are governed by its provisions; or they are formed without such authority, and, in the latter case, are subject to the same general rules as partnerships under a collective name.

1890. The names of the partners or stockholders do not appear in joint-stock companies, which are generally known under an appellation indicating the object of their formation. The business is carried on by directors or other mandataries, who are appointed from time to time, according to the rules established for the governance of such companies respectively.

1891. Any seven or more persons may in like manner associate themselves together for the purpose of carrying on any labor, trade or business, except the working of mines, minerals, or quarries, and the business of banking or insurance, in conformity with the provisions of the Act of 1865, intituled an Act to authorize the formation of companies or co-operative associations for the purpose of carrying on, in common, any trade or business. The formation and governance of joint-stock companies and corporations for particular objects are provided for by special statutes.

Joint Stock Companies' General Clauses.

§ 1. Declaratory and Interpretative.

Short title. 5957. This section may be cited as the Joint Stock Companies' General Clauses Act.

R. S. Q. § 4651; Imp. § 295.

Interpretation. 5958. The following expressions, both in this section and in the charter, have the following meanings, unless the subject matter or context otherwise requires: 1. The expression "the charter" means any act incorporating a company for any of the purposes contemplated by this section. 2. The expression "the company" means the company incorporated by the charter; 3. The expression "the undertaking" means the whole of the works and business of every kind, which the company is authorized to carry on. 4. The expression "real estate" or "land" includes immoveable property of every kind. 5. The expression "shareholder" or "stockholder" means every subscriber to, or holder of, stock in the company, and extends to and comprises the personal representatives of the shareholder.

R. S. Q. § 4652; Imp. § 285.

To what companies section applies. Exception. 5959. When not otherwise expressly enacted, this section shall apply to every joint stock company incorporated by any charter, for any of the purposes within the jurisdiction of the Legislature, except for the construction and working of railways and the business of insurance.

R. S. Q. § 4653; 56 Vic. c. 35, § 1.

It forms part of charter. 5960. The provisions of this section, even although not specially inserted in the charter shall, save in so far as they are expressly varied or excepted by such charter, be construed as if formally embodied and reproduced therein.

R. S. Q. § 4654.

§ 2. General Powers.

Corporate powers. 5961. Every company incorporated for any of the above purposes under any charter, is a corporation under the name declared in such charter, and may acquire, hold, alienate, and convey, all real estate requisite for the carrying on of the undertaking, and is invested with all the powers, privileges, and immunities requisite to carry into effect the intentions and objects of this section and of the charter, and which are incident to such corporation, or expressed or included in the law respecting the interpretation of statutes.

R. S. Q. § 4655.

Such powers to be subject to present section. 5962. All powers given by the charter to the company are subject to the provisions and restrictions contained in this section.

R. S. Q. § 4656.

Directors. 5963. The affairs of the company shall be managed by a board of not less than three, or more than fifteen directors.

R. S. Q. § 4657; 4 Edw. 7, c. 31, § 1.

First directors. 5964. The persons named as such in the charter shall be the directors of the company, until duly replaced. If not so replaced within six months from the date of the incorporation of the company, any of said persons or, if they be not living, their heirs or assigns, may cause a meeting to be held by giving fifteen clear days' notice of the time and place thereof, in the Quebec Official Gazette, and the said persons, or their heirs or assigns, present at such meeting, may pass by-laws, allot stock, and elect directors.

R. S. Q. § 4658; 7 Edw. 7, c. 47, § 1.

Qualifications of after directors. 5965. No person shall be elected or appointed a director thereafter, unless he be a shareholder, owning stock absolutely in his own right, and not in arrears in respect of any call thereon. The majority of the after directors of the company shall, further, at all times, be persons resident in Canada, and subjects of His Majesty by birth or naturalization.

R. S. Q. § 4659.

<sup>1)</sup> The references in the notes are to the Quebec Statutes indicated and (Imp.) to the Imperial Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, (8 Edw. 7, c. 69).

Election of directors. 5966. The after directors of the company shall be elected by the shareholders, in general meeting of the company assembled, at such times and manner, and for such term not exceeding two years, as the charter, or, in default thereof, the by-laws of the company, may prescribe.

R. S. Q. § 4660.

Elections not expressly provided for to be yearly. Notice. Right to vote. Ballot. Vacancies. President. Other officers. 5967. In the absence of other express provisions in such behalf, in the charter or the by-laws of the company: 1. Such election shall take place yearly, all the members of the board retiring, and, if otherwise qualified, being eligible for re-election. 2. Notice of the time and place for holding general meetings of the company shall be given at least ten days previous thereto, in some newspaper published at or as near as may be to the office or chief place of business of the company. 3. At all general meetings of the company, every shareholder shall be entitled to as many votes as he owns shares in the company, and may vote by proxy. 4. Elections of directors shall be by ballot. 5. Vacancies occurring in the board of directors may be filled for the remainder of the term, by the board from among the qualified shareholders of the company. 6. The directors, from time to time, shall elect from among themselves a president of the company, and also name, and remove at pleasure, all other officers thereof.

R. S. Q. § 4661.

R. S. Q. § 4662.

§ 3. Directors.

Powers of directors. By-laws for certain purposes. 5969. 1. The directors have full power in all things to administer the affairs of the company, and may make or cause to be made for the company, any kind of contract which the company may lawfully enter into. 2. They may, from time to time, make by-laws not contrary to law, to regulate: a) The allotment of stock; b) The making of calls thereon; c) The payment of calls; d) The issue and registration of certificates of stock; e) The forfeiture of stock for non-payment; f) The disposal of forfeited stock and of the proceeds thereof; g) The transfer of stock; h) The declaration and payment of dividends; i) The number of directors and their term of service; j) The amount of their stock qualification; k) The appointment, functions, duties, and removal of all agents, officers, and servants of the company; l) The security to be given by them to the company; m) Their remuneration and that (if any) of the directors; n) The time at which and the place within this Province where the annual meetings of the company shall be held, and the place where its chief place of business shall be; o) The place or places where its business shall be conducted; p) The calling of meetings, regular and special, of the board of directors, and of the company; q) The quorum, the requirements as to proxies, and the procedure in all things at such meetings, the imposition and recovery of all penalties and forfeitures admitting of regulation by by-law, and the conduct in all other particulars of the affairs of the company. 3. They may from time to time repeal, amend, or re-enact the same. 4. Every such by-law, and every repeal, amendment, or re-enactment thereof, unless in the meantime confirmed at a general meeting of the company duly called for that purpose, shall only have effect until the next annual meeting of the company, and, in default of confirmation thereat, shall, from that time only, cease to be in force. 5. Every by-law for the purpose of changing the company's chief place of business, shall be published in the Quebec Official Gazette, and a certified copy thereof, under the seal of the company, shall be forwarded to the Provincial Secretary without delay.

R. S. Q. § 4663; 6 Edw. 7, c. 31, § 1.

Liability for lending money to shareholders. 5970. No loan shall be made by the company to any shareholder, and, if such be made, all directors and other officer of the company making the same, or in any wise assenting thereto, shall, to the extent of such loan, including legal interest, be jointly and severally liable both to the company and to third parties for all debts of the company contracted from the time of the making of such loan to that of the repayment thereof.

R. S. Q. § 4664.

Liability of directors for wages. Amount recoverable. 5971. The directors of the company shall be jointly and severally liable to the laborers, servants, and apprentices of the company, for all debts not exceeding one year's wages, due for services performed for the company while they are such directors respectively. No director shall be liable to an action for such debt, unless the company has been sued therefor within one year after the debt became due, nor unless such director is sued therefor within one year from the time when he ceased to be such director, nor before an execution against the company has been returned unsatisfied in whole or in part. The amount due on such execution shall be the amount recoverable, with costs, against the directors.

R. S. Q. § 4665.

Proof of by-laws. 5972. A copy of any by-law of the company, under its seal, and purporting to be signed by any officer of the company, shall be received as prima facie evidence of such by-law in all Courts in this Province.

R. S. Q. § 4666.

§ 4. Capital Stock, Shareholders, Shares and Calls.

Calling special meetings. 5973. One-fourth part in value of the shareholders of the company shall at all times have the right to call a special meeting thereof, for the transaction of any business specified in such written requisition and notice as they may issue to that effect.

R. S. Q. § 4667; Imp. § 66.

Capital stock of joint stock companies. Amount paid in to be published. What property accounts to represent. Stock not to be issued for increased value. Watering of stock forbidden. Capitalization of surplus earnings etc., forbidden. Fictitious capitalization of stock, etc., forbidden. 5974. 1. The capital stock of all joint stock companies shall consist of that portion of the amount authorized by the charter, which has been bona fide subscribed for and allotted, and shall be paid in cash. 2. The amount of paid up capital, from year to year, shall be published annually in a report to the shareholders. 3. The property accounts of a company shall represent only the amount of the actual bona fide outlay necessary for the undertaking. No stock shall be issued to represent the increased value of any property. Any such issue shall be null and void. 4. The practice, commonly known as watering of stock, is prohibited, and all stock so issued shall be null and void. 5. The capitalization of surplus earnings and the issue of stock to represent such capitalized surplus, are also prohibited, and all stock so issued shall be null and void, and the directors consenting to such issue of stock shall be jointly and severally liable to the holders thereof for the re-imbursement of the amount paid for such stock. 6. Every form and manner of fictitious capitalization of stock in any joint stock company, or the issuing of stock which is not represented by a legitimate and necessary expenditure in the interest of such company, and not represented by an amount in cash paid into the treasury of the company, which has been expended for the promotion of the objects of the company, is prohibited, and all such stock shall be null and void.

R. S. Q. § 4668.

Transfer of stock. 5975. The stock of the company shall be deemed moveable property, and shall be transferable, in such manner only, and subject to all such conditions and restrictions as by this section, or by the charter, or the by-laws of the company, shall be prescribed.

R. S. Q. § 4669; Imp. § 22.

Allotting stock. 5976. If the charter makes no other definite provision, the stock of the company shall be allotted, when and as the directors, by by-law or otherwise, may order.

R. S. Q. § 4670; Imp. §§ 85, 86.

Preferred stock. 5977. The directors may make by-laws for issuing any part of the capital stock as preferred stock, giving the same such preference as to dividends and otherwise over ordinary stock as may be declared by the by-law. The by-law may provide that the holders of such shares shall have the right to elect a certain number of the board of directors, and may give them any other control over the affairs of the company. No such by-law shall have any effect, until it has been unanimously sanctioned in writing by the shareholders; or has been sanctioned by the unanimous vote of all the shareholders, present in person or by proxy at a special general meeting of the company called for considering the same; or has been sanctioned by three-fourths in value of the shareholders, and approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. The approval by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council shall not be given until after a notice of one month has been sent by registered letter to all the shareholders. Holders of such preferred shares shall be shareholders within the meaning of this section, and shall in all respects possess the rights and be subject to the liabilities of shareholders, saving the preference and rights above mentioned given by any such by-law. Nothing in this article contained, or done in pursuance thereof, shall affect the rights of creditors of any company.

R. S. Q. § 4663a; 61 Vic. c. 35, § 1.

Calling in instalments. Interest thereon. 5978. The directors of the company may call in and demand from the shareholders thereof, respectively, all sums of money subscribed by them, at such times and places, and in such payments or instalments, as the charter, or as this section may require. Interest shall accrue and fall due, at the rate of six per cent. per annum, upon the amount of any unpaid call, from the day appointed for the payment of such call.

R. S. Q. § 4671.

Amount of each instalment. 5979. Not less than ten per cent upon the allotted stock of the company shall, by means of one or more calls, be called in and made payable within one year from the incorporation of the company; and every year thereafter a further amount of at least five per cent. shall in like manner be called in and made payable, until one-half shall have been so called in.

R. S. Q. § 4672.

Action for calls. Allegations. Proof. 5980. The company may enforce payment of all calls and interest thereon, by action before any competent Court. In such action it shall not be necessary to set forth the special matter, but it shall be sufficient to declare that the defendant is a holder of one share or more, stating the number of shares, and is indebted in the sum of money to which the calls in arrear amount, in respect of one call or more upon one share or more, stating the number of calls and the amount of each, whereby an action has accrued to the company. A certificate under the seal of the company, and purporting to be signed by any officer of the company, to the effect that the defendant is a shareholder, that such calls have been made, and that so much is due by him and unpaid thereon, shall be received in all courts of law as prima facie evidence to that effect.

R. S. Q. § 4673.

Forfeiture for non-payment. 5981. If, after such demand or notice as by the charter or the by-laws of the company may be prescribed, any call made upon any share be not paid within the prescribed time, the directors may, in their discretion, by vote to that effect, reciting the facts, and duly recorded in their minutes, summarily declare forfeited any share whereon such payment has not been made; and the same shall thereupon become the property of the company, and may be disposed of as by by-law or otherwise they shall order.

R. S. Q. § 4674.

Calls must be paid before transfer. 5982. No share shall be transferable until all previous calls thereon have been fully paid, or until declared forfeited for non-payment of calls thereon, or sold under execution.

R. S. Q. § 4675.

Shareholders in arrears not to vote. 5983. No shareholder being in arrears in respect of any call, shall be entitled to vote at any meeting of the company.

R. S. Q. § 4676.

Liability of shareholders. 5984. Each shareholder shall, until the whole amount of his stock has been paid up, be personally liable to the creditors of the company, to an amount equal to that not paid up thereon; but shall not be liable to an action therefor by any creditor, before an execution against the company has been returned unsatisfied in whole or in part; and the amount due on such execution shall be the amount recoverable with costs against such shareholder.

R. S. Q. § 4677; Imp. § 123.

Liability limited. 5985. The shareholders of the company shall not as such be responsible for any act, default, or liability whatever of the company, or for any engagement, claim, payment, loss, injury, transaction, matter, or thing whatever, relating to or connected with the company, beyond the amount of their respective shares in the capital stock thereof.

R. S. Q. § 4678; Imp. § 123.

Stock held for others. Stock held as collateral. 5986. No person holding stock in the company in the name of another shall be personally subject to liability as a shareholder; but the estates and funds in the hands of such person belonging to the person he represents, shall be liable in like manner, and to the same extent, as the person represented is or would be if holding such stock in his own name. No person holding stock as collateral security shall be personally subject to such liability, but the person pledging such stock shall be considered as holding the same, and shall be liable as a shareholder accordingly.

R. S. Q. § 4679.

Voting on stock. 5987. Every person holding and possessing shares in the name of another, shall represent the stock in his hands at all meetings of the company, and may vote accordingly as a shareholder; and so with every person who pledges his stock.

R. S. Q. § 4680.

§ 5. Borrowing Powers.

Issue of notes authorized. Issue of debentures authorized. Privilege of debentures after registration. Company may grant hypothec to secure payment of debentures. Effect thereof when duly registered. 5988. The company may, by resolution, issue notes, payable to order or to bearer, for the settlement of accounts or other current matters; it may further, on a resolution of two-thirds of the shareholders present at a meeting specially called for the purpose, issue bonds or debentures to the amount of two-thirds of the total value of the immoveable property. Such bonds or debentures, after their registration in the office or offices of the registration division or divisions in which the immoveables of the said company are situated (which immoveables must be described in a notice to that effect given to the Registrar), constitute a privileged claim in favour of the holders thereof against the company, and give a right of preference over all other debts and claims against the company, posterior to the issuing of such bonds or debentures. To secure the payment of its bonds or debentures, the company may, by its duly authorized officers, grant to one or more trustees an hypothec upon the immoveable property of the company, mentioning the issue and the amount of the bonds or debentures secured thereby; and such hypothec shall, when duly registered, be a valid security in favor of the holders of such bonds or debentures, issued before or after the execution of such hypothec, notwithstanding article 2017 of the Civil Code.

2 Edw. 7, c. 30, § 1; 4 Edw. 7, c. 33, § 1.

§ 6. Books to be Kept.

Books to be kept by the company. 5989. The company shall cause a book or books to be kept by the secretary, or by some other officer specially charged with that duty, wherein shall be kept recorded: 1. Every by-law of the company; 2. The names, alphabetically arranged, of all persons who are or have been shareholders; 3. The address and calling of every such person, while such shareholder; 4. The number of shares of stock held by each shareholder; 5. The amounts paid in, and remaining unpaid, respectively, on the stock of each shareholder; 6. All transfers of stock, in their order as presented to the company for entry, with the date and other particulars of each transfer, and the date of the entry thereof. 7. The names, addresses, and calling of all persons who are or have been directors of the company; with the several dates at which each become or ceased to be such director.

R. S. Q. § 4681; Imp. § 25 (1).

Directors may disallow entry in certain cases. Their liability if allowed in such cases. Declaration of dissent. 5990. The directors may refuse to allow the entry in any book mentioned in article 5989, of any transfer, not made by sale under execution, of stock whereof the whole amount has not been paid in; and whenever an entry is made in such book, of any such voluntary transfer of stock not fully paid up to a person not being of apparently sufficient means, the directors shall be liable, jointly and severally, to the creditors of the company, in the same manner and to the same extent as the transferring shareholder, but for such entry, would have been. If, however, any director present when such entry is allowed, do forthwith, or if any director then absent do, within twentyfour hours after he shall have become aware thereof and able so to do, enter in the minute book of the board of directors his protest against the same, and do within eight days thereafter publish such protest in at least one newspaper published in or as near as possible to the place where the office or chief place of business of the company is situated, such director may thereby, and not otherwise, exonerate himself from such liability.

R. S. Q. § 4682.

Effect of transfer limited until allowed. 5991. No transfer of stock, unless made by sale under execution, shall be valid for any purpose, save only as exhibiting the rights of the parties thereto towards each other, and as rendering the transferee liable in the meantime jointly and severally with the transferor, to the company and its creditors, until entry thereof has been duly made in such books.

R. S. Q. § 4683.

Books to be open to share holders and creditors. Taking of extracts. 5992. Such books shall, during ordinary business hours of every day, except Sundays and holidays, be kept open for the inspection of the shareholders and creditors of the company and their representatives, at the office or chief place of business of the company. All shareholders, creditors, or their representatives, may make extracts therefrom.

R. S. Q. § 4684; Imp. § 30 (1, 2).

Books shall be evidence. 5993. In any suit or proceeding against the company or against any shareholder, such books shall be prima facie evidence of all facts stated therein.

R. S. Q. § 4685; Imp. § 33.

Penalty for untrue entries, etc. 5994. Every director, officer, or servant of the company, who knowingly makes or assists in making any untrue entry in any such book, or who refuses or neglects to make any proper entry therein, or to exhibit the same, or to allow the same to be inspected and extracts to be taken therefrom, shall be liable to a penalty of one hundred dollars for every such untrue entry and for every such refusal or neglect, and also in damages for all loss or injury which any party interested may have sustained thereby.

R. S. Q. § 4686; Imp. §§ 30 (3), 216.

Forfeiture of rights for not keeping books. 5995. Every company neglecting to keep such books so open for inspection, shall forfeit its corporate rights.

R. S. Q. § 4687; Imp. § 25 (2).

§ 7. Trusts, Contracts &c.

Company not bound to see to execution of trusts. 5996. The company shall not be bound to see to the execution of any trust, whether express, implied, or constructive, in respect of any shares; and the receipt of the shareholder in whose name the same may stand in the books of the company, shall be a valid and binding discharge to the company for any dividend or money payable in respect of such shares, whether or not notice of such trust shall have been given to the company; and the company shall not be bound to see to the application of the money paid upon such receipt.

R. S. Q. § 4688; Imp. § 27.

Contracts, etc., by the company, how executed. Seal not necessary. Proviso as to bank notes. 5997. Every contract, agreement, engagement, or bargain made, and every bill of exchange drawn, accepted, or endorsed, and every promissory note and cheque made, drawn, or endorsed on behalf of the company, by any agent, officer, or servant, in general accordance with his powers as such under the by-laws, shall be binding upon the company. In no case shall it be necessary to have the seal of the company affixed to any such contract, agreement, engagement, bargain, bill of exchange, promissory note, or cheque, or to prove that the same was made, drawn, accepted, or endorsed, as the case may be, in pursuance of any by-law, or special vote, or order; nor shall the party so acting as agent, officer, or servant of the company, be thereby subjected individually to any liability to any third party therefor. Provided, always, that nothing in this article shall be construed to authorize the company to issue any note payable to the bearer thereof, or any promissory note intended to be circulated as money, or as the note of a bank.

R. S. Q. § 4689; Imp. §§ 76, 77.

No company, unless authorized, to buy stock in another. 5998. No company shall use any of its funds in the purchase of stock in any other corporation, unless in so far as such purchase may be specially authorized by its charter, and also by the charter of such other corporation.

R. S. Q. § 4690.

§ 8. Dividends.

Dividend not to impair capital. Dividend unearned not to be paid. Dividend may be supplemented from reserve fund. Liability if dividend out of reserve fund, without resolution. Liability of directors. 5999. 1. No company shall declare a dividend, the payment of which impairs or lessens the capital of the company. 2. No dividend shall be declared or paid, which shall not have been actually earned by the company. The annual dividend may, however, be supplemented or paid entirely out of the reserve fund; but payment of the dividend in this way must be publicly announced to the shareholders, at the annual meeting, and duly authorized by a resolution of the company. In default of such resolution, the directors of the company, voting for or consenting to such increase, shall be jointly and severally liable to the creditors of the company for the amount of dividend paid in excess of that actually earned. 3. Should any dividend, the payment of which is forbidden by this article, be declared or paid, the directors voting for, or consenting to the payment of such dividend, shall be jointly and severally liable to the creditors of such company for the amounts so paid.

R. S. Q. § 4691.

Penalty for paying dividends, when company is insolvent, etc. How any directors may avoid such liability. 6000. The directors who declare and pay any dividend when the company is insolvent, or any dividend the payment of which renders the company insolvent, or diminishes the capital stock thereof, shall be jointly and severally liable, as well to the company as to the shareholders and creditors thereof, for all the then existing debts of the company and for all thereafter contracted during their continuance in office, respectively; but if any director, present when such dividend is declared, do forthwith, or if any director then absent do within twenty-four hours after he shall have become aware thereof and able so to do, enter on the minutes of the board of directors his protest against the same, and do within eight days thereafter publish such protest in at least one newspaper published at or as near as may be possible to the office or chief place of business of the company, such director may thereby, and not otherwise, exonerate himself from such liability.

R. S. Q. § 4692.

§ 9. Suits.

Actions between shareholders and company. 6001. Any kind of action may be instituted between the company and any shareholder thereof.

R. S. Q. § 4693.

Section II. Incorporation of Joint Stock Companies by Letters Patent.

§ 1. Short Title.

Short title. 6002. This section may be cited as The Quebec Companies' Act.
7 Edw. 7. c. 48. § 1; Imp. § 295.

§ 2. Interpretation.

Interpretation. 6003. In this section, and in all letters patent and supplementary letters patent issued under it, unless the context otherwise requires: a) The expression "the company" or "a company" means any company to which this section applies; b) The expression "the undertaking" means the business of every kind which the company is authorized to carry on; c) The expression "real estate" or "land," includes all immoveable property of any kind; d) The word "shareholder" means every subscriber to or holder of stock in the company, and includes the representatives of the shareholder; e) The word "manager" includes the cashier and the secretary.

§ 3. Application of section.

Application. 6004. This section shall apply: 1. To all companies incorporated under it; 2. To all companies which, previous to the coming into force of this section, were subject to the provisions of the Quebec Companies' Act, 1907; 3. To all existing companies incorporated by letters patent under the laws of this Province, and which shall obtain new letters patent under article 6013.

7 Edw. 7. c. 48. § 3; 9 Edw. 7. c. 60. § 3; Imp. § 245—248.

§ 4. Preliminaries.

Preliminaries. 6005. The provisions of this section relating to matters preliminary to the issue of the letters patent or supplementary letters patent, shall be deemed directory only, and no letters patent or supplementary letters patent issued under this section shall be held void or voidable on account of any irregularity in respect of any matter preliminary to the issue of the letters patent or supplementary letters patent.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 4. The legal existence of a corporation, can not be attacked in a collateral proceeding on the ground that the requirements of the statute, providing for filing of a declaration in the prothonotary's office, under the seal of the corporation, has not been complied with: Union Building Society v. Russell, (1858), 8 L. C. R. 276.

§ 5. Formation of new companies.

Incorporation of companies by letters patent. Exception. 6006. The Lieutenant-Governor may, by letters patent under the great seal, grant a charter to any number of persons, not less than five, who petition therefor, constituting such persons, and others who have become subscribers to the memorandum of agreement hereinafter mentioned and who thereafter become shareholders in the company thereby created, a corporation, for any of the purposes or objects to which the legislative authority of the Province extends, except the construction and working of railways or the business of insurance.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 5; Imp. § 2. A company may be incorporated by letters patent under this Act for the purpose of navigation within the limits of this Province. — MacDougall v. Union Navigation Company, (1877), 21 L. C. J. 63.

Petition for letters patent. Name. Purposes. Chief place of business. Capital. Shares. Names, etc., of petitioners. Stock taken and amount paid. 6007. The petitioners, who must be of the full age of twenty-one years, shall file in the Department of the Provincial Secretary a petition setting forth the following particulars: a) The proposed corporate name of the company, which shall not be that of any other known company, incorporated or unincorporated, or any name liable to be confounded therewith, or otherwise, on public grounds, objectionable; b) The purposes for which its incorporation is sought; c) The place within the Province which is to be its chief place of business; d) The proposed amount of its capital stock; e) The number of shares and the amount of each share; f) The names in full and the address and calling of each of the petitioners, with special mention of the names of not more than fifteen and not less than three of their number, who are to be the first or provisional directors of the company; g) The amount of stock taken by each petitioner, the amount, if any, paid in upon the stock of each petitioner, and the manner in which the same has been paid, and is held for the company.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 6; Imp. §§ 3—5.

Certain provisions that may be embodied in letters patent, etc. Memorandum of agreement. Proofs of facts, etc. Name not to be that of another company, etc. 6008. The petition may ask for the embodying in the letters patent of any provision which, under this section, might be made by-law of the company or by by-law of the directors approved by a vote of shareholders; and such provision so embodied shall not, unless provision to the contrary is made in the letters patent, be subject to repeal or alteration by by-law. The petition shall be accompanied by a memorandum of agreement, in duplicate, both of which may be similar to — and shall in their essential features conform to — the forms A and B. Before the letters patent are issued, the petitioners shall establish, to the satisfaction of the Provincial Secretary, the sufficiency of their petition and memorandum of agreement and the truth and sufficiency of the facts therein set forth, and that the proposed name is not the name of any other known incorporated or unincorporated company, or any name likely to be confounded therewith; and for that purpose, the Provincial Secretary shall take and keep of record any requisite evidence in writing, by oath or affirmation.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 7; Imp. §§ 8, 10.

Facts to be recited in letters patent. 6009. The letters patent shall recite such of the established averments in the petition and memorandum of agreement as the Provincial Secretary thinks proper.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 8.

Another corporate name may be given. 6010. The Lieutenant-Governor may give to the company a corporate name different from that proposed by the petitioners if the proposed name is objectionable.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 9; Imp. § 8.

Notice of issuing of letters patent. Incorporation. Copies of notice to be published. 6011. Notice of the granting of the letters patent, shall be forthwith given by the Provincial Secretary, by two insertions in the Quebec Official Gazette, in the form C; and thereupon, from the date of the letters patent, the persons therein named, and such persons as have become subscribers to the memorandum of agreement or who thereafter become shareholders in the company, and their successors, shall be a corporation, by the name mentioned in the letters patent; and a copy in French of every such notice shall forthwith be, by the company to which such notice relates, inserted four different times in at least one news-paper, if any, published in the French language in the locality where the head office or chief agency is established, and a copy, the same number of times, in English in one newspaper, if any, published in the English language in such locality; otherwise in a newspaper or newspapers published in the place nearest thereto.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 10. In Garrick v. Canada Pipe & Foundry Company, (1883), Q. R. 3 S. C. 383, it was held that proof of the incorporation of a company could only be made by production of the letters patent granted to it, or of a copy of the Official Gazette containing notice of the granting of the letters patent.

Correction or re-issue letters patent. Effect thereof. Proviso. Notice of correction or re-issue. 6012. Whenever the letters patent contain any misnomer, mis-description, or other clerical error, the Provincial Secretary may, on petition of the company, if there is no adverse claim, direct such letters patent to be corrected or to be cancelled and correct ones to be issued in their stead. The new or corrected letters patent shall have the same effect as if correctly issued at the date of the original letters patent, and acquired rights of third persons shall not be affected by such correction or re-issue. Notice of the correction of such letters patent or of the issue of new letters patent, shall forthwith be given by the Provincial Secretary in the Quebec Official Gazette.

§ 6. Existing companies.

Existing companies may apply for charter under this section. Not necessary to state shareholders' names. Company governed by this section, etc. 6013. Any company heretofore incorporated for any purpose or object for which letters patent may be issued under this section, whether under a special or a general act, and now a subsisting and valid corporation, may apply for letters patent to carry on its business under this section; and the Lieutenant-Governor may direct the issue of letters patent incorporating the shareholders of the said company as a company under this section; and thereupon all the rights and obligations of the former company shall be transferred to the new company, and all proceedings may be continued or commenced by or against the new company that might have been continued or commenced by or against the old company. It shall not be necessary in any such letters patent to set out the names of the shareholders. After the issue of the letters patent the company shall be governed in all respects by the provisions of this section, except that the liability of the shareholders to creditors of the old company shall remain as at the time of the issue of the letters patent.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 11; Imp. § 249.

Subsisting companies may ask for extended powers. 6014. If such company applies for the issue of letters patent under this section, the Lieutenant-Governor may, by the letters patent, upon petition to that effect, extend the powers of the company to such other objects for which letters patent may be issued under this section, as the petitioners desire and as the Lieutenant-Governor thinks fit to include in the letters patent; and the Lieutenant-Governor may, in the said letters patent, name the first directors of the new company; and the letters patent may be issued to the new company by the name of the old company or by another name.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 12.

§ 7. Change of name.

Lieutenant-Governor may change name. 6015. If it is made to appear, to the satisfaction of the Provincial Secretary, that the name of a company (whether given by the original or by supplementary letters patent, or on amalgamation) is the same as the name of an existing incorporated or unincorporated company, or so similar thereto as to be liable to be confounded therewith, or otherwise on public grounds objectionable, the Lieutenant-Governor may direct the issue of supplementary letters patent, reciting the former letters and changing the name of the company to some other name which shall be set forth in the supplementary letters patent.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 14; Imp. § 8 (2).

Company may obtain change of name. 6016. When a company desires to adopt another name, the Lieutenant-Governor, upon being satisfied that the change desired is not for any improper purpose, may direct the issue of supplementary letters patent, reciting the former letters patent and changing the name of the company to some other name, which shall be set forth in the supplementary letters patent.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 15; Imp. § 8 (3).

Change not to affect rights, etc. 6017. No alteration of its name under articles 6015 and 6016 shall affect the rights or obligations of the company; and all proceedings may be continued or commenced by or against the company under its new name that might have been continued or commenced by or against the company under its former name.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 16; Imp. § 8 (5).

§ 8. Fees.

Fees on letters patent. Amount of fees may be varied. Must be paid before steps taken. 6018. 1. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, from time to time, establish, alter, and regulate the tariff of the fees to be paid on application for letters patent and supplementary letters patent under this section, and may prescribe the forms of proceeding and registration in respect thereof, and all other matters requisite for carrying out the objects of this section. 2. The amount of the fees may be varied according to the nature of the company, the amount of the capital stock and other particulars, as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council thinks fit. 3. No steps shall be taken in the Department of the Provincial Secretary towards the issue of any letters patent or supplementary letters patent under this section until after all fees therefor are duly paid.

§ 9. Commencement of business.

Capital to be subscribed, etc., before business begun. Directors liability for contravention. Does not apply to certain companies. 6019. The company shall not commence its operations or incur any liability before ten per cent. of its authorized capital has been subscribed and paid for, and a declaration under oath, by the secretary of the company, establishing such fact, has been deposited in the Department of the Provincial Secretary. Every director who expressly or impliedly authorizes such operations being so commenced or liabilities being so incurred, shall be jointly and severally liable with the company for the payment of such liabilities. This article shall not apply to companies existing before the first day of July 1907.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 18; Imp. § 87.

§ 10. Forfeiture of charter.

Forfeiture of charter for non-user. 6020. Unless another delay be specified in the letters patent, or in an act of the Legislature incorporating a company, the charter of the company shall be forfeited de jure by non-user during three consecutive years, or if the company does not go into actual operation within three years after it is granted.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 19; 8 Edw. 7, c. 64, § 1; Imp. § 242. The Crown, alone, has the right of demanding that letters patent, granted under the great seal of the Province, be annulled. — Compagnie de Nav. Union v. Rascony, (1876), 20 L. C. J. 306. The fact that a railway company has not made the necessary deposit, nor commenced construction within the three years prescribed by its charter, does not ipso facto extinguish the company, nor revoke its charter; and at all events extinction can only be procured upon special suit by the Attorney General. — Roy v. La Compagnie du Chemin de fer Quebec, (1888), 14 Q. L. R. 255. The Attorney-General of the Province is the sole dominus of a suit instituted by him in his official capacity, whether there by a relator or not; accordingly a mandamus will not lie at the instance of a relator to compel him to proceed in an action. Neither need he obtain leave of the Court before discontinuing such proceeding. — Casgrain v. Atlantic & Northwest Railway Company, (1895) A. C. 282, affirming s. c., (1892), Q. R., 2 Q. B. 305. See also, Dominion Salvage & Wrecking Company v. Attorney-General, (1892), 21 S. C. R. 72; Loranger v. Montreal Telegraph Company, (1882), 5 L. N. 429. A joint-stock company formed under this Act, which after receipt of subscriptions to its capital stock, elects and re-elects directors, acts through the latter at several meetings and sells merchandise, though such sale is not followed by delivery of the goods, goes "into actual operation" so as to avoid the forfeiture intended by this section. — Cie. Générale des Boissons Canadiennes v. Attorney-General of Quebec, (1906), Q. R. 15 K. B. 536. See also: Compagnie de Navigation v. Christin, (1880), 4 L. N. 162.

Powers to be subject to this section. 6021. All powers given to the company by the letters patent or supplementary letters patent, shall be exercised subject to the provisions and restrictions contained in this section.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 20. A foreign corporation can not acquire land without the permission of the Crown or the authority of the legislature, and, therefore, a foreign corporation, not having such permission or authority, has no right of action against a vendor of land in the Province of Quebec, for damages by reason of eviction from such land. — Chaudière Gold Mining Company v. Desbarats, (1873), 17 L. C. J. 275, affirming s. c., (1870), 15 L. C. J. 44, and s. c., (1869), 13 L. C. J. 182.

General corporate powers. 6022. The company may acquire, hold, hypothecate, sell and alienate immovable property requisite for the carrying on of its undertaking, and shall forthwith become and be vested with all property and rights, moveable and immovable, theretofore held by it or for it under any trust created with a view to its incorporation, and with all the powers, privileges, and immunities requisite or incidental to the carrying on of its undertaking.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 21. See annotations to §§ 6042, 6043, 6074. When a single shareholder sues to have an agreement declared ultra vires, he must prove that damage has been thereby occasioned to himself, personally. — Montreal Telegraph Company v. Low, (1873), 27 L. C. J. 257, reversing s. c., (1881), 25 L. C. J. 332. A company incorporated as a land and loan company can not lawfully purchase or deal in claims of a speculative character. — Land & Loan Company v. Fraser, (1889), M. L. R., 5 S. C. 392. A company whose charter provides that it may build, sell, lease, and otherwise deal with elevators may, upon the lease of an elevator, from an elevator company, guarantee the bonds issued by such elevator company, for the price of the elevator bought by the latter. — Royal Trust Company v. Great Northern Elevator Company, (1906), Q. R., 30 S. C. 499.

Head office of the company. Other offices. 6023. The company shall, at all times, have an office in the place in which its chief place of business is situate, which shall be the legal domicile of the company; and notice of the situation of such office and of any change therein shall be published in the Quebec Official Gazette. The company may establish such other offices and agencies elsewhere as it deems expedient.

Contracts, etc., when binding on company. No individual liability. Proviso. 6024. Every contract, agreement, engagement, or bargain made, and every bill of exchange drawn, accepted, or indorsed, and every promissory note and cheque made, drawn, or indorsed on behalf of the company, by any agent, officer, or servant of the company, in general accordance with his powers as such under the by-laws of the company, shall be binding upon the company; and in no case shall it be necessary to have the seal of the company affixed to any such contract, agreement, engagement, bargain, bill of exchange, promissory note, or cheque, or to prove that the same was made, drawn, accepted, or indorsed, as the case may be, in pursuance of any by-law or resolution; and the person so acting as agent, officer, or servant of the company shall not be thereby subjected individually to any liability whatsoever to any third person therefor; provided always, that nothing in this section shall authorize the company to issue any note payable to the bearer thereof, or any promissory note intended to be circulated as money, or as the note of a bank or to engage in the business of banking or insurance.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 23; Imp. §§ 76, 77. Corporations are bound by the acts of their agents in the same way and to the same extent as natural persons. — Ferrie v. The Wardens of the House of Industry, (1845), 1 Rev. Leg. 27. Where the charter of a corporation does not provide for the exercise of its powers, otherwise than by giving it the right to make by-laws for the "government of the institution and of the officers and servants belonging thereto," and no such by-laws are made, the persons who are admitted to have de facto acted as the governing board of the body, will be held to be its duly authorized agents, whose acts, performed within the limits of the charter, are binding upon it. — Hôpital du Sacré-Cœur v. Lefebvre, (1891), 17 Q. L. R. 35. But unlawful acts of the managing director of a company, designed to bring about the ruin of a third party, do not bind the company or make it responsible for damages, unless approved or ratified by the company. — Bury v. Corriveau Silk Mills Company, (1887), M. L. R., 3 S. C. 218. Warehouse receipts of a cold storage company fraudulently signed by officers of the company, expressly authorized by the by-laws to sign such receipts, are valid as between the company and third persons acting in good faith. — Ward v. Montreal Cold Storage & Freezing Company, (1904), Q. R., 26 S. C. 310. A contract projected between a private person and a company to be formed is of no effect as respects the latter after its incorporation. Having no legal existence, it can not ratify such a contract. To make it effective, it is necessary for the company, after its incorporation, through its board of directors to become formally bound in a manner provided by its by-laws. — Duquenne v. La Compagnie Générale des Boissons Canadiennes, (1907), Q. R., 31 S. C. 409. The party who contracts such an obligation is personally liable for the execution of the contract if the company after its organization, repudiates it. — Irwin v. Lessard, (1889), 17 Rev. Leg. 589. A company which, with its president, appropriates shares in its capital stock to the prejudice of a shareholder, is bound to indemnify such shareholder for the damage he may suffer. — Acer v. Percy, (1901), 5 Q. P. R. 401. The president of a company may institute and prosecute suits for the company and appoint attorneys ad litem, without express delegation of power or resolution of the board of directors. — Standard Trust Company v. South Shore Railway Co., (1901), 5 Q. P. R. 257. In Bolt & Iron Company v. Gougeon, (1884), 7 L. N. 40, a deed of composition and discharge, signed by the secretary of a company, without special authority to that end, was held not binding on the company.

§ 12. Obtaining of further powers.

Company may authorize directors to apply for extended powers. 6025. The company may, from time to time, by a resolution passed by the votes of shareholders representing at least two-thirds in value of the subscribed stock of the company, at a special general meeting called for the purpose, authorize the directors to apply for supplementary letters patent, extending the powers of the company to such other purposes or objects for which a company may be incorporated under this section, as are defined in the resolution.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 24; Imp. § 9.

Application therefor by directors. 6026. The directors may, at any time within six months after the passing of any such resolution, apply to the Lieutenant-Governor for the issue of such supplementary letters patent.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 25.

Proof to be furnished. Provincial Secretary. 6027. Before such supplementary letters patent are issued, the petitioners shall establish, to the satisfaction of the Provincial Secretary, the due passing of the resolution authorizing the petition, and for that purpose the Provincial Secretary shall take and keep of record any requisite evidence in writing, by oath or affirmation.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 26; Imp. § 9.

Grant of supplementary letters patent. Notice of issue thereof, etc. 6028. Upon due proof so made, the Lieutenant-Governor may grant supplementary letters patent extending the powers of the company to all or any of the objects defined in the resolution; and notice thereof shall be forthwith given by the Provincial Secretary, in the Quebec Official Gazette, according to form D; and, from the date of the supplementary letters patent, the undertaking of the company shall extend to and include the other purposes or objects set out in the supplementary letters patent as fully as if such other purposes or objects were mentioned in the original letters patent or the charter; and every such notice shall forthwith be, by the company to which the notice relates, inserted in newspapers in accordance with the provisions of article 6011.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 27; Imp. § 9 (6).

Penalty. 6029. If the company fails or neglects to cause the notice mentioned in article 6028 to be inserted, it shall be guilty of an offence and liable, on summary conviction before two justices of the peace, to a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars for each day that such failure or neglect continues.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 28; Imp. § 9 (7).

§ 13. Liability of shareholders.

Liability limited to amount unpaid on stock. 6030. The shareholders of the company shall not, as such, be responsible for any act, default or liability of the company, or for any engagement, claim, payment, loss, injury, transaction, matter, or thing relating to or connected with the company, beyond the amount unpaid on their respective shares in the capital stock thereof.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 29; Imp. § 123. See annotations to § 6031, infra.

Liability of shareholders. When shareholders liable to action thereon, etc. Defences that may be pleaded, etc. 6031. 1. Every shareholder shall, until the whole amount of his shares has been paid up, be individually liable to the creditors of the company to an amount equal to that not paid up thereon; but he shall not be liable to an action therefor by any creditor until an execution at the suit of such creditor against the company has been returned unsatisfied in whole or in part; and the amount due on such execution, not exceeding the amount unpaid on his shares as foresaid, shall be the amount recoverable, with costs, from such shareholder; and any amount so recoverable, if paid by the shareholder, shall be considered as paid on his shares. 2. Any shareholder may plead by way of defence in whole or in part any compensation or set-off which he can set up against the company, except a claim for unpaid dividends, or a salary or allowance as a president or a director of the company.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 30; Imp. § 123. For liability of shareholders for calls see annotations to §§ 6048, and 6051. infra. Where the members of a corporation have regularly passed a resolution, they can not be held personally responsible therefor, even when such resolution was in contravention of a statute which established punishment by fine for such contravention. — Audette v. Duhamel, (1868), 1 Rev. Leg. 52. One who joins with others in an application for the incorporation of a joint stock company, and permits his name to be mentioned in the letters patent, as a subscriber for a particular number of shares, is a shareholder and can not, in case the company is wound up, repudiate his liability as a contributor, on the ground that the company was never formally organized and could not, therefore, incur the obligation which brought it into liquidation. — Lafleur v. Saint Armour, (1909), Q. R., 18 K. B. 400. A shareholder in an insolvent railway company can not avoid his liability to a judgment creditor of the company for the amount due on his unpaid stock, by claiming to compensate the same with a debt due to him by the company where no calls on the unpaid stock have been made by the company. — Pyland v. Delisle, (1869), 14 L. C. J. 12, reversing, s. c., (1867), 12 L. C. J. 29.

Trustees, etc., not personally liable. 6032. No person holding stock in the company as an executor, administrator, tutor, curator, guardian, or trustee of or for any person named in the books of the company as being so represented by him, shall be personally subject to liability as a shareholder; but the estate and funds in the hands of such person shall be liable in like manner, and to the same extent, as the testator or intestate, or the minor, ward, or interdicted person, or the person interested in such trust fund would be, if living and competent to act and holding such stock in his own name; and no person holding such stock as collateral security shall be personally subject to such liability, but the person pledging such stock shall be considered as holding the same and shall be liable as a shareholder accordingly.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 31; Imp. §§ 126, 127.

Trustees, etc., may vote. 6033. Every such executor, administrator, tutor, curator, guardian, or trustee, shall represent the stock held by him, at all meetings of the company, and may vote thereon as a shareholder; and every person who pledges his stock may represent the same at all such meetings and, notwithstanding such pledge, vote thereon as a shareholder.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 32.

Prospectus, what to specify. 6034. Every prospectus of the company, and every notice inviting persons to subscribe for shares in the company, shall specify the dates and the names of the parties to any contract entered into by the company, or the promoters, directors or trustees thereof, before the issue of such prospectus or notice, whether subject to adoption by the directors, or the company, or otherwise; and every prospectus or notice which does not specify the same shall, with respect to any person who takes shares in the company on the faith of such prospectus or notice, and who has not had notice of such contract, be deemed fraudulent on the part of the promoters, directors, and officers of the company who knowingly issue such prospectus or notice.

§ 14. Holding stock of other companies.

Conditions for purchase of stock of other companies. 6035. The company shall not use any of its funds in the purchase of stock in any other corporation, unless and until the directors have been expressly authorized by a by-law passed by them for the purpose and sanctioned by a vote of not less than two-thirds in value of the capital stock represented at a general meeting of the company duly called for considering the subject of the by-law; but if the letters patent authorize such purchase, it shall not be necessary to pass such by-law.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 34. Where a projected company is in the course of formation to buy up the stock and take over the business of several existing companies, a sale to the promoters of the shares in one of them, to be paid for by the stock of the new company, such shares to remain in the hands of a third party in trust, until certain conditions have been fulfilled, is a conditional sale, and failing the fulfillment of conditions, the seller has a right to demand the rescission of the transaction. — Dominion Textile Company v. Angers, (1908), 41 S. C. R. 185, affirming s. c., (1908), Q. R., 18 K. B. 63, which affirmed s. c., (1906), Q. R., 30 S. C. 56.

§ 15. Capital Stock.

Stock of what to consist. Payable in cash. Exception. Annual report of paid up stock. Property accounts what to represent. No stock for increased value of property. Watering forbidden. Capitalization of surplus earnings, etc., forbidden. Fictitious capitalization, etc., forbidden. 6036. 1. The capital stock of the company shall consist of that portion of the amount authorized by the charter, which shall have been bona fide subscribed for and allotted, and shall be paid in cash, unless payment therefor in some other manner has been agreed upon by a contract filed with the Provincial Secretary at or before the issue of such shares. The amount of paid up capital, from year to year, shall be published annually in a report to the shareholders of the company. 2. The property accounts of a company shall represent only the amount of the actual bona fide outlay necessary for the undertaking. No stock shall be issued to represent the increased value of any property. Any such issue shall be null and void. 3. The practice commonly known as watering of stock, is prohibited, and all stock so issued shall be null and void. 4. The capitalization of surplus earnings, and the issue of stock to represent such capitalized surplus are also prohibited, and all stock so issued shall be null and void, and the directors consenting to such issue of stock shall be jointly and severally liable to the holders thereof for the reimbursement of the amount paid for such stock. 5. Every form and manner of fictitious capitalization of stock in a company, or the issuing of stock which is not represented by a legitimate and necessary expenditure in the interest of such company, and not represented, with the exception mentioned in paragraph 1 of this article, by an amount in cash paid into the treasury of the company, which has been expended for the promotion of the objects of the company, is prohibited, and all such stock shall be null and void.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 35.

Stock to be moveable property. How transferable. 6037. The stock of the company shall be moveable property, and shall be transferable, in such manner, and subject to all such conditions and restrictions, as are prescribed by this section or by the letters patent or by-laws of the company.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 36; Imp. § 22.

Allotment of stock. 6038. If the letters patent, or the supplementary letters patent, make no other definite provision, the stock of the company, or any increased amount thereof, so far as it is not allotted thereby, shall be allotted at such times and in such manner as the directors prescribe by by-law.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 37; Imp. §§ 85, 86. For liability of shareholders on calls see annotations to §§ 6048 and 6051, infra. A subscription for shares in the capital stock of a joint stock company, becomes a contract when the company accepts and allots the shares. Such acceptance and allotment may be by implication, as well as express. Hence, a transfer to a third party of the amount paid for the shares applied for, followed by a notice to subscriber, is an acceptance of the subscription and an implied allotment, — Robert v. Eastern Townships Bank, (1907) Q. R. 17 K. B. 157. New stock issued and allotted in shares to an actual stockholder by a joint stock company that has power to increase its capital, accrues to the principal or original stock by right of accession. Hence, in the case of shares held subject to usufruct, the proprietor, and not the usufructuary, is entitled to the benefit of such new issue of stock. — Lamb v. Lamb, (1909), Q. R., 10 K. B. 49.

Preferred stock. Effect as to control of affairs, etc. Conditions precedent to effect of by-law. Rights of preference shareholders. Creditors not affected. 6039. 1. The directors of the company may make a by-law for creating and issuing any part of the capital stock as preferred stock, giving the same such preference and priority as respects dividends, and in any other respect, over ordinary stock, as is declared by the by-law. 2. The by-law may provide that the holders of such preferred stock shall have the right to select a certain stated proportion of the board of directors, or may give them such other control over the affairs of the company as is considered expedient. 3. No such by-law shall have any force or effect until after it has been sanctioned by a vote of three-fourths of the shareholders, present in person or by proxy at a general meeting of the company duly called for considering the same, and representing two-thirds of the stock of the company, or unanimously sanctioned in writing by the shareholders of the company. If, however, the by-law be sanctioned by two-thirds in value of the shareholders, it shall come into force only after it has been approved by the Lieutenant-Governor. Such approval shall not be given until after a notice of one month has been sent by registered letter to all the shareholders. 4. Holders of shares of such preferred stock shall be shareholders within the meaning of this section, and shall in all respects possess the rights and be subject to the liabilities of shareholders within the meaning of this section; provided, however, that in respect of dividends and in any other respect declared by by-law as authorized herein, they shall, as against the ordinary shareholders, be entitled to the preferences and rights given by such by-laws. 5. Nothing in this article contained, or done in pursuance thereof, shall affect the rights of creditors of any company.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 38.

Company need not see to execution of trust. 6040. The company shall not be bound to see to the execution of any trust, whether express, implied, or constructive, in respect of any share; and the receipt of the shareholder in whose name the same stands in the books of the company, shall be a valid and binding discharge to the company for any dividend or money payable in respect of such share, and whether or not notice of such trust has been given to the company; and the company shall not be bound to see to the application of the money paid upon such receipt.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 39; Imp. § 27.

§ 16. Increase or reduction of capital.

Subdivision of shares. Consolidation of shares. Purchase of fractional shares for consolidation. 6041. 1. The directors of the company may, at any time, make a by-law subdividing the existing shares into shares of a smaller amount. 2. The directors may also, at any time, whenever the par value of the existing shares of the company is less than one hundred dollars each, make a by-law consolidating them into shares of a larger par value; but no such consolidated share shall exceed the par value of one hundred dollars. 3. For the purpose of such consolidation, the company may purchase fractions of shares, and the company shall sell any such shares held by them, within a delay of two years.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 40; Imp. § 41.

Increase of capital. By-law therefor. 6042. 1. The directors may, at any time after ninety per cent of the capital stock of the company has been taken up and fifty per cent thereon paid in, make a by-law for increasing the capital stock to any amount which they consider requisite for the due carrying out of the objects of the company. 2. Such by-law shall declare the number of the shares of such stock, and may prescribe the manner in which the same shall be allotted; and in default of its so doing, the control of such allotment shall vest absolutely in the directors.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 41; Imp. § 41. Even where the charter of a company allows the capital to be increased, the directors can not augment the original capital where the business of the company does not require it, and there is sufficient cash on hand to meet all the requirements of the business, and especially where such increase is sought to be made with a view to maintaining the directors in office. — Perreault v. Milot, (1886), 14 Rev. Leg. 417; 12 Q. L. R. 248.

Reduction of capital. By-law therefor. Liability to creditors not affected. 6043. 1. The directors may, at any time, make a by-law for reducing the capital stock of the company to any amount which they consider advisable and sufficient for the due carrying out of its undertaking. 2. Such by-law shall declare the number and value of the shares of the stock as so reduced, and the allotment thereof, or the manner in which the same shall be made. 3. The liability of shareholders to persons who were, at the time of the reduction of the capital, creditors of the company, shall remain the same as if the capital had not been reduced.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 42; Imp. § 46. A company can not, unless authorized by its charter, or a special law, reduce its capital, purchase its own shares, or accept a surrender of its shares. Such transactions are ultra vires and void, and do not release the shareholders from their obligation to pay the value of their shares. — Ross v. Fiset, (1882), 8 Q. L. R. 251; Ross v. Dusablon, (1883), 10 Q. L. R. 74. Where the act incorporating a company provided that the capital stock should be of a certain amount and that the company might commence business when that amount should have been subscribed and one-third of it paid in, a resolution whereby the directors pretended to reduce the stock to lessen that amount was ultra vires, null and void. — Molson's Bank v. Stoddart, (1890), M. L. R., 6 S. C. 18. In Ross v. Worthington, (1882), 5 L. N. 140, it was held that a transfer of shares from a shareholder in a joint stock company which is made with the object and has the effect of reducing the capital stock of the company, is null, and all resolutions of the directors authorizing such transfer are illegal and ultra vires.

Approval and confirmation of by-law. 6044. No by-law for increasing or reducing the capital stock of the company, or for subdividing the shares, shall have any force or effect until it is approved by the votes of shareholders representing at least two-thirds in value of all the subscribed stock of the company, at a special general meeting of the company duly called for considering the same, and afterwards confirmed by supplementary letters patent.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 43; Imp. § § 46, 50.

Application for supplementary letters patent. By-law to be produced with application. Evidence that may be taken. 6045. 1. At any time, not more than six months after the sanction of such by-law, the directors may apply to the Lieutenant-Governor, for the issue of supplementary letters patent to confirm the same. 2. The directors shall, with such application, produce a copy of such by-law, under the seal of the company, and signed by the president or vice-president and the secretary and establish to the satisfaction of the Provincial Secretary, the due passage and approval of such by-law, and the expediency and bona fide character of the increase or reduction of capital or subdivision of shares, as the case may be, thereby provided for. 3. The Provincial Secretary shall, for that purpose, take and keep of record any requisite evidence in writing, by oath or affirmation.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 44.

Granting of supplementary letters patent. Notice. Effect of letters patent. 6046. Upon due proof so made, the Lieutenant-Governor may grant such supplementary letters patent, and notice thereof shall be forthwith given by the Provincial Secretary in the Quebec Official Gazette, according to form E: and thereupon, from the date of the supplementary letters patent, the capital stock of the company shall be and remain increased or reduced, or the shares shall be sub-divided, as the case may be, to the amount, in the manner and subject to the conditions set forth by such by-law; and the whole of the stock, as so increased or reduced, shall become subject to the provisions of this section, in like manner as if every part thereof had been or formed part of the stock of the company originally subscribed.

§ 17. Calls.

Calls on unpaid shares. 6047. Not less than ten per cent. upon the allotted shares of stock of the company shall, by means of one or more calls, be called in and made payable within one year from the incorporation of the company; the residue when and as the letters patent, or the provisions of this section, or the by-laws of the company direct.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 46.

Call when due. Interest on overdue calls. 6048. A call shall be deemed to have been made at the time when the resolution of the directors authorizing such call was passed; and if a shareholder fails to pay any call due by him, on or before the day appointed for the payment thereof, he shall be liable to pay interest for the same, at the rate of six per cent. per annum, from the day appointed for payment to the time of actual payment thereof.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 47. In the absence of a special agreement between the organizers of a joint stock company, no call can be made prior to the organization of the Corporation, because, until then, there is no board of directors capable of making such call. — Cazelois v. Picotte, (1900), Q. R., 18 S. C. 538. The enactment of a by-law to regulate the mode in which the call shall be made is not imperative; where no by-law exists, the calls may be made as prescribed by the directors. — Rascony v. Cotton Manufacturing Company, (1886), M. L. R., 2 S. C. 381.

Payment in advance on shares. Interest allowable. 6049. The directors may, if they think fit, receive from any shareholder willing to advance the same, all or any part of the amounts due on the shares held by such shareholder, beyond the sums then actually called for: and upon the moneys so paid in advance, or so much thereof as, from time to time, exceeds the amount of the call then made upon the shares in respect of which such advance is made, the company may pay interest at such rate, not exceeding eight per cent per annum, as the shareholders who pay such sum in advance and the directors agree upon.

Forfeiture of shares for non-payment of calls. Proviso. 6050. If, after such demand or notice as is prescribed by the letters patent, or by resolution of the directors, or by the by-laws of the company, any call made upon any share is not paid within such time as, by such letters patent or by resolution of the directors or by the by-laws, is limited in that behalf, the directors, in their discretion, by vote to that effect duly recorded in their minutes, may summarily declare forfeited any shares whereon such payment has not been made; and the same shall thereupon become the property of the company and may be disposed of as, by the by-laws of the company or otherwise, they prescribe; but, notwithstanding such forfeiture, the holder of such shares at the time of forfeiture shall continue liable to the then creditors of the company for the full amount unpaid on such shares at the time of forfeiture, less any sums which are subsequently received by the company in respect thereof.

7 Edw. 7. c. 48, § 49.

Enforcement of payment by action. What must be alleged and proved. Certain certificate prima facie proof. 6051. The directors may, if they see fit, instead of declaring forfeited any share or shares, enforce payment of all calls, and interest thereon, by action in any court of competent jurisdiction; and in such action it shall not be necessary to set forth the special matter, but it shall be sufficient to declare that the defendant is a holder of one share or more, stating the number of shares, and is indebted in the sum of money to which the calls in arrears amount, in respect of one call or more, upon one share or more, stating the number of calls and the amount of each call, whereby an action has accrued to the company under this section. A certificate under the seal of the company, and purporting to be signed by any of its officers, to the effect that the defendant is a shareholder, that such calls have been made, and that so much is due by him thereon, shall be received in all courts as prima facie evidence to that effect.

7 Edw. 7. c. 48, § 50. In an action by a joint stock company for calls on shares, it was held that the certificate, which the law makes prima facie evidence, is not rendered ineffectual by the mere denial of the defendant, but continues to be operative until some evidence is adduced tending to disprove the facts of which the certificate is offered as evidence. — Stadatona Insurance Company v. Trudel, (1879), 6 Q. L. R. 31, reversing s. c., (1878), 5 Q. L. R. 133. Proof that notices, claiming payment of calls, were mailed to the shareholders is sufficient evidence that such calls were made. — Ross v. Converse, (1883), 27 L. C. J., 143; 6 L. N. 67. No calls can be made upon shares, unless the conditions precedent to such a demand have been fulfilled. — Massawippi Railroad Company v. Walker, (1871), 3 Rev. Leg. 450. Where, on an action for calls, the defendant pleaded that the company was insolvent at the time the shares were transferred to him, and that the transfer had been obtained by fraud, and that the company was illegally incorporated, the plea was dismissed, the evidence showing that the defendant fully understood the position of the company when he accepted the transfer. — Colonial Building Association v. Fletcher, (1881), 4 L. N., 374. Seem, that a purchaser, subsequently to incorporation of shares subscribed prior to incorporation, who has paid a call after his purchase, is estopped from contesting the validity of the original subscription. — MacDougall v. Union Navigation Company, (1877), 21 L. C. J. 63. Defects in the organization of a company can not be pleaded in an action for calls. — Cie. de Chemin de Fer de Pége Pointe Claire v. Valois, (1881), 4 L. N., 334, following Windsor Hotel Company v. Lewis, (1881), 26 L. C. J., 29; 4 L. N., 331, and Windsor Hotel Company v. Murphy, (1877), 1 L. N. 74. Thus, in an action by a corporation to enforce payment of calls, defendant can not plead that the conditions of the articles of incorporation have not been complied with, and that the company has, for more than a year, carried on its business in violation of the provisions of the statutes incorporating it. — Victoria Montreal Fire Insurance Company v. O'Neil, (1901), 5 Q. P. R. 4. But see Quebec & Richmond Railway Company v. Dawson, (1851), 1 L. C. R. 366 and Brown v. Dominion Salvage Company (1891), 20 Rev. Leg. where, seem, contrary conclusions were reached. Subscription for stock may be conditional and in such case the non-fulfillment of condition will operate as a bar to any right of action for calls on stock. — Rodgers v. Laurin, (1863), 13 L. C. J. 175. For other cases involving the question of the alleged shareholders' liability where the defence was set up that the subscription was conditional, see: Jones v. Montreal Cotton Company, (1878), 1 L. N. 450; Stansted, Shefford & Chambly Railway Company v. Brigham, (1866), 17 L. C. R. 54; Connecticut & Passumpsic River Railway Company v. Comstock, (1870), 1 Rev. Leg. 589; Brown v. Dominion Salvage Company, (1891), 20 Rev. Leg. 557 — (an appeal from this decision to the Supreme Court was quashed for want of jurisdiction), — s. c., (1892), 20 S. C. R. 203; 21 S. C. R. 72; Stadacona Insurance Company v. Cabana, (1882), 2 Dorion 380; Compagnie de Navigation Union v. Cristin & Valois, (1878), 2 L. N. 27. The fact that the capital stock of a company has not been wholly subscribed, is not a defence to an action by the company against a shareholder for calls on shares subscribed for by him. — Rascony v. Cotton Manufacturing Company, (1886), M. L. R., 2 S. C. 381. Parol evidence is not admissible to prove that a subscription of stock was conditional, when the writing contains, on the face of it, an absolute promise. — Wilson v. Société de Construction de Soulanges, (1880), 3 L. N. 79; and see National Insurance Company v. Chevrier, (1878), 1 L. N. 591; Dick v. Canada Jute Company, (1886), 30 L. C. J. 188; Banque d'Hochelaga v. Garth, (1886), M. L. R., 2 S. C. 202. The latter case was reversed by Queens Bench on this point and the judgment of the Queens Bench was affirmed, with modifications, by the Privy Council, Banque d'Hochelaga v. Murray, (1890), 15 A. C. 414, 13 L. N. 257. An agreement between a promoter of a company and a subscriber that the latter shall pay for his stock in services, will not bind the company. — National Insurance Company v. Hatton, (1879), 24 L. C. J. 26. Illegal acts on the part of the directors of the company, can not be set up in defence to an action for calls by liquidators or assignees representing the creditors of the company. — Ross v. The Canada Agricultural Insurance Company, (1881), 5 L. N. 23. As to the defences available by a shareholder in a suit by the liquidators of the company, which has been placed in liquidation pending the action, see Victoria Montreal Fire Insurance Company v. Derome, (1902), Q. R. 21, S. C. 319. In Compagnie du Cap Gibralter v. Londe, (1889), M. L. R. 5 S. C. 127, it was held that, although an incorporated company, which has become completely disorganized and insolvent, always retains its legal existence so long as it is not extinct, yet, it can not bring action to recover from shareholders the balance due on their subscriptions to stock unless it has been duly authorized to do so. But see Compagnie d'Instruments Agricoles v. Hebert, (1875), 2 Q. L. R. 182. Subscriptions of stock obtained by surprise, fraud, and false statements of the affairs of the company made by its officers and directors are null, and the shareholders thus deceived may recover back what they have paid on their shares. — Glen Brick Company v. Schackell, (1870), 2 Rev. Leg. 625. But see Compagnie de Navigation Union v. Rascony, (1876), 20 L. C. J. 306. But where the purchaser of shares claiming that he was deceived as to their value, ratifies the contract by acting as shareholder of the company, he can not plead fraud in an action against him, by the company, for the value of the shares. — Montplaisir v. Banque Ville Marie, (1889), 18 Rev. Leg. 153, 33 L. C. J. 317. See also, Coté v. Stadacona Insurance Company, (1881), 6 S. C. R. 194, reversing, s. c., (1880), 6 Q. L. R. 147, 10 Rev. Leg. 289. Where a shareholder transfers stock, not fully paid, to a solvent person, all the calls then due being paid, and the transfer has been acquiesced in by the company, the original stockholder can not afterwards be called upon to pay the remaining calls. — Ross v. Barigault, Queens Bench, Quebec, May 7th, 1888.

§ 18. Transfer of shares.

Transfer of shares valid only after entry in register. Exception as to listed shares represented by scrip. 6052. 1. No transfer of shares, unless made by sale under execution, or under the decree, order, or judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction, shall be valid for any purpose, until entry thereof is duly made in the register of transfers, except for the purpose of exhibiting the rights of the parties thereto towards each other, and of rendering the transferee liable, in the meantime, jointly and severally, with the transferor, to the company and its creditors. 2. This article shall not apply to companies whose stock is listed and dealt with on any recognized stock exchange, by means of scrip commonly in use, indorsed in blank, and transferable by delivery, which shall constitute valid transfers; but the scrip-holder shall not be entitled to vote upon the shares until they are registered in his name in the books of the company.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 51; Imp. §§ 25, 37. An agreement among all the shareholders of a joint stock company to sell or transfer shares on certain conditions, is not equivalent to a by-law of the company for such purpose, and has no effect as against third parties. — Bernard v. Duplessis Shoe Machinery Company, (1907), Q. R. 31, S. C. 362; Bernard v. Desautels, (1909), Q. R. 19 K. B. 114.

Liability of directors for transfers in certain cases. How it may be avoided. 6053. No transfer of shares, whereof the whole amount has not been paid in, shall be made without the consent of the directors; and whenever any transfer of shares not fully paid in has been made with such consent, to a person who is not apparently of sufficient means to fully pay up such shares, the directors shall be jointly and severally liable to the creditors of the company, in the same manner and to the same extent as the transferring shareholder, but for such transfer, would have been; but if any director present when any such transfer is allowed does forthwith, or if any director then absent does, within twenty-four hours after he becomes aware thereof and is able so to do, enter on the minute book of the board of directors his protest against the same, and within eight days thereafter publishes such protest in at least one newspaper published at the place in which the head office or chief place of business of the company is situated, or, if there is no newspaper there published, then in the newspaper published nearest thereto, such director may thereby and not otherwise, exonerate himself from such liability.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 52.

Transmission of shares otherwise than by transfer. Petition for order of court in such cases. Effect of order. Notice of petition. Proviso as to costs. 6054. 1. Whenever the interest in any shares of the capital stock of the company is transmitted by the death of any shareholder or otherwise, or whenever the ownership of or legal right of possession in any shares changes by any lawful means, other than by transfer according to the provisions of this section, and the directors of the company entertain reasonable doubts as to the legality of any claim to such shares, the company may make and file, in the Superior Court in and for the district in which the principal office of the company is situated, a petition in writing, addressed to the court or to one of the judges thereof, setting forth the facts and the number of shares previously belonging to the person in whose name such shares stand in the books of the company, and praying for an order or judgment adjudicating and awarding the said shares to the persons legally entitled to the same, by which order or judgment the company shall be guided and held fully harmless and indemnified and released from every other claim to the said shares or arising in respect thereof. 2. Notice of the intention to present such petition shall be given to the person claiming such shares, or to the attorney of such person duly authorized for the purpose, who shall, upon the filing of such petition, establish his right to the shares referred to in such petition; and the time to plead and all other proceedings in such cases, shall be the same as those observed in analogous cases before the said Superior Court; provided always, that the costs and expenses of procuring such order or judgment shall be paid by the person or persons to whom such shares are declared lawfully to belong, and that such shares shall not be transferred in the books of the company until such costs and expenses are paid, saving the recourse of such person against any person contesting his right to such shares.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 53.

Restriction of transfer. 6055. No share shall be transferable until all previous calls thereon are fully paid in.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 53. A stock certificate issued by a joint stock company is not a documentary title to fully paid up shares, and one who becomes a holder, by endorsement, of such a certificate, is not entitled to be registered as the owner of paid up stock and to a certificate from the company to that effect. — Beauchemin v. Richelieu Foundry Company, (1908), Q. R., 34 S. C. 261. Where there was an agreement to transfer shares not fully paid up, and the company refused to register the transferee, it was held, in an action against the transferor for the paid up shares, or their equivalent in cash, that the refusal of the company to transfer terminated the agreement. — O'Brien v. Weaver, (1880), 3 L. N. 111.

Transfer by debtor to company. 6056. The directors may decline to register any transfer of shares belonging to any shareholder who is indebted to the company.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 55.

Transfer by representative. 6057. Any transfer of the shares or other interest of a deceased shareholder, made by his representative, shall, notwithstanding such representative is not himself a shareholder, be of the same validity as if he had been a shareholder at the time of his execution of the instrument of transfer.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 56; Imp. § 29.

§ 19. Borrowing powers.

Powers. 6058. 1. If authorized by by-law, sanctioned by a vote of not less than two-thirds in value of the subscribed stock of the company represented at a general meeting duly called for considering the by-law, the directors may, from time to time: a) Borrow money upon the credit of the company; b) Limit or increase the amount to be borrowed; c) Issue bonds, debentures, or other securities of the company and pledge or sell the same for such sums and at such prices as may be deemed expedient; but no such bonds, debentures, or other securities shall be for a less sum than one hundred dollars each; d) Hypothecate, or pledge the immoveable property of the company or pledge its moveable property, or do both, to secure any such bonds, debentures, or other securities and any money borrowed for the purposes of the company; e) Give, through their duly authorized officers, to one or more trustees, to secure the payment of the bonds or debentures, a hypothec upon the immoveable property of the company, mentioning the issue and the amount of the bonds or debentures so secured; and such hypothec, after having been registered, shall, notwithstanding article 2017 of the Civil Code, be a valid security in favor of the holders of such bonds or debentures, whether issued before or after the execution of such hypothec. 2. The limitations and restrictions contained in this article shall not apply to the borrowing of money by the company on bills of exchange or promissory notes made, drawn, accepted, or endorsed by or on behalf of the company.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 57. A company may enter into an agreement to pay for loans made to it, in the stock of a company. — Hibbard v. Baylis, (1879), 2 L. N. 208.

§ 20. Dividends.

Dividend not to impair capital. Dividend may be supplemented out of reserve fund. Liability of directors. 6059. 1. No dividend shall be declared which will impair the capital of the company. 2. The annual dividend may, however, be supplemented or paid entirely out of the reserve fund, but payment of the dividend in this way must be announced to the shareholders at the annual meeting, and duly authorized by a resolution of the company. 3. In default of such announcement and resolution, the directors of the company shall, subject to the provisions of article 6070, be jointly and severally liable to the creditors of the company for the amount of the dividend so paid out of the reserve fund.

7 Edw. 7. c. 48, § 58.

Debts due company may be deducted. 6060. The directors may deduct from the dividends payable to any shareholder, all such sums of money as are due from him to the company, on account of calls or otherwise.

7 Edw. 7. c. 48, § 59.

§ 21. Directors and their powers.

Board of directors. 6061. The affairs of the company shall be managed by a board of not more than fifteen and not less than three directors.

7 Edw. 7. c. 48, § 60.

Provisional directors. Provisions if they are not replaced within six months. 6062. The persons named as such, in the letters patent, shall be the directors of the company, until replaced by others duly appointed in their stead. If not so replaced within six months from the date of the incorporation of the company, any of said persons or, if they be not living, their heirs or assigns, may cause a meeting to be held by giving fifteen clear days' notice of the time and place thereof in the Quebec Official Gazette, and the said persons, their heirs or assigns present at such meeting, may pass by-laws, allot stock, and elect directors.

7 Edw. 7. c. 48, § 61. Where persons allow their names to be used as provisional directors of a projected company for the purpose of obtaining a charter for such company, and sign petitions to that effect, they are liable for fees of the attorney whose services they have retained in the promotion of the company. — Auger v. Corneillier, (1892), Q. R., 2 Q. B. 293.

Failure to elect directors at proper time. 6063. If, at any time, an election of directors is not made, or does not take effect at the proper time, the company shall not be held to be thereby dissolved; but such election may take place at any subsequent general meeting of the company duly called for that purpose; and the retiring directors shall continue in office until their successors are elected.

7 Edw. 7. c. 48, § 62.

Qualification of subsequent directors. 6064. No person shall be elected or appointed as a director thereafter unless he is a shareholder, owning stock absolutely in his own right, and to the amount required by the by-laws of the company, and not in arrears in respect of any call thereon.

7 Edw. 7. c. 48, § 63.

By-laws to increase or decrease directors, etc. 6065. The company may, by by-law, increase to not more than fifteen, or decrease to not less than three, the number of its directors, or may change the company's chief place of business provided such place be within the Province; but no by-law for either of the said purposes, shall be valid or acted upon, unless it is approved by a vote of at least two-thirds in value of the stock represented by the shareholders present at a special general meeting duly called for considering the by-laws, nor until a copy of such by-law, certified under the seal of the company, has been deposited with the Provincial Secretary, and has also been published in the Quebec Official Gazette.

7 Edw. 7. c. 48, § 64; 9 Edw. 7. c. 60, §§ 4, 5.

Election of directors. 6066. Directors of the company shall be elected by the shareholders, in general meeting of the company assembled, at some place within the Province, at such times, in such manner, and for such term, not exceeding two years, as the letters patent or, in default thereof, as the by-laws of the company prescribe.

7 Edw. 7. c. 48, § 65. Election of directors held at a meeting of which all the shareholders have not been notified, is void. — Milot v. Perreault, (1886), 12 Q. L. R., 193. Where an action has been taken to set aside an issue of shares, an action will, at the same time, lie to have the election of directors, who owe their positions to such issue of shares, declared void. — Ibid. See also, Gilman v. Robertson, (1884), M. L. R., 1 S. C. 5.

Mode and times of election. 6067. In the absence of other provisions in such behalf, in the letters patent or by-laws of the company: a) The election of directors shall take place yearly, and all the directors then in office shall retire, but, if otherwise qualified, they shall be eligible for re-election; b) Every election of directors shall be by ballot; c) Any vacancy occurring in the board of directors may be filled, for the remainder of the term, by the directors, from among the qualified shareholders of the company; d) The directors shall, from time to time, elect from among themselves a president and, if they see fit, a vice-president of the company; and may also appoint all other officers thereof.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 66.

Indemnification of directors in certain cases. 6068. Every director of the company may, with the consent of the company, given at any general meeting thereof, from time to time, and at all times, be indemnified and saved harmless out of the funds of the company, from and against all costs, charges and expenses which he sustains or incurs in or about any action, suit or proceeding which is brought, commenced or prosecuted against him, for or in respect of any act, deed, matter or thing made, done, or permitted by him, in or about the execution of the duties of his office; and also from and against all other costs, charges, and expenses which he sustains or incurs, in or about or in relation to the affairs thereof, except such costs, charges, or expenses as are occasioned by his own wilful neglect or default.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 67.

Powers, etc., of directors. 6069. 1. The directors may administer the affairs of the company in all things, and make or cause to be made for it, any kind of contract which it may, by law, enter into. 2. They may, from time to time, make by-laws not contrary to law, or to the letters patent of the company, for the following purposes: a) The regulating of the allotment of stock, the making of calls thereon, the payment thereof, the issue and registration of certificates of stock, the forfeiture of stock for non-payment, the disposal of forfeited stock and of the proceeds thereof, and the transfer of stock; b) The declaration and payment of dividends; c) The number of the directors, their term of service, the amount of their stock qualification, and their remuneration, if any; d) The appointment, functions, duties and removal of all agents, officers and servants of the company, the security to be given by them to the company and their remuneration; e) The time and the place within the Province for the holding of the annual meetings of the company, the calling of meetings, regular and special, of the board of directors and of the company, the quorum, the requirements as to proxies, and the procedure in all things at such meetings; f) The imposition and recovery of all penalties and forfeitures which admit of regulation by by-law; g) The conduct, in all other particulars, of the affairs of the company. 3. The directors may, from time to time, repeal, amend, or re-enact such by-laws; but every such by-law (except by-laws made respecting the matters set forth in sub-paragraph d of paragraph 2 of this article) and every repeal, amendment, or re-enactment thereof, unless in the meantime confirmed at a general meeting of the company, duly called for that purpose, shall have effect only until the next annual meeting of the company, and in default of confirmation thereat, shall, at and from that time only, cease to be in force.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 68. As to power of agents to bind corporations by their acts, see § 6024, supra, and annotations thereto. A stockholder in a joint stock company may bring an action to account against the corporation, and thereby contest the validity of a by-law made by the board of directors. — Keys v. Quebec Fire Assurance Company, (1830), Stu. K. B. 425. Directors may dismiss a manager of a company without notice, when the latter is insolent and insubordinate. — Dick v. Canada Jute Company, (1886), 30 L. C. J. 185. An action will not lie by a member who considers himself aggrieved to correct errors or illegal acts in the government and administration of a corporation until remedies by way of appeal to the domestic tribunal of the corporation, provided by the by-laws or constitution, have been exhausted. — McIver v. Montreal Stock Exchange, (1888), M. L. R., 4 S. C. 112. The directors of a joint stock company may contract a hypothec which will be binding on the company if made in the interest of the company. — Savaria v. Paquette, (1899), Q. R., 20 S. C. 314. A corporation which entered into a contract for the purchase of an option, pursuant to a vote of a meeting at which only two directors were present, will not be permitted to repudiate the contract on the ground that a quorum was lacking at the meeting, especially where it appears that the contract was ratified at a subsequent meeting attended by a quorum of the directors. — Montreal & St. Lawrence Light & Power Company v. Robert, (1904), Q. R., 25 S. C. 473; affirmed by Kings Bench, s. c., (1905), Q. R., 14 K. B. 108; affirmed by Privy Council, s. c., (1906), A. C. 196.

§ 22. Liability of directors and officers.

Directors' liability for declaring dividends in certain cases. How it may be avoided. 6070. If the directors of the company declare and pay any dividend when the company is insolvent, or any dividend the payment of which renders the company insolvent or impairs the capital thereof, or any dividend out of the reserve fund without first having complied with the requirements of article 6059, they shall be jointly and severally liable, as well to the company as to the individual shareholders and creditors thereof, for all the debts of the company then existing, and for all thereafter contracted during their continuance in office; but if any director present when such dividend is declared does forthwith, or if any director then absent does, within twenty-four hours after he becomes aware thereof and able so to do, enter on the minutes of the board of directors his protest against the same, and within eight days thereafter publishes such protest in at least one newspaper published at the place in which the head office or chief place of business of the company is situated, or if there is no newspaper there published then in the newspaper nearest thereto, such director may thereby, and not otherwise, exonerate himself from such liability.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 69. The directors of a company are personally liable to the company, its shareholders and creditors, for all direct and immediate injury arising to them by the fault of such directors. For instance, where directors have declared a dividend out of the capital without the concurrence of the company, its shareholders or creditors, and where third parties have been induced to purchase stock in the company at exaggerated prices, owing to the declaration of fictitious dividends, the directors are liable to such purchasers. — Banque d'Epargne de Montréal v. Geddes, (1890), M. L. R., 6 S. C. 243. Although creditors of an insolvent company may complain of payments of fictitious dividends by directors based on augmentation of the value of the company's real property, yet, creditors, who attended the meeting of the company and who approved such dividend, can not claim that they have been misled, and that they would not have purchased shares in the company at such a high price, had they known how the dividend was compiled. Ibid. The directors of a joint stock company are not, as a general rule, responsible for the contracts and torts of the company; to render them so, there must have been some individual fault on their part. In the absence of gross neglect or fraud, there is no lien de droit between the directors of a company and non-shareholders; the directors occupy merely the position of agents of the company. — Therien v. Brodie, (1893), Q. R. 4 S. C. 23. Directors can not divest themselves of their personal responsibility. While they are at liberty to employ such assistants as may be required to carry on the business of the corporation, they are nevertheless responsible for the fault and misconduct of the employees appointed by them, unless the injurious acts complained of be such as could not have been prevented by the exercise of reasonable diligence on their part. — McDonald v. Rankin, (1890), M. L. R., 7 S. C. 44. Directors of a company are personally liable for injuries caused to third parties by false representations contained in a report of directors to shareholders; but the injury must be immediate, and not the remote consequence of the representation, and it must appear that the false representation was made with the intent that it should be acted upon by third persons. — Rhodes v. Starnes, (1878), 1 L. N. 314. The action against the directors for maladministration appertains to the corporation, but, in default of suit by the corporation, it is competent to a shareholder to institute such suit. — McDonald v. Rankin, (1890), M. L. R., 7 S. C. 44.

No loan to shareholders. 6071. No loan shall be made by the company to any shareholder. If such loan is made, all directors and other officers of the company making the same, or in anywise assenting thereto, shall be jointly and severally liable for the amount of such loan, with interest, to the company, and also to the creditors of the company for all debts of the company then existing, or contracted between the time of the making of such loan and that of the re-payment thereof.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 70.

Directors' liability for wages. Limitation thereof, etc. 6072. The directors of the company shall be jointly and severally liable to the clerks, labourers, servants, and apprentices thereof, for all debts not exceeding six months' wages due for service performed for the company whilst they are such directors respectively; but no director shall be liable to an action therefor, unless the company is sued therefor within one year after the debt becomes due, nor unless such director is sued therefor within one year from the time when he ceased to be such director, nor unless an execution against the company in respect of such debt is returned unsatisfied wholly or in part; and the amount unsatisfied on such execution shall be the amount recoverable with costs from the directors.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 71.

§ 23. General meetings.

6073. Special meetings. Shareholders who hold one-fourth part in value of the subscribed stock of the company may, at any time, call a special general meeting hereof for the transaction of any business specified in such written requisition and notice as they make and issue to that effect.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 72; Imp. § 66.

General meeting, Notice thereof. Votes of shareholders. 6074. In the absence of other provisions in such behalf in the letters patent or by-laws of the company:

a) Notice of the time and place for holding a general meeting of the company shall be given at least fourteen days previously thereto, in some newspaper published in the place where the head office or chief place of business of the company is situate, or if there is no such newspaper, then in the place nearest thereto in which a newspaper is published; b) At all general meetings of the company, every shareholder shall be entitled to give one vote for each share then held by him. Such votes may be given in person or by proxy — the holder of any such proxy being himself a shareholder — but no shareholder shall be entitled, either in person or by proxy, to vote at any meeting unless he has paid all the calls then payable upon all the shares held by him. All questions proposed for the consideration of the shareholders shall be determined by the majority of votes including that of the chairman who shall also have a casting vote when the votes are equally divided.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 73; Imp. § 67. The rule that in the management of the affairs of a company the will of a majority of shareholders should prevail, applies only in matters that are within the scope and power of its incorporation. Acts that are ultra vires, adopted by a majority of shareholders at a regular meeting are null and void. Thus, a lease for 21 years by a manufacturing company, of all its property, plant and accessories, amounts to an implied renunciation of its charter and is ultra vires. — Amyot v. Dominion Cotton Mills Company, (1909), Q. R., 36 S. C. 35, (1910), Q. R., 38 S. C. 457. A shareholder can not maintain proceedings to annul a resolution, unanimously adopted at a general meeting of shareholders (at which he was present and acquiesced) giving a bonus to the directors on the ground that the charter of the company settled the manner in which the profits were to be used, and no provision was made for such gratuity. — Cignac v. Cignac, (1909), Q. R., 37 S. C. 174. — In Heffernan v. Walsh, (1886), 33 L. T. J. 46, M. L. R., 2 Q. B. 482, it was held, reversing Walch v. Heffernan, (1885), 14 Rev. Leg. 243, that the members of a corporation are not disqualified from voting at an election of its officers, although fines which are still unpaid may have been imposed on such members under the by-laws, if such fines have not been formerly pronounced and such members have not had an opportunity of giving their reasons why such fines should not be paid by them.

§ 24. Books of the company.

Books to be kept. Their contents. Register of transfers. 6075. 1. The company shall cause a book or books to be kept by the secretary, or by some other officer specially charged with that duty, wherein shall be kept recorded: a) A copy of the letters patent incorporating the company, and of any supplementary letters patent, and of the preliminary memorandum of agreement and of all by-laws thereof; b) The names, alphabetically arranged, of all persons who are or have been shareholders; c) The address and calling of every such person, while such shareholder, as far as can be ascertained; d) The number of shares of stock held by each shareholder; e) The amounts paid in and remaining unpaid, respectively, on the stock of each shareholder; f) The names, addresses, and callings of all persons who are or have been directors of the company, with the several dates at which each became or ceased to be such director. 2. A book called the register of transfers, shall be provided, and in such book shall be entered the particulars of every transfer of shares in the capital of the company.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 74; Imp. § 25 (1).

Books to be open for inspection, etc. 6076. Such books shall, during reasonable business hours of every day, except Sundays and holidays, be kept open, at the head office or chief place of business of the company, for the inspection of shareholders and creditors of the company, and their representatives, and of any judgment creditor of a shareholder; and every such shareholder, creditor or representative may make extracts therefrom.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 75; Imp. § 30 (1, 2). A person proving himself to have an interest in the affairs of a joint stock company is entitled to a mandamus to compel the directors to allow him to examine the books of the company. — Hibbard v. Barsalou, (1865), 1 L. C. L. J. 98. But a shareholder has no right to insist upon an inspection of the register of letters sent and received by the company when orders to the contrary have been given by the directors. — Murphy v. La Compagnie des Remorqueurs du St. Laurent, (1866), 16 L. C. R. 300. See also, Anders v. Hagar, (1883), 6 L. N. 83. An application for the issuance of an injunction is not the proper proceeding to compel a corporation to allow a shareholder to inspect its books; and where it is not shown that there exists some urgent necessity for interference without which irreparable injury may result an injunction will be refused. Plamandom v. Blouyn, (1905), Q. R., 28 S. C. 149.

Penalty for false entries, refusal of inspection, etc. 6077. Every director, officer, or servant of the company who knowingly makes or assists in making any untrue entry in any such book, or who refuses or neglects to make any proper entry therein, or to exhibit the same, or to allow the same to be inspected and extracts to be taken therefrom, shall be liable to a penalty of one hundred dollars for every such untrue entry and for every such refusal or neglect, and also in damages for all loss or injury which any party interested may have sustained thereby.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 76; Imp. §§ 30 (3), 216.

Penalty for neglect to keep books. 6078. Every company which neglects to keep such book or books as aforesaid, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars for each day that such neglect continues, and also in damages for all loss or injury which any party interested may have sustained thereby.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 77; Imp. § 25 (2).

Books prima facie evidence. 6079. Such books shall be prima facie evidence of all facts purporting to be thereby stated, in any action, suit or proceeding against the company or against any shareholder.

§ 25. Inspection.

Appointment of inspector by judge. Report of inspector. Costs. Manner of conducting investigation. Inspection by order of company. Powers of inspector. Duty of officers to produce books, etc. Inspector may examine under oath. Penalty. 6080. 1. Upon the petition of shareholders representing not less than one fourth in value of the issued capital stock of the company, a Judge of the Superior Court in and for the district in which the chief place of business of the company is situated may, if he deems it necessary, appoint a competent inspector to investigate the affairs and management of the company. The petition shall be supported by such evidence as the Judge may require for the purpose of showing that the petitioners have good reason for requiring such investigation to be made, and that they are not actuated by malicious motives in instituting the same. The inspector shall report to the Judge the result of the investigation. The expense of such investigation shall, in the discretion of the Judge, be defrayed by the company, or by the petitioners, or partly by the company and partly by the petitioners as he may order, and, if he thinks fit, he may require the petitioners to give security to cover the probable cost of the investigation, and he may make necessary rules and prescribe the manner in which the investigation shall be conducted, or he may, if he deems it necessary, examine the officers or directors of the company under oath as to matters that come in question. 2. The company may, by resolution passed at the annual meeting, or at a special general meeting called for the purpose, appoint an inspector to examine into the affairs of the company. The inspector so appointed shall have the same powers and perform the same duties as an inspector appointed by a Judge, except that instead of making his report to the Judge he shall make the same in such manner and to such persons as the company by said resolution directs. 3. All officers and agents of the company, shall produce, for the examination of any such inspector, all books and documents in their custody or power. Any such inspector may examine upon oath the officers and agents of the company in relation to its business, and may administer such oath accordingly. If any officer or agent refuses to produce any book or document hereby directed to be produced, or to answer any question relating to the affairs of the company, he shall incur a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars, in respect of each offence.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 79; Imp. §§ 109, 110. The commissioners appointed by virtue of articles 596 and 598, R. S. Q., to inquire into the affairs of a company, have not the power to order indiscriminately the production of the corporation's books; they can only order the production of books containing entries concerning the matters which they are appointed to investigate. — In re Armstrong, (1892), Q. R., 1 S. C. 408. Commissioners appointed under the articles above mentioned have the same power as courts of law to compel witnesses to appear and give evidence before them and can punish for contempt of court, by fine or imprisonment or both, all witnesses who refuse to appear or answer questions put to them, relating to the matter under inquiry. — Turcotte v. Beique, (1891), 21 Rev. Leg. 452. Before committing a witness for contempt in not producing the books of the corporation, such witness should be allowed to show cause why he should not be committed. — In re Armstrong, supra.

Summonses, notices, etc., how signed. 6081. Any summons, notice, order, or proceeding requiring authentication by the company, may be signed by any director, manager, or other authorized officer of the company, and need not be under the seal of the company.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 80; Imp. § 117.

Service of notices upon members. 6082. Notices to be served by the company upon the shareholders, may be served either personally or by sending them through the post. in registered letters, addressed to the shareholders at their places of abode as they appear on the books of the company.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 81.

Service of notice by post. Proof of service. 6083. A notice or other document served by post by the company on a shareholder, shall be held to be served at the time when the registered letter containing it would be delivered in the ordinary course of post; and to prove the fact and time of service it shall be sufficient to prove that such letter was properly addressed and registered, and was put into the post office, and the time when it was put in, and the time requisite for its delivery in the ordinary course of post.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 82.

Copy of by-law prima facie evidence. 6084. A copy of any by-law of the company, under its seal, and purporting to be signed by any officer of the company, shall be received as against any shareholder of the company, as prima facie evidence of such by-law in all Courts in the Province.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 83.

Actions between company and shareholders. 6085. Any kind of action may be prosecuted and maintained between the company and any shareholder thereof.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 84.

Mode of incorporation how alleged. Proof of incorporation. 6086. In any action or other legal proceeding, it shall not be requisite to set forth the mode of incorporation of the company, otherwise than by mention of it under its corporate name, as incorporated by virtue of letters patent — or of letters patent and supplementary letters patent, as the case may be — under this section; and the notice in the Quebec Official Gazette, of the issue of such letters patent or supplementary letters patent, shall be prima facie proof of all things therein contained; and on production of the letters patent, or supplementary letters patent, or of any exemplification or copy thereof, the fact of such notice shall be presumed; and, except in any proceeding by scire facias or otherwise for the purpose of rescinding or annulling the same, the letters patent or supplementary letters patent or any exemplification or copy thereof, shall be conclusive proof of every matter and thing therein set forth.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 85.

Proof may be made by oath. 6087. Proof of any matter which is necessary to be made under this section may be made by oath.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 86.

Statement at general meeting. 6088. The directors of every company shall lay before its shareholders annually, a full statement of the affairs and financial position of the company, at or before each general meeting of the company for the election of directors.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 87.

Returns to be made. Penalty. 6089. The company shall make a return to the Provincial Secretary, at any time a written request may be made therefor, containing the following particulars: 1. The amount of the capital of the company, and the number of shares into which it is divided. 2. The number of shares taken from the commencement of the company up to the date of the return. 3. The amount of calls made on each share. 4. The total amount of calls received. 5. The total amount of calls unpaid. 6. The total amount of shares forfeited. 7. The names, addresses, and occupations of the persons who have ceased to be shareholders within the twelve months preceding, and the number of shares held by each of them. If any company, for a space of one month, neglects or refuses to comply with such request, the company shall incur a penalty not exceeding twenty dollars for every day during which such default continues; and every director and manager of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits such default, shall incur the like penalty.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 88; Imp. § 26.

§ 26. Transitory Provisions.

Joint Stock Companies' Incorporation Act not to apply to future companies, etc. 6090. The Joint Stock Companies' Incorporation Act shall not apply to joint stock companies incorporated by letters patent after the first day of July 1907, but the said act shall continue to govern every joint stock company to which it applied before the said date, until such company shall have been declared, either by an act of the Legislature or by letters patent, to be subject to the provisions hereof.

7 Edw. 7, c. 48, § 89; Imp. §§ 286-294.

Petition for Incorporation.

To His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Quebec:

The petition of _____ respectfully
showeth as follows:

The undersigned petitioners are desirous of obtaining letters patent under the provisions of the Quebec Companies' Act, constituting your petitioners and such others as may become shareholders in the company thereby created, a body corporate and politic under the name of _____ or such other name as shall appear to you to be proper in the premises.

The undersigned have satisfied themselves and are assured that the proposed corporate name of the company under which incorporation is sought, is not the corporate name of any other known company incorporated or unincorporated, or any name liable to be confounded therewith or otherwise on public grounds objectionable.

Your petitioners are of the full age of twenty-one years.

The purposes for which incorporation is sought by the petitioners are:

The chief place of business of the proposed company will be at _____ in the district of _____

The amount of the capital stock of the company is to be $ _____

The said stock is to be divided into _____ shares of $ _____ each.

The following are the names in full and the address and calling of each of the petitioners with the amount of stock taken by each petitioner respectively:

Petitioners.	Amount of Stock Subscribed.

The said _____ will be the first or provisional directors of the company.

A stock-book has been opened and a memorandum of agreement by the petitioners under seal, in accordance with the act, has been executed in duplicate — one of the duplicates being transmitted herewith.

The undersigned therefore request that a charter may be granted constituting them and such other persons as hereafter become shareholders in the company, a body corporate and politic for the purposes above set forth.

Signatures of Witnesses.

Signatures of Petitioners.

Dated at _____ this _____ day of _____ 19 .

Note: If any cash has been paid in on stock, or if any property is intended to be accepted on account of stock, it should be stated.

B. (Article 6008.)Memorandum of Agreement and Stock Book

(To be executed in duplicate to be transmitted with the application.)

The . . . . . Company

We, the undersigned, do hereby severally covenant and agree each with the other to become incorporated as a company under the provisions of the Quebec Companies' Act under the name of The . . . . . Company, or such other name as the Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Quebec may give to the company, with a capital of . . . . . dollars divided into . . . . . shares of . . . . . dollars each.

And we do hereby severally, and not one for the other, subscribe for and agree to take the respective amounts of the capital stock of the said company set opposite our respective names as hereunder and hereafter written, and to become shareholders in such company to the said amounts.

In witness whereof we have signed.

Section III. Declaration to be made by Incorporated Companies.

Declaration to be made. By whom signed. Contents of declaration. Form of declaration. New declaration. 6091. 1. Every incorporated company, carrying on any labour, trade or business in this Province (except banks), shall cause to be delivered to the prothonotary of the Superior Court in each district, or to the registrar of each registration division in which it carries on or intends to carry on its operations or business, a declaration in writing to the effect hereinafter provided, made and signed by the president when its chief office or principal place of business is in this Province, or by the principal manager or chief agent in the Province when it has only branches or agencies therein. 2. Such declaration shall state the name of the company, where and how it was incorporated, the date of its incorporation, and where its principal place of business within the Province is situated. 3. Such declaration shall be according to form A or in words to that effect, and shall be produced by the president or the principal manager or chief agent, as the case may be, of every such incorporated company, and filed within sixty days after commencing operations and business. 4. When and so often as any change takes place in the name of the company, or in its principal place of business in the Province, a declaration thereof shall in like manner be made, within sixty days from such change.

R. S. Q. § 4754.

Entry of declaration. 6092. The prothonotary and the registrar shall enter such declaration in the books kept by them respectively for the registration of declarations of partnership.

R. S. Q. § 4755.

Fee. 6093. The prothonotary and the registrar shall be entitled to a fee of one dollar for the entry of every declaration made under the authority of this section.

R. S. Q. § 4756.

Penalty. 6094. A failure to make and file the declarations required by article 6091 shall render each of the incorporated companies above mentioned liable to a fine of two hundred dollars, and the president, principal manager, or chief agent, as the case may be, to a fine of one hundred dollars.

R. S. Q. § 4757; 9 Edw. 7, c. 51, § 1.

Proviso. 6095. If the declaration is made and filed after the expiration of the sixty days above mentioned and before any suit for a contravention of this section has been instituted, then the company making and filing such declaration, its president, principal manager, or chief agent, as the case may be, shall no longer be deemed to have been in default.

R. S. Q. § 4758.

Recovery of fines. 6096. The fines imposed by this section are recoverable, before any court having jurisdiction in civil cases to the amount of such fine, by any person suing in his own name, or by the Attorney-General in the name of His Majesty.

R. S. Q. § 4759.

To whom such fines belong. 6097. One-half of all fines recovered shall belong to the party suing for the same, and the other half to the Crown, to form part of the consolidated revenue fund of the Province, unless the suit be brought on behalf of the Crown only, in which case the whole of the fine shall belong to the Crown for the uses aforesaid.

R. S. Q. § 4760.

Section IV. Extra-Provincial Corporations and Joint Stock Companies.

Extra provincial corporation what to comprise. Exceptions. 6098. Extra-provincial corporations, for the purposes of this section, comprise all commercial corporations and joint stock companies not constituted by or in virtue of an act of the Legislature of this Province, or of the Parliament of Canada, of the Legislature of the late Province of Lower Canada, or that of the late Province of Canada, except: a) Loan an investment societies licensed under the provisions of section second of chapter fourth of title eleventh of these Revised Statutes (articles 7158 to 7164); b) Insurance companies, mutual benefit societies and charitable societies, the same being governed by section twenty-second of this chapter (articles 6832 to 7069); c) Corporations and companies incorporated under or in virtue of an act of a Legislature of another Province of Canada in which corporations and companies incorporated under and in virtue of the laws of the Province of Quebec are authorized to do business without being obliged to take out a license therefor.

4 Edw. 7, c. 34, § 1; 9 Edw. 7, c. 62, § 1.

License required. Until license issued no business to be transacted on behalf of corporation. 6099. No extra-provincial corporation shall carry on business in the Province, unless a license under this section has been granted to it and unless such license is in force. No company, firm, broker, agent or other person shall, as the representative or agent of or acting in any capacity other than as traveller taking orders for any such extra-provincial corporation, carry on any of its business in the Province, unless such corporation has received such license and unless such license is in force.

4 Edw. 7, c. 34, § 2.

Proceedings to obtain license. Refusal to grant, etc., license unless name changed. Proviso. 6100. Such license shall be granted by the Lieutenant-Governor upon petition by the extra-provincial corporation, provided that the corporation: a) Deposits in the office of the Provincial Secretary a copy of its charter, articles of association or other deed constituting the corporation, certified by the officer having the custody of the original; b) Establishes that it is so constituted as to carry out the obligations it may contract; c) Deposits in the office of the Provincial Secretary a power of attorney constituting a chief agent in the Province for the purpose of receiving service in any suit or proceeding against it, and declaring where the principal office of the corporation is to be established; d) Pays the fees that may be fixed for such license by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council; e) Establishes that its name is not that of any other known company, nor liable to be confounded therewith, or otherwise on public grounds objectionable. The Lieutenant-Governor may, at any time, refuse to grant or to continue a license to a company which does not comply with the requirements of this subsection, unless such name be changed or modified to the satisfaction of the Provincial Secretary. Such change or modification of name shall in no way affect the corporate existence, rights, or obligations of the company.

4 Edw. 7, c. 34, § 3; 9 Edw. 7, c. 62, § 2.

Publication of notice of granting. 6101. Notice of the granting of such license shall be published by the Provincial Secretary in the Quebec Official Gazette, and from the date of such publication such extra-provincial corporation may commence business.

4 Edw. 7, c. 34, § 4.

Change of chief agent, etc. 6102. Whenever any extra-provincial corporation changes its chief agent or the location of its chief office, it shall forward to the Provincial Secretary a copy of the new power of attorney concerning the same and notice thereof shall be given in the Quebec Official Gazette.

4 Edw. 7, c. 34, § 5.

Change of name by extra-provincial corporation, etc. New license, etc. 6103. If an extra-provincial corporation, licensed in virtue of this section, changes its name, it shall send to the Provincial Secretary a copy of the document establishing that such change has been legally effected, and such copy shall be certified by the officer who has charge of the original. A new license may then be granted by the Lieutenant-Governor, and notice thereof shall be given by the Provincial Secretary in the Quebec Official Gazette.

4 Edw. 7, c. 34, § 5a; 8 Edw. 7, c. 66, § 1.

Powers under license. 6104. Any extra-provincial corporation receiving a license under this section may, subject to the limitations and conditions of the license and of the laws of this Province, and also subject to the provisions of its charter, acquire, hold, mortgage, alienate and otherwise dispose of immoveable property in the Province, to the same extent as if incorporated by letters patent of the Lieutenant-Governor, with power to carry on the business and exercise the powers embraced in the license.

4 Edw. 7, c. 34, § 6.

Suspension and revocation of license. Notice thereof. 6105. If an extra-provincial corporation receiving a license under this section does not observe or comply with the limitations and conditions of such license, or the regulations respecting the appointment and continuance of a representative in the Province, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may suspend or revoke such license wholly or in part, and may remove such suspension or cancel such revocation and restore such license. Notice of such suspension, revocation, removal or restoration shall be given by the Provincial Secretary in the Quebec Official Gazette.

4 Edw. 7, c. 34, § 7.

Regulations of Lieutenant-Governor in Council. 6106. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, from time to time, make, amend and repeal regulations respecting the following matters: a) The forms of licenses, powers of attorney, applications, notices, statements, and other documents relating to applications and other proceedings under this section; b) The fees to be collected and received for granting the licenses and publication of notices under this section; c) Generally whatever may be necessary for the efficient working of this section.

4 Edw. 7, c. 34, § 8.

Penalty for doing business for an unlicensed corporation. 6107. Any person doing business for an extra-provincial corporation which has not complied with the requirements of this section, is liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars for each offence and, in default of payment, to imprisonment not exceeding three months.

4 Edw. 7, c. 34, § 9.

Prescription and law to govern prosecutions. 6108. Prosecutions under this section shall be instituted within six months after the date of the offence, and shall be governed by the provisions of Part XV of the Criminal Code.

4 Edw. 7, c. 34, § 10.

Statements etc., to be laid before Legislature. 6109. A statement showing the licenses issued under this section during the preceding fiscal year, and the authorized capital of the extra-provincial corporations licensed, and the fee paid for each license, shall be laid before the Legislature at each session thereof.

4 Edw. 7, c. 34, § 11.

Interpretation. 6110. Nothing in this section shall prevent articles 6091 to 6097 from applying to extra-provincial corporations.

4 Edw. 7, c. 34, § 14.

Section V. Special Provisions respecting certain Companies and Corporations.

§ 1. Subdivision of shares of certain companies and acquisition of immoveables thereby.

Subdivision of shares. 6111. The directors of any company, of which the capital stock is divided into shares being a multiple of one hundred, may pass a by-law declaring that the capital stock of such company shall be divided into shares of one hundred dollars each, and, from and after the passing of such by-law, such capital stock shall be divided into shares of one hundred dollars each.

R. S. Q. § 4761.

British, United States or Canadian corporations may hold lands in the Province. 6112. Every company incorporated and existing in Great Britain (including the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man), in the United States of America, or in Canada, shall have the right to acquire and hold any lands and immoveable property in this Province, for its occupation or the prosecution of its business only, any law to the contrary notwithstanding.

R. S. Q. § 4762; 62 Vic. c. 42, § 1.

Proviso as to certain corporations. 6113. No such corporation formed for the purpose of promoting art, science, religion, charity, or any other like object, not involving the acquisition of gain by the corporation or by the individual members thereof, shall, without the sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, hold more than ten acres of land; but the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, by license under the hand of the Provincial Secretary, empower any such corporation to hold lands in such quantity and subject to such conditions as he shall think fit.

R. S. Q. § 4763.

§ 1. Increase of capital stock by certain companies.

Increase of capital of companies, incorporated by special statutes. By-law for that purpose. 6114. The directors of any company incorporated by special statute may, if they see fit, at any time after the whole capital stock of the company has been allotted and paid in, but no sooner, make a by-law for increasing the capital stock of the company to an amount which they may consider requisite in order to the due carrying out of the objects of the company. Such by-law shall declare the number of the shares of the new stock, and may prescribe the manner in which the same shall be allotted; and, in default of its so doing, the control of such allotment shall be held to vest absolutely in the directors.

R. S. Q. § 4767.

Coming into force of such by-law. 6115. No by-law for increasing the capital stock of the company, shall have any force or effect whatever, until after it has been sanctioned by a vote of not less than two-thirds in value of the shareholders, at a general meeting of the company duly called for considering the same, and has been afterwards confirmed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

R. S. Q. § 4768.

Confirmation of such by-law. Proof before Attorney-General. Power of Attorney-General to swear and hear witnesses. 6116. 1. At any time, not more than six months after the sanction of such by-law, the directors may petition the Lieutenant-Governor to confirm the same. 2. With such petition, they must produce such by-law, and establish to the satisfaction of the Attorney-General, so that he may report thereon, the due passage and sanction of such by-law, and the bona fide character of the increase of capital thereby provided for. 3. For that purpose the Attorney-General or his assistant may take and keep of record any requisite evidence in writing, under oath or affirmation, and may administer every requisite oath or affirmation.

R. S. Q. § 4769.

Confirmation by Lieutenant-Governor, etc. 6117. Upon due proof so made, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may confirm the said by-law; and notice thereof shall be forthwith given by the Provincial Secretary in the Quebec Official Gazette, and, from the publication of such notice, the capital stock of the company shall be increased, to the amount, in the manner, and subject to the conditions set forth in such by-law; and the whole of the stock, as so increased, shall become subject to the provisions of its act of incorporation, in like manner (so far as may be) as though every part thereof had formed part of the stock originally subscribed.

R. S. Q. § 4770.

Fee to be paid for confirmation of by-law. 6118. There shall be paid, for the confirmation of such by-law, the same fee as is payable on supplementary letters-patent granted and issued under the Quebec Companies' Act.

R. S. Q. § 4771.

§ 3. Powers on certain corporations to more readily employ the immovable property in their possession.

Powers of limited corporations extended. 6119. All corporations in this Province, which cannot acquire immoveable property except to a limited amount, under the provisions of their charters, or of the law, may, whenever they dispose of or alienate any immoveable property belonging to them, apply the price thereof to the acquisition of other immoveable property, and also receive the revenues thereof, and employ the same for the objects for which they were constituted.

R. S. Q. § 4772.

Section VI. Voluntary Winding-up of Joint Stock Companies.

§ 1. Method of winding-up.

Voluntary winding up of joint stock companies. 6120. Any joint stock company, incorporated by letters patent or special act, may be wound up voluntarily, whenever the directors deem it expedient that the company shall be dissolved.

R. S. Q. § 4773.

General meeting. 6121. The directors shall thereupon convene a general meeting of the shareholders, mentioning in the notice that the dissolution of the company will be proposed at such meeting.

R. S. Q. § 4774.

Resolution of directors. Formalities. Effect of dissolution. 6122. The resolution of the directors, declaring it to be expedient that the company should be wound up voluntarily, shall be submitted to the general meeting of the shareholders, and if such meeting pass, by a majority representing not less than two-thirds of the stock, a resolution that the company shall be wound up voluntarily and dissolved, then the company shall forthwith subsist and carry on business for the purpose only of winding up its affairs.

R. S. Q. § 4775.

Corporate powers continued. 6123. The corporate state and corporate powers of the company shall continue until its affairs are wound up.

R. S. Q. § 4776.

§ 2. Liquidators.

Appointment of liquidators. 6124. At the general meeting, a liquidator or liquidators shall be appointed for the purpose of winding up the affairs of the company and of distributing its assets; and thereupon the board of directors shall cease to exist.

R. S. Q. § 4777.

Vacancy in office of liquidators. Removal of liquidators. 6125. If any vacancy occurs in the office of liquidator by death, resignation or otherwise, the company may, at a general meeting, fill up such vacancy; and such general meeting may be called by the continuing liquidator or liquidators, or by any shareholder. The company may also, at a general meeting called by any three shareholders, on notice mentioning that the removal of the liquidators or of any liquidator will be proposed, remove such liquidator or liquidators, and appoint another or others in his or their place.

R. S. Q. § 4778.

Appointment of liquidators by judge. Their removal. 6126. In default of the shareholders appointing or replacing a liquidator or liquidators, any Judge of the Superior Court, in the district where the company has its chief office or principal place of business, may, on application of a shareholder, after a default of fifteen days, appoint a liquidator or liquidators. The Judge may also, on due cause shown, remove any liquidator; and he may, after a default of fifteen days on the part of the shareholders to do so, appoint another.

R. S. Q. § 4779.

Registration of notice of winding up resolution. Notice to Provincial Secretary and publication. 6127. Notice of the resolution passed by the shareholders for the winding up and dissolution of the company, shall be registered forthwith in the office of the prothonotary of the Superior Court for the district, and in the registry office for the registration division, in which the company has its chief office or principal place of business. Notice of such resolution shall also be given to the Provincial Secretary, and shall be published by him in the Quebec Official Gazette.

R. S. Q. § 4780.

Duties of liquidators. 6128. The liquidator or liquidators shall take into his or their custody, and under his or their control, all the assets of the company, and shall, subject however to such limitations as may be determined by the resolution of the shareholders for the dissolution of the company, have power: 1. To bring or defend any action or other judicial proceeding in the name and on behalf of the company. 2. To carry on the business of the company, so far as may be necessary for the beneficial winding-up of the same, and to collect all moneys due to it. 3. To sell the moveable and immoveable property of the company, by public auction or private sale, and either in the lump or in parcels; provided that, at a general meeting of the shareholders, the majority have given their consent to such sale in the lump. 4. To execute, in the name and on behalf of the company, all deeds, acquittances, receipts, and other documents; 5. To draw, accept, make, or endorse bills of exchange, or promissory notes, in the name and on behalf of the company; and to raise upon the security of the assets of the company, from time to time, any requisite sums of money. 6. To do and execute whatever else may be necessary for winding up the affairs of the company and distributing its assets, including the power to compromise, at discretion, all claims and rights belonging to the company.

R. S. Q. § 4781.

Powers when several are appointed. 6129. When several liquidators are appointed, their powers may be validly exercised by the majority of them.

R. S. Q. § 4782.

Payment of debts, etc. 6130. The liquidator or liquidators shall first pay the debts of the company, and the costs, charges, and expenses of winding it up, and shall afterwards distribute the balance of the proceeds of the assets among the shareholders, according to their rights and interests in the company.

R. S. Q. § 4783.

Collection of sums due. 6131. The liquidator or liquidators shall recover and collect unpaid calls, in full or proportionately as the case may require, from shareholders in default, should he or they deem it necessary; but in case of the non-collection in whole or in part of such unpaid calls, the shareholders in default shall only rank in the distribution when those who have paid more shall have been ranked for the excess so paid by them.

R. S. Q. § 4784.

Remuneration of liquidators. 6132. The shareholders shall fix the remuneration of the liquidator or liquidators; and also whether or not he or they shall give security for his or their administration, specifying when security shall be given and the amount thereof.

R. S. Q. § 4785.

If winding-up lasts over a year. 6133. If the winding-up continues for more than one year, the liquidator or liquidators shall call a general meeting of the shareholders, at the end of the first year, and at the end of each succeeding year, or so soon thereafter as may be convenient; and he or they shall lay before such meetings an account, showing his or their acts and dealings, and the manner in which the operations for the winding-up have been conducted during the preceding year.

R. S. Q. § 4786.

Statement after winding-up by liquidators. 6134. As soon as the affairs of the company are fully wound up, the liquidator or liquidators shall make up an account showing the cash on hand at the date on which the company was placed in liquidation, the property of the company disposed of, the amounts realized, the sums paid, and generally the manner in which such winding-up has been conducted, and shall attest the same before a justice of the peace; and thereupon he or they shall call a general meeting of the company for the purpose of laying such account before the shareholders, and of having the same confirmed.

R. S. Q. § 4787.

Notice to Provincial Secretary. Registration. 6135. The liquidator or liquidators shall make a return to the Provincial Secretary of such meeting having been held, and also of such meeting having confirmed the account, showing the manner in which the winding-up has been conducted. The Provincial Secretary shall cause such return to be registered in the registers of the Province; and forthwith, on the registration thereof, the company shall be dissolved.

R. S. Q. § 4788.

§ 3. Proceedings after dissolution.

Notice of dissolution by Provincial Secretary. Registration of notice. 6136. The Provincial Secretary shall, without delay, publish a notice of the dissolution of the company in the Quebec Official Gazette, and the liquidator or liquidators shall also forthwith register a notice of the dissolution in the office of the prothonotary of the Superior Court for the district, and in the registry office for the registration division in which the company had its chief office or principal place of business.

R. S. Q. § 4789.

Deposit with Provincial Treasurer. 6137. Within thirty days after the date of the dissolution of the company, the liquidator or liquidators shall deposit with the Provincial Treasurer the amount of all debts and of all dividends which may then be unclaimed and unpaid, with a statement thereof attested before a justice of the peace; and the money so deposited shall be treated as a deposit under section twenty-fourth of chapter fifth of title fourth of these Revised Statutes respecting judicial and other deposits (articles 1480 to 1493); and when claimed shall be paid over to the persons entitled thereto.

R. S. Q. § 4790.

Deposit of books, accounts, etc. 6138. Within the same period of thirty days, the liquidator or liquidators shall deposit, in the office of the prothonotary of the Superior Court for the district in which the company had its chief office or principal place of business, the books, accounts, and documents of the company, and also the sworn account submitted to the shareholders and confirmed by them, showing the manner in which the winding-up has been conducted, and a duplicate of the sworn statement of the moneys deposited with the Provincial Treasurer.

R. S. Q. § 4791.

Neglect to deposit. 6139. If the liquidator or liquidators neglects or neglect to deposit the moneys with the Provincial Treasurer, or to deposit the books, accounts and documents as provided in articles 6137 and 6138, he or they severally shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten dollars for every day during which he or they is or are in default.

R. S. Q. § 4792.

Rendering of accounts. 6140. The liquidator or liquidators shall be bound to render his or their accounts and to pay over the moneys for which he is or they are accountable, under the same obligations and penalties as a curator to the property of a dissolved corporation under the Civil Code.

R. S. Q. § 4793.

Sale of Goods.

a) Civil Code.<sup>1)</sup>

Title Fifth. Of Sale.

Chapter First. General Provisions.

1472. Sale is a contract by which one party gives a thing to the other for a price in money which the latter obliges himself to pay for it. It is perfected by the consent alone of the parties, although the thing sold be not then delivered, subject nevertheless to the provisions contained in article 1027 and to the special rules concerning the transfer of registered vessels.

C. N. 1582, 1583; C. C. 1025, 2098, 2359 et seq.

1473. The contract of sale is subject to the general rules relating to contracts and to the effects and extinction of obligations declared in the title of obligations, inasmuch as it is otherwise specially provided in this Code.

C. N. 1584.

1474. When things moveable are sold by weight, number or measure, and not in the lump, the sale is not perfect until they have been weighed, counted or measured; but the buyer may demand the delivery of them or damages according to circumstances.

C. N. 1585; C. C. 1026, 1060, 1151.

1475. The sale of a thing upon trial is presumed to be made upon a suspensive condition, when the intention of the parties to the contrary is not apparent.

C. N. 1588.

1476. A simple promise of sale is not equivalent to a sale, but the creditor may demand that the debtor shall execute a deed of sale in his favour according to the terms of the promise, and, in default of so doing, that the judgment shall be equivalent to such deed and have all its legal effects; or he may recover damages according to the rules contained in the title of obligations.

C. N. 1589.

1477. If a promise of sale be accompanied by the giving of earnest, each of the contracting parties may recede from it; he who has given the earnest, by forfeiting it, and he who received it, by returning double the amount.

C. N. 1590; C. C. 1235, s. 4.

1478. A promise of sale with tradition and actual possession is equivalent to sale.

C. N. 1589.

1479. The expense of the title deed and other accessories to a sale is borne by the buyer, unless it is otherwise stipulated.

C. N. 1593.

1480. The articles of this title, in so far as they affect the rights of third persons, are subject to the special modifications and restrictions contained in the title of Registration of Real Rights.

1481. Tavern-keepers, or others, selling to persons other than travellers, intoxicating liquors to be drunk on the spot, have no action for the recovery of the price of such liquors.

Chapter Second. Of the Capacity to Buy or Sell.

1482. The capacity to buy or sell is governed by the general rules, relating to the capacity to contract, contained in chapter first, of the title of obligations.

C. N. 1594; C. C. 985 et seq.

1483. Husband and wife cannot enter into a contract of sale with each other.

C. N. 1595.

1484. The following persons cannot become buyers, either by themselves or by parties interposed, that is to say: Tutors or curators, of the property of those over whom they are appointed, except in sales by judicial authority; Agents, of the property which they are charged with the sale of; Administrators or trustees, of the property in their charge whether of public bodies or of private persons; Public officers, of national property, the sale of which is made through their ministry. The incapacity declared in this article cannot be set up by the buyer; it exists only in favour of the owner and others having an interest in the thing sold.

C. N. 1596; C. C. 290, 1706; C. C. P. 660, 748.

C. N. 1597; C. C. 1583.

Chapter Third. Of Things which may be Sold.

1486. Everything may be sold which is not excluded from being an object of commerce by its nature or destination or by special provision of law.

C. N. 1598; C. C. 1059.

1487. The sale of a thing which does not belong to the seller is null, subject to the exceptions declared in the three next following articles. The buyer may recover damages of the seller, if he were ignorant that the thing did not belong to the latter.

C. N. 1599.

1488. The sale is valid if it be a commercial matter, or if the seller afterwards become owner of the thing.

1489. If a thing lost or stolen be bought in good faith in a fair or market, or at a public sale, or from a trader dealing in similar articles, the owner cannot reclaim it, without reimbursing to the purchaser the price he has paid for it.

C. N. 2280; C. C. 2268.

1490. If the thing lost or stolen be sold under the authority of law, it cannot be reclaimed.

C. C. P. 668, 2005a.

Chapter Fourth. Of the Obligations of the Seller.

Section I. General Provisions.

1491. The principal obligations of the seller are: 1. The delivery, and 2. The warranty of the thing sold.

C. N. 1603.

Section II. Of delivery.

1492. Delivery is the transfer of a thing sold into the power and possession of the buyer.

C. N. 1604.

1493. The obligation of the seller to deliver is satisfied when he puts the buyer in actual possession of the thing, or consents to such possession being taken by him, and all hindrances thereto are removed.

C. N. 1605; C. C. 1165.

1494. The delivery of incorporeal things is made by the delivery of the titles, or by the use which the buyer makes of such things with the consent of the seller.

C. N. 1607.

1495. The expenses of the delivery are at the charge of the seller, and those of removing the thing are at the charge of the buyer, unless it is otherwise stipulated.

C. N. 1608.

1496. The seller is not obliged to deliver the thing if the buyer do not pay the price, unless a term has been granted for the payment of it.

C. N. 1612.

1497. Neither is the seller obliged to deliver the thing, when a delay for payment has been granted, if the buyer since the sale have become insolvent, so that the seller is in imminent danger of losing the price, unless the buyer gives security for the payment at the expiration of the term.

C. N. 1613.

1498. The thing must be delivered in the state in which it was at the time of the sale, subject to the rules relating to deterioration contained in the title of obligations. From the time of sale all the profits of the thing belong to the buyer.

C. N. 1614.

1499. The obligation to deliver the thing comprises its accessories and all that has been designed for its perpetual use.

C. N. 1615; C. C. P. 1574.

1500. The seller is obliged to deliver the full quantity sold as it is specified in the contract, subject to modifications hereinafter specified.

C. N. 1616; C. C. P. 780.

1501. If an immoveable be sold with a statement, in whatever terms expressed, of its superficial contents, either at a certain rate by measurement, or at a single price for the whole, the seller is obliged to deliver the whole quantity specified in the contract; if such delivery be not possible, the buyer may obtain a diminution of the price according to the value of the quantity not delivered. If the superficial contents exceed the quantity specified, the buyer must pay for such excess of quantity or he may at his option give it back to the seller.

C. N. 1617, 1618, 1619.

1502. In either of the cases stated in the last preceding article, if the deficiency or excess of quantity be so great in comparison with the quantity specified, that it may be presumed the buyer would not have bought if he had known it, he may abandon the sale and recover from the seller the price, if paid, and the expenses of the contract, without prejudice in any case to his claim for damages.

C. N. 1618, 1619, 1620; C. C. P. 785.

1503. The rules contained in the last two preceding articles do not apply, when it clearly appears from the description of the immoveable and the terms of the contract that the sale is of a certain determinate thing, without regard to its quantity by measurement, whether such quantity is mentioned or not.

1504. The action for supplement of price on the part of the seller, or for diminution of price, or for vacating the contract, on the part of the buyer, is subject to the general rules of prescription.

C. N. 1622; C. C. 2210.

1505. If two immoveable properties be sold by the same contract, at a single price for the whole, with a declaration of the contents of each and in one the quantity be less than stated and in the other greater, the deficiency of the one is compensated by the excess of the other so far as it goes, and the action of the buyer or seller is modified accordingly.

C. N. 1623.

Section III. Of Warranty. General Provisions.

1506. The warranty to which the seller is obliged in favour of the buyer is either legal or conventional. It has two objects: 1. Eviction of the whole or any part of the thing; 2. The latent defects of the thing.

C. N. 1625.

1507. Legal warranty is implied by law in the contract of sale without stipulation. Nevertheless the parties may, by special agreement, add to the obligations of legal warranty, or diminish its effect, or exclude it altogether.

C. N. 1627.

§ 1. Of Warranty against Eviction.

1508. The seller is obliged by law to warrant the buyer against eviction of the whole or any part of the thing sold, by reason of the act of the former, or of any right existing at the time of the sale, and against incumbrances not declared and not apparent at the time of the sale.

C. N. 1626.

1509. Although it be stipulated that the seller is not obliged to any warranty, he is nevertheless obliged to a warranty against his personal acts. Any agreement to the contrary is null.

C. N. 1628.

1510. In like manner, when there is a stipulation excluding warranty, the seller in case of eviction is obliged to return the price of the thing sold, unless the buyer knew at the time of the sale the danger of eviction or had bought at his own risk.

C. N. 1629; C. C. 1576.

1511. Whether the warranty be legal or conventional, the buyer in case of eviction, has a right to claim from the seller: 1. Restitution of the price. 2. Restitution of the fruits in case he is obliged to pay them to the party who evicts him. 3. The expenses incurred, as well in his action of warranty against the seller as in the original action. 4. Damages, interest, and all expenses of the contract. Subject nevertheless to the provision contained in the article next following.

C. N. 1630; C. C. 2236.

1512. If in the case of warranty the causes of eviction were known to the buyer at the time of the sale, and there be no special agreement, the buyer has a right to recover only the price of the thing sold.

1513. The seller is obliged to make restitution of the whole price of the thing sold, although, at the time of the eviction, it be found to be diminished in value, or deteriorated, either by the neglect of the buyer, or by a fortuitous event; unless the buyer has derived a profit from the deterioration caused by him, in which case the seller may deduct from the price a sum equal to such profit.

C. N. 1631, 1632.

1514. If the thing sold be found, at the time of eviction, to have increased in value, either by or without the act of the buyer, the seller is obliged to pay him such increased value over the price at which the sale was made.

C. N. 1633.

1515. The seller is obliged to indemnify the buyer, or to cause him to be indemnified, for all repairs and useful expenditures made by him upon the property sold, according to their value.

C. N. 1634.

1516. If the seller have sold the property of another in bad faith, he is obliged to reimburse the buyer for all expenditures laid out by him upon it.

C. N. 1635.

1517. If the buyer suffer eviction of a part only of the thing, or of two or more things sold as a whole, which part is nevertheless of such importance in relation to the whole that he would not have bought without it, he may vacate the sale.

1518. If in the case of eviction of a part of the thing or things sold as a whole, the sale be not vacated, the buyer has a right to claim from the seller the value, of such part, to be estimated proportionally upon the whole price, and also damages to be estimated according to the increased value of the thing at the time of eviction.

C. N. 1637.

1519. If the property sold be charged with a servitude not apparent and not declared, of such importance that it may be presumed the buyer would not have bought, if he had been informed of it, he may vacate the sale or claim indemnity, at his option, and in either case may bring his action as soon as he is informed of the existence of the servitude.

C. N. 1638.

1520. Warranty against eviction ceases in case the buyer fails to call in the seller within the delay prescribed in the Code of Civil Procedure if the latter prove that there existed sufficient ground of defence to the action of eviction.

C. N. 1640; C. C. P. 177, § 4, 183 et seq.

1521. The buyer may enforce the obligation of warranty when, without the intervention of the judgment, he abandons the thing sold or admits the incumbrance upon it, if he prove that such abandonment or admission is made by reason of a right which existed at time of sale.

§ 2. Of Warranty against latent Defects.

1522. The seller is obliged by law to warrant the buyer against such latent defects in the thing sold, and its accessories, as render it unfit for the use for which it was intended, or so diminish its usefulness that the buyer would not have bought it, or would not have given so large a price, if he had known them.

C. N. 1641.

1523. The seller is not bound for defects which are apparent and which the buyer might have known of himself.

C. N. 1642.

1524. The seller is bound for latent defects even when they were not known to him unless it is stipulated that he shall not be obliged to any warranty.

C. N. 1643.

1525. When several principal things are sold together as a whole, so that the buyer would not have bought one of them without the other, the latent defect in one entitles him to vacate the sale for the whole.

1526. The buyer has the option of returning the thing and recovering the price of it or of keeping the thing and recovering a part of the price according to an estimation of its value.

C. N. 1644.

1527. If the seller knew the defect of the thing, he is obliged not only to restore the price of it, but to pay all damages suffered by the buyer. He is obliged in like manner in all cases in which he is legally presumed to know the defects.

C. N. 1645.

1528. If the seller did not know the defects or is not legally presumed to have known them, he is obliged only to restore the price and to reimburse to the buyer the expenses caused by the sale.

C. N. 1646.

1529. If the thing perish by reason of any latent defect which it had at the time of the sale, the loss falls upon the seller who is obliged to restore the price of it to the buyer and otherwise to indemnify him as provided in the two last preceding articles. If it perish by the fault of the buyer or by a fortuitous event, the value of the thing in the condition in which it was, at the time of the loss, must be deducted from his claim against the seller.

C. N. 1647.

1530. The redhibitory action, resulting from the obligation of warranty against latent defects, must be brought with reasonable diligence, according to the nature of the defect and the usage of the place where the sale is made.

C. N. 1648.

1531. In sales made under process of execution there is no obligation of warranty against latent defects.

C. N. 1649.

Chapter Fifth. Of the Obligations of the Buyer.

1532. The principal obligation of the buyer is to pay the price of the thing sold.

C. N. 1650.

1533. If the time and place of payment be not fixed by agreement, the buyer must pay at the time and place of the delivery of the thing.

C. N. 1651.

1534. The buyer is obliged to pay interest on the price in the cases following: 1. In case of a special agreement, from the time fixed by such agreement. 2. In case the thing sold be of a nature to produce fruits or other revenues, from the time of entering into possession of it. But if a term be stipulated for the payment of the price, the interest is due only from the expiration of such term. 3. In case the thing be not of a nature to produce fruits or revenues, from the time of the buyer being put in default.

C. N. 1652.

1535. If the buyer be disturbed in his possession or have just cause to fear that he will be dissturbed by any action, hypothecary or in revendication, he may delay the payment of the price until the seller causes such disturbance to cease or gives security, unless there is a stipulation to the contrary.

C. N. 1653.

1536. The seller of an immoveable cannot demand the dissolution of the sale by reason of the failure of the buyer to pay the price, unless there is a special stipulation to that effect.

C. N. 1654.

1537. The stipulation and right of dissolution of the sale of an immoveable, by reason of non-payment of the price, are subject to the rules relating to the right of redemption contained in articles 1547, 1548, 1549, 1550, 1551, 1552. The right can in no case be exercised after the expiration of ten years from the time of sale.

C. C. 816, 2100, 2102, 2248.

1539. The seller cannot have possession of the thing sold, upon the dissolution of the sale by reason of non-payment of the price until he has repaid to the buyer such part of the price as he has received, with the costs of all necessary repairs, and of such improvements as have increased the value of the thing, to the amount of such increased value. If there improvements be of a nature to be removed, he has the option of permitting the buyer to remove them.

1540. The buyer is obliged to restore the thing with the fruits and profits received by him, or such portion thereof as corresponds with the part of the price remaining unpaid. He is also answerable to the seller for the deteriorations of the property which have been caused by his fault.

1541. The seller is held to have abandoned his right to recover the price when he has brought an action for the dissolution of the sale by reason of the non-payment of it.

1542. A demand of the price by action or other legal proceeding does not deprive the seller of his right to obtain the dissolution of the sale by reason of non-payment.

1543. In the sale of moveable things the right of dissolution by reason of non-payment of the price can only be exercised while the thing sold remains in the possession of the buyer, without prejudice to the seller's right of revendication as provided in the title of Privileges and Hypothecs. In the case of insolvency such right can only be exercised during the thirty days next after the delivery.

C. N. 1654; C. C. 1998, 1999, 2000.

1544. In the sale of moveable things the buyer is obliged to take them away at the time and place at which they are deliverable. If the price have not been paid the dissolution of the sale takes place, in favour of the seller, of right and without the intervention of a suit, after the expiration of the day agreed upon for taking them away, or if there be no such agreement, after the buyer has been put in default in the manner provided in the title of Obligations; without prejudice to the sellers claim for damages.

C. N. 1657; C. C. 1165.

b) Acts, 1910, c. 39. An Act to amend the Civil Code, respecting Bulk Sales of Merchandise (4th June, 1910).

C. C., new chapter and articles added. 1. The following Chapter and articles are inserted in the Civil Code, after chapter ninth of title fifth of book third:

Chapter Ninth a. Bulk Sales.

"Bulk sale" defined. 1569 a. The words "bulk sale" within the meaning of this Chapter, include and mean any sale or transfer of a stock in trade or of merchandise, including transfers of license certificates for the sale of intoxicating liquor, made, directly or indirectly, outside the ordinary course of the seller's business, whether the sale or transfer comprises the whole or nearly the whole of such stock in trade or merchandise, or whether it relates only to an interest in the affairs or business of the seller.

Certain affidavit required in certain case. Form of affidavit. 1569 b. Any person who, directly or indirectly, buys in bulk a stock in trade or merchandise, including the transfer of a license certificate for the sale of intoxicating liquor, shall, before paying the purchase price, wholly or in part, and whether in cash or on time, obtain from the seller or his agent, or if the seller is a company or a partnership, from the president, secretary, or manager of such company or partnership, an affidavit containing the names and addresses of the persons who have sold him the said stock in trade or merchandise and who have not been paid, and the amounts due or to become due to each of such persons as the price or part of the price there-

Coming into force. 2. This act shall come into force on the 1st day of January, 1911.

Seller's Affidavit.

That the following names and addresses are the names and addresses of all my creditors (or of all the creditors or the company or firm) who have supplied me (or it) with the effects or merchandise or any part thereof which I have sold or agreed to sell (or which the company or firm has sold or agreed to sell) and that the amounts opposite their names are the amounts, which are due to them or which are still to become due.

[illegible]

That I have not (or that the company or firm has not) any other creditors than those hereinbefore mentioned, so far as the said effects or merchandise or any part thereof, are concerned.

Factors. Civil Code.

1735. A broker is one who exercises the trade and calling of negotiating between parties the business of buying or selling or other lawful transactions.

He may be the mandatary of the parties and bind both by his acts in the business for which he is engaged by them.

1736. A factor or commission-merchant is an agent who is employed to buy or sell goods for another, either in his own name or in the name of his principal, for which he receives a compensation commonly called a commission.

1737. Brokers and factors are subject to the general rules declared in this title, when these are not inconsistent with the articles of this chapter.

1738. A factor whose principal resides in another country is personally liable to third persons with whom he contracts, whether the name of the principal be known or not. The principal is not liable on such contracts to third parties, unless it is proved that the credit was given to both principal and factor, or the principal alone.

1739. Any person may contract for the purchase of goods with any agent entrusted with their possession or to whom they have been consigned, and may receive the same from such agent and pay him the price thereof, and such contract and payment is binding upon the owner of the goods, notwithstanding the purchaser has notice that he is contracting only with an agent.

1740. Any agent entrusted with the possession of the goods, or of the documents of title thereto, is deemed the owner thereof for the following purposes, that is to say: 1. To make a sale or contract, as mentioned in the last preceding article; 2. To entitle the consignee of goods consigned by such agent, to a lien thereon for any money or negotiable security advanced or given by him to or for the use of such agent, or received for him by such agent for the use of the consignee, in like manner as if such agent were the true owner of the goods; 3. To give validity to any contract or agreement, by way of pledge, lien or security, made in good faith with such agent, as well for an original loan, advance or payment made upon the security of the goods or documents, as for any other or continuing advance in respect thereof; 6. To make such contract binding upon the owner of the goods and all other persons interested therein, notwithstanding the person claiming such pledge or lien had notice that he was contracting only with an agent.

1741. In case any person having a valid lien or security or any goods or documents of title or negotiable security, in respect of a previous advance upon a contract with agent, gives up the same to such agent, upon a contract for the pledge, lien or security of other goods, or of another document or security, by such agent delivered to him in exchange, to be held upon the same lien as the goods, document or security so given up, then, such new contract, if in good faith, is deemed a valid contract, made in consideration of a present advance in money, within the provisions of this chapter, but the lien acquired under such new contract, on the goods, document or security, deposited in exchange, cannot exceed the value of the goods, document or security, so delivered up and exchanged.

1742. Such contracts only are valid as are mentioned in this chapter, and such loans, advances and exchanges only are valid as are made in good faith and without notice that the agent making the same has no authority so to do, or that he is acting in bad faith against the owner of the goods.

1743. Loans, advances and exchanges in good faith though made with notice of the agent not being the owner, but without notice of his acting without authority bind the owner and all other persons interested in the goods, documents or security, as the case may be.

1744. No antecedent debt owed by an agent entrusted with the possession of the goods or the documents of title thereto, can be the subject of any lien or pledge of such goods or documents, nor can the agent for any purpose relating to such goods deviate from the orders of authority received from his principal.

1745. Bills of lading, warehousekeeper's or wharfinger's receipts or orders for delivery of goods, bills of inspection of potash or pearlash, and all other documents used in the ordinary course of business, as proof of the possession or control of goods, or purporting to authorize, either by endorsement or by delivery, the possessor of any such document to transfer or receive goods thereby represented, are deemed documents of title within the provisions of this chapter.

1746. Any agent possessed of any document of title, whether derived immediately from the owner of the goods, or obtained by reason of the agent having been entrusted with the possession of the goods, or of any document of title thereto, is deemed to be entrusted with the possession of the goods represented by such document of title.

1747. Any contract pledging of giving a lien upon any document of title, is deemed a pledge of and lien upon the goods to which it relates, and the agent is deemed the possessor of the goods or documents of title, whether the same be in his actual custody or be held by any other person for him or subject to his control.

1748. When a loan or advance is made in good faith, to an agent entrusted with and in possession of goods or documents of title, on the faith of any contract in writing to consign, deposit, transfer, or deliver such goods, or documents of title, and the same are actually received by the person making the loan or advance, either at the time of the contract or at a time subsequent thereto, without notice that the agent is not authorised to make the pledge or security, such loan or advance is deemed a loan or advance upon the security of the goods or documents of title within the provisions of this Chapter.

1749. Every contract, whether made directly with the agent or with a clerk or other person on his behalf, is deemed a contract with such agent.

1750. Every payment, whether made by money, bill of exchange or other negotiable security, is deemed an advance within the provisions of this Chapter.

1751. Every agent in possession of goods or documents as aforesaid is for the purposes of this chapter taken to be entrusted therewith by the owner, unless the contrary is shewn in evidence.

1752. Nothing contained in this Chapter lessens or affects the civil responsibility of the agent for the breach of any obligation, or the non-fulfilment of his orders or authority.

1753. Notwithstanding any of the foregoing articles, the owner may redeem any goods or documents of title pledged as aforesaid, at any time before the same have been sold, upon repayment of the amount of the lien thereon, or restoration of the securities in respect of which the lien exists, and upon payment or satisfaction to the agent, of any sum of money for or in respect of which such agent is entitled to retain the goods or documents by way of lien against such owner; or he may recover from the person with whom any goods or documents have been pledged, or who has any lien thereon, any balance or sum of money remaining in his hands as the produce of the sale of the goods, after deducting the amount of the lien under the contract.

1754. In case of the bankruptcy of any agent, and in case the owner of the goods redeem the same, he is held, in respect of the sum paid by him on account of the agent for such redemption, to have paid the same for the use of such agent before his bankruptcy, or in case the goods have not been so redeemed, the owner is deemed a creditor of the agent for the value of the goods so pledged at the time of the pledge, and may in either case claim or set off the sum so paid, or the value of such goods, as the case may be.

Affreightment and Bills of Lading.<sup>1)</sup>

a) Civil Code.

Title Third. Of affreightment.

Chapter First. General Provisions.

2407. Contracts of affreightment are either by charter party, or for the conveyance of goods in a general ship.

2408. The contract may be made by the owner or the master of the ship or by the ship's husband as agent of the former. If made by the master, it binds himself, and also the owner of the ship; unless it is made at a place where the owner or ship's husband is present, and they disavow the contract, in which case it binds the master only. If the ship be hired by a party who sublets it, he is subject in contracts of affreightment to the same rules as if he were owner.

2409. The ship, with her equipments, and the freight are bound to the performance of the obligations of the lessor and the cargo to the performance of the obligations of the lessee or freighter.

2410. If before the departure of the vessel there be a declaration of war or interdiction of trade, with the country to which she is destined, or by reason of any other event of irresistible force, the voyage can not be prosecuted, the contract is dissolved, without either being liable in damages. The expense of loading and unloading the cargo is borne by the freighter.

2411. If the port of destination be closed, or the ship detained by irresistible force, for a time only, the contract subsists and the master and freighter are mutually bound to await the opening of the port and the liberation of the ship; without either of them being entitled to damages. The rule applies equally if the obstruction arise during the voyage; and no increase of freight can be demanded.

2412. The freighter may nevertheless unload the goods during the detention of the ship for the causes stated in the last preceding article; subject to the obligation of reloading after the obstruction has ceased, or of indemnifying the lessor for the full freight; unless the goods are of a perishable nature and can not be replaced, in which case freight is due only to the place of the discharge.

2413. Contracts of affreightment and the obligations of the parties under them, are subject to the rules relating to carriers contained in the title Of Lease and Hire, when these are not inconsistent with the article of this title.

Chapter Second. Of the Charter-Party.

2414. Affreightment by charter-party may be either of the whole ship or of some principal part of it, and for a determined voyage or a specified time.

2415. The charter-party, or memorandum of charter-party, usually specifies the name and burden of the ship with a stipulation that she is tight and staunch and well furnished and equipped for the voyage. It also contains stipulations as to the time and place of loading, the day of sailing, the rate and payment of freight, and the conditions of demurrage, with a declaration of the fortuitous events which exempt the lessor from liability, and such other covenants as the parties may see fit to add.

2416. If the time of loading and unloading the ship, and the demurrage be not agreed upon, they are regulated by usage.

2417. When goods are put on board of a ship in pursuance of a charter-party the master signs a bill of lading for them to the effect mentioned in article 2420.

2418. If the whole of the ship be leased, but it be not wholly loaded by the lessee, the master can not receive other cargo without his consent; in case of any other cargo being received the lessee is entitled to the freight of it.

Chapter Third. Of the Conveyance of Goods in a General Ship.

2419. The contract for the conveyance of goods in a general ship is that by which the master or the owner of a ship destined for a particular voyage engages separately with various persons, unconnected with each other, to convey their respective goods according to the bill of lading to the place of their destination and there to deliver them.

Chapter Fourth. Of the Bill of Lading.

2420. The bill of lading is signed and delivered by the master or purser, in three or more parts, of which the master retains one; the freighter also keeps one, and sends one to the consignee. Besides the name of the parties and of the ship, it states the nature and quantity of the goods shipped, with their marks and numbers in the margin, and the place of their delivery, the name of the consignee, the place of shipping and of ship's destination, with the rate and manner of payment of the freight, and primage and average.

2421. When by the bill of lading the delivery of the goods is to be made to a person named or to his assigns, such person may transfer his right by endorsement and delivery of the bill of lading, and the ownership of the goods and all rights and liabilities in respect thereof are held to pass thereby to the indorsee; subject nevertheless to the rights of third persons.

2422. The freighter or lessee upon the signing and delivery to him of the bill of lading, is bound to return the receipts given by the master for the goods shipped. The bill of lading, in the hands of a consignee or endorsee, is conclusive evidence against the party signing it; unless there is fraud, of which the holder is cognizant.

Chapter Fifth. Of the Obligations of the Owner or Lessor and of the Master.

2423. The lessor is obliged to provide a vessel of the stipulated burthen, tight and staunch, furnished with all tackle and apparel necessary for the voyage, and with a competent master and a sufficient number of persons of skill and ability to navigate her, and so to keep her to the end of the voyage. The master is obliged to take on board a pilot, when by the law of the country one is required.

2424. The master is obliged to receive the goods, and carefully arrange and stow them in the ship, and to sign such bills of lading as may be required by the freighter or lessee, according to article 2420, upon receiving from him the receipts given for the goods.

2425. The goods must not be stowed on deck without the consent of the freighter unless in a particular trade or in inland or coasting voyages, where there is an established usage to that effect. If without such consent or usage the goods be so stowed and are lost by peril of the sea the master is personally liable.

2426. The ship must sail on the day fixed by the contract, or, if no day be fixed within a reasonable time, according to circumstances and usage; and must proceed to her destination without deviation. If by the fault of the master the ship be delayed in her departure, or during the voyage, or at the place of discharge, or any loss or injury occur, he is liable in damages.

2427. The master is obliged to exercise all needful care of the cargo, and, in case of wreck, or other obstruction to the voyage by a fortuitous event or irresistible force, he is obliged to use the diligence and care of a prudent administrator for the preservation of the goods, and for their conveyance to the place of destination, and for that purpose to engage another ship, if it be necessary.

2428. On the completion of the voyage, and after due compliance with the laws and regulations of the port, the master is obliged to deliver the goods without delay to the consignee or his assignee, on production of the bill of lading and payment of the freight and other charges due in respect of it.

2429. The goods must be delivered in conformity with the terms of the bill of lading and according to the law or usage observed in the place of delivery.

2430. Whenever any vessel has arrived at its destination in any port in Lower Canada, and the master thereof has notified the consignee either by public advertisement or otherwise, that such cargo has reached the place designated in the bill of lading, such consignee is bound to receive the same within twenty-four hours after notice; and thereafter such cargo, so soon as placed on the wharf, is at the risk and charges of the consignee or owner.

2431. The time allowed for the discharge of cargoes consisting of certain kinds of merchandise is regulated by the laws respecting the discharging of cargoes of vessels.

2432. Neither the owner nor master is exempt from liability for loss or damage occasioned by the fault or incapacity of any qualified pilot acting in charge of the ship.

2433. The owner of a sea-going ship is not liable for the loss or damage occasioned to any goods, wares, merchandise, and article of any kind, on board any such vessel or delivered to him for conveyance therein, without his actual fault or privity, or the fault or neglect of his agents, servants, or employees: 1. By reason of fire, or the dangers of navigation; 2. By reason of any defect in, or the nature of, the goods themselves or from armed robbery or other irresistible force; or 3. By reason of any robbery, theft, embezzlement, removal, or secreting of any gold, silver, diamonds, watches, jewels, or precious stones, or valuable securities, or articles of great value, not being ordinary merchandise, unless the true nature and value thereof have at the time of their delivery for conveyance, been declared by the owner or shipper thereof to the carrier or agent or servant, and entered in the bill of lading, or otherwise in writing.

2434. In any case of loss of life or personal injury, damage or loss to anything on board of a sea-going ship without any actual fault or privity on the part of the owner of the vessel on board of which or through the fault of which the loss happened, such owner is not responsible for the damage or the loss occasioned to an amount exceeding the sum of thirty-eight dollars and ninety-two cents per ton of the ships registered tonnage in the case of sailing vessels, and of the gross tonnage, without deduction from the engine room in case of steam vessels. The owner, however, remains always responsible in the same manner for every such loss and damage arising on distinct occasions to the same extent, as if no other loss or damage had arisen.

Chapter Sixth. Of the Obligations of the Lessee.

Section I. General Provisions.

2437. The principal obligations of the lessee are: 1. To load the ship with the stipulated cargo, and within the time specified by the contract, or, if no time be specified, within a reasonable delay; 2. To pay the freight, with primage and average, and demurrage when any is due.

2438. The lessee can not put on board any prohibited or uncustomed goods, by which the ship may be subjected to detention or forfeiture, or goods of a dangerous nature, without notice to the master or owner.

2439. If the lessee fail to load the ship fully, as agreed by the charter-party, or if after loading, he withdraw the goods before the departure of the ship or during the voyage, he is liable to pay the whole freight, and to indemnify the master for all expenses and liabilities arising from such withdrawal.

2440. If the ship be delayed in her departure, or during the voyage, by the fault of the freighter, he is liable for demurrage and other charges.

2441. If the lessee agree to furnish a return cargo, and fail to do so, and the ship of necessity return unladen, the lessee is obliged to pay the whole freight, subject in the latter case, to the deduction of such amount as the ship may have earned on the return voyage.

Section II. Of Freight, Primage, Average, and Demurrage.

2442. Freight is the recompense payable for the lease of a ship, or for carrying goods upon a lawful voyage to the place of their destination. In the absence of express stipulation it is not due until the carriage of the goods is completely performed, except in the cases specified in this section.

2443. The amount of freight is regulated by the agreement in the charter-party, or bill of lading, at a gross sum for the whole ship, or a certain part of it, or at a fixed rate per ton or package, or otherwise. If not regulated by agreement, the rate is estimated upon the value of the service performed, according to the usage of trade.

2444. The amount of freight is not affected by the longer or shorter duration of the voyage, unless the agreement be to pay a certain sum by the month, or week, or other division of time, in which case the freight begins to run, if not otherwise stipulated, from the commencement of the voyage, and so continues, as well during its course, as during all unavoidable delay not occasioned by the fault of the master or lessor; subject nevertheless to the exception contained in the next following article.

2445. If the ship be detained by the order of a sovereign power, freight payable by the time does not continue to run during such detention. The wages of the seamen and the expense of their maintenance are in such case a subject of general average.

2446. The master may discharge, at the place of loading, goods found in his ship, if they have not been declared, or he may recover freight upon them, at the usual rate paid, at the place of loading, for goods of a like nature.

2447. If the ship be obliged to return with her cargo, by reason of a prohibition of trade occurring, during the voyage, with the country to which she is bound, freight is due upon the outward voyage only, although a return cargo has been stipulated.

2448. If, without any previous fault of the master or lessor, it becomes necessary to repair the ship in the course of the voyage, the freighter is obliged either to suffer the necessary delay or to pay the whole freight. In case the ship can not be repaired, the master is obliged to engage another; if he be unable to do so, freight is due only in proportion to the part of the voyage which is accomplished.

2449. Freight is due upon the goods which the master has of necessity sold to repair the ship, or to supply it with provisions and other urgent necessities, and he is obliged to pay for such goods the price which they would have brought at the place of destination. This rule applies equally although the ship be afterwards lost on the voyage, but in that case the price is that at which the goods were actually sold.

2450. Freight is payable upon the goods cast overboard for the preservation of the ship and of the remainder of the cargo, and the value of such goods is to be paid to the owner of them by contribution on general average.

2451. Freight is not due upon goods lost by shipwreck, taken by pirates, or captured by a public enemy, or which without the fault of the freighter have wholly perished by a fortuitous event, otherwise than as mentioned in the last preceding article. If the freight or any portion of it have been paid in advance, the master is bound to return it, unless there is an agreement to the contrary.

2452. If the goods be recaptured or saved from the shipwreck, freight is due to the place of capture or wreck, and if they be afterwards conveyed by the master to their place of destination, the whole freight is due, subject to salvage.

2453. The master can not keep the goods in his ship in default of payment of the freight; but at the time of unloading, he may prevent them from being carried away, or cause them to be seized. He has a special privilege upon them while they remain in his possession or the possession of his agent, for the payment of his freight, with primage and accustomed average, as expressed in the bill of lading.

2454. The consignee, or other authorized person who receives the goods, is bound to grant a receipt for them to the master; and the acceptance of goods, under a bill of lading by which delivery is to be made to the consignee or his assigns, he or they paying freight, renders the person so receiving them liable for the freight due upon them, unless the person is the known agent of the shipper.

2455. Goods which are diminished in value or damaged by reason of intrinsic defect in them, or by a fortuitous event, can not be abandoned for freight. But if without any fault of the freighter, casks containing wine, oil, honey, molasses, or other like things, have leaked so much that they are nearly or altogether empty, the casks may be abandoned in satisfaction of the freight.

2456. The obligation to pay primage and average, which are mentioned in the bill of lading, is subject to the same rules as the liability for freight; the primage is payable to the master in his own right, unless there is a stipulation to the contrary.

2457. Demurrage is the compensation to be paid by the freighter for the detention of the ship beyond the time agreed upon, or allowed by usage, for loading and discharging.

2458. Any person who receives the goods under a bill of lading importing an obligation to pay demurrage, is liable for such demurrage as may become due on the discharge of the goods; subject to the rules declared in article 2454.

2459. Demurrage under express contract is due for all delays which are not caused by the shipowner or his agents. It does not begin to be computed until the goods are ready to be discharged, after which, if the stipulated time have expired, a further reasonable time must be allowed for their discharge.

2460. If the time, conditions, and rate of demurrage be not agreed upon, they are regulated by the law and usage of the port when the claim arises.

b) Revised Statutes, 1909.

§ 1. Transfer of bills of lading.

Bill of lading, etc., may be endorsed and received as collateral security for advances, etc. Effect of endorsement. Sale of goods, if advances, etc., not paid. 7457.

Any bill of lading, or any receipt given by a warehouseman, miller, wharfinger, master of a vessel, or carrier, for cereal grains, goods, wares, or merchandise, stored or deposited, or to be stored or deposited, in any warehouse, mill, or other place in this Province, or shipped in any vessel, or delivered to any carrier for carriage from any place to any part of this Province, or through the same, or on the waters bordering thereon, or from the same to any other place, and whether such cereal grains are to be delivered upon such receipt in kind or converted into flour, may, by endorsement thereon by the owner of, or person entitled to receive such cereal grains, goods, wares or merchandise or his attorney or agent, be transferred as collateral security for the payment of any bill of exchange or note or of any debt due. Such endorsement vests in the endorsee from the date of such endorsement, all the right and title of the endorser to or in such cereal grains, goods, wares or merchandise, subject to the right of the endorser to have the same re-transferred to him, if such bill, note or debt be paid when due. In the event of the non-payment of such bill, note or debt when due, the endorsee may sell the said cereal grains, goods, wares or merchandise, and retain the proceeds or so much thereof as will be equal to the amount due upon such bill, note or debt, with any interest or costs returning the overplus, if any, to such endorser.

Warehouseman, etc., may give a certificate, etc. 7458. When any warehouseman, miller, wharfinger, master of a vessel, or carrier, by whom a receipt may be given, in such capacity, for cereal grains, goods, wares, or merchandise, is at the same time the owner of or entitled himself (otherwise than in his capacity of warehouseman, miller, wharfinger, master of a vessel, or carrier), to receive such cereal grains, goods, wares, or merchandise, any such receipt, or any acknowledgment or certificate intended to answer the purpose of such receipt, given and endorsed by such person, shall be as valid and effectual as if the person giving such receipt, acknowledgment or certificate, and endorsing the same, were not one and the same person.

Advances to give first lien on the goods. 7459. All advances made on the security of any bill of lading, receipt, acknowledgment or certificate, shall give and be held to give to the person making such advances, a claim for the re-payment of such advances on the grain, goods, wares, or merchandise therein mentioned, prior to and by preference over the claim of any unpaid vendor.

Goods not to be held beyond a certain time. When security must be transferred. Goods not to be sold without notice to owner. 7460. No such cereal grains, goods, wares, or merchandise, shall be held in pledge for any period exceeding six months; and no transfer of any such bill of lading or receipt shall be made to secure the payment of any bill, note or debt, unless the same is negotiated or contracted at the same time with the endorsement of such bill of lading or receipt. No sale of any cereal grains, goods, wares, or merchandise, shall be made, unless ten days' notice of the time and place of such sale has been given by registered letter transmitted through the post office to the owner of such cereal grains, goods, wares, and merchandise prior to the sale thereof.

§ 2. Transfer of cove receipts.

Cove receipts, etc. Effect of endorsement. Sale of goods if advances not paid. 7461. Any cove-receipt, or any receipt given by a cove-keeper or by the keeper of any wharf, yard, harbor, or other place, for timber, boards, deals, staves, or other lumber there laid up, stored, or deposited, or any bill of lading or receipt given by a master of a vessel, or by a carrier, for timber, boards, deals, staves, or other lumber shipped in such vessel or delivered to such carrier for carriage from any place to any part of this province or through the same, or on the waters bordering thereon, or from the same to any other place may, by endorsement thereon, by the owner of or person entitled to receive such timber, boards, deals, staves or other lumber, or his attorney or agent, be transferred as collateral security for the payment of any bill of exchange or note or of any debt due. Such endorsement vests in the endorsee, from the date of such endorsement, all the right and title of the endorser to or in such timber, boards, deals, staves, or other lumber, subject to the right of the endorser to have the same re-transferred to him, if such bill, note or debt be paid when due. In the event of the non-payment of such bill, note or debt when due, such endorsee may sell the said timber, boards, deals, staves, or other lumber, and retain the proceeds, or so much thereof as will be equal to the amount due upon such bill, note, or debt, with any interest or costs, returning the overplus, if any, to such endorser.

Cove-keeper, etc., owning or being entitled to timber, etc. 7462. Where any cove-keeper, or keeper of any wharf, yard, harbor or other place, or master of a vessel, or carrier by whom a receipt or bill of lading may be given in such capacity for timber, boards, deals, staves, or other lumber, is at the same time the owner of or entitled himself (otherwise than in the capacity of cove-keeper, or of keeper of a wharf, yard, harbor, or other place, or of master of a vessel, or carrier) to receive such timber, boards, deals, staves, or other lumber, any such receipt or bill of lading, or any acknowledgment or certificate intended to answer the purpose of such receipt or bill of lading, given and endorsed by such person, shall be as valid and effectual as if the person giving such receipt or bill of lading, acknowledgment, or certificate, and endorsing the same, were not one and the same person.

Timber, etc., how long to be held. When security must be transferred. Timber not to be sold without notice to owner. Sale to be by auction. Notice thereof. Meaning of term "published nearest." 7463. Such timber, boards, deals, staves, or other lumber, shall not be held in pledge for any period exceeding twelve months; and no transfer of any such receipt or any bill of lading shall be made to secure the payment of any bill of exchange, note or debt, unless the same is negotiated or contracted at the same time with the endorsement of such receipt or bill of lading. No sale of any timber, boards, deals, staves, or other lumber, shall be made unless thirty days' notice of the time and place of such sale shall have been given, by registered letter transmitted through the post office, to the owner of such timber, boards, deals, staves, or other lumber, prior to the sale thereof. Every such sale shall be made by public auction, after notice thereof by advertisement, stating the time and place thereof, for at least eight days consecutively, in at least two daily newspapers, one in French and the other in English, published in or nearest to the place where such sale is to be made. A daily newspaper is deemed to be published nearest to a place, if no other daily newspaper be published in the same language in or nearer to such place; and if in any place where any such sale by auction is to be made, there be not any newspaper published daily in either language, but some newspaper or newspapers be published there in such language less often than daily, then such advertisement shall also be published in every issue of such local newspaper, or of at least one of such local newspapers, during the time of its being published in daily newspapers.

Advances to give a first lien on timber, etc. 7464. All advances made on the security of any such cove-receipt or bill of lading, or receipt, acknowledgment, or certificate, shall give to the person making such advances a claim for the payment of such advances on the timber, deals, staves, or other lumber therein mentioned, prior to and by preference over the claim of any unpaid vendor or other creditor, save and except claims for wages of labor performed in making and transporting such timber, boards, deals, staves, or lumber.

Marine Insurance.

Civil Code.

Title Fifth. Of Insurance.

Chapter First. General Provisions.

Section I. Of the Nature and Form of the Contract.

2468. Insurance is a contract whereby one party, called the insurer or underwriter undertakes for a valuable consideration, to indemnify the other, called the insured, or his representatives, against loss or liability from certain risks or perils to which the object of the insurance may be exposed, or from the happening of a certain event.

2469. The consideration or price which the insured obliges himself to pay for the insurance, is called the premium. It does not belong to the insurer until the risk begins, whether he has received it or not.

2470. Marine insurance is always a commercial contract; other insurances are not by their nature commercial, but they are so when made for a premium by persons carrying on the business of insurers; subject to the exception contained in the next following article.

2471. Mutual insurance is not commercial. It is governed by special statutes, and by the general rules contained in this title, in so far as they are applicable and not inconsistent with such statutes.

2472. All persons capable of contracting may insure objects in which they have an interest an which are subject to risk.

2473. Incorporeal things as well as corporeal, and also human life and health, may be the object of insurance.

2474. A person has an insurable interest in the object insured whenever he may suffer direct and immediate loss by the destruction or injury of it.

2475. The interest insured must exist at the time of the loss unless the policy contains the stipulation of lost or not lost. The rule is subject to certain exceptions in life insurance.

2476. Insurance may be made against all losses by inevitable accident, or irresistible force, or by events over which the insured has no control: subject to the general rules relating to illegal and immoral contracts.

2477. The insurer may effect a re-insurance, and the insured may insure the solvency of the first insurer.

2478. In case of loss the insured must, with reasonable diligence, give notice thereof to the insurer; and he must conform to such special requirements as may be contained in the policy with respect to notice and preliminary proof of his claim, unless they are waived by the insurer. If it be impossible for the insured to give notice or to make the preliminary proof within the delay specified in the policy, he is entitled to a reasonable extension of time.

2479. Insurance is divided with respect to its object and the nature of the risks, into three principal kinds: 1. Marine insurance; 2. Fire insurance; 3. Life insurance.

2480. The contract of insurance is usually witnessed by an instrument called a policy of insurance. The policy either declares the value of the thing insured and is then called a valued policy, or it contains no declaration of value, and is then called an open policy. Wager or gaming policies, in the object of which the insured has no insurable interest, are illegal.

2481. The acceptance of an application for insurance constitutes a valid agreement, to insure, unless the insurer is required by law to contract in another form exclusively.

2482. Policies of insurance may be transferred by indorsement and delivery, or by delivery alone, subject to the conditions contained in them. But marine policies and fire policies can be transferred only to persons having an insurable interest in the object of the policy.

2483. In the absence of any consent or privity on the part of the insurer, the simple transfer of the thing insured does not transfer the policy. The insurance is thereby terminated, subject to the provisions contained in article 2576.

2484. The announcements and clauses which are essential or usual in policies of insurance, are declared in articles hereinafter contained relating respectively to the different kinds of insurance.

Section II. Of Representation and Concealment.

2485. The insured is obliged to represent to the insurer fully and fairly every fact which shows the nature and extent of the risk, and which may prevent the under-taking of it, or affect the rate of premium.

2486. The insured is not obliged to represent facts known to the insurer, or which from their public character and notoriety he is presumed to know; nor is he obliged to declare facts covered by warranty express or implied, except in answers to inquiries made by the insurer.

2487. Misrepresentation or concealment, either by error or design, of a fact of a nature to diminish the appreciation of the risk or change the object of it, is a cause of nullity. The contract may in such case be annulled although the loss has not in any degree arisen from the fact misrepresented or concealed.

2488. Fraudulent misrepresentation or concealment on the part either of the insurer or of the insured is in all cases a cause of nullity of the contract in favour of the innocent party.

2489. The obligation of the insured with respect to representation is satisfied when the fact is substantially as represented and there is no material concealment.

Section III. Of Warranties.

2490. Warranties and conditions are a part of the contract and must be true if affirmative, and if promissory must be complied with; otherwise the contract may be annulled notwithstanding the good faith of the insured. They are either expressed or implied.

2491. An express warranty is a stipulation or condition expressed in the policy, or so referred to in it as to make part of the policy. Implied warranties will be designated in the following chapters relating to different kinds of insurance.

Chapter Second. Of Marine Insurance.

Section I. General Provisions.

2492. The policy of marine insurance contains: The name of the insured or of his agent; A description of the object insured, of the voyage, of the commencement and termination of the risk, and of the perils insured against; The name of the ship and master, except when the insurance is on a ship or ships generally; The premium; The amount insured; The subscription of the insurance with its date. It also contains such other clauses and announcements as the parties may agree upon.

2493. Insurance may be made on ships, on goods, on freight, on bottomry and respondentia loans, on profits and commissions, on premiums of insurance, and on all other things appreciable in money and exposed to the risks of navigation, with the exception of seamen's wages, upon which insurance can not be legally made, and subject to the general rules relating to unlawful and immoral contracts.

2494. Insurance may be made for any kind of voyage or transport by sea, river or canal navigation and either for the whole voyage or for a limited time.

2495. The risk of loss or damage of the thing insured by perils of the sea is essential to the contract of marine insurance. The risks usually specified in the policy are tempest and shipwreck, stranding, collision, unavoidable change of the ship's course or of her voyage, or of the ship herself, fire, jettison, plunder, piracy, capture, reprisal, and other casualties of war, detention by order of a sovereign power, barratry of the master and mariners, and generally all other perils and chances of navigation by which loss or damage may arise. The parties may limit or extend the risks by special agreement.

2496. If the time of the commencement and termination of the risk be not specified in the policy, it is regulated according to article 2598.

2497. Marine policies in cases of doubtful meaning are construed by the established and known usage of the trade to which the policy relates; such usage is held to be a part of the policy when it is not otherwise expressly provided.

2498. An insurance made after the loss or the arrival of the object of it, is null, if, at the time of insuring, the insured had a knowledge of the loss, or the insurer of the arrival. Such knowledge is presumed where information might have been received in the usual course and at the usual rate of transmission.

Section II. Of the Obligations of the Insured.

2499. The principal obligations of the insured relate: to the premium; to representation and concealment; to warranties and conditions; to abandonment, which is treated in the fifth section.

2500. The insured is obliged to pay the amount or rate of premium agreed upon, according to the terms of the contract. If the time of payment be not specified, it is payable without delay.

2501. In the following cases the premium is not due and if it have been paid it may be recovered back, the contract being void: 1. When the risk insured against does not occur, either by reason of the entire breaking up of the voyage before the departure of the ship, or for other causes, even those arising without fraud from the act of the insured; 2. When there is a want of insurable interest, or any other cause of nullity, without fraud on the part of the insured. The insurer in these cases is entitled to one-half per cent. on the sum insured, for his indemnification, unless the policy is illegal, or rendered null by fraud, misrepresentation, or concealment on his part. If the policy be illegal, there is no right of action for the premium, and none to recover it back if it have been paid.

2502. The preceding article applies when the risk occurs for part only of the value insured, for the non-payment or return of a proportional part of the premium, according to circumstances and the discretion of the Court.

§ 2. Of Representation and Concealment.

2503. The rules concerning representation, and the effect of misrepresentation, or concealment are declared in chapter one, section two.

§ 3. Of Warranties.

2504. The general rules relating to warranties are contained in chapter one, section three.

2505. It is an implied warranty in every contract of marine insurance that the ship shall be seaworthy at the time of sailing. She is seaworthy when she is in a fit state, as to repairs, equipments, crew and in all other respects, to undertake the voyage.

2506. In insurance for a ship-owner, it is an implied warranty that the ship shall be properly documented and conducted according to the laws and treaties of the country to which she belongs and to the law of nations.

Chapter Third. Of the Obligations of the Insurer.

2507. The principal obligation of the insurer is to pay to the insured all losses suffered by him by reason of any of the risks insured against according to the terms of the contract. His liability is subject to the rules contained in the foregoing section and to the rules and conditions hereinafter declared.

2508. The insurer is not liable for losses suffered after a deviation or change of the risk made without his consent, by changing, contrary to the established usage, the ship's course or the voyage, or the ship herself, by the order of the insured, unless the deviation or change is of necessity, or for the purpose of saving human life. The insurer is nevertheless entitled to the premium if the risk has commenced.

2509. The insurer is not liable for loss or damage arising from intrinsic defect in the thing, or caused by the culpable act or gross negligence of the insured.

2510. The insurer is not liable for loss by barratry of the master or mariners, unless there is an agreement to the contrary.

2511. Barratry is any act of wilful misconduct by the master or mariners whereby loss is caused to the owners or freighters.

2512. The insurer is not liable for the ordinary charges known as petty averages such as pilotage, towage, tonnage, anchorage, clearance, or duties imposed upon the ship or cargo.

2514. A contract of insurance made fraudulently on the part of the insured for a sum exceeding the value of the object of it, may be annulled by the insurer who in such case is entitled to one-half per cent. upon the amount insured.

2515. If in the case specified in the last preceding article there be no fraud, the contract is valid to the amount of the value of the object insured. The insurer is not entitled to the full premium upon the amount insured in excess of the value but to one-half per cent. only.

2516. If there be several contracts of insurance effected without fraud upon the same object, and against the same risks, and the first contract insures the full value of the object, it alone can be enforced. The subsequent insurers are free from liability and are bound to return the premium, reserving a half per cent. Subject nevertheless to such special agreement and conditions as may be contained in the policies of insurance.

2517. When in the case specified in the last preceding article the total value of the object is not insured by the first contract, the subsequent insurers are liable for the surplus according to the date of their respective contracts; subject to the same restriction.

2518. If the subsequent insurance be fraudulent on the part of the insured, he is obliged to pay the whole premium on such insurance, but is not entitled to recover anything upon it.

2519. When there is a partial loss of an object insured by several insurances to an amount not exceeding its full value, the insurers are liable for it rateably in proportion to the sums for which they have respectively insured.

2520. When the insurance is made separately upon goods to be laden on different ships, if all the goods be placed in one of the ships or in any number of them less than the whole, the insurer is liable only for the sums insured on the goods which under the contract were to be placed in such ship or ships, although all the ships specified in the contract be lost. He is entitled nevertheless to one half per cent. of premium upon the remainder of the total amount insured.

Section IV. Of Losses.

2521. Loss for which the insurer is liable is either total or partial.

2522. Total loss may be either absolute or constructive. It is absolute when the thing insured is wholly destroyed or lost. It is constructive when, by reason of any event insured against, the thing though not wholly destroyed or lost becomes of little or no value to the insured, or the voyage and adventure are lost or rendered not worth pursuing. Before the insured can claim for a constructive total loss he must make an abandonment as declared in the following section.

2523. All losses not included within the meaning of the preceding article are partial losses.

2525. When the collision is caused by the fault of the master or mariners of one of the ships, the party in fault is liable to the other, and if the insured ship be the one injured by the fault of the master or mariners of the other, the insurer is liable under the general clause, but if the injury be caused by the fault of the master or mariners of the insured ship, the insurer is not liable. If the fault amounts to barratry, it is subject in so far as the insurer is concerned, to the provision contained in article 2510.

2526. If the cause of the collision be unknown or it be impossible to determine by whose fault it was caused, the damages are borne in equal portions by both ships; the insurer is liable in such case under the general clause.

2528. Loss by salvage is a loss by the perils of the sea for which the insurer is liable under the general terms of the policy. Special rules relating to salvage are contained in the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854.

2529. The rules concerning loss by average contribution are contained in the sixth section of this chapter.

2530. When in the course of the voyage the ship becomes disabled from completing it, the master is bound to procure another vessel for conveying the cargo to the place of destination, if it can be done with advantage to the parties interested; and in such case the liability of the insurer continues after the cargo is transhipped for that purpose.

2531. The insurer is also liable in the case provided in the last preceding article for damages, expenses of discharging, storage, reshipment, supplies, freight, and all other costs not exceeding the amount insured.

2532. If in the case provided in article 2530, the master be unable to procure another vessel within a reasonable time for conveying the cargo to its destination, the insured may make an abandonment of it.

2533. In insurance by an open policy the value of the ship is held to be that which she bears at the port where the voyage begins, including whatever adds to her permanent value or is necessary to prepare her for the voyage, and also the costs of insurance.

2534. The value of the goods insured by open policy is established by the invoice, or if that can not be done is estimated according to their market price at the time of landing; all charges and expenses incurred up to that time, together with the premium of insurance, are included.

2535. The amount for which the insurer is liable on a partial loss is ascertained by comparing the gross produce of the damaged sales with the gross produce of the sound sales, and applying the percentage of difference to the value of the goods as specified in the policy, or established in the manner provided by the last preceding article.

2536. The insured is bound when he makes claim for any loss, to declare, if thereunto required, all other insurances effected by him on the thing insured and also the loans taken by him on bottomry and respondentia. He can not claim payment for the loss until such declaration is made, when so required, and if the declaration be false and fraudulent he loses his right to recover.

2537. The insured is bound to do in good faith all in his power between the time of loss and the abandonment to save the effects insured. His acts and those of his agents done for that purpose are for the benefit of the insurer and at his expense and risk.

Section V. Of Abandonment.

2538. The insured may make an abandonment to the insurer of the thing insured in all cases of its constructive loss and may thereupon recover as for a total loss. Without abandonment he is entitled in such cases to recover as for a partial loss only.

2539. An abandonment can not be partial or conditional. It extends, however, only to the property actually at risk at the time of the loss.

2540. If different things or classes of things be insured by the same policy and separately valued, the right to abandon may exist in respect to a part separately valued, as well as in respect to all.

2541. The abandonment must be made within a reasonable time after the insured has received intelligence of the loss. If from the uncertainty of the intelligence or the nature of the loss further inquiry and investigation be required to enable the insured to determine whether he will abandon or not, reasonable delay for that purpose is allowed according to circumstances.

2542. If the insured fail to abandon within a reasonable time, as provided in the last preceding article, he is held to have waived the right to do so and can only recover as for a partial loss.

2543. The abandonment is made by a notice given by the insured to the insurer of the loss, and that he abandons to the latter all his interest in the thing insured.

2544. The notice of abandonment must be explicit and must contain a statement of the grounds of abandonment. These grounds must exist and be sufficient at the time of the notice.

2545. Abandonment on the ground of the ship being disabled by stranding can not be made if she can be raised and put in a condition to continue her voyage to the place of destination. In such case the insured has his recourse against the insurer for the expense and loss occasioned by the stranding.

2546. If a ship has not been heard of within a reasonable time after sailing, or after the reception of the last intelligence of her, she is presumed to have foundered at sea, and the insured may make an abandonment and recover for a constructive total loss. The time necessary for raising such presumption is determined by the Court according to the circumstances of the case.

2547. Abandonment made and accepted is equivalent to transfer, and the thing abandoned with the rights pertaining to it becomes from the time of abandonment the property of the insurer. The acceptance may be either express or implied.

2548. On an accepted abandonment of the ship, the freight earned after the loss belongs to the insurer of the ship; that earned previously to the loss belongs to the ship-owner or to the insurer on freight to whom it is abandoned.

2549. Abandonment made upon sufficient ground and accepted, is binding on both parties. It can not be defeated by any subsequent event, or revoked otherwise than by mutual consent.

2550. If the insurer refuse to accept a valid abandonment he is liable as for an absolute total loss, deducting from the amount any proceeds of the thing abandoned which have been applied to the benefit of the insured.

Section VI. Of Loss by Average Contributions.

2551. In the absence of special agreement between the parties, average contributions are regulated by the following articles of this section, and, when these do not apply, by the usage of trade. The insurer is bound to reimburse the insured the amount of his contribution not exceeding the sum insured.

2552. Contribution by the ship and freight, and by the goods, whether saved or lost, rateably and according to their respective values, is made for damages voluntarily sustained and extraordinary expenses incurred, for the common safety of the ship and cargo. These are called general or gross average losses, and are as follows: 1. Money or other things given as a compensation to pirates to ransom the ship and cargo, or as salvage to recaptors; 2. Loss by jettison; 3. Masts, cables, anchors, or other furniture of the ship, cut away, destroyed, or abandoned; 4. Damages caused by jettison to the goods which remain in the ship or to the ship itself; 5. The wages and maintenance of seamen, during the detention of the ship in the course of her voyage, by a sovereign power, and during the necessary repairs of injuries of a nature to give rise to average contribution; 6. The expense of unlading to lighten the ship and enable her to enter a port of refuge or river, when she is compelled to do so by storm or by pursuit of an enemy; 7. Loss and expenses arising from the voluntary stranding of the ship for the purpose of escaping total loss or capture. And in general all damages voluntarily suffered and extraordinary expenses incurred for the common safety of the ship and cargo, from the time of loading and departure of the ship to the time of her arrival and discharge at the port of destination.

2553. Jettison gives rise to contribution only when it is made in imminent peril and is necessary for the preservation of the ship and cargo. It may be of the cargo, or of the provisions, tackle, or furniture of the ship.

2554. Jettison must be first made of things the least necessary, the most weighty, and of the least value.

2555. The ship's warlike stores and provisions, and the clothes of the crew, do not contribute, but the value of those lost by jettison is paid by contribution upon other effects generally. The baggage of passengers does not contribute. If lost it is paid by contribution in which it shares.

2556. Goods for which there is no bill of lading or acknowledgment by the master, or which are put on board contrary to the charter-party, are not paid for by contribution if lost by jettison. They contribute if saved.

2557. Goods carried on deck, which are lost or damaged by jettison, are not paid for by contribution, unless they were so carried in conformity with an established usage and course of trade. They contribute if saved.

2558. In cases of average contribution the ship and freight are estimated at their value at the port of discharge. The goods lost as well as those saved are estimated in like manner, deducting freight, duties, and other charges.

2559. Notwithstanding the rule of valuation contained in the last preceding article, the amount which the insurer is liable to reimburse to the insured for his contribution is regulated by the value which the ship or goods bear according to articles 2533 and 2534, or by the sum specified in the valued policy and not by their contribution value.

2560. No contribution is made for particular average losses. They are borne by the owner of the thing which has suffered the damage or occasioned the expense; saving his recourse against the insurer as declared in article 2527.

2561. If the ship be not saved by the jettison, no contribution takes place, and the goods saved are not held to contribute for those lost or damaged thereby.

2562. If the ship be saved by the jettison and continue her voyage, but be afterwards lost, the goods saved are subject to contribution at their actual value, deducting the costs of salvage.

2563. The goods jettisoned do not in any case contribute to the payment of losses happening afterwards to the goods saved. The cargo does not contribute to the payment of the ship when lost or rendered unfit for navigation.

2564. In case of the loss of goods put into lighters to enable the ship to enter into a port or river, the ship and her whole cargo are subject to contribution; but if the ship be lost with the goods remaining on board, the goods in the lighters are not subject to contribution, although they arrive safely in part.

2566. The owners and master have a privilege and right of retention upon the goods on board the ship or their price for the amount of contribution for which these are liable.

2567. If after the contribution the goods jettisoned be recovered by the owner he is bound to repay to the master and other interested parties, the amount of the contribution received by him, deducting therefrom the amount of damage suffered by the goods and the costs of salvage.

Insolvency.

Code of Civil Procedure.<sup>1)</sup>

853. The following persons may make a judicial abandonment of their property for the benefit of their creditors: 1. A debtor who has been arrested upon capias ad respondendum, as provided in the chapter thereon; 2. A trader who has ceased his payments and upon whom a demand of abandonment has been made by any creditor whose claim is unsecured for a sum of two hundred dollars or upwards.

854. The demand required by paragraph 2 of the preceding article must be signed by the creditor or by his agent specially authorized in that behalf; and in the case of a corporation, by its president, general manager, or local agent for the

<sup>1)</sup> The statutory provisions relating to the winding-up of companies are contained in the Dominion Winding-up Act and in the Statutes of Quebec reprinted under the head of Companies, supra. The Civil Code also contains certain provisions relating to the rights of creditors, the principal of which are the following:

1032. Creditors may in their own name impeach the acts of their debtors in fraud of their rights, according to the rules provided in this section.

1033. No contract can not be avoided unless it is made by the debtor with intent to defraud, and will have the effect of injuring the creditor.

1034. A gratuitous contract is deemed to be made with intent to defraud, if the debtor be insolvent at the time of making it.

1035. An onerous contract made by an insolvent debtor with a person who knows him to be insolvent is deemed to be made with intent to defraud.

1036. Every payment by an insolvent debtor to a creditor knowing his insolvency, is deemed to be made with intent to defraud, and the creditor may be compelled to restore the amount or thing received or the value thereof, for the benefit of the creditors according to their respective rights.

1038. An onerous contract made with intent to defraud on the part of the debtor, but in good faith on the part of the person with whom he contracts is not voidable; saving the special provisions applicable in cases of insolvency of traders.

1039. No contract or payment can be avoided, by reason of anything contained in this section, at the suit of a subsequent creditor, unless he is subrogated in the rights of an anterior creditor.

1040. No contract or payment can be avoided by reason of anything contained in this section at the suit of any individual creditor, unless such suit is brought within one year from the time of his obtaining a knowledge thereof. If the suit be by assignees or representatives of the creditors collectively, it must be brought within a year from the time of their appointment.

district where the abandonment should be made, or by the specially authorized agent of such corporation. Any demand made by virtue of a special power of attorney must mention the fact.

855. The service of the demand on a person in the Province is subject to the same rules as ordinary summons.

856. The demand must be filed at the office of the Court, together with a claim under oath accompanied by vouchers, and the special power of attorney, if any, under which the demand has been made.

857. The demand may be contested by petition, which must be filed within two days after the service of the demand, and be served upon the demanding party as soon as possible. The contesting party may, within the same delay, file a motion to stay the proceedings until a power of attorney or security for costs is furnished by the party who made the demand, whenever the latter is not resident in the Province.

858. The abandonment consists of the filing of the declaration, and of the deposit of the statement, as hereinafter provided.

859. If the debtor does not contest the demand, he must, within two days after it has been served upon him, file at the place where by law the abandonment must be made, a declaration that he consents to abandon all his property to his creditors; and he must deposit his statement within four days from such service. If there is a contestation or a motion for a power of attorney or for security for costs, the delays are computed from the judgment thereon. The judge may extend the delays for filing the declaration or for depositing the statement.

860. If one or more of the members of a partnership is dead, or absent from the Province, the declaration and statement may be signed by the surviving or by the resident partners; but the abandonment does not then affect the private property of the dead or absent partner.

861. The statement must be sworn to by the debtor and show: 1. All the moveable and immoveable property liable to seizure in his possession; 2. The names and addresses of his creditors, the amount of their respective claims, and the nature of each claim, whether privileged, hypothecary, or otherwise. Unless a declaration has been made by the debtor in conformity with article 859, the statement must be accompanied with a declaration by the debtor that he consents to abandon all his property to his creditors.

862. The declaration and the statement are filed in the office of the Superior Court for the district where the debtor has his principal place of business, and in default of such place, where he is domiciled.

863. The abandonment deprives the debtor of the enjoyment of such of his property as is liable to seizure, as well as of the possession of his books of account and titles to debt, and gives his creditors the right to have such property sold and realized for the payment of their respective claims.

864. Immediately after the filing of the declaration that the debtor consents to abandon, whether it is accompanied by the statement or not, the prothonotary appoints a provisional guardian whom he, as far as possible, selects from the most interested creditors, who, either personally or by a person whom he delegates for that purpose, takes immediate possession of all the property liable to seizure and of the books of account and titles of debt of the debtor. The guardian may summarily dispose of any perishable goods and may take conservatory measures, under the direction of the judge, or, in the absence of the latter, of the prothonotary.

865. Within five days after the filing of the statement the provisional guardian must give notice of the abandonment: 1. By inserting and advertisement to that effect in the Quebec Official Gazette. 2. By a registered letter, posted to the address of each of the creditors, setting forth the date of the filing of the statement, and the amount and the nature of each claim. In default of such notices being given by the provisional guardian within the prescribed delay, the debtor or any creditor may give them.

866. For the purpose of advising as to the appointment of a curator and inspectors, a meeting of the creditors is called before the judge, by a registered notice posted to the address of each of them, and also inserted in a newspaper published in the district, or in a neighbouring district if there be none in the district. Such meeting must be held between the fifth and the fifteenth day after the publication of the notice calling it.

867. The judge must appoint, as curator and inspectors, the persons chosen by the majority in number and in value of the creditors present or represented at the meeting who have filed sworn claims. If the majority in number does not agree with the majority in value, the Judge decides between them, as he thinks proper.

868. The Judge may also appoint a guardian and a curator in any of the following cases: 1. When a capias can not be executed by reason of the absence of the defendant, or because he cannot be found. 2. When the debtor is a trader who has ceased his payments, and has left the Province, or no longer resides therein; 3. When the demand has been served upon a trader of the age of seventy years or upwards or upon a woman who is a public trader, and has not been complied with.

869. Such appointment is made on the petition of the plaintiff or of a creditor whose claim is unsecured for a sum of two hundred dollars or upwards. The powers and obligations of the provisional guardian and of the curator so appointed are, in so far as may be, the same as in cases of abandonment. The Judge may prescribe the observance of such formalities and the giving of such public notices as he deems necessary.

870. The curator takes possession of all the property mentioned in the statement, as well as of the debtor's books of account and titles of debt, and administers the property until it is sold or realized in the manner hereinafter mentioned. He has, in like manner, a right to receive, collect, and recover any other property belonging to the debtor, which the latter has failed to include in his statement, except such as is by law exempt from seizure.

871. After the abandonment, any proceeding by way of seizure, attachment for rent or seizure in execution against the moveable property of the debtor is suspended; and the guardian or the curator has a right to take possession of the goods so seized, upon serving, by a bailiff, a notice of his appointment upon the seizing creditor, or upon his attorney, or upon the bailiff intrusted with the writ. The costs upon such seizure, incurred after the notice, or, in the absence of such notice, incurred by a creditor after he had knowledge of the abandonment, either personally, or by his attorney, or by the bailiff, and in all cases, the costs of seizure incurred eight days after the notice given by the curator, can not be collocated upon the property of the debtor, the proceeds of which are distributed in consequence of the abandonment. The judge may, however, permit the continuance of proceedings already commenced, upon such terms as are deemed proper.

872. The curator must make his appointment known by an advertisement in the Quebec Official Gazette, and by a registered notice posted to the address of each creditor. In such notice the curator calls upon the creditors to file their sworn claims with him within a delay of thirty days.

873. If subsequently to the abandonment, and before the curator has rendered his final account, the debtor acquires any additional property, he may be required, by a new demand, to abandon it also. Immediately upon the abandonment being made, the curator takes possession of such property, and proceeds to the sale and distribution of the moneys as in ordinary cases; but is bound to reimburse the expenses incurred by any creditor through whose diligence the property is rendered available. Such demand may be made by the curator, with the authorization of the inspectors, or by any creditor competent to demand an abandonment.

874. The curator appointed may be required to give security, the amount whereof is fixed by the Judge. The security may be given in favour of the creditors of the debtor generally without mentioning their names. The Judge may, whenever it becomes necessary, appoint a curator ad hoc to enforce any such bond against the parties liable.

875. The curator is subject to the summary jurisdiction of the Judge.

876. Any property not belonging to the debtor, which is in the curator's possession by virtue of the abandonment, may be recovered by the person thereto entitled, upon a petition to the judge.

877. The curator may, with the leave of the judge, upon the advice of the creditors or inspectors, exercise all the rights of action of the debtor and all the actions possessed by the mass of the creditors.

878. The curator may sell the moveable and immoveable property of the debtor in the manner indicated by the judge, upon the advice of the parties interested or of the inspectors.

879. Upon the application of the curator authorized by the inspectors or upon the application of an hypothecary creditor, after notice to the debtor, the Judge may authorize the curator to sell the immoveables of the latter in such manner and after such notices as the Judge may please to order, he may also authorize or command the curator to issue his warrant to the sheriff competent to act requiring the latter to seize and sell such immoveables. The sheriff executes such warrant without making any service upon the debtor, but by otherwise observing the same rules as in the case of an execution against immoveables; and all subsequent proceedings are had in the Superior Court. The moneys realized from the sale made by the sheriff remain in his hands to be paid by him to the privileged and hypothecary creditors in accordance with the report of distribution which shall be made by the prothonotary of the Superior Court in the usual way, and the surplus shall be remitted to the curator upon an order of the judge for its distribution among the chirography creditors by means of a dividend sheet prepared in accordance with the following article.

880. The moneys realized by the curator from the property of the debtor must be distributed by the curator among the creditors by means of dividend-sheets prepared after the expiration of the delays to file creditor's claims. Notice of their preparation must be given by an advertisement in the Quebec Official Gazette. A copy of the dividend-sheets, with a notice of the date at which they are payable, must also be posted by registered letter to the address of each of the creditors who have filed their claims or whose names appear in the statement. The dividend-sheets are payable fifteen days after the observance of these formalities.

881. The claims or dividends may be contested by any party interested or by the curator at the expense of the estate if he is so instructed by the inspectors. The contestation for such purpose is filed with the curator, who is bound to transmit it immediately to the prothonotary of the Superior Court for the district in which the proceedings upon the abandonment are then deposited, or for such other district as the parties interested in the contestation may agree upon; and the contestation is proceeded with and decided summarily by the Judge. The Judge may allow the payment, in whole or in part, of any claims or dividends which are not contested, upon being satisfied that a sufficient sum is retained to meet the contestation.

882. Any creditor, at any time after the filing of the statement, or the curator with the authorization of the inspectors, may summon the debtor to appear before the Judge or the prothonotary, and examine him on oath concerning the statement and the condition of his affairs.

883. Upon application by any creditor at any time after the filing of the statement, or by the curator with the authorization of the inspectors, the judge may order the production of any book or document relating to the matters mentioned in the preceding article, and the examination of the consort of the debtor and of any other persons whom he deems capable of furnishing information in regard to such matters.

884. The rules relating to the summoning and examination of witnesses and the taking of evidence govern cases provided for in the two preceding articles, in so far as they apply. Any person summoned who refuses to appear or to answer, or to produce any book or document, may be condemned by the Judge to imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year. If any dispute arises during the examination, the parties are sent before the Judge to have it decided.

885. The curator, authorized by the inspectors, or any creditor, may contest the statement by reason: 1. Of the fraudulent omission to mention property of the value of one hundred dollars; 2. Of fraudulent misrepresentations therein with respect to the number of the creditors, or the nature or amount of their claims; 3. Of secretion by the debtor, within the year immediately preceding the filing of the statement, or since, of any portion of his property, with intent to defraud his creditors.

886. The contestation of the statement must be made within four months from the day on which the advertisement of the curator's appointment appears in the Quebec Official Gazette.

887. The contesting party is also bound, within the same delay, to prove his allegations, by all legal means. The Judge may, however, prolong the delay for making such proof, but not beyond two months. The Judge may, when satisfied that the delay is due to the fault of the debtor, allow, from time to time, a further delay of two months.

888. If the contesting party establishes any one of the offences mentioned in Article 885, the Judge may condemn the debtor to be imprisoned for a term not exceeding one year. The rules contained in articles 838, 839, 840, 841 and 842, apply, in so far as may be, to proceedings in execution of the condemnation.

889. If the statement is not contested within the required delay, or if the contestation is not proved within such delay, the judge may order the discharge of the debtor and the latter is exempt from arrest or imprisonment by reason of any cause of action which existed before the making of such statement, without prejudice to cases where he has been already arrested under a capias, or is imprisoned for any debt of the description mentioned in Articles 833 and 834; and in case of such imprisonment or arrest, he may obtain his liberation from the Judge, upon petition and sufficient proof.

890. Judgments and orders rendered in virtue of Articles 866, 867, 868, 871, 874, 877, 878, 879, 882, and 883 are not subject to review or to appeal.

891. The abandonment of his property discharges the debtor from his debts to the extent only of the amount which his creditors have been paid out of the proceeds of the sale of such property.

892. The curator must keep a register containing the names and description of the debtor, the date of the abandonment, the amount of the proceeds of the property, the amount of each claim, the amount paid to each creditor, the number of dividends, and the amount of his fees and disbursements. The register may be consulted by any creditor, during reasonable hours, at the curator's place of business. Within two months after the date when the last dividend-sheet is payable, the curator must deposit the register in the office of the Court to which it appertains. The curator must also, within the same delay, unless the judge otherwise orders, under penalty of all costs and damages, prepare a certificate of all his proceedings, and file it in the office of the Superior Court, with all papers and documents relating to his management, and the complete record thus returned forms part of the records of such court.

X. Saskatchewan.

Law in force.

The Province of Saskatchewan was formed from the North-West Territories in 1905. The law, both statutory and common, as it existed in the North-West Territories at the time of the establishment of the Province continues in force except as modified by Acts of the Imperial Parliament in force in the Province and Acts of the Dominion Parliament and of the Provincial Legislature<sup>1</sup>).

Statutes.<sup>2</sup>)

Application of Law.

4 & 5 Edw. 7, c. 42. An Act to establish and provide for the Government of the Province of Saskatchewan (20th July, 1905).

Statutes relating to Commercial Matters.

The law of Saskatchewan relating to partnership, companies, sale of goods, factors, and preferential assignments is in substance the same as that of the Province of Alberta. The statutes of Saskatchewan and Alberta have as a common basis the Ordinances of the North-West Territories as in force in 1905. But even in the local legislation of the two Provinces since that date there is a substantial similarity. A reference to the statutes of Alberta as reprinted above will give a general view of the statutory law of Saskatchewan.

Corporations to obtain license before doing business. Certain documents to be filed with Territorial Secretary. Power of attorney. Evidence of license. Annual statement to be furnished. Summary to be verified. Penalty for default. Commissioner may suspend or revoke license. 2. Any company, institution, or corporation incorporated otherwise than by or under the authority of an Ordinance of the Territory or an Act of the Parliament of Canada desiring to carry on any of its business within the Territory may (through the Territorial Secretary) petition the Commissioner for a license so to do and the Commissioner may thereupon authorise such company, institution, or corporation to use, exercise, or enjoy any powers, privileges, and rights set forth in the said license. 2. No such license shall be issued until such company, institution, or corporation has deposited in the office of the Territorial Secretary a true copy of the Act, charter, or other instrument incorporating the company, institution, or corporation verified in the manner which may be satisfactory to the Commissioner together with a duly executed power of attorney empowering some person therein named and residing in the Territory to act as its attorney and to sue and be sued, plead or be impleaded in any Court, and generally on behalf of such company, institution, or corporation and within the said Territory to accept service of process and to receive all notices and for the purposes aforesaid to do all acts and to execute all deeds and other instruments relating to the matters within the scope of the power of attorney; and such company, institution, or corporation may from time to time by a new or other power of attorney executed and deposited as aforesaid appoint another attorney within the Territory for the purposes aforesaid to replace the attorney formerly appointed; and notice of the granting of such licence shall be given forthwith by the Territorial Secretary in the Official Gazette. 3. The license or any exemplification thereof under the seal of the Territory shall be sufficient evidence in any proceeding in any Court of the Territory of the due licensing of the company, institution, or corporation as aforesaid. 4. A company, institution, or corporation licensed under this section shall on or before the thirty-first day of January in every year during the continuance of such license make a statement to the Territorial Secretary verified by affidavit containing as of the thirty first day of December preceding a summary of the following particulars: a) The corporate name of the company, institution, or corporation; b) The manner in which the company, institution, or corporation is incorporated; c) The place where the head office of the company, institution, or corporation is situated; d) The place or places where or from which the undertaking of the company, institution, or corporation is carried on; e) The name, residence, and post office address of the president, the secretary, and the treasurer of the company, institution, or corporation; f) The name, residence, and post office address of each of the directors of the company, institution, or corporation; g) The date upon which the last annual meeting of the company, institution, or corporation was held; h) The amount of the capital of the company, institution, or corporation and the number of shares into which it is divided; i) The number of shares subscribed for and allotted; j) The amount of stock (if any) issued free from call; if none is so issued, the fact to be stated; k) The amount issued subject to call; l) The number of calls made on each share; m) The total amount of calls received; n) The total amount of calls unpaid; o) The total amount of shares forfeited; p) The total amount of shares which have never been allotted or subscribed for; q) The total amount for which shareholders of the company, institution, or corporation are liable in respect of the unpaid stock held by them; r) In a concise form any further information respecting the affairs of the company, institution, or corporation as the directors consider expedient. 5. The summary in the next preceding subsection mentioned shall be verified by the affidavit of the president and secretary, and, if there is no president or he is unable to make the same, by the affidavit of the secretary and one of the directors, and, if there is no secretary or he is unable to make such affidavit, by the affidavit of the president and one of the directors and if there is neither a president or secretary or they are both unable to make such affidavit, by the affidavit of two of the directors and if the president or secretary does not make or join in the affidavit the reason therefor shall be stated in the substituted affidavit. 6. Any company, institution, or corporation making default in complying with the provisions of this section shall be liable to a penalty of $50 for each and every day during which default continues; and every director, manager, secretary, agent, traveller, or salesman of such company, institution, or corporation who transacts within the Territory any business whatever for such company, institution, or corporation shall, for each day, upon which he so transacts such business, on summary conviction thereof before a justice of the peace incur a penalty of $50, such penalties to belong to the general revenue fund of the Territory. 7. The Commissioner may by order (a notice of which shall be published by the Territorial Secretary in the Yukon Official Gazette or otherwise as may be prescribed in the said order) suspend or revoke and make null and void any license granted under this section to any company, institution, or corporation which refuses or fails to comply with any of the provisions of this section and (notwithstanding such suspension or revocation) the rights of creditors of the company, institution, or corporation shall remain as at the time of such suspension or revocation.

Amount of paid up capital to appear on all documents. 3. Every company, institution, or corporation licensed under this Ordinance shall have written or printed on its prospectuses, notices, advertisements, and other official publications and in all bills of parcels, invoices, and receipts of the company, institution, or corporation immediately after or under the name of such company, institution, or corporation the amount of its paid up capital and every such company, institution, or corporation which refuses or neglects to comply with this section shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding $20 for each such offence; and every director, manager, or agent of any company, institution, or corporation who knowingly authorizes or permits such default shall on summary conviction thereof be liable to the like penalty, such penalties to belong to the general revenue fund of the Territory.

Prosecution. 4. The Commissioner may from time to time appoint a person with salary to prosecute any company, institution, or corporation making default in complying with the provisions of this Ordinance.

Fee to be paid. 5. No license shall be issued to any company unless such company has paid to the Territorial Treasurer the proper fee according to the tariff of fees in the schedule to this Ordinance provided.

Business not to be carried on. 6. No company requiring a license under this Ordinance shall carry on any part of its business in the Yukon Territory until it has been duly licensed under this Ordinance.

Penalties. 7. Any such company carrying on business without being duly licensed, and any company, firm, broker, or other persons carrying on business as a representative or on behalf of such company shall be liable on summary conviction to a penalty of $50 for every day on which such business is carried on in contravention of this section, and proof of compliance with the provisions of this section shall at all times be upon the accused. 2. The taking orders for or the buying or selling goods, wares, and merchandise by travellers or by correspondence if the company has no resident agent or representative, and no office or place of business in the Yukon Territory, the onus of proving which shall in any prosecution under this section rest on the accused, shall not be deemed to be carrying on business within the meaning of this Ordinance.

Incapacity to sue. 8. 1. No such company shall while unlicensed be capable of maintaining any action or other proceeding in any Court in respect of any contract made in whole or in part in the Territory, in the course of or in connection with business carried on without a license contrary to the provisions of section 6 hereof. 2. In any action or proceeding the burden of showing that it is licensed shall be upon the company.

Other Commercial Ordinances.

1. Partnerships must be registered pursuant to Cons. Ord. 1902, c. 41, which is identical in all material respects with N. W. T. Cons. Ord. 1898, c. 45.

2. Sales of goods are governed by Cons. Ord. 1902, c. 35, which is a re enactment of the Imperial Act. There is no doctrine of market overt. Sales over $50 must be in writing.

3. Factors are regulated by Cons. Ord. 1902, c. 36, which is a copy of the Imperial Factors Act.

4. Preferential assignments are governed by Cons. Ord. 1902, c. 38. Conveyances and transfers made by an insolvent or by one who knows that he is on the eve of insolvency with intent to defeat or delay his creditors, or to give to one or more of them a preference over the others are void, whether such conveyance was made under pressure or not. But assignments made for the purpose of securing a rateable distribution of property are valid, as are also all bona fide sales or payments made in the ordinary course of business.

5. Companies are regulated by Cons. Ord. 1902, c. 57, which is in substance the N. W. T. Ordinance as set forth in N. W. T. Cons. Ord. 1898, c. 61, and by Cons. Ord. 1902, c. 58, relating to change of name. The Ordinance relating to foreign companies is reprinted supra.

Newfoundland.

Introduction.<sup>1)</sup>

The boundaries of the Colony of Newfoundland are defined as containing the Island of Newfoundland and the islands adjacent thereto, and all the coast of Labrador from the entrance of Hudson's Straits to a line drawn due north and south from Anse Sablon on the said coast to the fifty-second degree of north latitude, and all islands adjacent to that part of the coast of Labrador<sup>2)</sup>.

History and government.<sup>3)</sup>

Newfoundland is the oldest of the British colonies. It is no longer open to doubt that Icelandic navigators reached the coast of North America during the period from the ninth to the eleventh century, and it is probable that they landed on the coasts of Labrador and Newfoundland<sup>4)</sup>. In 1496 Henry VII. granted letters patent to John Cabot authorising him to make a voyage of discovery. On the 24th of the following June Cabot claims to have first sighted the New World. The tradition is that the land thus sighted was Cape Bonavista, Newfoundland. Other voyages under English auspices followed. In 1501 Gaspar Cortereal, the Portuguese navigator, came to Newfoundland, and in the years immediately following a number of fishing companies were formed in Portugal for the purpose of founding establishments in Terra Nova<sup>5)</sup>. The record of French fishing voyages begins in 1504, that of the Spanish in 1511<sup>6)</sup>. During the sixteenth century the number of French and Spanish vessels in the Newfoundland fishing trade greatly exceeded that of the English. As early as 1522 some settlements seem to have been made in Newfoundland.

The attempts at English colonization begin in 1578—1583 with the ill-starred voyages of the brave but visionary Sir Humphrey Gilbert. On his last voyage Gilbert formally took possession of Newfoundland in the name of the English sovereign<sup>7)</sup>. Between 1578 and 1633 England granted five different charters to colonizing and trading companies to operate in Newfoundland. One of the most interesting of these colonizing ventures was the "Sea Forest Plantation" of the Guy Company. Guy actually promulgated some laws (11th August 1611). In 1615 the first attempt to establish a court of justice was made when Sir Richard Whitbourne formally opened a vice-admiralty court, an account of which he has preserved for us in his Discourse of Newfoundland<sup>8)</sup>. But the whole administration of justice was a farce, and serious disorders continued<sup>9)</sup>. In 1629 Charles I. issued a proclamation prohibiting disorderly trading with the Indians, and in 1633 the Star Chamber established a number of regulations in reference to Newfoundland, including the provision that the first skipper arriving from England was to be judge and admiral for the fishing season. In 1670 additional rules were issued by the Star Chamber. It is needless to say that the "fishing admirals" administered justice without regard to forms of procedure, and with little regard to the rules of law<sup>10)</sup>.

In 1698 was passed the act of Parliament entitled "An Act to encourage the trade to Newfoundland."<sup>1</sup>) This act authorised the "fishing admiral" to hear and determine legal controversies relating to the fishing industry, and to preserve the peace, but apparently did not apply to the merchants and settlers not engaged in fishing. An appeal lay to the officers of the Royal Navy. The latter gradually extended their appellate jurisdiction, and assumed original jurisdiction in many cases not within their powers. Abuses continued, and in 1711 the commanders of the merchant ships, merchants, and chief inhabitants assembled and adopted a short code of laws, consisting of fifteen regulations, and similar assemblies appear to have been held in the following years<sup>2</sup>).

By the Treaty of Utrecht (1713) England's claims to Newfoundland were recognized. In 1728 Captain Henry Osborn, of H. M. S. "Squirrel," was appointed governor of Newfoundland<sup>3</sup>). Osborn established courts and imposed taxes. His successors were also invested with and exercised large powers of administration, but the constitutionality of a number of the acts of the early governors is extremely doubtful<sup>4</sup>).

Comprehensive regulations relating to the fishing trade of Newfoundland are contained in the act of Parliament of 1775<sup>5</sup>). Provision is made, inter alia, that the wages of fishermen and seamen shall be a first charge on the fish and oil, that not more than one-half of the wages shall be paid in advance, and that disputes regarding wages shall be determined by the court of session or court of vice-admiralty in Newfoundland.

A court of vice-admiralty was established in 1765, which in spite of the provisions of the act of Parliament of 1786<sup>6</sup>), continued to exercise a jurisdiction in purely civil cases. In 1789 Admiral Milbanke, upon a doubtful construction of the terms of his commission, established a court of common pleas. In 1791 an act establishing a civil court was passed<sup>7</sup>). In 1824 Parliament passed "an Act for the better administration of justice in Newfoundland<sup>8</sup>)" and in conformity therewith a Charter of Justice was granted in the following year<sup>9</sup>). In 1832 Newfoundland received representative institutions, and the first session of the assembly was held in the following year. Full responsible government was established in 1855<sup>10</sup>). Newfoundland has not availed herself of her privilege to become a member of the Dominion of Canada<sup>11</sup>).

The present constitution of Newfoundland is contained in letters patent of 28th March 1876, as amended by letters patent of 7th July 1905<sup>12</sup>). The executive authority is vested in the Governor, assisted by an Executive Council. The legislative power is vested in a Legislative Council, consisting of persons appointed by the Crown, and a General Assembly elected by universal manhood suffrage, but the members of which must possess certain property qualifications.

The claims of the Basques and Bretons to the discovery of Labrador are not well sustained, and the discovery of South Labrador must for the present be ascribed to John Cabot (1498)<sup>13</sup>). Labrador was attached to Newfoundland in 1763. Courts were authorised to be established in 1811<sup>14</sup>). The present court for Labrador was authorised by the Act of Parliament of 1824<sup>15</sup>). Labrador is administered by the Collector of Customs of Newfoundland. This official is a justice of the peace, and at present no other courts are in operation.

Law in force.

Newfoundland having been acquired by England by occupation and settlement, the law of England became from the outset the law of the Colony, except, possibly, in the small portion of the island settled by the French<sup>1</sup>). The law of England, both common and statute law, in force on 1st January 1833, when the legislature of Newfoundland began its sessions, is in force, except: first, in so far as its provisions are not applicable to local conditions; and, secondly, in so far as it has been modified by Imperial legislation expressly or impliedly extended to Newfoundland and by enactments of the local legislature.

The English law relating to the making, operation, transfer, and discharge of contracts is in force<sup>2</sup>). The promise made after full age to pay a debt contracted during infancy, or the ratification after full age of a promise or simple contract made during infancy must be in writing<sup>3</sup>). Contracts of guaranty must be in writing and signed by the party to be charged therewith, or his agent in that behalf, but the writing need not set forth the consideration for the promise<sup>4</sup>).

Aliens may acquire, hold and dispose of real and personal property in the same manner as natural born British subjects<sup>5</sup>). Married women may acquire, hold and dispose by will or otherwise of any real or personal property as separate property without the intervention of a trustee. They are capable of entering into and rendering themselves liable in respect of and to the extent of their separate property in the same manner as a feme sole, and may sue and be sued without joinder of their husbands. A contract entered into by a married woman otherwise than as an agent is deemed to be a contract entered into with respect to and binding her separate property, whether she is or is not in fact possessed of or entitled to any separate property at the time when she enters into such contract, and binds all separate property which she may at that time or thereafter be possessed of or entitled to, and is also enforceable by process of law against all property which she may thereafter, while discover, be possessed of or entitled to, except such property as she is restrained from anticipating. Shares, stock, debentures, or other interest in any company or society standing in the name of a married woman are prima facie deemed to be her property in respect of which she is deemed to be entitled to receive dividends, interest and profits without the concurrence of her husband, and in regard to which her separate estate alone is liable for calls or otherwise, and which she may dispose of without the concurrence of her husband<sup>6</sup>).

Mortgages on personal property require registration<sup>7</sup>). The legal rate of interest is six per centum per annum and this rate is also the maximum recoverable against any insolvent estate<sup>8</sup>).

Courts and procedure.

The Supreme Court is composed of a Chief Justice and two other judges<sup>9</sup>), and proceedings are held, according to the nature of the case before a single judge, before two judges, or before the whole court<sup>10</sup>). The court has all civil and criminal jurisdiction conferred by the Imperial Act of 1824<sup>11</sup>), by the Charter of Justice of 1825<sup>12</sup>), and by local acts, and is a court of admiralty in pursuance of the Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act, 1890<sup>13</sup>), and an insolvency court<sup>14</sup>). Law and equity are administered concurrently. The procedure is regulated by local acts and by the rules of the Supreme Court. In the absence of any local provision the practice and procedure of the High Court of Justice in England governs<sup>15</sup>).

An appeal from the Supreme Court lies to the Privy Council, where the judgment is for a sum above, or involving directly or indirectly, claim to property or civil right of the value of £500. A pro forma judgment is sufficient. Such appeal must be brought within fourteen days. The nature and amount of the security to be furnished by the appellant is regulated by the Supreme Court, but may not exceed £500, and must be furnished within three months, execution being carried out or suspended according as the respondent or appellant furnish security<sup>16</sup>).

There are two District Courts, one at St. John's, and one at Harbor Grace<sup>17</sup>). These courts have power to hear and determine summarily all civil causes to the amount of $ 50, except where the title to land is concerned, and except actions for libel or slander, replevin, malicious prosecution, and actions against a public officer in respect of his official acts, except by consent of the defendant<sup>1</sup>). The District Courts also have jurisdiction in actions for the wrongful detention of chattels where the value thereof does not exceed $ 200<sup>2</sup>). Causes of action may not be divided in order to give the court jurisdiction, but a plaintiff may abandon the excess, and recover up to the amount of $ 50<sup>3</sup>). Counterclaims and other defences are admissible, but where the amount thereof exceeds $ 50 no relief exceeding that amount can be granted<sup>4</sup>). Cases where the amount involved is $ 20 or more may be removed to the Supreme Court by leave of a judge of the latter court<sup>5</sup>). An appeal lies to the Supreme Court where the amount involved is $ 20 or more<sup>6</sup>).

The Courts of Session have civil jurisdiction for the recovery of debts or damages to the amount of $ 25, except cases involving the title to land, and except actions for libel or slander, replevin, malicious prosecution, and actions against public officers in respect of their official acts. These courts also have jurisdiction in cases involving the wages of fishery servants, the supply of bait, etc.<sup>7</sup>) Stipendiary magistrates may exercise out of session the jurisdiction of Courts of Session<sup>8</sup>). In places where there is no resident stipendiary magistrate the jurisdiction of such magistrate may be exercised by a justice of the peace<sup>9</sup>). Stipendiary magistrates on that part of the coast of Newfoundland extending from Cape Ray via Cape Norman to Cape John have the jurisdiction of a District Court<sup>10</sup>). An appeal lies from a judgment or order of a stipendiary magistrate to the Supreme Court, where the amount exceeds $ 40<sup>11</sup>).

A special Court of Labrador is provided for<sup>12</sup>), but is not in operation, and justice is administered by the Collector of Customs (who is a justice of the peace), who visits the Labrador coast every summer<sup>13</sup>).

Actions upon any bond or other specialty must be brought within twenty years. Actions upon any award where the submission is not by specialty, for money levied on any fieri facias, actions of trespass, detinue, trover, and replevin for taking away of goods or chattels, actions of account and upon the case, and all actions of account or for not accounting, and suits for such accounts as concern the trade between merchant and merchant, their factors and servants, must be brought within six years after the cause of action arose<sup>14</sup>).

Partnership.

General Partnerships.

Cons. St. 1892, c. 97. Of the Law of Partnership.

Summary.

Short title. The Partnership Act, 1892. The Act is identical with the Imperial Partnership Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vic. c. 39), except as follows:

1. The numbering of §§ 1—21 corresponds with that of the Imperial Act; the numbering of §§ 22—46 is always one less than that of the corresponding section of the Imperial Act; § 46 corresponds to § 50 of the Imperial Act.

2. The following sections of the Imperial Act are not contained in the Newfoundland Act: § 1 (2) (c); § 4 (2); § 22; § 23 (4, 5); § 47; § 48; § 49.

3. § 1 (2) (a) of the Newfoundland Act reads as follows: "Registered as a company under the Companies Incorporation Act, 1873, or any other Act of the Legislature for the time being in force and relating to the registration of joint stock companies, or;" in §§ 1, 4, 19, 20, 32 (2), 44, 45, and 46 "chapter" is substituted for "Act;" in §§ 23 (3) and 41 (1) "six per cent.," is substituted for "five per cent.;" in § 3 "declared insolvent, entering into an arrangement to pay his creditors less than one hundred cents in the dollar" is substituted for "adjudged a bankrupt, entering into an arrangement to pay his creditors less than twenty shillings in the pound;" in § 9 "and in Scotland severally also" and "in England or Ireland" are omitted; in § 14 "executor's or administrator's" is substituted for "executors or administrators;" in § 20 (2) "or in Scotland the title to and interest in any heritable estate" is omitted; in § 20 (3) "or in Scotland of any heritable estate" is omitted, and "belong to them" is substituted for "belongs to them;" in § 22 (1) "after the commencement of this Act" is omitted; in § 22 (2) "the Supreme Court or a Judge thereof" is substituted for "the High Court, or a judge thereof, or the Chancery Court of the county palatine of Lancaster, or a county court;" in § 23 (3) "he agreed" is substituted for "he has agreed;"<sup>2)</sup> in § 23 (9) "or at the principal place" is substituted for "or the principal place;" in § 32 (1) "insolvency" is substituted for "bankruptcy;" in § 34 (a) "or in Scotland by cognition" is omitted; § 35 (2) reads as follows: "an advertisement in the Royal Gazette and one other newspaper published in this Colony, shall be notice as to persons who had not dealings with the firm before the date of the dissolution or change so advertised;" in § 35 (3) and in § 37 "insolvent" is substituted for "bankrupt" and "insolvency" for "bankruptcy;" in § 38 "property of the partnerships" is substituted for "property of the partnership;"<sup>2)</sup> in § 40 (a) "partnership liabilities" is substituted for "partnership assets, after satisfying the partnership liabilities;"<sup>3)</sup> in § 41 (1) "capital and assets" is substituted for "capital or assets"<sup>2)</sup> and "or interest" for "or to interest;"<sup>2)</sup> in § 43 (b) (1) "in paying debts" is substituted for "in paying the debts;"<sup>2)</sup> in § 45 "and common law" is substituted for "and of common law;" in § 46 "1892" is substituted for "1890."

A partnership "may be accurately defined to be a participation in profits and losses, if we attend to the distinction that in partnerships as to strangers a participation in losses may result out of any agreement to share profits only, contrary to the meaning and intention of the parties to

Cons. St. 1892, c. 98. Of Limited Partnerships.

Purposes of limited partnerships. 1. Limited partnerships for the transaction of mercantile, mechanical or manufacturing business within this Colony may be formed by two or more persons, upon the terms, with the rights and powers, and subject to the conditions and liabilities herein prescribed; but the provisions of this chapter shall not be construed to authorise any such partnership for the purpose of transacting the business of banking or making insurance.

Partnership to consist of general and special partners, their liabilities. 2. Such partnerships may consist of one or more persons who shall be called general partners, and who shall be jointly and severally responsible as general partners now are by law; and of one or more persons who shall contribute in actual cash payments, or in property at its actual cash value, a specific sum as capital to the common stock, who shall be called special partners, and who shall not be liable for the debts of the partnership beyond the fund so contributed by him or them to the capital.

General partners to transact business. 3. The general partners only shall be authorized to transact business and sign for the partnership, and to bind the same.

Certificate to be signed by all the partners. 4. The persons desirous of forming such partnership shall make and severally sign a certificate, similar in effect to Form No. 1 in the Schedule hereunto annexed, and which certificate shall contain: 1. The name or firm under which such partnership is to be conducted. 2. The general nature of the business intended to be transacted. 3. The names of all the general and special partners interested therein, distinguishing which are general and which are special partners, and their respective places of residence. 4. The amount of capital which each special partner shall have contributed to the common stock. 5. The period at which the partnership is to commence, and the period at which it will terminate.

Certificate, before whom and how acknowledged. 5. The certificate shall be acknowledged by the several persons signing the same before a notary public, who shall certify such acknowledgment, whether made abroad or in this Colony, under his seal or office, to the effect of Form No. 2 in the Schedule to this Chapter annexed.

In what places to be filed and recorded. 6. The certificate so acknowledged and certified shall be filed in the office of the Colonial Secretary, and shall be recorded in the said office at large, in a book to be kept for that purpose, open to public inspection. If the partnership shall have places of business situate in different districts, a transcript of the certificate and of the acknowledgment thereof, duly certified by the Colonial Secretary under his official seal, shall be filed and recorded in like manner in the office of the registrar of deeds for such district.

Affidavit also to be filed. 7. At the time of filing the original certificate, with the evidence of the acknowledgment thereof as before directed, an affidavit of one or more of the general partners shall also be filed in the same office, stating that the sums specified in the certificate to have been contributed by each of the special partners to the common stock have been actually and in good faith paid; and which affidavit shall be similar in effect to Form No. 3 in the annexed Schedule.

Partnership, when deemed formed, effects of false certificate. 8. No such partnership shall be deemed to have been formed until a certificate shall have been made, acknowledged, filed and recorded, nor until an affidavit shall have been filed as above directed; and if any false statement be made in such certificate or affidavit, all the persons interested in such partnership shall be liable for all the engagements thereof as general partners.

Terms of partnership, how published, effect of omission. 9. The partnership shall publish the terms of the partnership, when registered, for at least six weeks immediately after such registry in the Royal Gazette and in one or two other newspapers to be designated by the Colonial Secretary, and to be published in this Colony; and if such publication be not made, the partnership shall be general; and such advertisement shall be similar in effect to Form No. 1 in the said annexed Schedule.

Affidavit of publication, where to be filed, effect as evidence. 10. Affidavits of the publication of such notice by the printers of the newspapers in which the same shall be published shall be filed in the office of the Colonial Secretary, and shall be evidence of the facts therein contained, and which affidavits shall be similar in effect to Form No. 5 in the said annexed Schedule.

Renewals, etc., of partnership, how to be made. 11. Every renewal or continuance of such partnership beyond the time originally fixed for its duration shall be certified, acknowledged and recorded, and an affidavit of a general partner be made and filed, and notice be given in the manner herein required for its original formation; and every such partnership which shall be otherwise renewed or continued shall be deemed a general partnership.

Alterations deemed dissolution. 12. Every alteration which shall be made in the names of the partners, in the nature of the business, or in the capital or shares thereof, or in any other matter specified in the original certificate, shall be deemed a dissolution of the partnership, unless such alteration shall have been made according to the provisions of the twenty-fourth section of this chapter; and any such partnership which shall in any manner be carried on after any such alteration shall have been made shall be deemed a general partnership, unless renewed as a special partnership according to the provisions of the last preceding section.

In what form and name business to be carried on. 13. The business of the partnership shall be conducted under a firm, in which the names of the general partners only shall be inserted, without the addition of the word "company," or any other general term; and if the name of any special partner shall be used in such firm, with his privity, he shall be deemed a general partner.

Suits to be in names of general partners. 14. Suits in relation to the business of the partnership may be brought and conducted by and against the general partners in the same manner as if there were no special partners.

Special partner not to withdraw his capital. 15. No part of the sum which any special partner shall have contributed to the capital stock shall be withdrawn by him, or paid or transferred to him in the shape of dividends, profits or otherwise, at any time during the continuance of the partnership; but any partner may annually receive interest on the sum so contributed by him, if the payment of such interest shall not reduce the original amount of such capital; and if, after the payment of such interest, any profits shall remain to be divided, he may also receive his portion of such profits.

When to refund interest paid to him. 16. If it shall appear that by the payment of interest or profits to any special partner the original capital has been reduced, the partner receiving the same shall be bound to restore the amount necessary to make good his share of capital with interest.

Rights of special partners and restriction on them. 17. A special partner may, from time to time, examine into the state and progress of the partnership concerns, and may advise as to their management, and any remuneration of special partners or any other persons acting as servants or agents for any such partnership by a share of the profits or otherwise shall not render them liable as general partners; but he shall not contract any business on account of the partnership, nor be employed for that purpose as agent, attorney or otherwise. If he shall interfere contrary to these provisions he shall be deemed a general partner.

Liability of general partners to account. 18. The general partners shall be liable to account to each other and to the special partners for their management of the concern, both in law and equity, as other partners are now by law.

Liability and punishment of parties guilty of fraud. 19. Every partner who shall be guilty of any fraud in the affairs of the partnership shall be liable civilly to the party injured to the extent of his damage; and shall also be liable to an indictment for a misdemeanour, punishable on conviction by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the Court by which he shall be tried.

Assignment of certain creditors void. 20. Every sale, assignment or transfer of any of the property or effects of such partnership made by such partnership when actually insolvent or in contemplation of insolvency, or after or in contemplation of a declaration of insolvency of any partner, with the intent of giving a preference to any creditor of such partnership or insolvent partner over other creditors of such partnership; and every judgment confessed, lien created, or security given by such partnership, under the like circumstances and with the like intent, shall be void as against the creditors of such partnership.

Certain assignments void. 21. Every such sale, assignment or transfer of any of the property or effects of a general partner, made by such general or special partner when actually insolvent, or in contemplation of a declaration of insolvency or after or in contemplation of a declaration of insolvency of the partnership, with the intent of giving to any creditor of his own or of the partnership a preference over other creditors of the partnership, and every judgment confessed, lien created, or security given by any such partner, under the like circumstances and with the like intent, shall be void as against the creditors of the partnership.

Certain acts of special partner to render him liable. 22. Every special partner who shall violate any of the provisions of the two last preceding sections, or who shall concur in or assent to any such violation by the partnership or by any individual partner, shall be liable as a general partner.

Special partners not to claim as creditors in case of insolvency of firm. 23. In case of the insolvency or bankruptcy of the partnership no special partner shall under any circumstances be allowed to claim as a creditor until the claims of all the other creditors of the partnership shall be satisfied.

Dissolution by acts of partners. 24. No dissolution of such partnership by the acts of the parties shall take place previous to the time specified in the certificate of its renewal, until a notice of such dissolution shall have been filed and recorded in the Colonial Secretary's office, in which the original certificate was recorded, and published once in each week, for four weeks, in the Royal Gazette, and any other local newspaper published in this Colony.

Compromises of Partners and Joint Debtors.

Cons. St. 1892, c. 99. Of the Compromises of Partners and Joint Debtors.

Compromises of one or more partners of firms with creditors. 1. Whenever any copartnership firm shall be dissolved by mutual consent or otherwise, any one or more of the individuals who was or were embraced in such copartnership firm may make a separate composition or compromise with any one or all of the creditors of such copartnership firm; and such composition or compromise shall be a full and effectual discharge to the debtor or debtors making the same, and to them only, of and from all and every liability to the creditor or creditors with whom the same is made or incurred by reason of his or their connection with such copartnership firm.

Memorandum of release or compromise. 2. Every such debtor or debtors making such composition or compromise shall take from the creditor or creditors with whom he may make the same a note or memorandum in writing, exonerating him or them from all and every individual liability incurred by reason of such connection with such copartnership firm, which note or memorandum may be given, in evidence by such debtor or debtors in bar of such creditors' right of recovery against him or them; and if such liability shall be by judgment in any court of record in this Colony, then on a production to and filing with the clerk thereof the said note or memorandum in writing, duly acknowledged by the party or parties making the same, in the same manner as satisfaction of judgment is now required by law to be acknowledged, such clerk shall discharge said judgment or record so far as the said compromising debtor or debtors shall be concerned.

Responsibility and right of the other copartners. 3. Such compromise or composition with an individual member of a firm shall not discharge the other copartners, nor shall it impair the rights of the creditor to proceed at law or in equity against the members of such copartnership firm as have not been discharged. The member or members of such copartnership firm so proceeded against shall be permitted to set off any demand against the said creditor or creditors which could have been set off had such suit been brought against all the individuals composing such firm, nor shall such compromise or discharge of an individual of a firm prevent the other members of such firm from availing themselves of any defence at law or equity that would have been available had not this chapter been passed, except that they shall not set up the discharge of one individual as a discharge of the other copartners, unless it shall appear that all were intended to be discharged.

Liability of party compromising to contribute. 4. Such compromise or composition of an individual of a firm with a creditor of such firm shall in no wise affect the rights of the other copartners to call on the individual making such compromise for his rateable proportion of such copartnership debt, the same as if this chapter had not passed.

Preceding provisions extended to joint debtors. 5. The above provisions in reference to copartners of a firm shall extend to joint debtors, who may individually compound or compromise for their joint indebtedness, with the like effect in reference to creditors and to joint debtors of the individuals so compromising as is above provided in reference to copartners.

Companies.

a) 62 & 63 Vic. c. 10. An Act respecting Companies (19th July, 1899).<sup>1)</sup>

Preliminary.

Short title. 1. This Act may be cited for all purposes as The Companies Act, 1899.
Imp. § 295.

Interpretation of terms. 2. In the construction of this Act and of the Schedules thereto, and of any rules that may be made thereunder, unless there is anything in the subject or context repugnant thereto, the several words hereinafter mentioned shall have the meaning following: a) "Company" shall mean a company incorporated under this Act; b) "Court" shall mean the Supreme Court of Newfoundland; c) "Judge" shall mean a judge of the Supreme Court; d) "Registrar" shall mean the Registrar of Companies appointed under this Act; e) "Gazette" shall mean the Royal Gazette; f) "Rules" means rules made under this Act and includes forms; g) "Prescribed" means prescribed by rules; h) For the purposes of this Act the expression "registered office of a company" shall mean the place which has been the registered office of the company for the greater part of the six months immediately preceding the presentation of the petition for winding up the company; i) "Office copy" shall mean a copy certified by the proper officer.

Imp. § 285

Prohibition of banking companies. 3. No company or association shall be formed under this Act for the purpose of carrying on the business of banking.

Prohibition of partnerships exceeding certain number. 4. No company, association, or partnership consisting of more than ten persons shall hereafter be formed for the purpose of carrying on any business that has for its object the acquisition of gain by the company, association, or partnership, or by the individual members thereof, unless it is registered as a company under this Act, or is formed in pursuance of some other Act of the Legislature.

Imp. § 1 (2). A mutual insurance club is an association for the acquisition of gain, within this section. — Roberts v. Snow. (1906).

[5. Contains an analysis of the Act.]

Part I. Constitution, Incorporation, and Registration of Companies and Associations under this Act.

Memorandum of association.

Mode of forming company. 6. Any three or more persons associated for any lawful purpose may, by subscribing their names to a memorandum of association, and otherwise complying with the requisitions of this Act in respect of registration, form an incorporated company, with or without limited liability.

Imp. § 2.

Mode of limiting liability of members. 7. The liability of the members of a company formed under this Act may, according to the memorandum of association, be limited either to the amount, if any, unpaid on the shares respectively held by them, or to such amount as the members may respectively undertake by the memorandum of association to contribute to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound up.

Imp. § 2.

Memorandum of association of a company limited by shares. 8. [As amended by 63 Vic. 2d Sess. c. 3, § 4, and 6 Edw. 7 c. 6, § 1]. Where a company is formed on the principle of having the liability of its members limited to the amount unpaid on their shares, hereinafter referred to as a company limited by shares, the memorandum of association shall contain the following things, that is to say: 1. The name of the proposed company, with the addition of the word "limited" as the last word in such name; [2. Is repealed by 6 Edw. 7 c. 6, § 1]; 3. The objects for which the proposed company is to be established; 4. A declaration that the liability of the members is limited; 5. The amount of capital with which the company proposes to be registered, divided into shares of a certain fixed amount. Subject to the following regulations: a) That no subscriber shall take less than one share; b) That each subscriber of the memorandum of association shall write opposite to his name the number of shares he takes; [c] Is repealed by 63 Vic. 2d Sess. c. 3, § 4.]

Imp. § 3.

Memorandum of association of a company limited by guarantee. 9. Where a company is formed on the principle of having the liability of its members limited to such amount as the members respectively undertake to contribute to the assets of the company in the event of the same being wound up, hereinafter referred to as a company limited by guarantee, the memorandum of association shall contain the following things, that is to say: 1. The name of the proposed company, with the addition of the word "limited" as the last word in such name; 2. The town in which the registered office of the company is proposed to be situate; 3. The objects for which the proposed company is to be established; 4. A declaration that each member undertakes to contribute to the assets of the company, in the event of the same being wound up during the time that he is a member, or within one year afterwards, for payment of the debts and liabilities of the company contracted before the time at which he ceases to be a member, and of the costs, charges and expenses of winding up the company, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories amongst themselves, such amount as may be required, not exceeding a specified amount.

Imp. § 4.

Memorandum of association of an unlimited company. 10. Where a company is formed on the principle of having no limit placed on the liability of its members, hereinafter referred to as an unlimited company, the memorandum of association shall contain the following things, that is to say: 1. The name of the proposed company; 2. The town in which the registered office of the company is proposed to be situate; 3. The objects for which the proposed company is to be established.

Imp. § 5.

Signature and effect of memorandum of association. 11. The memorandum of association shall be signed by each subscriber in the presence of and be attested by one witness at the least. It shall when registered bind the company and the members thereof to the same extent as if each member had subscribed his name and affixed his seal thereto, and there were in the memorandum contained on the part of himself, his executors and administrators, a covenant to observe all the conditions of such memorandum, subject to the provisions of this Act.

Imp. § 6.

Articles of association.

Regulations to be prescribed by articles of association. 12. The memorandum of association may, in the case of a company limited by shares, and shall, in the case of a company limited by guarantee or unlimited, be accompanied when registered, by articles of association signed by the subscribers to the memorandum of association, and prescribing such regulations for the company as the subscribers to the memorandum of association deem expedient. The articles shall be expressed in separate paragraphs, numbered arithmetically. They may adopt all or any of the provisions contained in the Table marked A. in the first Schedule hereto. They shall in the case of a company, whether limited by guarantee or unlimited, that has a capital divided into shares, state the amount of capital with which the company proposes to be registered; and in the case of a company, whether limited by guarantee or unlimited, that has not a capital divided into shares, state the number of members with which the company proposes to be registered, for the purpose of enabling the Registrar to determine the fees payable on registration. In a company limited by guarantee or unlimited, and having a capital divided into shares, each subscriber shall take one share at the least, and shall write opposite to his name in the memorandum of association the number of shares he takes.

Imp. § 10. Where under the by-laws of a company directors are elected to serve for a certain period, a meeting cannot be held for the election of new directors to serve for the term of office of the former directors. — Ex parte Mc Gibbon, (1889), 5 Morr. 417.

Application of Table A. 13. In the case of a company limited by shares, if the memorandum of association is not accompanied by articles of association, or in so far as the articles do not exclude or modify the regulations contained in the Table marked A. in the first Schedule hereto, the last-mentioned regulations shall, so far as the same are applicable, be deemed to be the regulations of the company in the same manner and to the same extent as if they had been inserted in articles of association, and the articles had been duly registered.

Imp. § 11.

Signature and effect of articles of association. 14. The articles of association shall be written or printed and shall be signed by each subscriber in the presence of, and be attested by, one witness at least. When registered, they shall bind the company and the members thereof to the same extent as if each member had subscribed his name and affixed his seal thereto, and there were in such articles contained a covenant on the part of himself, his executors and administrators, to conform to all the regulations contained in such articles, subject to the provisions of this Act; and all moneys payable by any member to the company, in pursuance of the conditions and regulations of the company, or any of such conditions or regulations, shall be deemed to be a debt due from such member to the company, in the nature of a specialty debt.

Imp. § 12.

Registration.

Appointment, duties, etc., of Registrar. 15. The registration of companies under this Act shall be conducted as follows, that is to say: 1. The Governor in Council may appoint a Registrar under this Act, and remove him at pleasure; 2. The Governor in Council may make such regulations as he thinks fit with respect to the duties to be performed by such Registrar; 3. The Governor in Council may, from time to time, determine the place at which the office for the registration of companies is to be established; 4. The Governor in Council may, from time to time, direct a seal or seals to be prepared for the authentication of any documents required for or connected with the registration of companies; 5. Every person may inspect the documents kept by the Registrar; and there shall be paid for such inspection such fees as may be appointed by the Governor in Council, not exceeding twenty-five cents for each inspection; and any person may require a certificate of the incorporation of any company, or a copy or extract of any other document or any part of any other document, to be certified by the Registrar; and there shall be paid for such certificate of incorporation, certified copy or extract, such fees as the Governor in Council may appoint, not exceeding one dollar for the certificate of incorporation, and not exceeding ten cents for each folio of such copy or extract; 6. There shall be paid to the Registrar such salary as the Governor in Council may direct.

Imp. § 243.

Registration of memorandum and articles of association, and fees. 16. The memorandum of association and the articles of association, if any, shall be delivered to the Registrar, who shall retain and register the same. There shall be paid to the Registrar by a company having a capital divided into shares, in respect of the several matters mentioned in the Table marked B in the first Schedule hereto, the several fees therein specified, or such smaller fees as the Governor in Council may from time to time direct; and by a company not having a capital divided into shares, in respect of the several matters mentioned in the Table marked C in the first Schedule hereto, the several fees therein specified, or such smaller fees as the Governor in Council may from time to time direct. All fees paid to the said registrar in pursuance of this Act shall be paid over to the Minister of Finance and Customs for the use of the Colony.

Imp. § 244.

Effect of registration. 17. Upon the registration of the memorandum of association and of the articles of association, in cases where articles of association are required by this Act or by the desire of the parties to be registered, the Registrar shall certify under his hand that the company is incorporated, and in the case of a limited company that the company is limited. The subscribers of the memorandum of association, together with such other persons as may from time to time become members of the company, shall thereupon be a body corporate by the name contained in the memorandum of association, capable forthwith of exercising all the functions of an incorporated company, and having perpetual succession and a common seal, with power to hold lands, but with such liability on the part of the members to contribute to the assets of the company in the event of the same being wound up as is hereinafter mentioned. A certificate of the incorporation of any company given by the Registrar shall be conclusive evidence that all the requisitions of this Act in respect of registration have been complied with. Any certificate of the incorporation of any company given by the Registrar shall be received in evidence as if it were the original certificate; and any copy of or extract from any of the documents or part of the documents kept and registered at the office for the registration of joint stock companies in this Colony, if duly certified to be a true copy under the hand of the Registrar, and whom it shall not be necessary to prove to be the Registrar, shall, in all legal proceedings, civil or criminal, and in all cases whatsoever be received in evidence as of equal validity with the original document.

Imp. § 16.

Copies of memorandum and articles to be given to members. 18. A copy of the memorandum of association, having annexed thereto the articles of association, if any, shall be forwarded to every member, at his request, on payment of the sum of twenty five cents or such less sum as may be prescribed by the company for each copy; and if any company makes default in forwarding a copy of the memorandum of association and articles of association, if any, to a member, in pursuance of this section, the company so making default shall for each offence incur a penalty not exceeding five dollars.

Imp. § 18.

Prohibition of identity of names in companies. 19. No company shall be registered under a name identical with that by which a subsisting company is already registered, or so nearly resembling the same as to be calculated to deceive, except in a case where such subsisting company is in the course of being dissolved, and testifies its consent in such manner as the Registrar requires; and if any company, through inadvertence or otherwise, is, without such consent as aforesaid, registered by a name identical with that by which a subsisting company is registered, or so nearly resembling the same as to be calculated to deceive, such first mentioned company may, with the sanction of the Registrar, change its name, and upon such change being made the Registrar shall enter the new name on the register in the place of the former name, and shall issue a certificate of incorporation altered to meet the circumstances of the case; but no such alteration of name shall affect any rights or obligations of the company, or render defective any legal proceedings instituted or to be instituted by or against the company, and any legal proceedings may be continued or commenced against the company by its new name that might have been continued or commenced against the company by its former name.

Imp. § 8.

Power of Registrar to strike names of defunct companies off the register. 20. 1. Where the registrar has reasonable cause to believe that a company, whether registered before or after the passing of this Act, is not carrying on business or in operation, he shall send to the company by post a letter inquiring whether the company is carrying on business or in operation. 2. If the Registrar does not within one month of sending the letter receive any answer thereto, he shall, within fourteen days after the expiration of the month, send to the company by post a registered letter referring to the first letter, and stating that no answer thereto has been received by him, and that if an answer is not received to the second letter, within one month from the date thereof, a notice will be published in the Gazette with a view to striking the name of the company off the register. 3. If the Registrar either receives an answer from the company to the effect that it is not carrying on business or in operation, or does not within one month after sending the second letter receive any answer thereto, the Registrar may publish in the Gazette and send to the company a notice that at the expiration of three months from the date of that notice the name of the company mentioned therein will, unless cause is shown to the contrary, be struck off the register, and the company will be dissolved. 4. At the expiration of the time mentioned in the notice the Registrar may, unless cause to the contrary is previously shown by such company, strike the name of such company off the register, and shall publish notice thereof in the Gazette and on the publication in the Gazette of such last-mentioned notice the company whose name is so struck off shall be dissolved: Provided that the liability (if any) of every director, managing officer, and member of the company shall continue and may be enforced as if the company had not been dissolved. 5. If any company or member thereof feels aggrieved by the name of such company having been struck off the register in pursuance of this section, the company or member may apply to the Court; and the Court, if satisfied that the company was at the time of the striking off carrying on business or in operation, and that it is just to do so, may order the name of the company to be restored to the register, and thereupon the company shall be deemed to have continued in existence as if the name thereof had never been struck off; and the Court may, by the order, give such directions and make such provisions as seem just for placing the company and all other persons in the same position as nearly as may be as if the name of the company had never been struck off. 6. A letter or notice authorized or required for the purposes of this section to be sent to a company may be sent by post addressed to the company at its registered office, or if no office has been registered, addressed to the care of some director or officer of the company, or if there be no director or officer of the company, whose name and address are known to the Registrar, the letter or notice (in identical form) may be sent to each of the persons who subscribed the memorandum of association, addressed to him at the address mentioned in that memorandum.

Imp. § 242.

Prospectus.

Prospectus, &c., to give particulars of contracts made prior to issue of same. 21. Every prospectus of a company and every notice inviting persons to subscribe for shares in any company, shall specify the dates and the names of the parties to any contract entered into by the company, or the promoters, directors, or trustees thereof before the issue of such prospectus or notice, whether subject to adoption by the directors of the company, or otherwise; and any prospectus or notice not specifying the same shall be deemed fraudulent on the part of the promoters, directors, and officers of the company knowingly issuing the same, as regards any person taking shares in the company on the faith of such prospectus, unless he shall have had notice of such contract.

Imp. § 81.

Liability for statements in prospectus. 22. Where a prospectus or notice invites persons to subscribe for shares in or debentures or debenture stock of a company, every person who is a director of the company at the time of the issue of the prospectus or notice, and every person who having authorized such naming of him is named in the prospectus or notice, as a director of the company or as having agreed to become a director of the company either immediately or after an interval of time, and every promoter of the company, and every person who has authorized the issue of the prospectus or notice, shall be liable to pay compensation to all persons who shall subscribe for any shares, debentures, or debenture stock on the faith of such prospectus or notice for the loss or damage they may have sustained by reason of any untrue statement in the prospectus or notice, or in any report or memorandum appearing on the face thereof, or by reference incorporated therein or issued therewith unless it is proved: a) With respect to every such untrue statement not purporting to be made on the authority of an expert, or of a public official document or statement, that he had reasonable ground to believe, and did up to the time of the allotment of the shares, debentures, or debenture stock, as the case may be, believe that the statement was true; and b) With respect to every such untrue statement purporting to be a statement by or contained in what purports to be a copy of or an extract from a report or valuation of an engineer, valuer, accountant, or other expert, that it fairly represented the statement made by such engineer, valuer, accountant, or other expert, or was a correct and fair copy of, or extract from, the report or valuation. Provided always, that notwithstanding that such untrue statement fairly represented the statement made by such engineer, valuer, accountant, or other expert, or was a correct and fair copy of an extract from the report or valuation, such director, person named, promoter or other person, who authorized the issue of the prospectus or notice as aforesaid, shall be liable to pay compensation as aforesaid if it be proved that he had no reasonable ground to believe that the person making the statement, report, or valuation was competent to make it; and c) With respect to every such untrue statement purporting to be a statement made by an official person, or contained in what purports to be a copy of or extract from a public official document, that it was a correct and fair representation of such statement or copy of, or extract from, such document, or unless it is proved that having consented to become a director of the company he withdrew his consent before the issue of the prospectus or notice, and that the prospectus or notice was issued without his authority or consent, or that the prospectus or notice was issued without his knowledge or consent, and that on becoming aware of its issue he forthwith gave reasonable public notice that it was so issued without his knowledge or consent, or that after the issue of such prospectus or notice and before allotment thereunder, he, on becoming aware of any untrue statement therein, withdrew his consent thereto, and caused reasonable public notice of such withdrawal, and of the reason therefor, to be given. 2. A promoter in this section means a promoter who was a party to the preparation of the prospectus or notice, or of the portion thereof containing such untrue statement, but shall not include any person by reason of his acting in a professional capacity for persons engaged in procuring the formation of the company. 3. Where any company existing at the passing of this Act, which has issued shares or debentures, shall be desirous of obtaining further capital by subscriptions for shares or debentures, and for that purpose shall issue a prospectus or notice, no director of such company shall be liable in respect of any statement therein, unless he shall have authorized the issue of such prospectus or notice or have adopted or ratified the same. 4. In this section the word "expert" includes any person whose profession gives authority to a statement made by him.

Imp. § 84 (1, 2).

Indemnity where name of person has been improperly inserted as a director.

23. Where any such prospectus or notice as aforesaid contains the name of a person as a director of the company or as having agreed to become a director thereof, and such person has not consented to become a director, or has withdrawn his consent before the issue of such prospectus or notice, and has not authorized or consented to the issue thereof, the directors of the company, except any without whose knowledge or consent the prospectus or notice was issued, and any other person who authorized the issue of such prospectus or notice shall be liable to indemnify the person named as a director of the company, or as having agreed to become a director thereof as aforesaid, against all damages, costs, charges, and expenses to which he may be made liable by reason of his name having been inserted in the prospectus or notice, or in defending himself against any action or legal proceedings brought against him in respect thereof.

Imp. § 84 (3).

Contribution from co-directors, etc. 24. Every person who by reason of his being a director, or named as a director or as having agreed to become a director or of his having authorized the issue of the prospectus or notice has become liable to make any payment under the provisions of this Act, shall be entitled to recover contribution, as in cases of contract, from any other person who, if sued separately, would have been liable to make the same payment.

Imp. § 84 (4).

Part II. Distribution of Capital and Liability of Members and Directors of Companies and Associations under this Act.

Distribution of capital.

Nature of interest in company. 25. The shares or other interest of any member in a company shall be personal estate, capable of being transferred in manner provided by the regulations of the company, and each share shall in the case of a company having a capital divided into shares, be distinguished by its appropriate number.

Imp. § 22. An assignment of shares in a company as security for a loan does not require registration under the Registration of Deeds Act. — Trustees of O'Deady v. Mc Loughlan, (1890), 5 Morr. 457.

Definition of "member." 26. The subscribers of the memorandum of association of any company shall be deemed to have agreed to become members of the company whose memorandum they have subscribed, and upon the registration of the company, shall be entered as members on the register of members hereinafter mentioned; and every other person who has agreed to become a member of a company and whose name is entered on the register of members, shall be deemed to be a member of the company.

Imp. § 24.

Transfer by personal representative. 27. Any transfer of the share or other interest of a deceased member of a company made by his personal representative, shall notwithstanding such personal representative may not himself be a member, be of the same validity as if he had been a member at the time of the execution of the instrument of transfer.

Imp. § 29.

Register of members. 28. Every company shall cause to be kept in one or more books a register of its members, and there shall be entered therein the following particulars: 1. The names and addresses, and the occupations, if any, of the members of the company, with the addition, in the case of a company having a capital divided into shares, of a statement of the shares held by each member, distinguishing each share by its number: And of the amount paid or agreed to be considered as paid on the shares of each member; 2. The date at which the name of any person was entered in the register as a member; 3. The date at which any person ceased to be a member. And any company acting in contravention of this section shall incur a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars for every day during which its default in complying with the provisions of this section continues, and every director or manager of the company who shall knowingly and wilfully authorize or permit such contravention shall incur the like penalty.

Imp. § 25.

Annual list of members. 29. Every company having a capital divided into shares, shall make, once at least in every year, a list of all persons, who, on the fourteenth day succeeding the day on which the ordinary general meeting, or if there is more than one ordinary meeting in each year, the first of such ordinary general meetings is held, are members of the company; and such list shall state the names, addresses, and occupations of all the members therein mentioned, and the number of shares held by each of them, and shall contain a summary specifying the following particulars: 1. The amount of the capital of the company, and the number of shares into which it is divided; 2. The number of shares taken from the commencement of the company up to the date of the summary; 3. The amount of calls made on each share; 4. The total amount of calls received; 5. The total amount of calls unpaid; 6. The total amount of shares forfeited; 7. The names, addresses, and occupations of the persons who have ceased to be members since the last list was made, and the number of shares held by each of them. The above list and summary shall be contained in a separate part of the register, and shall be completed within seven days after such fourteenth day as is mentioned in this section, and a copy shall forthwith be forwarded to the Registrar.

Imp. § 26. See 6 Edw. 7, c. 6, § 7, infra.

Penalty on company etc., not keeping a proper register. 30. If any company having a capital divided into shares makes default in complying with the provisions of this Act with respect to forwarding such list of members or summary, as is hereinbefore mentioned, to the Registrar, such company shall incur a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars for every day during which such default continues, and every director and manager of the company who shall knowingly and wilfully authorize or permit such default shall incur the like penalty.

Imp. § 26 (5).

Company to give notice of consolidation or of conversion of capital into stock. 31. Every company having a capital divided into shares, that has consolidated and divided its capital into shares of larger amount than its existing shares, or converted any portion of its capital into stock, shall give notice to the Registrar of such consolidation, division or conversion, specifying the shares so consolidated, divided or converted.

Imp. § 42.

Effect of conversion of shares into stock. 32. Where any company having a capital divided into shares has converted any portion of its capital into stock and given notice of such conversion to the Registrar all the provisions of this Act which are applicable to shares only shall cease as to so much of the capital as is converted into stock; and the register of members hereby required to be kept by the company, and the list of members to be forwarded to the Registrar, shall show the amount of stock held by each member in the list instead of the amount of shares and the particulars relating to shares hereinbefore required.

Imp. § 43.

Entry of trusts on register. 33. No notice of any trust, expressed, implied or constructive, shall be entered on the register, or be receivable by the Registrar.

Imp. § 27.

Certificate of shares or stock. 34. A certificate, under the common seal of the company, specifying any share or shares or stock held by any member of a company, shall be prima facie evidence of the title of the member to the share or shares or stock therein specified.

Imp. § 23.

Inspection of register. 35. The register of members, commencing from the date of the registration of the company, shall be kept at the registered office of the company hereinafter mentioned. Except when closed as hereinafter mentioned, it shall during business hours, but subject to such reasonable restrictions as the company in general meeting may impose, so that not less than two hours in each day be appointed for inspection, be open to the inspection of any member gratis and to the inspection of any other person upon the payment of twenty-five cents, or such less sum as the company may prescribe, for each inspection; and every such member or other person may require a copy of such register, or of any part thereof, or of such list or summary of members as is hereinbefore mentioned, on payment of ten cents for every hundred words required to be copied. If such inspection or copy is refused, the company shall incur for each refusal a penalty not exceeding ten dollars and a further penalty not exceeding ten dollars for every day during which such refusal continues, and every director and manager of the company who shall knowingly authorize or permit such refusal shall incur the like penalty; and in addition to the above penalty, any judge sitting in chambers may, by order, compel an immediate inspection of the register.

Imp. § 30.

Power to close register. 36. Any company may, upon giving notice by advertisement in some newspaper circulating in the district in which the registered office of the company is situated, close the register of members for any time or times not exceeding in the whole thirty days in each year.

Imp. § 31.

Notice of increase of capital and of members to be given to Registrar. 37. Where a company has a capital divided into shares, whether such shares may or may not have been converted into stock, notice of any increase in such capital beyond the registered capital, and where a company has not a capital divided into shares, notice of any increase in the number of members beyond the registered number, shall be given to the Registrar in the case of an increase of capital, within fifteen days from the date of the passing of the resolution by which such increase has been authorized, and in the case of an increase of members within fifteen days from the time at which such increase of members has been resolved on or has taken place, and the Registrar shall forthwith record the amount of such increase of capital or members. If such notice is not given within the period aforesaid the company in default shall incur a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars for every day during which such neglect to give notice continues, and every director and manager of the company who shall knowingly and wilfully authorize or permit such default shall incur the like penalty.

Imp. § 44.

Remedy for improper entry or omission of entry in register. 38. If the name of any person is, without sufficient cause, entered in or omitted from the register of members of any company, or if default is made or unnecessary delay takes place in entering on the register the fact of any person having ceased to be a member of the company, the person or member aggrieved, or any member of the company, or the company itself may by motion in court, or by application to a judge sitting in chambers, apply for an order of the court that the register may be rectified; and the Court may either refuse such application, with or without costs, to be paid by the applicant, or it may, if satisfied of the justice of the case, make an order for the rectification of the register, and may direct the company to pay all the costs of such motion or application and any damages the party aggrieved may have sustained. The Court may in any proceeding under this section decide on any question relating to the title of any person who is a party to such proceeding to have his name entered in or omitted from the register whether such question arises between two or more members or alleged members, or between any members or alleged members and the company, and generally the Court may in any such proceeding decide any question that it may be necessary or expedient to decide for the rectification of the register; provided that the Court may direct an issue to be tried, in which any question of law may be raised.

Imp. § 32 (1—3).

Notice to Registrar of rectification of register. 39. Whenever any order has been made rectifying the register, in the case of a company hereby required to send a list of its members to the Registrar, the Court shall by its order direct that due notice of such rectification be given to the Registrar.

Imp. § 32 (4).

Register to be evidence. 40. The register of members shall be prima facie evidence of any matters by this Act directed or authorized to be inserted therein.

Imp. § 33.

Liability of members.

Liability of present and past members of company. 41. In the event of a company being wound up, every present and past member of such company shall be liable to contribute to the assets of the company to an amount sufficient for payment of the debts and liabilities of the company, and the costs, charges, and expenses of the winding-up, and for the payment of such sums as may be required for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories amongst themselves, with the qualifications following, that is to say: 1. No past member shall be liable to contribute to the assets of the company if he has ceased to be a member for a period of one year or upwards prior to the commencement of the winding-up; 2. No past member shall be liable to contribute in respect of any debt or liability of the company contracted after the time at which he ceased to be a member; 3. No past member shall be liable to contribute to the assets of the company unless it appears to the Court that the existing members are unable to satisfy the contributions required to be made by them in pursuance of this Act; 4. In the case of a company limited by shares, no contribution shall be required from any member exceeding the amount, if any, unpaid on the shares, in respect of which he is liable as a present or past member; 5. In the case of a company limited by guarantee, no contribution shall be required from any member exceeding the amount of the undertaking entered into on his behalf by the memorandum of association; 6. No sum due to any member of a company in his character of a member by way of dividends, profits, or otherwise, shall be deemed to be a debt of the company, payable to such member in a case of competition between himself and any other creditor not being a member of the company; but any such sum may be taken into account for the purposes of the final adjustment of the rights of the contributories amongst themselves.

Imp. § 123.

Liability of directors.

Company may have directors with unlimited liability. 42. Where a company is formed as a limited company, the liability of the directors or managers of such company, or the managing director, may, if so provided by the memorandum of association, be unlimited.

Imp. § 60 (1).

Liability of director past and present where liability is unlimited. 43. The following are the contributions to be required in the event of the winding-up of a limited company from any director or manager, whose liability is in pursuance of this Act unlimited: 1. Subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, any such director or manager, whether past or present, shall in addition to his liability (if any) to contribute as an ordinary member, be liable to contribute as if he were at the date of the commencement of such winding-up a member of an unlimited company; 2. No contribution required from any past director or manager, who has ceased to hold such office for a period of one year or upwards prior to the commencement of the winding-up, shall exceed the amount (if any) which he is liable to contribute as an ordinary member of the company; 3. No contribution required from any past director or manager, in respect of any debt or liability of the company contracted after the time at which he ceased to hold such office, shall exceed the amount (if any) which he is liable to contribute as an ordinary member of the company; 4. Subject to the provisions contained in the regulations of the company, no contribution required from any director or manager shall exceed the amount (if any) which he is liable to contribute as an ordinary member, unless the Court deems it necessary to require such contribution in order to satisfy the debts and liabilities of the company, and the costs, charges, and expenses of the winding-up.

Imp. § 123 (2).

Director with unlimited liability may have set-off. 44. In the event of the winding-up of any limited company, the Court, if it think fit, may make to any director or manager of such company whose liability is unlimited, the same allowance by way of set-off as under section 162 of this Act it may make to a contributory where the company is not limited.

Notice to be given to director on his election that his liability will be unlimited. 45. In any limited company in which, in pursuance of this Act, the liability of a director or manager is unlimited, the directors or managers of the company (if any) and the member who proposes any person for election or appointment to such office, shall add to such proposal a statement that the liability of the person holding such office will be unlimited, and the promoters, directors, managers, and secretary (if any) of such company, or one of them, shall, before such person accepts such office or acts therein, give him notice in writing that his liability will be unlimited. If any director, manager, or proposer make default in adding such statement, or if any promoter, director, manager, or secretary make default in giving such notice, he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars, and shall also be liable for any damage which the person so elected or appointed may sustain from such default, but the liability of the person elected or appointed shall not be affected by such default.

Company may have some shares fully paid and others not. 46. Any company if authorized by its regulations as originally framed or as altered by special resolution, may do any one or more of the following things, namely: 1. Make arrangements on the issue of shares for a difference between the holders of such shares in the amount of calls to be paid, and in the time of payment of such calls. 2. Accept from any member of the company who assents thereto the whole or a part of the amount remaining unpaid on any share or shares held by him, either in discharge of the amount of a call payable in respect of any other share or shares held by him or without any call having been made: 3. Pay dividend in proportion to the amount paid up on each share in cases where a larger amount is paid up on some shares than on others.

Imp. § 39.

Manner in which shares are to be issued and held. 47. Every share in any company shall be deemed and taken to have been issued and to be held subject to the payment of the whole amount thereof in cash, unless the same shall have been otherwise determined by a contract duly made in writing and filed with the Registrar at or before the issue of such shares.

Filing of contracts.

Remedy for omission to file contracts with Registrar. 48. 1. Whenever any shares in the capital of any company, credited as fully or partly paid up, shall have been or may be issued for a consideration other than cash, and at or before the issue of such shares no contract or no sufficient contract is filed with the Registrar, the company, or any person interested in such shares or any of them, may apply to the Court for relief, and the Court, if satisfied that the omission to file a contract or sufficient contract was accidental or due to inadvertence, or that for any reason it is just and equitable to grant relief, may make an order for the filing with the Registrar of a sufficient contract in writing, and directing that on such contract being filed within a specified period it shall, in relation to such shares, operate as if it had been duly filed with the Registrar aforesaid before the issue of such shares. 2. Any such application may be made in the manner in which an application to rectify the register of members may be made under section 38 of this Act, and either before or after an order has been made, or an effective resolution has been passed for the winding-up of such company, and either before or after the commencement of any proceedings for enforcing the liability on such shares consequent on the omission aforesaid, and any such application shall, if not made by the company, be served on the company. 3. Any such order may be made on such terms and conditions as the Court may think fit, and the Court may make such order as to costs as it deems proper, and may direct that an office copy of the order shall be filed with the Registrar, and the order shall in all respects have full effect. 4. Where the Court in any such case is satisfied that the filing of the requisite contract would cause delay or inconvenience, or is impracticable, it may in lieu thereof, direct the filing of a memorandum in writing, in a form approved by the court, specifying the consideration for which the shares were issued, and may direct that on such memorandum being filed within a specified period, it shall in relation to such shares operate as if it were a sufficient contract in writing, and had been duly filed with the Registrar before the issue of such shares.

Imp. § 88.

Jurisdiction of Court. 49. The jurisdiction in the foregoing section given to the Court is not by implication to curtail or derogate from its jurisdiction to grant relief in any such case under section 38 of this Act or otherwise.

Imp. § 88 (3)

Transfer of shares.

Transfer may be registered at request of transferor. 50. A company shall, on the application of the transferor of any share or interest in the company, enter in its register of members the name of the transferee of such share or interest, in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as if the application for such entry were made by the transferee.

Imp. § 28.

Share-warrants.

Warrant of limited shares fully paid up may be issued in name of bearer. 51. In the case of a company limited by shares, the company, if authorized so to do by its regulations as originally framed, or as altered by special resolution, and subject to the provisions of such regulations, may, with respect to any share, which is fully paid up, or with respect to stock, issue under their common seal a warrant stating that the bearer of the warrant is entitled to the share or shares or stock therein specified, and may provide by coupons or otherwise for the payment of the future dividends on the share or shares or stock included in such warrant, hereinafter referred to as a share-warrant.

Imp. § 37 (1).

Effect of share-warrant. 52. A share-warrant shall entitle the bearer of such warrant to the shares or stock specified in it, and such shares or stock may be transferred by the delivery of the share-warrant.

Imp. § 37 (2).

Re-registration of bearer of a share-warrant in the register. 53. The bearer of a share-warrant shall, subject to the regulations of the company, be entitled, on surrendering such warrant for cancellation, to have his name entered as a member in the register of members, and the company shall be responsible for any loss incurred by any person by reason of the company entering in its register of members the name of any bearer of a share-warrant in respect of the shares or stock specified therein, without the share-warrant being surrendered and cancelled.

Imp. § 37 (3).

Regulations of the company may make the bearer of a share warrant a member. 54. The bearer of a share-warrant may, if the regulations of the company so provide, be deemed to be a member of the company within the meaning of this Act, either to the full extent or for such purposes as may be prescribed by the regulations: Provided that the bearer of a share-warrant shall not be qualified in respect of the shares, or stock specified in such warrant for being a director or manager of the company in cases where such a qualification is prescribed by the regulations of the company.

Imp. § 37 (4).

Entries in register where share-warrant issued. 55. On the issue of a share-warrant, in respect of any share or stock, the company shall strike out of its register of members the name of the member then entered therein as holding such share or stock as if he had ceased to be a member, and shall enter in the register the following particulars: 1. The fact of the issue of the warrant; 2. A statement of the shares or stock included in the warrant, distinguishing each share by its number; 3. The date of the issue of the warrant. And, until the warrant is surrendered, the above particulars shall be deemed to be the particulars which are required by the twenty-eighth section of this Act to be entered in the register of members of a company; and, on the surrender of a warrant, the date of such surrender shall be entered as if it were the date at which a person ceased to be a member.

Imp. § 37 (5, 6).

Particulars to be contained in annual summary. 56. After the issue by the company of a share-warrant the annual summary required by the twenty-ninth section of this Act shall contain the following particulars: the total amount of shares or stock for which share-warrants are outstanding at the date of the summary, and the total amount of share-warrants which have been issued and surrendered respectively since the last summary was made, and the number of shares or amount of stock comprised in each warrant.

Imp. § 26.

[57—59. Contain provisions relating to the punishment of persons guilty of forgery of share-warrants or coupons or of personating owners of shares, or of unauthorized engraving of plates, etc., of share-warrants or coupons; similar to Imp. § 38.]

Part III. Management and Administration of Companies and Associations under this Act.

Protection of creditors.

Registered office of company. 60. Every company shall have a registered office to which all communications and notices may be addressed. If any company carries on business without having such an office, it shall incur a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars for every day during which business is so carried on.

Imp. § 62 (1, 3).

Notice of situation of registered office. 61. Notice of the situation of such registered office, and of any change therein, shall be given to the Registrar, and recorded by him. Until such notice is given the company shall not be deemed to have complied with the provisions of this Act with respect to having a registered office.

Imp. § 62 (2).

Publication of name by a limited company. 62. Every limited company, whether limited by shares or by guarantee, shall paint or affix, and shall keep painted or affixed, its name on the outside of every office or place in which the business of the company is carried on, in a conspicuous position, in letters easily legible, and shall have its name engraven in legible characters on its seal, and shall have its name mentioned in legible characters in all notices, advertisements, and other official publications of such company, and in all bills of exchange, promissory notes, indorsements, cheques, and orders for money or goods purporting to be signed by or on behalf of such company, and in all bills of parcels, invoices, receipts, and letters of credit of the company.

Imp. § 63 (1).

Penalties on non-publication of name. 63. If any limited company does not paint or affix, and keep painted or affixed, its name in manner directed by this Act, it shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars for not so painting or affixing its name, and for every day during which such name is not so kept painted or affixed, and every director and manager of the company who shall knowingly and wilfully authorize or permit such default shall be liable to the like penalty; and if any director, manager, or officer of such company, or any person on its behalf, uses or authorizes the use of any seal purporting to be a seal of the company whereon its name is not so engraven as aforesaid, or issues or authorizes the issue of any notice, advertisement, or other official publication of such company, or signs or authorizes to be signed on behalf of such company any bill of exchange, promissory note, indorsement, cheque, order for money or goods, or issues or authorizes to be issued any bill of parcels, invoice, receipt or letter of credit of the company, wherein its name is not mentioned in manner aforesaid, he shall be liable to a penalty of two hundred and fifty dollars, and shall further be personally liable to the holder of any such bill of exchange, promissory note, cheque, or order for money or goods, for the amount thereof, unless the same is duly paid by the company.

Imp. § 63 (2, 3).

Register of mortgages. 64. Every limited company shall keep a register of all mortgages and charges specially affecting property of the company, and shall enter in such register in respect of each mortgage or charge a short description of the property mortgaged or charged, the amount of charge created, and the names of the mortgagees or persons entitled to such charge. If any property of the company is mortgaged or charged without such entry as aforesaid being made, every director, manager, or other officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits the omission of such entry shall incur a penalty not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars. The register of mortgages required by this section shall be open to inspection by any creditor or member of the company at all reasonable times; and if such inspection is refused, any officer of the company refusing the same, and every director and manager of the company authorizing or knowingly and wilfully permitting such refusal, shall incur a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars, and a further penalty not exceeding ten dollars for every day during which such refusal continues; and in addition to the above penalty, any judge sitting in chambers may, by order, compel an immediate inspection of the register.

Imp. §§ 100, 101.

[65. Is repealed by 63 Vic. 2d Sess. c. 3. § 4.]

List of directors to be sent to Registrar. 66. Every company not having a capital divided into shares shall keep at its registered office a register containing the names and addresses and the occupations of its directors and managers, and shall send to the Registrar a copy of such register, and shall from time to time notify to the Registrar any change that takes place in such directors or managers.

Imp. § 75 (1).

Penalty on company not keeping register of directors. 67. If any company not having a capital divided into shares, makes default in keeping a register of its directors and managers or in sending a copy of such register to the Registrar in compliance with the foregoing rules, or in notifying to the Registrar any change that takes place in such directors or managers, such delinquent company shall incur a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars for every day during which such default continues, and every director and manager of the company who shall knowingly and wilfully authorize or permit such default shall incur the like penalty.

Imp. § 75 (2).

Promissory notes and bills of exchange. 68. A promissory note or bill of exchange shall be deemed to have been made, accepted, or indorsed on behalf of any company if made, accepted or endorsed in the name of the company by any person acting under the authority of the company, or if made, accepted, or endorsed by or on behalf or on account of the company by any person acting under the authority of the company.

Imp. § 77.

Contracts — how made. 69. Contracts on behalf of any company may be made as follows, that is to say: 1. Any contract which if made between private persons would be by law required to be in writing, under seal, may be made on behalf of the company in writing under the common seal of the company, and such contract may be in the same manner varied or discharged; 2. Any contract which if made between private persons would be by law required to be in writing, and signed by the parties to be charged therewith, may be made on behalf of the company in writing, signed by any person acting under the express or implied authority of the company, and such contract may in the same manner be varied or discharged; 3. Any contract which if made between private persons would by law be valid, although made by parol only and not reduced into writing, may be made by parol on behalf of the company by any person acting under the express or implied authority of the company, and such contract may in the same way be varied or discharged. And all contracts made according to the provisions herein contained shall be effectual in law, and shall be binding upon the company and their successors and all other parties thereto, their executors or administrators, as the case may be.

Imp. § 76.

Prohibition against carrying on business with less than three members. 70. If any company carries on business when the number of its members is less than three for a period of six months after the number has been so reduced, every person who is a member of such company during the time that it so carries on business after such period of six months, and is cognizant of the fact that it is so carrying on business with fewer than three members, shall be severally liable for the payment of the whole debts of the company contracted during such time, and may be sued for the same without the joinder in the action or suit of any other member.

Imp. § 115.

Meetings.

General meeting of company. 71. A general meeting of every company shall be held once at least in every year.

Imp. § 64.

Company to hold meeting within four months after registration. 72. Every company shall hold a general meeting within four months after its memorandum of association is registered; and if such meeting is not held the company shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars a day for every day after the expiration of such four months until the meeting is held; and every director or manager of the company, and every subscriber of the memorandum of association, who knowingly authorizes or permits such default shall be liable to the same penalty.

Imp. § 65.

Alteration of memorandum.

Power of company to alter memorandum of association. 73. Any company limited by shares may so far modify the conditions contained in its memorandum of association, if authorized to do so by its regulations as originally framed, or as altered by special resolution in manner hereinafter mentioned, as to increase its capital by the issue of new shares of such amount as it thinks expedient, or to consolidate and divide its capital into shares of larger amount than its existing shares, or to convert its paid up shares into stock, but save as aforesaid, and save as is herein after provided, no alteration shall be made by any company in the conditions contained in its memorandum of association.

Imp. § 9.

Power to company to reduce capital. 74. Any company limited by shares may, by special resolution, so far modify the conditions contained in its memorandum of association, if authorized so to do by its regulations as originally framed or as altered by special resolution, as to reduce its capital; but no such resolution for reducing the capital of any company shall come into operation until an order of the Court is registered by the Registrar as is hereinafter mentioned.

Imp. §§ 46, 47.

Construction of "capital" and powers to reduce capital. 75. The word "capital" in Part III of this Act shall include paid-up capital; and the power to reduce capital conferred by this Act shall include a power to cancel any lost capital, or any capital unrepresented by available assets, or to pay off any capital which may be in excess of the wants of the company; and paid-up capital may be reduced either with or without extinguishing or reducing the liability (if any) remaining on the shares of the company, and to the extent to which such liability is not extinguished or reduced, it shall be deemed to be preserved notwithstanding anything in this Act contained to the contrary.

Imp. § 46.

Company to add "and reduced" to its name for a limited period. 76. The company shall after the date of the passing of any special resolution for reducing its capital, and subject to the qualification hereinafter contained, add to its name, until such date as the court may fix, the words "and reduced," as the last words in its name, and those words shall, until such date, be deemed to be part of the name of the company, within the meaning of this Act.

Imp. § 48.

Company to apply to the Court for an order confirming reduction. 77. A company which has passed a special resolution for reducing its capital, may apply to the Court by petition for an order confirming the reduction, and on the hearing of the petition the Court if satisfied that with respect to every creditor of the company who under the provisions of this Act is entitled to object to the reduction, either his consent to the reduction has been obtained, or his debt or claim has been discharged or has determined, or has been secured as hereinafter provided, may make an order confirming the reduction on such terms and subject to such conditions as it deems fit.

Imp. § 47.

Creditors may object to reduction, and list of objecting creditors to be settled by Court. 78. Where a company proposes to reduce its capital, every creditor of the company who at the date fixed by the Court is entitled to any debt or claim which, if that date were the commencement of the winding-up of the company, would be admissible in proof against the company, shall be entitled to object to the proposed reduction and to be entered in the list of creditors who are so entitled to object, subject to the qualification hereinafter contained. The Court shall settle a list of such creditors, and for that purpose shall ascertain as far as possible without requiring an application from any creditor the names of such creditors and the nature and amount of their debts or claims, and may publish notices fixing a certain day or days within which creditors of the company who are not entered on the list are to claim to be so entered or to be excluded from the right of objecting to the proposed reduction.

Imp. § 49 (1, 2).

Court may dispense with consent of creditor on security being given for his debt. 79. Where a creditor whose name is entered on the list of creditors, and whose debt or claim is not discharged or determined, does not consent to the proposed reduction, the Court may (if it think fit) dispense with such consent, on the company securing the payment of the debt or claim of such creditor by setting apart and appropriating in such manner as the Court may direct, a sum of such amount as is hereinafter mentioned, that is to say: 1. If the full amount of the debt or claim of the creditor is admitted by the company, or though not admitted, is such as the company are willing to set apart and appropriate, then the full amount of the debt or claim shall be set apart and appropriated. 2. If the full amount of the debt or claim of the creditors is not admitted by the company, and is not such as the company are willing to set apart and appropriate, or if the amount is contingent or not ascertained, then the Court may, if it think fit, inquire into and adjudicate upon the validity of such debt or claim, and the amount for which the company may be liable in respect thereof, in the same manner as if the company were being wound up by the Court, and the amount fixed by the Court on such inquiry and adjudication shall be set apart and appropriated.

Imp. § 49 (3).

Creditors not entitled to object to reduction in certain cases. 80. Where the reduction of the capital of a company does not involve either the diminution of any liability in respect of unpaid capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up capital: 1. The creditors of the company shall not, unless the Court otherwise direct, be entitled to object or required to consent to the reduction; and 2. It shall not be necessary before the presentation of the petition for confirming the reduction to add, and the Court may, if it thinks it expedient so to do, dispense altogether with the addition of the words "and reduced" as mentioned in section 76 of this Act. In any case in which the Court thinks fit so to do, it may require the company to publish in such manner as it thinks fit the reasons for the reduction of its capital or such other information in regard to the reduction of its as the Court may think expedient with a view to give proper information to the public in relation to the reduction of its capital by a company, and, if the Court thinks fit, the causes which led to such reduction.

Imp. §§ 49, 55.

Order and minute to be registered. 81. The Registrar, upon the production to him of an order of the Court confirming the reduction of the capital of a company, and the delivery to him of a copy of the order and of a minute (approved by the Court) showing with respect to the capital of the company, as altered by the order, the amount of such capital, the number of shares in which it is to be divided, the amount of each share, and the amount (if any) which at the date of the registration of the minute, it is proposed shall be deemed to have been paid up on each share, shall register the order and minute, and on the registration thereof, the special resolution confirmed by the order so registered shall take effect. Notice of such registration shall be published in such manner as the Court may direct. The Registrar shall certify under his hand the registration of the order and minute, and his certificate shall be conclusive evidence that all the requisitions of this Act with respect to the reduction of capital have been complied with, and that the capital of the company is such as is stated in the minute.

Imp. § 51.

Minute to form part of memorandum of association. 82. The minute when registered shall be deemed to be substituted for the corresponding part of the memorandum of association of the company, and shall be of the same validity and subject to the same alterations as if it had been originally contained in the memorandum of association; and subject as in this Act mentioned, no member of the company, whether past or present, shall be liable in respect of any share to any call or contribution exceeding in amount the difference (if any) between the amount which has been paid on such share and the amount of the share as fixed by the minute.

Imp. § 52.

Saving of rights of creditors who are ignorant of proceedings. 83. If any creditor who is entitled in respect of any debt or claim to object to the reduction of the capital of a company under this Act is, in consequence of his ignorance of the proceedings taken with a view to such reduction, or of their nature and effect with respect to his claim, not entered on the list of creditors, and after such reduction, the company is unable, within the meaning of the one hundred and twenty-third section of this Act, to pay to the creditor the amount of such debt or claim, every person who was a member of the company, at the date of the registration of the order and minute relating to the reduction of the capital of the company, shall be liable to contribute for the payment of such debt or claim an amount not exceeding the amount which he would have been liable to contribute if the company had commenced to be wound up on the day prior to such registration; and on the company being wound up, the Court, on the application of such creditor, and on proof that he was ignorant of the proceedings taken with a view to the reduction, or of their nature and effect with respect to his claim, may, if it think fit, settle a list of such contributories accordingly, and make and enforce calls and orders on the contributories settled on such list in the same manner, in all respect as if they were ordinary contributories in a winding-up; but the provisions of this section shall not affect the rights of the contributories of the company among themselves.

Imp. § 53.

Copy of registered minute. 84. A minute when registered shall be embodied in every copy of the memorandum of association issued after its registration; and if any company makes default in complying with the provisions of this section it shall incur a penalty not exceeding five dollars for each copy in respect of which such default is made, and every director and manager of the company who shall knowingly and wilfully authorize or permit such default shall incur the like penalty.

Imp. § 41.

Penalty on concealment of name of creditor. 85. If any director, manager or officer of the company wilfully conceals the name of any creditor of the company who is entitled to object to the proposed reduction, or wilfully misrepresents the nature or amount of the debt or claim of any creditor of the company, or if any director or manager of the company aids or abets or is privy to any such concealment or misrepresentation as aforesaid, every such director, manager, or officer shall be guilty of a misdemeanour.

Imp. § 54.

Shares may be divided into shares of smaller amount. 86. Any company limited by shares may by special resolution so far modify the conditions contained in its memorandum of association, if authorized so to do by its regulations as originally framed or as altered by special resolution, as by subdivision of its existing shares or any of them, to divide its capital or any part thereof into shares of smaller amount than is fixed by its memorandum of association: Provided that in the subdivision of the existing shares, the proportion between the amount which is paid and the amount (if any) which is unpaid on each share of reduced amount shall be the same as it was in the case of the existing share or shares, from which the share of reduced amount is derived.

Imp. § 41 (1) (d).

Special resolution to be embodied in memorandum of association. 87. The statement of the number and amount of the shares into which the capital of the company is divided, contained in every copy of the memorandum of association issued after the passing of any such special resolution, shall be in accordance with such resolution; and any company which makes default in complying with the provisions of this section shall incur a penalty not exceeding five dollars for each copy in respect of which such default is made; and every director and manager of the company who knowingly or wilfully authorizes or permits such default shall incur the like penalty.

Imp. § 41 (3).

Power to reduce capital by the cancellation of unissued shares. 88. Any company limited by shares may so far modify the conditions contained in its memorandum of association, if authorized to do so by its regulations as originally framed or as altered by special resolution, as to reduce its capital by cancelling any shares which, at the date of the passing of such resolution, have not been taken or agreed to be taken by any person; and the provisions of Part III of this Act shall not apply to any reduction of capital made in pursuance of this section.

Imp. § 41 (1) (e).

Accumulated profits may be returned to shareholders in reduction of paid-up capital. 89. When any company has accumulated a sum of undivided profits, which, with the consent of the shareholders, may be distributed among the shareholders in the form of a dividend or bonus, it shall be lawful for the company by special resolution to return the same or any part thereof to the shareholders in reduction of the paid-up capital of the company, the unpaid capital being thereby increased by a similar amount. The powers vested in the directors of making calls upon the shareholders in respect of moneys unpaid upon their shares shall extend to the amount of the unpaid capital as augmented by such reduction.

Imp. § 40 (1).

No resolution to take effect till particulars have been registered. 90. No such special resolution as aforesaid shall take effect until a memorandum, showing the particulars required by law in the case of a reduction of capital by order of the Court shall have been produced to and registered by the Registrar.

Imp. § 40 (2).

Power to any shareholder to require company to retain moneys paid upon shares held by such person. 91. Upon any reduction of paid-up capital made in pursuance of this Act, it shall be lawful for any shareholder or for any one or more of several joint shareholders, within one month after the passing of the special resolution for such reduction, to require the company to retain, and the company shall retain accordingly, the whole of the moneys actually paid upon the shares held by such person, either alone or jointly with any other person or persons, and which, in consequence of such reduction, would otherwise be returned to him or them, and thereupon the shares in respect of which the said moneys shall be so retained, shall, in regard to the payment of dividends thereon, be deemed to be paid up to the same extent only as the shares on which payment as aforesaid has been accepted by the shareholders in reduction of their paid-up capital, and the company shall invest and keep invested the moneys so retained in such securities authorized for investment by trustees as the company shall determine, and upon the money so invested, or upon so much thereof as from time to time exceeds the amount of calls subsequently made upon the shares in respect of which such moneys shall have been retained, the company shall pay such interest as shall be received by them from time to time on such securities, and the amount so retained and invested shall be held to represent the future calls which may be made to replace the capital so reduced on those shares, whether the amount obtained on sale of the whole or such proportion thereof as represents the amount of any call when made, produces more or less than the amount of such call.

Imp. § 40 (3, 4).

Company to specify amounts retained and profits returned. 92. From and after such reduction of capital the company shall specify in the annual lists of members, to be made by them in pursuance of the twenty-ninth section of this Act, the amounts which any of the shareholders of the company shall have required the company to retain, and the company shall have retained accordingly, in pursuance of the preceding section of this Act and the company shall also specify in the statements of account laid before any general meeting of the company, the amount of the undivided profits of the company which shall have been returned to the shareholders in reduction of the paid-up capital of the company under this Act.

Imp. § 26.

Power of company to alter objects of company subject to confirmation by the Court. 93. 1. Subject to the provisions of this Act, a company may, by special resolution, alter the provisions of its memorandum of association with respect to the objects of the company so far as may be required for any of the purposes hereinafter specified, but in no case shall any such alteration take effect until confirmed on petition by the Court. 2. Before confirming any such alteration the Court must be satisfied: a) That sufficient notice has been given to every holder of debentures or debenture stock of the company, and any persons or class of persons whose interests will, in the opinion of the Court, be affected by the alteration; and b) That with respect to every creditor who in the opinion of the Court is entitled to object, and who signifies his objection in manner directed by the Court, either his consent to the alteration has been obtained or his debt or claim has been discharged or has determined, or has been secured to the satisfaction of the Court. Provided that the Court may in the case of any person or class of persons, for special reasons, dispense with the notice required by this section. 3. An order confirming any such alteration may be made on such terms and subject to such conditions as to the Court seems fit, and the Court may make such orders as to costs as it deems proper. 4. The Court shall, in exercising its discretion under this Act have regard to the rights and interests of the members of the company, or of any class of those members, as well as to the rights and interests of the creditors, and may, if it thinks fit, adjourn the proceedings in order that an arrangement may be made to the satisfaction of the Court for the purchase of the interests of dissentient members; and the Court may give such directions and make such orders as it may think expedient for the purpose of facilitating any such arrangement or carrying the same into effect: Provided always that it shall not be lawful to expend any part of the capital of the company in any such purchase. 5. The Court may confirm, either wholly or in part, any such alteration as aforesaid with respect to the objects of the company if it appears that the alteration is required in order to enable the company: a) To carry on its business more economically or more efficiently; or b) To attain its main purpose by new or improved means; or c) To enlarge or change the local area of its operations; or d) To carry on some business or businesses which, under existing circumstances, may conveniently or advantageously be combined with the business of the company; or e) To restrict or abandon any of the objects specified in the memorandum of association.

Imp. §§ 7, 9 (1—5). In the absence of a provision in the memorandum of association authorizing a sale of the whole property, assets, and good will of a company, there is no power in the Court to confirm an alteration in the memorandum of association authorizing such sale. —

Registration of order together with memorandum as altered and consequences thereof. 94. 1. Where a company has altered the provisions of its memorandum of association with respect to the objects of the company, and such alteration has been confirmed by the Court, an office copy of the order confirming such alteration together with a copy of the memorandum of association, shall be delivered by the company to the Registrar within fifteen days from the date of the order, and the Registrar shall register the same, and shall certify under his hand the registration thereof, and his certificate shall be conclusive evidence that all the requisitions of this Act with respect to such alteration and the confirmation thereof have been complied with, and thenceforth (but subject to the provisions of this Act) the memorandum so altered shall be the memorandum of association of the company. 2. If a company makes default in delivering to the Registrar any document required by this section to be delivered to him the company shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars for every day during which it is in default.

Imp. § 9 (6, 7).

Power of companies to change name. 95. Any company with the sanction of a special resolution of the company passed in manner hereinafter mentioned, and with the approval of the Governor in Council testified in writing under the hand of the Colonial Secretary, may change its name, and upon such change being made the Registrar shall enter the new name on the register in the place of the former name, and shall issue a certificate of incorporation altered to meet the circumstances of the case; but no such alteration of name shall affect any rights or obligations of the company, or render defective any legal proceedings instituted or to be instituted by or against the company, and any legal proceedings may be continued or commenced against the company by its new name that might have been continued or commenced against the company by its former name.

Imp. § 8 (3—5).

Limited company may, by special resolution, make liability of directors unlimited. 96. Any limited company may by a special resolution, if authorized so to do by its regulations as originally framed or as altered by special resolution, from time to time modify the conditions contained in its memorandum of association so far as to render unlimited the liability of its directors or managers, or of the managing director; and such special resolution shall be of the same validity as if it had been originally contained in the memorandum of association, and a copy thereof shall be embodied in or annexed to every copy of the memorandum of association which is issued after the passing of the resolution, and any default in this respect shall be deemed to be a default in complying with the provisions of the one hundred and first section of this Act, and shall be punished accordingly.

Imp. § 61.

Alteration of articles.

Power to alter regulations by special resolution. 97. Subject to the provisions of this Act, and to the conditions contained in the memorandum of association, any company may in general meeting from time to time, by passing a special resolution in manner hereinafter mentioned, alter all or any of the regulations of the company contained in the articles of association or in the Table marked A in the first Schedule, where such Table is applicable to the company, or make new regulations to the exclusion of or in addition to all or any of the regulations of the company; and any regulations so made by special resolution shall be deemed to be regulations of the company, of the same validity as if they had been originally contained in the articles of association, and shall be subject in like manner to be altered or modified by any subsequent special resolution.

Imp. § 13.

Definition of special "resolution." 98. A resolution passed by a company shall be deemed to be special whenever a resolution has been passed by a majority of not less than three-fourths of such members of the company for the time being entitled, according to the regulations of the company, to vote as may be present in person or by proxy (in cases where by the regulations of the company proxies are allowed) at any general meeting, of which notice specifying the intention to propose such resolution has been duly given, and such resolution has been confirmed by a majority of such members for the time being entitled, according to the regulations of the company, to vote as may be present in person or by proxy at a subsequent general meeting, of which notice has been duly given, and held at an interval or not less than seven days, nor more than one month from the date of the meeting at which such resolution was first passed. At any meeting mentioned in this section unless a poll is demanded by at least five members, a declaration of the chairman that the resolution has been carried shall be deemed conclusive evidence of the fact, without proof of the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour of or against the same. Notice of any meeting shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to be duly given and the meeting to be duly held, whenever such notice is given and meeting held in manner prescribed by the regulations of the company. In computing the majority under this section, when a poll is demanded, reference shall be had to the number of votes to which each member is entitled by the regulations of the company.

Imp. § 69.

Provision where no regulations as to meetings. 99. In default of any regulations as to voting every member shall have one vote, and in default of any regulations as to summoning general meetings a meeting shall be held to be duly summoned of which seven days notice in writing has been served on every member in manner in which notices are required to be served by the Table marked A in the first Schedule hereto, and in default of any regulations as to the persons to summon meetings five members shall be competent to summon the same, and in default of any regulations as to who is to be chairman of such meeting, it shall be competent for any person elected by the members present to preside.

Imp. § 67.

Registry of special resolution. 100. A copy of any special resolution that is passed by any company shall be forwarded to the Registrar, and be recorded by him. If such copy is not so forwarded within fifteen days from the date of the confirmation of the resolution, the company shall incur a penalty not exceeding ten dollars for every day after the expiration of such fifteen days during which such copy is omitted to be forwarded, and every director and manager of the company who shall knowingly and wilfully authorize or permit such default shall incur the like penalty.

Imp. § 70.

Copies of special resolution. 101. Where articles of association have been registered, a copy of every special resolution for the time being in force shall be annexed to or embodied in every copy of the articles of association that may be issued after the passing of such resolution. Where no articles of association have been registered, a copy of any special resolution shall be forwarded to any member requesting the same on payment of twenty-five cents, or such less sum as the company may direct. And if any company makes default in complying with the provisions of this section, it shall incur a penalty not exceeding five dollars for each copy in respect of which such default is made; and every director and manager of the company who shall knowingly and wilfully authorize or permit such default shall incur the like penalty.

Imp. § 7.

Execution of deeds abroad.

Execution of deeds abroad. 102. Any company may, by instrument in writing under its common seal, empower any person, either generally or in respect of any specified matters, as its attorney, to execute deeds on its behalf in any place not situate in Newfoundland; and every deed signed by such attorney, on behalf of the company, and under his seal, shall be binding on the company, and have the same effect as if it were under the common seal of the company.

Inspection.

Examination of affairs of company by inspectors. 103. The Court may appoint one or more competent inspectors to examine into the affairs of any company and to report thereon, in such manner as the Court may direct, under the applications following, that is to say: 1. In the case of any company that has a capital divided into shares, upon the application of members holding not less than one-fifth part of the whole shares of the company for the time being issued; 2. In the case of any company not having a capital divided into shares, upon the application of members being in number not less than one-fifth of the whole number of persons for the time being entered on the register of the company as members.

Imp. § 109 (1).

Application for inspection to be supported by evidence. 104. The application shall be by petition and shall be supported by such evidence as the Court may require for the purpose of showing that the applicants have good reason for requiring such investigation to be made, and that they are not actuated by malicious motives in instituting the same; the Court may also require the applicants to give security for payment of the costs of the inquiry before appointing any inspector or inspectors.

Imp. § 109 (2).

Inspection of books. 105. It shall be the duty of all officers and agents of the company to produce for the examination of the inspectors, all books and documents in their custody or power. Any inspector may examine upon oath the officers and agents of the company in relation to its business, and may administer such oath accordingly. If any officer or agent refuses to produce any book or document hereby directed to be produced, or to answer any question relating to the affairs of the company, he shall incur a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars in respect of each offence.

Imp. § 109 (3—5).

Inspector shall report opinion to Court after examination. 106. (As amended by 63 Vic. 2d Sess. c. 3, § 1). Upon the conclusion of the examination the inspectors shall report their opinion to the Court, such report shall be printed or written as the Court directs; a copy shall be forwarded by the Court to the registered office of the company and a further copy shall, at the request of the members upon whose application the inspection was made, be delivered to them or any one or more of them. All expenses of and incidental to any such examination, as aforesaid, shall be defrayed by the members upon whose application the inspectors were appointed, unless the Court shall direct the same to be paid out of the assets of the company.

Imp. § 109 (6, 7).

Power of company to appoint inspectors. 107. Any company may by special resolution appoint inspectors for the purpose of examining into the affairs of the company. The inspectors so appointed shall have the same powers and perform the same duties as inspectors appointed by the Court with this exception, that, instead of making their report to the Court they shall make the same in such manner and to such persons as the company in general meeting directs; and the officers and agents of the company shall incur the same penalties, in case of any refusal to produce any book or document hereby required to be produced to such inspectors, or to answer any question, as they would have incurred if such inspector had been appointed by the Court.

Imp. § 110.

Report of inspectors to be evidence. 108. A copy of the report of any inspectors appointed under this Act, authenticated by the seal of the company into whose affairs they have made inspection, shall be admissible in any legal proceeding, as evidence of the opinion of the inspectors in relation to any matter contained in such report.

Imp. § 111.

Notices.

Service of notices on company. 109. Any summons, notice, order, or other document required to be served upon the company may be served by leaving the same, or sending it through the post in a prepaid letter addressed to the company, at their registered office.

Imp. § 116.

Rules as to notices by letter. 110. Any document to be served by post on the company shall be posted in such time as to admit of its being delivered in the due course of delivery within the period (if any) prescribed for the service thereof; and in proving service of such document it shall be sufficient to prove that such document was properly directed, and that it was put as a prepaid letter into the post office.

Authentication of notices of company. 111. Any summons, notice, order, or proceeding requiring authentication by the company, may be signed by any director, secretary, or other authorized officer of the company, and need not be under the common seal of the company, and the same may be in writing or in print, or partly in writing and partly in print.

Imp. § 117.

Legal proceedings.

Recovery of penalties. 112. All offences under this Act made punishable by any penalty may be prosecuted in a summary manner before a stipendiary magistrate.

Imp. § 276.

Application of penalties. 113. The magistrate imposing any penalty under this Act may direct the whole or any part thereof to be applied in or towards payment of the costs of the proceedings, or in or towards the rewarding the person upon whose information or at whose suit such penalty has been recovered; and subject to such direction all penalties shall be paid to the Minister of Finance and Customs for the use of the Colony.

Imp. § 277.

Evidence of proceedings at meetings. 114. Every company shall cause minutes of all resolutions and proceedings of general meetings of the company, and of the directors or managers of the company in cases where there are directors or managers to be duly entered in books to be from time to time provided for the purpose; and any such minute as aforesaid, if purporting to be signed by the chairman of the meeting at which such resolutions were passed or proceedings had, or by the chairman of the next succeeding meeting, shall be received as evidence in all legal proceedings; and until the contrary is proved, every general meeting of the company or meeting of directors or managers in respect of the proceedings of which minutes have been so made shall be deemed to have been duly held and convened, and all resolutions passed thereat or proceedings had, to have been duly passed and had, and all appointments of directors, managers, or liquidators shall be deemed to be valid, and all acts done by such directors, managers, or liquidators shall be valid, notwithstanding any defect that may afterwards be discovered in their appointments or qualifications.

Imp. § 71.

Provision as to costs in action brought by company. 115. Where a limited company is plaintiff in any action or other legal proceeding, any judge having jurisdiction in the matter may, if it appears by any credible testimony that there is reason to believe that if the defendant be successful in his defence the assets of the company will be insufficient to pay his costs, require sufficient security to be given for such costs, and may stay all proceedings until such security is given.

Imp. § 278.

Declaration in action against members. 116. In any action brought by the company against any member to recover any call or other moneys due from such member in his character of member, it shall not be necessary to set forth the special matter, but it shall be sufficient to allege that the defendant is a member of the company, and is indebted to the company in respect of a call made or other moneys due, whereby an action or suit hath accrued to the company.

Arbitrations.

Power for companies to refer matters to arbitration. 117. 1. Any company under this Act may, from time to time, by writing under its common seal, agree to refer and may refer to arbitration any existing or future difference, question or other matter whatsoever in dispute between itself and any other company or person, and the companies parties to the arbitration may delegate to the person or persons, to whom the reference is made, power to settle any terms or to determine any matter capable of being lawfully settled or determined by the companies themselves, or by the directors or other managing body of such companies. 2. The provisions of The Arbitration Act, 1895, shall be deemed to apply to arbitrations between companies and persons in pursuance of this Act.

Imp. § 119.

Part IV. Winding-up of Companies and Associations under this Act.

Preliminary.

Meaning of contributory. 118. The term "contributory" shall mean every person liable to contribute to the assets of a company in the event of the same being wound up. It shall also, in all proceedings for determining the persons who are to be deemed contributories, and in all proceeding prior to the final determination of such persons, include any person alleged to be a contributory.

Imp. § 124. Foreign Company. Where a company incorporated in England is being wound up voluntarily at its domicile, actions against the company pending in the local courts will be stayed. Harvey v. Newfoundland Fish Industries, Ltd., (1901), M. & B. 508; Cabot Steam Whaling Co. Ltd. v. Newfoundland Fish Industries, Ltd., (1903), M. & B. 483.

Nature of liability of contributory. 119. The liability of any person to contribute to the assets of a company, in the event of the same being wound up, shall be deemed to create a debt of the nature of a specialty accruing due from such person at the time when his liability commenced, but payable at the time or respective times when calls are made as hereinafter mentioned for enforcing such liability; and it shall be lawful in the case of the insolvency of any contributory to prove against his estate the estimated value of his liability to future calls, as well as calls already made.

Imp. § 125.

Contributories in case of death. 120. If any contributory dies, either before or after he has been placed on the list of contributories hereinafter mentioned, his personal representatives shall be liable in a due course of administration to contribute to the assets of the company in discharge of the liability of such deceased contributory and such personal representatives shall be deemed to be contributories accordingly.

Imp. § 126.

Contributories in case of insolvency. 121. If any contributory is declared insolvent, either before or after he has been placed on the list of contributories, the trustees of his estate shall be deemed to represent such insolvent for all the purposes of the winding-up, and shall be deemed to be contributories accordingly, and may be called upon to admit to proof against the estate of such insolvent, or otherwise to allow to be paid out of his assets in due course of law, any moneys due from such insolvent in respect of his liability to contribute to the assets of the company being wound up; and for the purposes of this section any person who may have taken the benefit of any Act for the relief of insolvent debtors before the passing of this Act, shall be deemed to have been declared insolvent.

Imp. § 127.

Winding-up by Court.

Circumstances under which company may be wound up by Court. 122. A company may be wound up by the Court as hereinafter defined, under the following circumstances, that is to say: 1. Whenever the company has passed a special resolution requiring the company to be wound up by the Court; 2. Whenever the company does not commence its business within a year from its incorporation, or suspends its business for the space of a whole year; 3. Whenever the members are reduced in number to less than three; 4. Whenever the company is unable to pay its debts; 5. Whenever the Court is of opinion that it is just and equitable that the company be should wound up.

Imp. § 129.

Company when deemed unable to pay its debts. 123. A company shall be deemed to be unable to pay its debts: 1. Whenever a creditor, by assignment or otherwise, to whom the company is indebted in a sum exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars then due, has served on the company, by leaving the same at their registered office, a demand under his hand requiring the company to pay the sum so due, and the company has for the space of three weeks succeeding the service of such demand neglected to pay such sum, or to secure or compound for the same to the reasonable satisfaction of the creditor; 2. Whenever execution or other process issued on a judgment or order obtained in the Court, in favour of any creditor, in any proceeding instituted by such creditor against the company, is returned unsatisfied in whole or in part; 3. Whenever it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the company is unable to pay its debts.

Imp. § 130.

Application for winding up to be made by petition. 124. Any application to the Court for the winding-up of a company shall be by petition; it may be presented by the company, or by any one or more creditor or creditors, contributory or contributories of the company, or by all or any of the above parties, together or separately; and every order which may be made on any such petition shall operate in favour of all the creditors and all the contributories of the company in the same manner as if it had been made upon the joint petition of a creditor and a contributory.

Imp. §§ 137 (1), 138.

Contributory when not qualified to present winding-up petition. 125. No contributory of a company under this Act, shall be capable of presenting a petition for winding up such company unless the members of the company are reduced in number to less than three, or unless the shares in respect of which he is a contributory, or some of them, either were originally allotted to him or have been held by him, and registered in his name, for a period of at least six months during the eighteen months previously to the commencement of the winding-up, or have devolved upon him through the death of a former holder. Provided that where a share has during the whole or any part of the six months been held by or registered in the name of any trustee or trustees for the contributory, such share shall for the purposes of this section be deemed to have been held by and registered in the name of the contributory.

Imp. § 137.

Commencement of winding-up by Court. 126. A winding-up of a company by the Court shall be deemed to commence at the time of the presentation of the petition for the winding-up.

Imp. § 139.

Court may grant injunction. 127. The Court may at any time after the presentation of a petition for winding up a company under this Act, and before making an order for winding up the company, upon the application of the company, or of any creditor or contributory of the company, restrain further proceedings in any action or proceeding against the company, upon such terms as the Court thinks fit.

Imp. § 140.

Course to be pursued by Court on hearing petition. 128. Upon hearing the petition the Court may dismiss the same with or without costs, may adjourn the hearing conditionally or unconditionally, and may make any interim order, or any other order that it deems just.

Imp. § 141 (1).

Actions to be stayed after order for winding-up. 129. When an order has been made for winding up a company no action or other proceeding shall be proceeded with or commenced against the company except with the leave of the Court, and subject to such terms as the Court may impose.

Imp. § 142.

Copy of order to be forwarded to Registrar. 130. When an order has been made for winding up a company a copy of such order shall forthwith be forwarded by the company to the Registrar, who shall make a minute thereof in his books, relating to the company.

Imp. § 143.

Power of Court to stay proceedings. 131. The Court may at any time after an order has been made for winding up a company, upon the application by motion of any creditor or contributory of the company, and upon proof to the satisfaction of the Court that all proceedings in relation to such winding-up ought to be stayed, make an order staying the same, either altogether or for a limited time, on such terms and subject to such conditions as it deems fit.

Imp. § 144.

Effect of order on share capital of company limited by guarantee. 132. When an order has been made for winding up a company limited by guarantee, and having a capital divided into shares, any share capital that may not have been called up shall be deemed to be assets of the company, and to be a debt of the nature of a specialty due to the company from each member to the extent of any sums that may be unpaid on any shares held by him, and payable at such time as may be appointed by the Court.

Court may have regard to wishes of creditors or contributories. 133. The Court may, as to all matters relating to the winding-up, have regard to the wishes of the creditors or contributories, as proved to it by any sufficient evidence, and may, if it thinks it expedient, direct meetings of the creditors or contributories to be summoned, held and conducted in such manner as the Court directs, for the purpose of ascertaining their wishes, and may appoint a person to act as chairman of any such meeting, and to report the result of such meeting to the Court. In the case of creditors, regard is to be had to the value of the debts due to each creditor, and in the case of contributories to the number of votes conferred on each contributory by the regulations of the company.

Liquidators.

Appointment of liquidators. 134. For the purpose of conducting the proceedings in winding up a company and assisting the Court therein, there may be appointed a person or persons to be called a liquidator or liquidators; and the Court having jurisdiction may appoint such person or persons, either provisionally or otherwise, as it thinks fit, to the office of liquidator or liquidators; in all cases if more persons than one are appointed to the office of liquidator, the Court shall declare whether any act hereby required or authorized to be done by the liquidators is to be done by all or any one or more of such persons.

Imp. § 149 (1, 2, 4).

Resignations, removals, filling up vacancies, and compensation. 135. A liquidator may resign or be removed by the Court on due cause shown. And any vacancy in the office of a liquidator appointed by the Court shall be filled by the Court. There shall be paid to the liquidator such salary or remuneration, by way of percentage or otherwise, as the Court may direct; and if more liquidators than one are appointed such remuneration shall be distributed amongst them in such proportions as the Court directs.

Imp. § 149 (6—8).

Style and duties of liquidator. 136. The liquidator or liquidators shall be described by the style of the liquidator or liquidators of the particular company in respect of which he is or they are appointed, and not by his or their individual name or names; he or they shall take into his or their custody, or under his or their control, all the property, effects, and things in actions to which the company is or appears to be entitled, and shall perform such duties in reference to the winding-up of the company as may be imposed by the Court.

Imp. §§ 149 (9), 150.

Powers of liquidator. 137. The liquidator shall have power, with the sanction of the court, to do the following things: To bring or defend any action, suit, or prosecution, or other legal proceeding, civil or criminal, in the name and on behalf of the company; To carry on the business of the company, so far as may be necessary for the beneficial winding-up of the same; To sell the real and personal and moveable property, effects and things in action of the company by public auction or private contract, with power to transfer the whole thereof to any person or company, or to sell the same in parcels; To do all acts and to execute, in the name and on behalf of the company, all deeds, receipts, and other documents, and for that purpose to use, when necessary, the company's seal; To prove, rank, claim, and draw a dividend in the matter of the insolvency of any contributory, for any balance against the estate of such contributory, and to take and receive dividends in respect of such balance in the matter of such insolvency as a separate debt due from such insolvent, and rateably with the other separate creditors; To draw, accept, make, and indorse any bill of exchange or promissory note in the name and on behalf of the company, also to raise upon the security of the assets of the company from time to time any requisite sum or sums of money; and the drawing, accepting making, or endorsing of every such bill of exchange or promissory note as aforesaid on behalf of the company, shall have the same effect with respect to the liability of such company as if such bill or note had been drawn, accepted, made, or indorsed by or on behalf of such company in the course of carrying on the business thereof; To take out, if necessary, in his official name, letters of administration to any deceased contributory, and to do in his official name any other act that may be necessary for obtaining payment of any moneys due from a contributory or from his estate, and which act can not be conveniently done in the name of the company; and in all cases where he takes out letters of administration, or otherwise uses his official name for obtaining payment of any moneys due from a contributory, such moneys shall for the purpose of enabling him to take out such letters or recover such moneys, be deemed to be due to the liquidator himself; To do and execute all such other things as may be necessary for winding up the affairs of the company and distributing its assets.

Imp. § 151 (1, 2).

Discretion of liquidator. 138. The Court may provide by any order that the liquidator may exercise any of the above powers without the sanction or intervention of the Court, and where a liquidator is provisionally appointed may limit and restrict his powers by the order appointing him.

Imp. § 151 (3, 5).

Official receiver.

Provisions as to liquidator. 139. 1. On an order being made by the Court for winding up a company, the officer hereinafter mentioned, shall, by virtue of his office, become the provisional liquidator of the company, and shall continue to act as such until he or another person becomes liquidator and is capable of acting as such. 2. The said officer shall be appointed by the Governor in Council, and shall for the purpose of his duties under this Act, be styled the official receiver. 3. When a person other than the official receiver is appointed liquidator of a company he shall not be capable of acting as liquidator until he has notified his appointment to the Registrar and given security in the manner prescribed to the satisfaction of the Court. He shall give the official receiver such information and such access to and facilities for inspecting the books and documents of the company, and generally such aid as may be requisite for enabling that officer to perform his duties under this Act. 4. If any vacancy occurs in the office of liquidator of a company, the official receiver shall, by virtue of his office, be the liquidator during the vacancy. 5. The official receiver may be appointed by the Court provisional liquidator of the company at any time after the presentation of the petition and before a winding-up order has been made. 6. Where an application is made to the Court to appoint a receiver on behalf of the debenture holders or other creditors of a company, the official receiver may be so appointed. 7. The official receiver shall receive such remuneration by way of percentage or otherwise as may be fixed by the Court.

Imp. § 84.

Power to appoint special manager. 140. 1. Where the official receiver becomes the liquidator of a company, whether provisionally or otherwise, he may, if satisfied that the nature of the estate or business of the company or the interests of the creditors or contributories generally require the appointment of a special manager of the estate or business of the company other than himself, apply to the Court to, and the Court may, on such application, appoint a special manager thereof during such time as the Court may direct, with such powers, including any of the powers of a receiver or manager as may be entrusted to him by the Court. 2. The special manager shall give such security and account in such manner as the Court shall direct. 3. The special manager shall receive such remuneration as may be fixed by the Court.

Imp. § 161.

Meeting of creditors. 141. 1. When the Court has made an order for winding up a company the official receiver shall summon separate meetings of the creditors and contributories of the company for the purpose of: a) Determining whether or not an application is to be made to the Court for appointing a liquidator in the place of the official receiver; and b) Determining whether or not an application is to be made to the Court for the appointment of a committee of inspection to act with the liquidator, and who are to be the members of such committee if appointed. The Court may make any appointment and order required to give effect to any such determination, and if there is a difference between the determinations of the meetings of the creditors and contributories in respect of any of the matters mentioned in the foregoing provisions the Court shall decide the difference and make such order thereon as the Court may think fit. 2. The provisions of the third Schedule to this Act shall, subject to such modifications as may be made therein by general rules, apply to any meeting summoned in pursuance of this section. 3. In case a liquidator is not appointed by the Court, the official receiver shall be the liquidator of the company.

Imp. § 152.

Statement of company's affairs. 142. 1. Where the Court has made an order for winding up a company, there shall be made out and submitted to the official receiver a statement as to the affairs of the company, in the prescribed form, verified by affidavit, and showing the particulars of the assets, debts, and liabilities of the company, the names, residences, and occupations of the creditors of the company, the securities held by them respectively, the dates when the securities were respectively given, and such further or other information as may be prescribed or as the official receiver may require. 2. The statement shall be submitted and verified by one or more of the persons who are at the time of the winding-up order the directors and by the person who is at that time the secretary or other chief officer of the company, or by such of the persons being or having been directors or officers of the company, or having taken part in the formation of the company at any time within one year before the order for winding up the company, as the official receiver, subject to the direction of the Court, may require to submit, and verify the same. 3. The statement shall be submitted within fourteen days from the date of the order, or within such extended time as the official receiver or the Court may for special reasons appoint. 4. Any person making or concurring in making the statement and affidavit required by this section shall be allowed, and shall be paid by the official receiver, out of the assets of the company, such costs and expenses incurred in and about the preparation and making of such statement and affidavit as the receiver may consider reasonable, subject to an appeal to the Court. 5. If any person without reasonable excuse, makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty dollars for every day during which the default continues. 6. Any person stating himself in writing to be a creditor or contributory of the company shall be entitled by himself or by his agent at all reasonable times, on payment of the prescribed fee, to inspect the statement submitted in pursuance of this section, and to a copy thereof or extract therefrom. But any person untruthfully so stating himself to be a creditor or contributory shall be guilty of a contempt of Court and shall be punishable accordingly on the application of the liquidator or of the official receiver.

Imp. § 147.

Report on winding up and proceedings thereupon. 143. 1. Where the Court has made an order for winding up a company, the official receiver shall as soon as practicable after receipt of the statement of the company's affairs, submit a preliminary report to the Court: a) As to the amount of capital issued, subscribed, and paid up, and the estimated amount of assets and liabilities; and b) If the company has failed, as to the causes of the failure; and c) Whether in his opinion further enquiry is desirable as to any matters relating to the promotion, formation, or failure of the company, or the conduct of the business thereof. 2. The official receiver may also, if he thinks fit, make a further report, or further reports, stating the manner in which the company was formed, and whether in his opinion any fraud has been committed by any person in the promotion or formation of the company, or by any director or other officer of the company, in relation to the company since the formation thereof, and any other matters which in his opinion it is desirable to bring to the notice of the Court. 3. The Court may, after consideration of any such report, direct that any person who has taken any part in the promotion or formation of a company, or has been a director or officer of the company, shall attend before the Court on a day appointed by the Court for that purpose, and be publicly examined as to the promotion or formation of the company, or as to the conduct of the business of the company, or as to his conduct and dealings as director or officer of the company. 4. The official receiver shall take part in the examination, and for that purpose may employ a solicitor or counsel. 5. The liquidator where the official receiver is not the liquidator, and any creditor or contributory of the company may also take part in the examination either personally or by solicitor or counsel. 6. The Court may put such questions to the persons examined as to the Court may seem expedient. 7. The person examined shall be examined on oath, and it shall be his duty to answer all such questions as the Court may put or allow to be put to him. The person examined shall at his own cost prior to such examination, be furnished with a copy of the official receiver's report, and shall also at his own cost be entitled to employ at such examination a solicitor or counsel, who shall be at liberty to put such questions to the person examined as the Court may deem just for the purpose of enabling that person to explain or qualify any answers given by him. Provided always, that if such person is, in the opinion of the Court, exculpated from any charges made or suggested against him, the Court may allow him such costs as the Court in its discretion may think fit. Notes of the examination shall be taken down in writing, and shall be read over to or by, and signed by, the person examined, and may thereafter be used in evidence against him. They shall also be open to the inspection of any creditor or contributory of the company at all reasonable times. 8. The Court may, if it thinks fit, adjourn the examination from time to time.

Imp. §§ 148.

Committee of inspection. 144. 1. A committee of inspection appointed in pursuance of this Act shall consist of persons being creditors or contributories of the company or persons holding general powers of attorney from such persons in such proportions as may be agreed on by the meetings of creditors and contributories or as, in case of difference, may be determined by the Court. 2. The committee of inspection shall meet at such times as they from time to time appoint, and failing such appointment, at least once a month; and the liquidator or any member of the committee may also call a meeting of the committee as and when he thinks necessary. 3. The committee may act by a majority of their members present at a meeting, but shall not act unless a majority of the committee are present at the meeting. 4. Any member of the committee may resign his office by notice in writing signed by him, and delivered to the liquidator. 5. If a member of the committee becomes insolvent, or compounds or arranges with his creditors, or is absent from five consecutive meetings of the committee without the leave of those members of the committee who together with himself represent the creditors or contributories as the case may be, his office shall thereupon become vacant. 6. Any member of the committee representing creditors may be removed by an ordinary resolution at any meeting of creditors of which seven days' notice has been given, stating the object of the meeting. Any member of the committee representing contributories may be removed by an ordinary resolution at any meeting of contributories, of which seven days' notice has been given stating the object of the meeting. 7. On a vacancy occurring in the office of a member of the committee, the liquidator shall forthwith summon a meeting of creditors or of contributories, as the case may require, for the purpose of filling the vacancy, and the meeting may, by resolution, re-appoint the same or appoint another creditor or contributory to fill the vacancy. 8. The continuing members of the committee, provided there be not less than two such continuing members, may act notwithstanding any vacancy in their body. 9. If there be no committee of inspection, any act or thing or any direction or permission by this Act authorized or required to be done or given by the committee may be done or given by the Court on the application of the liquidator.

Imp. § 160.

Power of Court to assess damages against delinquent. 145. 1. Where in the course of the winding-up of a company it appears that any person who has taken part in the formation or promotion of the company, or any past or present director, manager, liquidator, or other officer of the company, has misapplied or retained or become liable or accountable for any moneys or property of the company, or been guilty of any misfeasance or breach of trust in relation to the company, the Court may, on the application of the official receiver, or of the liquidator of the company, or of any creditor or contributory of the company examine into the conduct of such promoter, director, manager, liquidator, or other officer of the company and compel him to repay any moneys or restore any property so misapplied or retained, or for which he has become liable or accountable, together with interest after such rate as the Court thinks just, or to contribute such sums of money to the assets of the company by way of compensation in respect of such misapplication, retainer, misfeasance, or breach of trust, as the Court thinks just. 2. The provisions of this section shall apply in the winding-up of any company, whether the same is being wound up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, or is being wound up voluntarily, and whether the winding-up commenced before or after the passing of this Act, and notwithstanding that the offence is one for which the offender may be criminally responsible.

Imp. § 215 (1, 2).

Payment of money into the Newfoundland Savings' Bank. 146. 1. Every liquidator of a company which is being wound up by an order of the Court, shall, in such manner and at such times as the Court may direct, pay the money received by him to the Newfoundland Savings' Bank to a special account to be opened in the matter of the winding-up of the said company. 2. Provided that, if the committee of inspection satisfy the Court that for the purpose of carrying on the business of the company or of obtaining advances, or for any other reason, it is for the advantage of the creditors or contributories that the liquidator shall have an account with any other bank, the Court shall, on the application of the committee of inspection, authorize the liquidator to make his payments into and out of such other bank as the committee may select, and thereupon those payments shall be made in the prescribed manner. 3. If any such liquidator at any time retains for more than ten days a sum exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars, or such other amount as the Court in any particular case authorize him to retain, then, unless he explains the retention to the satisfaction of the Court, he shall pay interest on the amount so retained in excess at the rate of twenty dollars per centum per annum, and shall be liable to disallowance of all or such part of his remuneration as to the Court shall seem just, and to be removed from his office by the Court, and shall be liable to pay any expenses occasioned by reason of his default. 4. No liquidator of a company which is being wound up by order of the Court shall pay any sums received by him as liquidator into his private banking account.

Imp. § 154.

Powers of liquidator. 147. The liquidator of a company which is being wound up by order of the Court may, with the sanction either of the Court or of the committee of inspection, employ a solicitor or other agent to take any proceedings or do any business which the liquidator is unable to take or do himself. The sanction aforesaid must be a sanction obtained before the employment, except in cases of urgency, and in such cases it must be shown that no undue delay took place in obtaining the sanction.

Imp. §§ 151, 214.

Power of official receiver to apply as to voluntary winding-up. 148. Where a company is being wound up voluntarily or subject to the supervision of the Court, the official receiver may present a petition that the company be wound up by the Court, and thereupon, if the Court is satisfied that the voluntary winding-up or winding up subject to supervision can not be continued with due regard to the interests of the creditors or contributories, it may make an order that the company be wound up by the Court.

Imp., § 137.

Information as to pending liquidations. 149. 1. If the winding-up of a company is not concluded within one year after its commencement, the liquidator of the company shall, at such intervals as may be prescribed, until the winding-up is concluded, send to the Registrar a statement in the prescribed form and containing the prescribed particulars with respect to the proceedings in and position of the liquidation. Any person stating himself in writing to be a creditor or contributory of the company shall be entitled, by himself or by his agent, at all reasonable times on payment of the prescribed fee, to inspect the statement submitted in pursuance of this section, and to a copy thereof, or extract therefrom. But any person untruthfully so stating himself to be a creditor or contributory shall be guilty of a contempt of Court, and shall be punishable accordingly on the application of the liquidator or of the receiver. 2. If a liquidator makes default in complying with the requirements of this section he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars for each day during which the default continues.

Imp. § 224.

Audit of liquidator's accounts. 150. 1. Every liquidator of a company which is being wound up by order of the Court shall, at such times as may be prescribed but not less than twice in each year during his tenure of office, send to the Court, or as the Court direct, an account of his receipts and payments as such liquidator. 2. The account shall be in a prescribed form, shall be made in duplicate, and shall be verified by affidavit. 3. The Court shall cause the accounts so sent to be audited and for the purpose of the audit the liquidator shall furnish the Court with such vouchers and information as the Court may require, and the Court may at any time require the production of, and inspect any books or accounts kept by the liquidator. 4. When any such account has been audited, one copy thereof shall be filed with the Court, and each copy shall be open to the inspection of any creditor, or of any person interested. 5. The Court shall cause the account or a summary thereof when audited, to be printed, and shall send a printed copy thereof by post to every creditor and contributory.

Imp. § 155.

Books to be kept by liquidator. 151. Every liquidator of a company which is being wound up by order of the Court shall keep, in manner prescribed, proper books in which he shall from time to time cause to be made entries or minutes of proceedings at meetings, and of such other matters as may be prescribed, and any creditor or contributory of the company may, subject to the control of the Court, personally or by his agent inspect, any such books.

Imp. § 156.

Release of liquidators. 152. 1. When the liquidator of a company which is being wound up by order of the Court has realized all the property of the company, or so much thereof as can, in his opinion, be realized without needlessly protracting the liquidation, and distributed a final dividend, if any, to the creditors, and adjusted the rights of the contributories between themselves, and made a final return, if any, to the contributories, or has resigned, or has been removed from his office, the Court shall, on his application, cause a report on his accounts to be prepared, and, on his complying with all the requirements of the Court, shall take into consideration the report, and any objection which may be urged by any creditor, or contributory, or person interested against the release of the liquidator, and shall either grant or withhold the release accordingly. 2. Where the release of a liquidator is withheld the Court may, on the application of any creditor, or contributory, or person interested, make such order as it thinks just, charging the liquidator with the consequences of any act or default he may have done or made contrary to his duty. 3. Any order of the Court releasing the liquidator shall discharge him from all liability in respect of any act done or default made by him in the administration of the affairs of the company, or otherwise in relation to his conduct as liquidator, but any such order may be revoked on proof that it was obtained by fraud or by suppression or concealment of any material fact. 4. Where the liquidator has not previously resigned or been removed, his release shall operate as a removal of him from his office.

Imp. § 157.

Discretionary powers of liquidator, and control thereof. 153. 1. Subject to the provisions of this Act, the liquidator of a company which is being wound up by order of the Court shall, in the administration of the property of the company and in the distribution thereof amongst its creditors, have regard to any directions that may be given by resolution of the creditors or contributories at any general meeting, or by the committee of inspection, and any directions so given by the creditors or contributories at any general meeting, shall, in case of conflict be deemed to override any directions given by the committee of inspection. 2. The liquidator may from time to time summon general meetings of the creditors or contributories for the purpose of ascertaining their wishes, and it shall be his duty to summon meetings at such times as the creditors or contributories, by resolution either at the meeting appointing the liquidator or otherwise, may direct, or whenever requested in writing to do so by one-tenth in value of the creditors or contributories as the case may be. 3. The liquidator may apply to the Court in manner prescribed in relation to any particular matter arising under the winding-up. 4. Subject to the provisions of this Act, the liquidator shall use his own discretion in the management of the estate and its distribution among the creditors.

Imp. § 158 (1—4).

Appeal to Court against liquidator. 154. If any person is aggrieved by any act or decision of the liquidator of a company, which is being wound up by order of the Court, he may apply to the Court, and the Court may confirm, reverse, or modify the act or decision complained of, and make such order in the premises as it thinks just.

Imp. § 158 (5).

Control of Court over liquidators. 155. 1. The Court shall take cognizance of the conduct of liquidators of companies which are being wound up by order of the Court, and in the event of any such liquidator not faithfully performing his duties and duly observing all the requirements imposed on him by statute, rules, or otherwise with respect to the performance of his duties, or in the event of any complaint being made to the Court by any creditor or contributory in regard thereto, the Court shall inquire into the matter and take such action thereon as may be deemed expedient. 2. The Court may at any time examine on oath the liquidator or any other person concerning the winding-up. 3. The Court may also direct a local investigation to be made of the books and vouchers of the liquidator of any company which is being wound up by order of the Court.

Imp. § 159.

Ordinary powers of Court.

Judge may exercise powers of Court. 156. The powers conferred by this Act upon the Court may, subject to review as hereinafter provided, be exercised by a single judge thereof; and such powers may be exercised in Chambers either during term or in vacation.

Transfer of proceedings from one judge to another judge. 157. The winding-up of a company or any proceedings therein may, at any time and at any stage, and either with or without application from any of the parties thereto, be transferred from one judge to another judge.

Imp. § 133.

Appeal from judge to Court. 158. Every judgment, finding, or order of a single judge, in Court or in Chambers, or of the Court constituted by two judges, in any proceeding under this Act, shall be respectively subject to be reviewed, varied, or set aside by the Court constituted of two or three judges, as the case may be, in the same manner as in other causes and matters under the provisions of The Judicature Act, 1889, and the amendments thereof.

Collection and application of assets. 159. As soon as may be after making an order for winding up the company, the Court shall settle a list of contributories, with power to rectify the register of members in all cases where such rectification is required in pursuance of this Act, and shall cause the assets of the company to be collected, and applied in discharge of its liabilities.

Imp. § 163 (1).

Provision as to representative contributories. 160. In settling the list of contributories the Court shall distinguish between persons who are contributories in their own right and persons who are contributories as being representatives of or being liable to the debts of others.

Imp. § 163 (2).

Power of Court to require delivery of property. 161. The Court may, at any time after making an order for winding up a company, require any contributory for the time being settled on the list of contributories, trustee, receiver, banker, or agent or officer of the company to pay, deliver, convey, surrender, or transfer forthwith, or within such time as the Court directs, to or into the hands of the liquidator, any sum or balance, books, papers, estate, or effects which happen to be in his hands for the time being, and to which the company is prima facie entitled.

Imp. § 164.

Power of Court to order payment of debts by contributory. 162. The Court may at any time after making an order for winding up the company, make an order on any contributory for the time being settled on the list of contributories, directing payment to be made, in manner in the said order mentioned, of any moneys due from him or from the estate of the person whom he represents to the company, exclusive of any moneys which he or the estate of the person whom he represents may be liable to contribute by virtue of any call made or to be made by the Court in pursuance of this part of this Act; and it may, in making such order, when the company is not limited, allow to such contributory by way of set-off any moneys due to him or the estate which he represents from the company on any independent dealing or contract with the company, but not any moneys due to him as a member of the company in respect of any dividend or profit. Provided that when all the creditors of any company whether limited or unlimited are paid in full, any moneys due on any account whatever to any contributory from the company may be allowed to him by way of set-off against any subsequent call or calls.

Imp. § 165.

Power of Court to make calls. 163. The Court may at any time after making an order for winding up a company, and either before or after it has ascertained the sufficiency of the assets of the company, make calls on and order payment thereof by all or any of the contributories, for the time being settled on the list of contributories, to the extent of their liability for payment of all or any sums it deems necessary to satisfy the debts and liabilities of the company, and the costs, charges, and expenses of winding it up, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories amongst themselves, and it may, in making a call, take into consideration the probability that some of the contributories upon whom the same is made may partly or wholly fail to pay their respective portions of the same.

Imp. § 166.

Power of Court to order payment into bank. 164. The Court may order any contributory, purchaser or other person from whom money is due to the company, to pay the same into the Newfoundland Savings' Bank to the account of the liquidator instead of to the liquidator, and such order may be enforced in the same manner as if it had directed payment to the liquidator.

Imp. § 167.

Regulation of account with Court. 165. All moneys, bills, notes, and other securities paid and delivered into the Newfoundland Savings' Bank in the event of a company being wound up by the Court, shall be subject to such order and regulation for the keeping of the account of such moneys and other effects, and for the payment and delivery in, or investment and payment and delivery out of the same as the Court may direct.

Provision in case of representative contributory not paying moneys ordered. 166. If any person made a contributory as personal representative of a deceased contributory makes default in paying any sum ordered to be paid by him, proceedings may be taken for administering the estates of such deceased contributory, and of compelling payment, thereout, of the moneys due.

Imp. § 126 (3).

Order conclusive evidence. 167. Any order made by the Court in pursuance of this Act upon any contributory shall, subject to the provisions herein contained for appealing against such order, be conclusive evidence that the moneys, if any, thereby appearing to be due or ordered to be paid are due, and all other pertinent matters stated in such order are to be taken to be truly stated as against all persons, and in all proceedings whatsoever.

Imp. § 168.

Court may exclude creditors not proving within certain time. 168. The Court may fix a certain day or certain days on or within which creditors of the company are to prove their debts or claims, or to be excluded from the benefit of any distribution made before such debts are proved.

Imp. § 169.

Court to adjust rights of contributories. 169. The Court shall adjust the rights of the contributories amongst themselves, and distribute any surplus that may remain amongst the parties entitled thereto.

Imp. § 170.

Court to order costs. 170. The Court may, in the event of the assets being insufficient to satisfy the liabilities, make an order as to the payment out of the estate of the company of the costs, charges, and expenses incurred in winding up any company in such order of priority as the Court thinks just.

Imp. § 171.

Dissolution of company. 171. When the affairs of the company have been completely wound up, the Court shall make an order that the company be dissolved from the date of such order, and the company shall be dissolved accordingly.

Imp. § 172 (1).

Registrar to make minute of dissolution of company. 172. Any order so made shall be reported by the liquidator to the Registrar, who shall make a minute accordingly in his books of the dissolution of such company.

Imp. § 172 (2).

Penalty on not reporting dissolution of company. 173. If the liquidator makes default in reporting to the Registrar, in the case of a company being wound up by the Court, the order that the company be dissolved, he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars for every day during which he is so in default.

Imp. § 172 (3).

Extraordinary powers of Court.

Power of Court to summon persons before it, suspected of having property of company. 174. The Court may, after it has made an order for winding up the company, summon before it any officer of the company or person known or suspected to have in his possession any of the estate or effects of the company, or supposed to be indebted to the company, or any person whom the Court may deem capable of giving information concerning the trade, dealings, estate or effects of the company; and the Court may require any such officer or person to produce any books, papers, deeds, writings or other documents in his custody or power relating to the company; and if any person so summoned, after being tendered a reasonable sum for his expenses, refuses to come before the Court at the time appointed, having no lawful impediment (made known to the Court at the time of its sitting, and allowed by it), the Court may cause such person to be apprehended and brought before the Court for examination; nevertheless, in cases where any person claims any lien on papers, deeds, or writings or documents produced by him, such production shall be without prejudice to such lien, and the Court shall have jurisdiction in the winding-up to determine all questions relating to such lien.

Imp. § 174 (1, 3, 4).

Examination of parties by Court. 175. The Court may examine upon oath, either by word of mouth or upon written interrogatories, any person appearing or brought before them in manner aforesaid, concerning the affairs, dealings, estate or effects of the company, and may reduce into writing the answers of every such person, and require him to subscribe the same.

Imp. § 174 (2).

Power to arrest contributory about to abscond or to remove or conceal any of his property. 176. The Court may, at any time before or after it has made an order for winding up a company, upon proof being given that there is probable cause for believing that any contributory to such company is about to quit this Colony, or otherwise abscond, or to remove or conceal any of his goods or chattels, for the purpose of evading payment of calls, or for avoiding examination in respect of the affairs of the company, cause such contributory to be arrested, and his books, papers, moneys, securities for moneys, goods and chattels, to be seized, and him and them to be safely kept until such time as the Court may order.

Imp. § 176.

Powers of Court cumulative. 177. Any powers by this Act conferred on the Court shall be deemed to be an addition to and not in restriction of any other powers subsisting, of instituting proceeding against any contributory, or the estate of any contributory, or against any debtor of the company, for the recovery of any call or other sums due from such contributory or debtor, or his estate, and such proceedings may be instituted accordingly.

Imp. § 177.

Power to enforce orders. 178. All orders made by the Court under this Act may be enforced in the same manner in which orders of the Court may be enforced in any other proceeding therein.

Imp. § 178 (1).

Evidence may be taken by commissioners. 179. It shall be lawful for the Court or a judge thereof to refer the whole or any part of the examination of any witnesses under this Act to any person whom the Court or judge may appoint as commissioner, although such commissioner is out of the jurisdiction of the Court; and every such commissioner shall have in the matter so referred to him all the same powers of summoning and examining witnesses, and requiring the production or delivery of documents and punishing defaults by witnesses, and allowing costs and charges and expenses to witnesses as is granted to a commissioner in any other proceeding in the Court; and the examination so taken shall be returned or reported to the Court in such manner as it directs; and, subject to the provisions of this section, Order XXXIII, Rules 4 to 24, both inclusive, of The Judicature Act, 1889, shall apply to the taking of such examinations as fully as if the same were incorporated in this Act.

Provision as to swearing of affidavits, etc. 180. Any affidavit, affirmation, or declaration to be sworn or made, under the provisions or for the purposes of this Act, shall be sworn or made in the manner provided by Order XXXIV of The Judicature Act, 1889.

Voluntary winding-up of companies.

Circumstances under which company may be wound up voluntarily. 181. A company under this Act may be wound up voluntarily: 1. Whenever the period, if any fixed for the duration of the company by the articles of association, expires, or whenever the event, if any, occurs, upon the occurrence of which it is provided by the articles of association that the company is to be dissolved, and the company in general meeting has passed a resolution requiring the company to be wound up voluntarily; 2. Whenever the company has passed a special resolution requiring the company to be wound up voluntarily; 3. Whenever the company has passed an extraordinary resolution to the effect that it has been proved to their satisfaction that the company can not, by reason of its liabilities, continue its business, and that it is advisable to wind up the same. For the purposes of this Act any resolution shall be deemed to be extraordinary which is passed in such manner as would, if it had been confirmed by a subsequent meeting, have constituted a special resolution, as hereinbefore defined.

Imp. § 182.

Commencement of voluntary winding-up. 182. A voluntary winding-up shall be deemed to commence at the time of the passing of the resolution authorizing such winding-up.

Imp. § 183.

Effects of voluntary winding-up on status of company. 183. Whenever a company is wound up voluntarily the company shall, from the date of the commencement of such winding-up, cease to carry on its business; except in so far as may be required for the beneficial winding-up thereof; and all transfers of shares, except transfers made to or with the sanction of the liquidators, or alteration in the status of the members of the company taking place after the commencement of such winding-up, shall be void, but its corporate state and all its corporate powers shall, notwithstanding it is otherwise provided by its regulations, continue until the affairs of the company are wound up.

Imp. § 184.

Notice of resolution to wind up voluntarily. 184. Notice of any special resolution or extraordinary resolution passed for winding up a company voluntarily shall be given by advertisement in the Gazette.

Imp. § 185.

Consequences of voluntary winding-up. 185. The following consequences shall ensue upon the voluntary winding-up of a company: 1. The property of the company shall be applied in satisfaction of its liabilities pari passu and, subject thereto, shall, unless it be otherwise provided by the regulations of the company, be distributed amongst the members according to their rights and interests in the company; 2. Liquidators shall be appointed for the purpose of winding up the affairs of the company and distributing the property; 3. The company in general meeting shall appoint such persons or person as it thinks fit to be liquidators or a liquidator, and may fix the remuneration to be paid to them or him; 4. If one person only is appointed, all the provisions herein contained in reference to several liquidators shall apply to him; 5. Upon the appointment of liquidators all the power of the directors shall cease except in so far as the company in general meeting or the liquidators may sanction the continuance of such powers; 6. When several liquidators are appointed, every power hereby given may be exercised by such one or more of them, as may be determined at the time of their appointment, or in default of such determination by any number not less than two; 7. The liquidators may, without the sanction of the Court exercise all powers by this Act given to a liquidator appointed by the Court; 8. The liquidators may exercise the powers hereinbefore given to the Court of settling the list of contributories of the company, and any list so settled shall be prima facie evidence of the liability of the persons named therein to be contributories; 9. The liquidators may at any time after the passing of the resolution for winding up the company, and before they have ascertained the sufficiency of the assets of the company, call on all or any of the contributories for the time being settled on the list of contributories to the extent of their liability to pay all or any sums they deem necessary to satisfy the debts and liabilities of the company, and the costs, charges, and expenses of winding it up, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories amongst themselves, and the liquidators may in making a call take into consideration the probability that some of the contributories upon whom the same is made may partly or wholly fail to pay their respective portions of the same; 10. The liquidators shall pay the debts of the company and adjust the rights of the contributories amongst themselves.

Imp. § 186.

Effect of winding-up on share capital of company limited by guarantee. 186.

Where a company limited by guarantee and having a capital divided into shares, is being wound up voluntarily any share capital that may not have been called up shall be deemed to be assets of the company, and to be a specialty debt due from each member to the company to the extent of any sums that may be unpaid on any shares held by him, and payable at such time as may be appointed by the liquidators.

Power of company to delegate authority to appoint liquidators. 187. A company about to be wound up voluntarily, or in the course of being wound up voluntarily, may, by an extraordinary resolution, delegate to its creditors, or to any committee of its creditors, the power of appointing liquidators or any of them, and supplying any vacancies in the appointment of liquidators, or may by a like resolution enter into any arrangement with respect to the powers to be exercised by the liquidators, and the manner in which they are to be exercised; and any act done by the creditors in pursuance of such delegated power shall have the same effect, as if it had been done by the company.

Imp. § 190.

Arrangement when binding on creditors. 188. Any arrangement entered into between a company about to<sup>1)</sup> wound up voluntarily, or in the course of being wound up voluntarily, and its creditors, shall be binding on the company if sanctioned by an extraordinary resolution, and on the creditors if acceded to by three-fourths in number and value of the creditors, subject to such right of appeal as is herein-after mentioned.

Imp. § 191 (1).

Power of creditor or contributory to appeal. 189. Any creditor or contributory of a company that has in manner aforesaid entered into any arrangement with its creditors, may, within three weeks from the date of the completion of such arrangement, appeal to the Court against such arrangement, and the Court may thereupon, as it thinks just, amend, vary, or confirm the same.

Imp. § 191 (2).

Power for liquidators or contributories in voluntary winding-up to apply to court. 190. Where a company is being wound up voluntarily the liquidators or any contributory of the company may apply to the Court to determine any question arising in the matter of such winding up, or to exercise, as respects the enforcing of calls, or in respect of any other matter, all or any of the powers which the Court might exercise if the company were being wound up by the Court; and the Court, if satisfied that the determination of such question, or the required exercise of power, will be just and beneficial, may accede wholly or partially to such application, on such terms and subject to such conditions as the Court thinks fit, or it may make such other order or decree on such application as the Court thinks just.

Imp. § 193.

Power of liquidators to call general meeting. 191. Where a company is being wound up voluntarily the liquidators may, from time to time, during the continuance of such winding-up, summon general meetings of the company for the purpose of obtaining the sanction of the company by special resolution or extraordinary resolution, or for any other purposes they think fit; and in the event of the winding-up continuing for more than one year, the liquidators shall summon a general meeting of the company at the end of the first year, and of each succeeding year from the commencement of the winding-up, or as soon thereafter as may be convenient, and shall lay before such meeting an account showing their acts and dealings, and the manner in which the winding-up has been conducted during the preceding year.

Imp. § 194.

Power to fill up vacancy in liquidators. 192. If any vacancy occurs in the office of liquidators appointed by the company, by death, resignation, or otherwise, the company in general meeting, may, subject to any arrangement they may have entered into with their creditors, fill up such vacancy, and a general meeting for the purpose of filling up such vacancy may be convened by the continuing liquidators, if any, or by any contributory of the company, and shall be deemed to have been duly held, if held in manner prescribed by the regulations of the company, or in such other manner as may, on application by the continuing liquidator, if any, or by any contributory of the company, be determined by the Court.

Imp. § 189.

Power of Court to appoint liquidators. 193. If from any cause whatever there is no liquidator acting in the case of a voluntary winding-up, the Court may, on the application of a contributory, appoint a liquidator or liquidators; the Court may also, on due cause shown, remove any liquidator and appoint another liquidator to act in the manner of voluntary winding-up.

Liquidators on conclusion of winding-up to make up an account. 194. As soon as the affairs of the company are fully wound up the liquidators shall make up an account showing the manner in which such winding-up has been conducted and the property of the company disposed of; and thereupon they shall call a general meeting of the company for the purpose of having the account laid before them and hearing any explanation that may be given by the liquidators. The meeting shall be called by advertisement, specifying the time, place and object of such meeting; and such advertisement shall be published one month at least previously to the meeting in the Gazette.

Imp. § 195 (1, 2).

Liquidators to report meeting to Registrar. 195. The liquidators shall make a return to the Registrar of such meeting having been held and of the date at which the same was held, and on the expiration of three months from the date of the registration of such return, the company shall be deemed to be dissolved. If the liquidators make default in making such return to the Registrar they shall incur a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars for every day during which such default continues.

Imp. § 195 (3—5).

Costs of voluntary liquidation. 196. All costs, charges, and expenses properly incurred in the voluntary winding-up of a company, including the remuneration of the liquidators, shall be payable out of the assets of the company in priority to all other claims.

Imp. § 196.

Saving of rights of creditors. 197. The voluntary winding-up of a company shall not be a bar to the right of any creditor of such company to have the same wound up by the Court, if the court is of opinion that the rights of such creditor will be prejudiced by a voluntary winding-up.

Imp. § 197.

Power of Court to adopt proceedings of voluntary winding-up. 198. Where a company is in course of being wound up voluntarily, and proceedings are taken for the purpose of having the same wound up by the Court, the Court may, if it thinks fit, notwithstanding that it makes an order directing the company to be wound up by the Court, provide in such order or in any other order for the adoption of all or any of the proceedings taken in the course of the voluntary winding-up.

Imp. § 198.

Winding up subject to the supervision of the Court.

Power of Court on application to direct winding-up subject to supervision. 199. When a resolution has been passed by a company to wind up voluntarily the Court may make an order directing that the voluntary winding-up should continue, but subject to such supervision of the Court, and with such liberty for creditors, contributories, or others, to apply to the Court, and generally upon such terms and subject to such conditions as the Court thinks just.

Imp. § 199.

Petition for winding-up subject to supervision. 200. A petition, praying wholly or in part that a voluntary winding-up should continue, but subject to the supervision of the Court, and which winding up is hereinafter referred to as a winding up subject to the supervision of the Court, shall, for the purpose of giving jurisdiction to the Court over suits and actions, be deemed to be a petition for winding-up the company by the Court.

Imp. § 200.

Court may have regard to wishes of creditors. 201. The Court may, in determining whether a company is to be wound up altogether by the Court, or subject to the supervision of the Court in the appointment of liquidator or liquidators, and in all other matters relating to the winding-up subject to supervision, have regard to the wishes of the creditors or contributories as proved to it by any sufficient evidence, and may direct meetings of the creditors or contributories to be summoned, held and regulated in such manner as the Court directs, for the purpose of ascertaining their wishes, and may appoint a person to act as chairman of any such meeting, and to report the result of such meeting to the Court. In the case of creditors regard shall be had to the value of the debts due to each creditor; and, in the case of contributories, to the number of votes conferred on each contributory by the regulations of the company.

Imp. § 201.

Power of Court to appoint additional liquidator in winding-up, subject to supervision. 202. Where an order is made by the Court for a winding-up subject to the supervision of the Court, the Court may, in such order or in any subsequent order, appoint any additional liquidator or liquidators; and any liquidators so appointed by the Court shall have the same powers, be subject to the same obligations, and in all respects stand in the same position as if they had been appointed by the company. The Court may from time to time remove any liquidators so appointed by the Court, and fill up any vacancy occasioned by such removal, or by death or resignation.

Imp. § 202.

Effect of order of Court for winding-up, subject to supervision. 203. Where an order is made for a winding-up subject to the supervision of the Court, the liquidators appointed to conduct such winding-up may, subject to any restrictions imposed by the Court, exercise all their powers, without the sanction or intervention of the Court, in the same manner as if the company were being wound up altogether voluntarily; but, save as aforesaid, any order made by the Court for a winding-up subject to the supervision of the Court shall for all purposes, including the staying of actions, suits and other proceedings, be deemed to be an order of the Court for winding up the company by the Court, and shall confer full authority on the Court to make calls, or to enforce calls made by the liquidators, and to exercise all other powers which it might have exercised if an order had been made for winding up the company altogether by the Court.

Imp. § 203.

Appointment in certain cases of voluntary liquidators to be the liquidators. 204. Where an order has been made for the winding-up of a company subject to the supervision of the Court, and such order is afterwards superseded by an order directing the company to be wound up compulsorily, the Court may in such last mentioned order, or in any subsequent order, appoint the voluntary liquidators or any of them, either provisionally or permanently and either with or without the addition of any other persons, to be the liquidators.

Imp. § 204.

Supplemental provisions as to winding-up.

Dispositions after the commencement of the winding-up, avoided. 205. Where any company is being wound up by the Court or subject to the supervision of the Court, all dispositions of the property, effects, and things in action of the company, and every transfer of shares, or alteration in the status of the members of the company, made between the commencement of the winding-up and the order for winding-up shall, unless the Court otherwise orders, be void.

Imp. § 205.

The books of the company to be evidence. 206. Where any company is being wound up, all books, accounts, and documents of the company and of the liquidators shall, as between the contributories of the company, be prima facie evidence of the truth of all matters purporting to be therein recorded.

Imp. § 220.

Provision as to disposal of books, etc., of company. 207. Where any company has been wound up under this Act and is about to be dissolved, the books, accounts and documents of the company and of the liquidators may be disposed of in the following way, that is to say, where the company has been wound up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, in such way as the Court directs, and where the company has been wound up voluntarily, in such way as the company by an extraordinary resolution directs, but after the lapse of five years from the date of such dissolution, no responsibility shall rest on the company, or the liquidators, or any one to whom the custody of such books, accounts and documents has been committed, by reason that the same or any of them, can not be made forthcoming to any party or parties claiming to be interested therein.

Imp. § 222.

Inspection of books. 208. Where an order has been made for winding up a company by the Court, or subject to the supervision of the Court, the Court may make such order for the inspection by the creditors and contributories of the company of its books and papers as the Court thinks just, and any books and papers in the possession of the company may be inspected by creditors or contributories in conformity with the order of the Court, but not further or otherwise.

Imp. § 221.

Power of assignee to sue. 209. Any person to whom any thing in action belonging to the company is assigned, in pursuance of this Act, may bring or defend any action or suit relating to such thing in action in his own name.

Set-off. 210. Where there have been mutual credits, mutual debts, or other mutual dealings between a company for whose winding up an order has been made and any person proving or claiming to prove a debt under such winding-up order, an account shall be taken of what is due from the one party to the other in respect of such mutual dealings, and the sum due from the one party to the other, and the balance of the account and no more, shall be claimed or paid on either side respectively; but a person shall not be entitled under this section to claim the benefit of any set-off against the property of a company in any case where he had given credit to the company, at any time after the date of the commencement of the winding-up of such company.

Debts of all description to be proved. 211. In the event of any company being wound up under this Act, all debts payable on a contingency, and all claims against the company present or future, certain or contingent, ascertained or sounding only in damages, shall be admissible to proof against the company, a just estimate being made, so far as is possible, of the value of all such debts or claims as may be subject to any contingency or sound only in damages or for some other reason do not bear a certain value.

Imp. § 206.

Rights of secured and unsecured creditors in the case of insolvent companies being wound up. 212. Subject to the express provisions of this Act, in the winding-up of any company whose assets may prove to be insufficient for the payment of its debts and liabilities and the costs of winding up, the same rules shall prevail and be observed as to the respective rights of secured and unsecured creditors, and as to debts and liabilities provable and as to the valuation of annuities, and future and contingent liabilities respectively, as may be in force for the time being under the law of insolvency with respect to the estates of persons declared insolvent, and all persons who in any such case would be entitled to prove for and receive dividends out of the assets of such company may come in under the winding-up of such company, and make such claims against the same as they may respectively be entitled to.

Priority of debts. 213. [As amended by 6 Edw. 7, c. 6, § 8.] In the distribution of the assets of any company being wound up under this Act, the provisions of the Judicature Act, 1904, as regards the rights of the landlord or other persons to whom rent is due and as regards persons who are privileged creditors and persons who are preferential creditors, shall govern such distribution in respect thereof in the same manner as if the company being wound up were a person declared insolvent under the said Judicature Act, 1904.

Priority of certain debts. 214. In the winding-up of any company the debts mentioned in the preceding section shall, so far as the assets of the company available for payment of general creditors may be insufficient to meet them, have priority over the claims of holders of debentures or debenture stock under any floating charge created by such company, and shall be paid accordingly out of any property comprised in or subject to such charge.

Imp. § 209 (2) (b).

Payment of debts out of assets in certain cases. 215. In case a receiver is appointed on behalf of the holders of any debentures or debenture stock of a company secured by a floating charge, or in case possession is taken by or on behalf of such debenture holders of any property comprised in or subject to such charge, then, and in either of such cases, if the company is not at the time in course of being wound up, the debts mentioned in section 213 of this Act shall be paid forthwith out of any assets coming to the hands of the receiver, or other person taking possession as aforesaid, in priority to any claim for principal or interest in respect of such debentures or debenture stock. And the periods of time mentioned in the said section shall be reckoned from the date of the appointment of the receiver, or possession being taken as aforesaid, as the case may be. But any payments made under this section shall be recouped as far as may be out of the assets of the company available for payment of general creditors.

General scheme of liquidation may be sanctioned. 216. The liquidators may, with the sanction of the Court where the company is being wound up by the Court or subject to the supervision of the Court, and with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution of the company where the company is being wound up altogether voluntarily, pay any classes of creditors in full after satisfying all claims under section 213 of this Act or make such compromise or other arrangement as the liquidators may deem expedient with creditors or persons claiming to be creditors, or persons having or alleging themselves to have any claim, present or future, certain or contingent, ascertained or sounding only in damages, against the company, or whereby the company may be rendered liable.

Imp. § 214.

Power to compromise. 217. The liquidators may, with the sanction of the Court, where the company is being wound up by the Court or subject to the supervision of the Court, and with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution of the company, where the company is being wound up altogether voluntarily, compromise all calls and liabilities to calls, debts, and liabilities capable of resulting in debts, and all claims, whether present or future, certain or contingent, ascertained or sounding only in damages, subsisting or supposed to subsist between the company and any contributory or alleged contributory, or other debtor or person apprehending liability to the company, and all questions in any way relating to or affecting the assets of the company or the winding-up of the company, upon the receipt of such sums, payable at such times and generally upon such terms as may be agreed upon, with power for the liquidators to take any security for the discharge of such debts or liabilities, and to give complete discharges in respect of all or any such calls, debts, or liabilities.

Imp. § 214.

Power for liquidators to accept shares, etc., as a consideration for sale of property of company. 218. Where any company is proposed to be or is in the course of being wound up altogether voluntarily, and the whole or a portion of its business or property is proposed to be transferred or sold to another company, the liquidators of the first mentioned company may, with the sanction of a special resolution of the company by whom they were appointed, conferring either a general authority on the liquidators, or an authority in respect of any particular arrangement, receive in compensation or part compensation for such transfer or sale, shares, policies, or other like interests in such other company, for the purpose of distribution amongst the members of the company being wound up, or may enter into any other arrangement whereby the members of the company being wound up may in lieu of receiving cash, shares, policies, or other like interests, or in addition thereto participate in the profits of or receive any other benefit from the purchasing company; and any sale made or arrangement entered into by the liquidators in pursuance of this section shall be binding on the members of the company being wound up; subject to this proviso, that if any members of the company being wound up who has not voted in favour of the special resolution passed by the company, of which he is a member, at either of the meetings held for passing the same, expresses his dissent from any such special resolution in writing, addressed to the liquidators or one of them, and left at the registered office of the company not later than seven days after the date of the meeting at which such special resolution was passed, such dissentient member may require the liquidators to do one of the following things as the liquidators may prefer, that is to say, either to abstain from carrying such resolution into effect, or to purchase the interest held by such dissentient member at a price to be determined in manner hereinafter mentioned, such purchase money to be paid before the company is dissolved, and to be raised by the liquidators in such manner as may be determined by special resolution. No special resolution shall be deemed invalid for the purposes of this section by reason that it is passed antecedently to or concurrently with any resolution for winding up the company, or for appointing liquidators; but if any order be made within a year for winding up the company by or subject to the supervision of the Court, such resolution shall not be of any validity unless it is sanctioned by the Court.

Imp. § 192.

Mode of determining price. 219. The price to be paid for the purchase of the interest of any dissentient member may be determined by agreement, but if the parties dispute about the same, such dispute shall be settled by arbitration.

Where compromise proposed, Court may order a meeting of creditors, etc., to decide as to same. 220. Where any compromise or arrangement shall be proposed between a company which is, at the time of the passing of this Act or afterwards, in the course of being wound up, either voluntarily or by or under the supervision of the Court, under this Act, and the creditors of such company, or any class of such creditors, it shall be lawful for the Court in addition to any other of its powers, on the application in a summary way of any creditor or the liquidator, to order that a meeting of such creditors or class of creditors shall be summoned in such manner as the Court shall direct, and if a majority in number representing three-fourths in value of such creditors or class of creditors present either in person or by proxy at such meeting shall agree to any arrangement or compromise, such arrangement or compromise shall, if sanctioned by an order of the Court, be binding on all such creditors or class of creditors, as the case may be, and also on the liquidator and contributories of the said company.

Imp. § 120.

Certain attachments, etc., to be void. 221. Where any company is being wound up by the Court or subject to the supervision of the Court, any attachment, distress, or execution put in force against the estate or effects of the company after the commencement of the winding-up shall be void to all intents.

Imp. § 211.

Fraudulent preference. 222. Any such conveyance, mortgage, delivery of goods, payment, execution, or other act relating to property, as would, if made or done by or against any individual trader, be deemed in the event of his insolvency to have been made or done by way of undue or fraudulent preference of the creditors of such trader, shall, if made or done by or against any company, be deemed in the event of such company being wound up under this Act, to have been made or done by way of undue or fraudulent preference of the creditors of such company and shall be invalid accordingly; and for the purposes of this section the presentation of a petition for winding up a company shall in the case of a company being wound up by the Court or subject to the supervision of the Court, and a resolution for winding up the company shall in the case of a voluntary winding-up, be deemed to correspond with a declaration of insolvency in the case of an individual trader; and any conveyance or assignment made by any company formed under this Act of all its estate and effects to trustees for the benefit of all its creditors shall be void to all intents.

[223—226. Contain provisions relating to punishment of persons guilty of destruction or falsification of books and accounts, the prosecution of delinquent directors, and the penalties for perjury committed in relation to the winding-up of a company.]

Imp. §§ 216—218.

Winding-up of associations under this Act.

Provision as to dissolution of associations. 227. A registered association may be dissolved: 1. By an order to wind up the association, or a resolution for the winding-up thereof, made as is directed in regard to companies by this Act, the provisions whereof shall apply to any such order or resolution; or 2. By the consent of three-fourths of the members, testified by their signatures to an instrument of dissolution.

Liability of members of a registered association in the event of its winding-up. 228. When a registered association is wound up in pursuance of an order or resolution, the liability of a present or past member of the association to contribute for payment of the debts and liabilities of the association, the expenses of winding up, and the adjustment of the rights of contributories amongst themselves, shall be qualified as follows: 1. No individual, association, or company, who or which has ceased to be a member for one year or upwards prior to the commencement of the winding-up, shall be liable to contribute; 2. No individual, association, or company shall be liable to contribute in respect of any debt or liability contracted after he or it ceased to be a member; 3. No individual, association, or company, not a member, shall be liable to contribute, unless it appears to the Court that the contributions of the existing members are insufficient to satisfy the just demands on the society; 4. No contribution shall be required from any individual, association, or company exceeding the amount, if any, unpaid on the shares in respect of which he or it is liable as a past or present member; 5. An individual, association, or company shall be taken to have ceased to be a member in respect of any withdrawable share withdrawn, from the date of the notice or application for withdrawal.

Imp. § 123 (1).

Part V. Application of this Act to existing Companies and Associations, and other Matters.

Companies, etc., heretofore incorporated may be registered. 229. [As amended by 63 Vic. 2d Sess. c. 3, § 2.] Every company, association, or society heretofore incorporated in pursuance of any Act of the Legislature and consisting of three or more members, and every company incorporated by a special Act of the Legislature and consisting of three or more members, may register itself under Part V. of The Companies Act, 1899, as a company limited by shares, a company limited by guarantee, as an association under section 3 of this Act, or as an unlimited company, as the case may be, and no such registration shall be invalid by reason that it has taken place with a view to the company being wound up.

Imp. §§ 245—248.

Procedure prior to application for registration of existing companies. 230. The procedure for registering under Part V. of this Act any existing company shall be as follows: 1. The directors shall call a meeting of the shareholders of the company by sending to each shareholder through the post in a prepaid letter addressed to him at his registered place of abode seven days' notice at the least, specifying the place, the day, and the hour of meeting, and containing a copy of the resolution to be submitted to such meeting; 2. If the directors should desire to change the name of the company, or to limit or extend its objects, or to increase or reduce its capital, or to provide for a new allotment of shares, such resolution shall contain particulars of the proposed alterations; 3. In case it shall be resolved by a vote of not less than two-thirds in value of the shareholders present in person or by proxy at such meeting that the company be registered under this Act in manner specified, the directors shall apply to the Registrar to have the company so registered.

Application for registration by existing company. 231. When an existing company applies for registration under Part V. of this Act, there shall be delivered to the Registrar, the following documents, duly verified: 1. A list showing the names, addresses, and occupations of all persons who on a day named in such list, and not being more than six clear days before the day of registration, were members of such company, with the addition of the shares held by such persons respectively, distinguishing in cases, where such shares are numbered, each share by its number; 2. The names of the directors of such company; 3. A copy of any Act of the Legislature, certificate, or other instrument constituting or regulating the company; 4. If the company is intended to be registered as a limited company, a statement specifying the following particulars, that is to say: The nominal capital of the company and the number of shares into which it is divided; The number of shares taken and the amount paid on each share; The name of the company, with the addition of the word "limited" as the last word thereof; With the addition, in the case of a company intended to be registered as a company limited by guarantee, of a resolution declaring the amount of the guarantee; 5. A memorandum of association, or a memorandum and articles of association, in the cases where the same are severally required under Part I. of this Act, and executed in the same manner and containing the same particulars as are necessary upon the first registration of a company; 6. A copy of the resolution passed at the meeting of the company referred to in the preceding section.

Imp. § 252.

Power to existing companies to vary objects of company, etc., upon registration. 232. 1. Where an existing company applies for registration as aforesaid, the memo-random of association shall conform with the terms of the company, and may, if so authorized, extend, vary or limit the powers and objects of the old company; and the certificate of registration may be issued to the new company by the name of the old company, or by any other name on which the last word shall be the word "limited." 2. Where an existing company applies for registration as aforesaid, the capital of the company may be increased or decreased to any amount which may be fixed by the resolution of the company authorizing such registration. 3. The said resolution may prescribe the manner in which the shares or stock in the new company are to be allotted, and, in default of its so doing, the control of the allotment shall vest absolutely in the directors of the new company. 4. Whenever the Registrar considers that public notice of an intended application, as aforesaid, should be given, he may require such notice to be published in the Gazette, or otherwise as he thinks proper. 5. The Registrar may require further evidence of the existence of a company applying for registration as aforesaid.

Certificate of registration of existing company. 233. Upon compliance by an existing company with the aforesaid requisitions, the Registrar shall certify under his hand that the company so applying for registration is incorporated as a company under this Act, and, in the case of a limited company, that it is limited, and thereupon such company shall be incorporated, and shall have perpetual succession and a common seal, with power to hold lands.

Imp. § 259.

Certificate to be evidence of compliance with Act. 234. A certificate of incorporation given at any time to any company registered in pursuance of Part V. of this Act, shall be conclusive evidence that all the requisitions herein contained in respect of registration under this Act have been complied with, and that the company is authorised to be registered under this Act as a limited or unlimited company, as the case may be, and the date of incorporation mentioned in such certificate shall be deemed to be the date at which the company is incorporated under this Act.

Imp. § 17.

Transfer of property to company. 235. All such property, real and personal, including all interests and rights in, to, and out of property, real and personal, and including obligations and things in action, as may belong to or be vested in the company at the date of its registration under this Act, shall, on registration, pass to and vest in the company as incorporated under this Act for all the estate and interest of the company therein.

Imp. § 260.

Registration not to affect obligations previously incurred. 236. The registration in pursuance of Part V. of this Act of any company shall not affect or prejudice the liability of such company to have enforced against it, or its right to enforce, any debt or obligation incurred, or any contract entered into, by, to, with, or on behalf of such company previously to such registration.

Imp. § 261.

Continuation of existing actions. 237. All such actions and other legal proceedings as may at the time of the registration of any company registered in pursuance of Part V. of this Act have been commenced by or against such company, or any officer or any member thereof may be continued in the same manner as if such registration had not taken place; nevertheless, execution shall not issue against the effects of any individual member of such company upon any judgment, decree or order obtained in any action, suit or proceeding so commenced as aforesaid; but in the event of the property and effects of the company being insufficient to satisfy such judgment, decree or order, an order may be obtained for winding up the company.

Imp. § 262.

Registration of existing associations. 238. 1. Every society or association, heretofore incorporated in pursuance of sections 39 to 41 of chapter 96 of the Consolidated Statutes (second series), or of any sections of any former Act of the Legislature dealing with the same subject matter, may register itself as an association under this Act, upon proving to the Governor in Council that it has been formed for any of the purposes specified in subsection (c) of section 8 of this Act, and obtaining the necessary license therefor. 2. The procedure for registering such existing association shall be similar to that provided in Part V. of this Act for the registration of existing companies; and the Registrar may, in addition to the license aforesaid, the resolution of the association, and the memorandum and articles of association, require to be delivered to him all or any of the documents necessary to be delivered in the case of an application for the registration of an existing company. 3. Upon compliance by an existing association with the said requisitions to the satisfaction of the Registrar, the said association shall be registered with limited liability, and, upon registration, shall enjoy all the privileges and be subject to the obligations by this Act imposed upon limited companies, with the exceptions named in subsection (c) of section 8 of this Act, and the property of the old association shall vest in the new association in the same manner as the property of an old company is vested in a new company upon its registration.

Rules.

Rules. 239. 1. The Court or other authority empowered by any Act of the Legislature to make rules of court, shall have power to make rules, and to alter and amend the same: a) For requiring or enabling all or any of the powers and duties conferred and imposed on the Court by sections 133, 159, 160, 161, 163 and 168 of this Act, to be exercised or performed by the liquidator as an officer of the Court and subject to the control of the Court: Provided that the liquidator shall not, without the special leave of the Court, rectify the register of members, and shall not make any call without either the special leave of the Court or the sanction of the committee of inspection; b) Concerning the mode of proceeding to be had for winding up a company under this Act; c) For carrying into effect the objects of this Act. 2. Such rules shall be published in the Gazette, and thereupon shall have the same force as if hereby enacted. 3. Until such rules shall have been made and published as aforesaid, the general rules and orders observed by the Courts in England having jurisdiction in the matter of companies incorporated in England under the Companies Acts and in the winding-up thereof, shall be held to apply to companies incorporated under this Act and to their winding-up so far as the same are applicable.

Alteration of forms.

Forms. 240. The forms set forth in the second Schedule hereto, or forms as near thereto as circumstances admit, shall be used in all matters to which such forms refer; the Court may, from time to time, make such alterations in the tables and forms contained in the first Schedule hereto (so that the amount of fees payable to the registrar in the said Schedule mentioned is not thereby increased) and in the forms in the second Schedule, or make such additions to the last-mentioned forms, as it deems requisite. Any such table or form, when altered, shall be published in the Gazette, and upon such publication being made such table or form shall have the same force as if it were included in the Schedule to this Act, but no alteration made by the Court in the table marked A, contained in the first Schedule shall affect any company registered prior to the date of such alteration, or shall repeal, as respects such company, any portion of such table.

Repeal.

Repeal. 241. Chapter 96 of the Consolidated Statutes, (Second Series), entitled "Of the Incorporation, etc., of Trading and Manufacturing Companies, and of other Societies," is hereby repealed. Provided that no repeal hereby enacted shall affect: 1. Anything duly done under the said chapter; 2. The corporate existence of any company, society, or association registered under the said chapter; 3. Any right or privilege acquired, or liability incurred under the said chapter; 4. Any penalty, forfeiture, or other punishment incurred in respect of any offence against the said chapter; 5. Any conveyance, mortgage, or other deed which has been made in pursuance of the said chapter.

Imp. §§ 286—288.

Compulsory registration. 242. Every company incorporated under the said chapter hereby repealed, or under any preceding Act of the Legislature relating to the incorporation of companies shall register itself as a company under this Act, before the expiration of six months, from the passing of this Act. No fees shall be charged in respect of the registration of any company required to register by this section.

Penalty on company not registering. 243. If any company required by the preceding section to register under this Act makes default in complying with the provisions thereof, then from and after the date upon which such company is required to register under this Act until the day on which such company is registered under this Act, (which it is empowered to do at any time) the following consequences shall ensue, that is to say: 1. The company shall be incapable of suing, but shall not be incapable of being made a defendant to a suit; 2. No dividend shall be payable to any shareholder in such company; 3. Each director or manager of the company shall, for each day during which the company so being in default carries on business, incur a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars, and such penalty may be recovered by any person, whether a shareholder or not in the company, and be applied by him to his own use. Nevertheless, such default shall not render the company so being in default an illegal one, nor subject it to any penalty or disability other than as specified in this section.

First Schedule.

Table A. Regulations for management of a company limited by shares.

(This Table is substantially identical with 25 & 26 Vic. c. 89, Sched. (Fees are determined, in the case of a registration, by the number of members.)

Second Schedule.

(This Schedule is substantially identical with 25 & 26 Vic. c. 89, Sched. II., Forms A—E, except: in the articles of association in Form B., § 23, "twenty-four" is substituted for "forty-eight"; in Form E. a new item is inserted: "total amount, if any, agreed to be considered as paid..... shares $ .....")

Third Schedule.

Meetings of creditors and contributories.

(This Schedule is substantially identical with 53 & 54 Vic. c. 63, Sched. I., except: in § 9 "and against whom a receiving order in bankruptcy has not been made" is omitted; in § 13 "or of a commissioner to administer oaths in the Supreme Court of Judicature in England" is omitted.)

b) 63 Vic. 2d Sess. c. 3. An Act to amend The Companies Act, 1899 (2d May, 1900).

[1. Amends 62 & 63 Vic. c. 10, § 106, and is there incorporated.]

[2. Amends 62 & 63 Vic. c. 10, § 229, and is there incorporated.]

[3. Relates to non-trading companies.]

[4. Repeals 62 & 63 Vic. c. 10, § 8 (c), and § 65.]

Construction. 5. This Act shall be read with The Companies Act, 1899, and form part thereof as if incorporated therewith, and both Acts may be cited as The Companies Act, 1899.

c) 6 Edw. 7, c. 6. An Act to amend The Companies Act, 1899
(10th May, 1906).

[1. Repeals 62 & 63 Vic. c. 10, § 8 (2).]

Respecting the registration of mortgages and charges. 2. 1. Every mortgage or charge created by a company after the commencement of this Act and being either: a) A mortgage or charge for the purpose of securing any issue of debentures; or b) A mortgage or charge on uncalled capital of the company; or c) A mortgage or charge created or evidenced by an instrument which, if executed by an individual, would require registration as a bill of sale; or d) A floating charge on the undertaking or property of the company; shall, so far as any security on the company's property or undertaking is thereby conferred, be void against the liquidator and any creditor of the company, unless filed with the Registrar for registration in manner required by this Act within twenty-one days after the date of its creation, but without prejudice to any contract or obligation for repayment of the money thereby secured. 2. Where the mortgage or charge comprises property outside the Colony, it shall, so far as that property is concerned, be sufficient compliance with the requirements of this section, if a deed purporting to specially charge such property be registered, notwithstanding that further proceedings may be necessary to make such mortgage or charge valid or effectual according to the law of the country in which such property is situate. 3. [As amended by 8 Edw. 7, c. 2, § 1.] The Registrar shall keep with respect to each company a register, in such form as shall be approved by the Minister of Justice, of all such mortgages and charges created by the company, after the commencement of this Act, and requiring registration under this section, and shall on payment of the fee of one dollar ($ 1.00) enter in the register with respect to every such mortgage or charge, the date of creation, the amount secured by it, short particulars of the property mortgaged or charged, and the names of the mortgagees or persons entitled to the charge. 4. Provided that, where a series of debentures containing any charge to the benefit of which the debenture holders of that series are entitled pari passu, is created by a company, it shall be sufficient to enter on the register: a) The total amount secured by the whole series; and b) The dates of the resolutions creating the series, and of the covering deed, if any, by which the security is created and defined; and c) A general description of the property charged; and d) The names of the trustees, if any, for the debenture holders. 5. Where more than one issue is made of debentures in the same series, the company may require the Registrar to enter on the register the date and amount of any particular issue; but an omission to do this shall not affect the validity of the debentures issued. 6. The Registrar shall give a certificate under his hand of the registration of any mortgage or charge registered in pursuance of this section, stating the amount thereby secured (which certificate shall be conclusive evidence that the requirements of this section as to registration have been complied with), and the company shall cause a copy of the certificate so given to be indorsed on every debenture or certificate of debenture stock which is issued by the company and the payment of which is secured by the mortgage or charge so registered. 7. It shall be the duty of the company to register every mortgage or charge created by the company and requiring registration under this section, and for that purpose to supply the Registrar with the particulars required for registration; but any such mortgage or charge may be registered on the application of any person interested therein. 8. The register kept in pursuance of this section of the mortgages and charges of each company shall be open to inspection by any person on payment of the prescribed fee, not exceeding twenty-five cents for each inspection. 9. Every company shall cause a copy of every instrument creating any mortgage or charge requiring registration under this section to be kept at the registered office of the company and to be open to inspection by the members and creditors of the company on payment of such fee, not exceeding fifty cents for each inspection, as may be fixed by the regulations of the company, provided that in the case of a series of uniform debentures a copy of one such debenture shall be sufficient.

Judge of Supreme Court may extend time for registration. 3. A Judge of the Supreme Court on being satisfied that the omission to register a mortgage or charge within the time required by this Act, or the omission or misstatement of any particular with respect to any such mortgage or charge, was accidental, or due to inadvertence or to some other sufficient cause, or is not of a nature to prejudice the position of creditors or shareholders of the company, or that on other grounds it is just and equitable to grant relief, may, on the application of the company or any person interested, and on such terms and conditions as seem to the Judge just and expedient, order that the time for registration be extended, or, as the case may be, that the omission or misstatement be rectified.

Memorandum of satisfaction may be entered on register. 4. The Registrar may, on evidence being given to his satisfaction that the debt for which any registered mortgage or charge was given has been paid or satisfied, order that a memorandum of satisfaction be entered on the register, and shall, if required, furnish the company with a copy thereof.

Index of mortgages. 5. The Registrar shall keep a chronological index in the prescribed form and with the prescribed particulars to the mortgages or charges registered under this Act.

Penalty for default. 6. If any company makes default in complying with the requirements of this Act, as to registration of any mortgage or charge created by the company, the company and every director, manager, and other officer of the company, who knowingly and wilfully authorized or permitted such default shall, without prejudice to any other liability, be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars; and if any person knowingly and wilfully authorizes and permits the delivery of any debenture or certificate of debenture stock required by this Act to be registered without a copy of the certificate of the Registrar being endorsed upon it, he shall, without prejudice to any other liability, be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars.

Additional particulars in summary. 7. 1. The summary mentioned in section 29 of the Companies Act, 1899, shall be so framed as to distinguish between the shares issued for cash and the shares issued otherwise than for cash, or only partly for cash, and shall, in addition to the particulars required by that section to be specified, also specify: a) The total amount of debt due from the company in respect of all mortgages and charges which require registration under this Act, or which would require such registration, if created, after the commencement of this Act; and b) The names and addresses of the persons who are the directors of the company at the date of the summary. 2. The list and summary mentioned in the said section 29 must be signed by the manager or by the secretary of the company.

Respecting the winding-up of unregistered companies. 9. Subject as hereinafter mentioned, any partnership, association, or company, consisting of more than three members, and not registered under the Companies Act, 1899, and hereinafter included under the term unregistered company, may be wound up under the Companies Act, 1899, and all the provisions of that Act and this Act with respect to winding up, shall apply to such company with the following exceptions and additions: 1. An unregistered company shall, for all the purposes of the winding-up of such company be deemed to have its registered office in that part of the Colony where its principal place of business is situate, and for such purposes, such principal place of business shall be its registered office. 2. No unregistered company shall be wound up under this Act voluntarily or subject to the supervision of the Court. 3. The circumstances under which an unregistered company may be wound up are as follows, that is to say: a) Whenever the company has dissolved or has ceased to carry on business, or is carrying on business only for the purpose of winding up its affairs; b) Whenever the company is unable to pay its debts; c) Whenever the Court is of opinion that it is just and equitable that the company should be wound up. 4. An unregistered company shall for the purpose of this Act, be deemed to be unable to pay its debts: a) Whenever a creditor to whom the company is indebted, at law or in equity by assignment or otherwise, in a sum exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars, then due, has served on the company by leaving the same at the principal place of business of the company, or by delivering to the secretary or some director or principal officer of the company, or by otherwise serving the same in such manner as the Court may approve or direct, a demand under his hand requiring the company to pay the sum so due, and the company has for the space of three weeks succeeding the service of such demand neglected to pay such sum, or to secure or compound for the same to the satisfaction of the creditor; b) Whenever any action, suit, or other proceeding, has been instituted against any member of the company for any debt or demand due or claimed to be due from the company, or from him in his character of member of the company, and notice in writing of the institution of such action, suit, or other legal proceeding, having been served upon the company by leaving the same at the principal place of business of the company, or by delivering it to the secretary or some director, manager, or principal officer of the company, or by otherwise serving the same in such manner as the Court may approve or direct, the company has not within ten days after service of such notice paid, secured, or compounded for such debt or demand, or procured such action, suit, or other legal proceeding, to be stayed, or indemnified the defendant to his reasonable satisfaction against such action, suit, or other legal proceeding, and against all costs, damages, and expenses to be incurred by him by reason of the same; c) Whenever execution or other process issued on a judgment or order obtained in the Court, in favour of any creditor, in any proceeding at law or in equity, instituted by such creditor against the company or any member thereof as such, or against any person authorized to be sued as a nominal defendant on behalf of the company, is returned unsatisfied; d) Whenever it is otherwise proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the company is unable to pay its debts.

Contributions of an unregistered company. 10. In the event of an unregistered company being wound up every person shall be deemed to be a contributory who is liable at law or in equity to pay or contribute to the payment of any debt or liability of the company, or to pay or contribute to the payment of any sum for the adjustment of the rights of the members amongst themselves, or to pay or contribute to the payment of the costs, charges, and expenses of winding up the company and every such contributory shall be liable to contribute to the assets of the company in the course of the winding-up all sums due from him in respect of any such liability as aforesaid; but in the event of the death or insolvency of any contributory, provisions contained in The Companies Act, 1899, with respect to the personal representatives of a deceased contributory, and to the trustee of an insolvent contributory, shall apply.

Court may in certain cases restrain proceedings. 11. The Court may at any time after the presentment of a petition for the winding up of an unregistered company, and before making an order for winding up the company, upon the application of any creditor of the company, restrain further proceedings in any action, suit, or proceeding against any contributory of the company or against the company, as provided in section 127 of The Companies Act, 1899, upon such terms as the Court think fit.

No suit to be commenced or continued after winding-up order. 12. Where an order has been made for winding up an unregistered company in addition to the provisions contained in The Companies Act, 1899, in the case of companies formed under that Act, it is hereby further provided that no suit, action, or other legal proceeding, shall be commenced or proceeded with against any contributory of the company, in respect of any debt of the company except with the leave of the Court, and subject to such terms as the Court may impose.

Court may order property of unregistered company to vest in liquidator. 13. If any unregistered company has no power to sue or be sued in a common name, or if for any reason it appears expedient, the Court may by the order made for winding up such company, or by any subsequent order, direct that all such property, real and personal, including all interest, claims and rights into and out of property, real and personal, and including things in action, as may belong to or be vested in the company, or to or in any person or persons in trust for or on behalf of the company or any part of such property, is to vest in the liquidator or liquidators, and thereupon the same or such part thereof as may be specified in the order shall vest accordingly, and the liquidator or liquidators may, in his or their name or names and after giving such indemnity as the Court directs, bring or defend any actions, suits, or other legal proceedings relating to any property vested in him or them, or any actions, suits, or other legal proceedings necessary to be brought or defended for the purposes of effectually winding up the company and recovering the property thereof.

Provisions of this Act additional to those of Companies Act. 14. The provisions made by this Act with respect to unregistered companies shall be deemed to be made in addition to and not in restriction of the provisions contained in The Companies Act, 1899, with respect to winding up companies by the Court, and the Court or liquidator may in addition to anything contained in this Act, exercise any powers or do any act in the case of unregistered companies which might be exercised or done by it or him in winding up companies formed under The Companies Act, 1899, but an unregistered company shall not, except in the event of its being wound up, be deemed to be a company under The Companies Act, 1899, and then only to the extent provided by this Act.

d) 8 Edw. 7, c. 2. An Act to amend the Act 6 Edw. 7, c. 6 entitled An Act to amend the Companies Act, 1899 (18th February, 1908).

[1. Amends 6 Edw. 7, c. 6, § 2 (3), and is there incorporated.]

Sale of Goods.

62 Vic. c. 2. An Act for codifying the Law relating to the Sale of Goods (8th June, 1899).

Summary.

Short title. Sale of Goods Act, 1899. The Act is identical with the Imperial Sale of Goods Act, 1893, (56 & 57 Vic. c. 71), except as follows: 1. The numbering of §§ 1—39 corresponds with that of the Imperial Act; the numbering of §§ 40—57 is always one less than that of the corresponding section of the Imperial Act; §§ 58, 59, and 60, correspond respectively to §§ 61, 62, and 64 of the Imperial Act. 2. The following sections of the Imperial Act, most of which relate to Scotland, are not contained in the Newfoundland Act: § 4 (4); § 11 (2); § 21 (2); § 24 (3); § 26 (3); § 40; § 49 (3); § 53 (5); § 59; § 60; § 61 (3); § 61 (5); § 63. 3. The following sections are substituted for the corresponding sections of the Imperial Act: “22. Nothing in this Act shall affect: a) The provisions of any enactment enabling the apparent owner of goods to dispose of them as if he were the true owner thereof; b) The validity of any contract of sale under any special common law or statutory power of sale, or under the order of a court of competent jurisdiction.” “25. 3. In this section the term ‘mercantile agent’ means a mercantile agent having in the customary course of his business as such agent authority either to sell goods, or to consign goods for the purpose of sale, or to buy goods, or to raise money on the security of goods.” “59. 1. In this Act, unless the context or subject-matter otherwise requires: ‘action’ includes counterclaim and set-off; ‘buyer’ means a person who buys or agrees to buy goods; ‘contract of sale’ includes an agreement to sell as well as a sale; ‘delivery’ means voluntary transfer of possession from one person to another; ‘document of title to goods’ includes any bill of lading, dock warrant, warehousekeeper’s certificate, and warrant or order for the delivery of goods, and any other document used in the ordinary course of business as proof of the possession or control of goods, or authorizing or purporting to authorize, either by endorsement or by delivery, the possessor of the document to transfer or receive goods thereby represented; ‘fault’ means wrongful act or default; ‘future goods’ mean goods to be manufactured or acquired by the seller after the making of the contract of sale; ‘goods’ include all chattels personal other than things in action and money. The term includes emblements, industrial growing crops, and things attached to or forming part of the land which are agreed to be severed before sale or under the contract of sale; ‘property’ means the general property in goods, and not merely a special property; ‘quality of goods’ includes their state or condition; ‘sale’ includes a bargain and sale as well as a sale and delivery; ‘seller’ means a person who sells or agrees to sell goods; ‘specific goods’ mean goods identified and agreed upon at the time a contract of sale is made; ‘warranty’ means an agreement with reference to goods which are the subject of a contract of sale, but collateral to the main purpose of such contract, the breach of which gives rise to a claim for damages, but not to a right to reject the goods and treat the contract as repudiated." 4. In §§ 3, 14, and 39 (1) of the Newfoundland Act the words "any other act" are substituted for "any statute;" and in §§ 18 (2), 19 (1), 20, 40 (2), 42 (1), 44 and 45 the words "or custodian" are omitted; in § 39 (1) the words "or right to retain them" are omitted, and in §§ 41, 42, 46 and 47 the words "or retention" and "or right of retention;" in §§ 42 (2) and 51 the words "or decree" are omitted; in § 4 "fifty dollars" is substituted for "ten pounds;" in § 11 (1) "in England and Ireland" is omitted; in § 12 (3) "was made" is substituted for "is made," and in § 26 "title of such goods" for "title to such goods;" in § 52 the sentence relating to Scotland is omitted; in § 58 (1) "the provisions of the law of insolvency" is substituted for "the rules of bankruptcy;" in § 59 (3) "been declared insolvent or not" is substituted for "committed an act of bankruptcy or not, and whether he has become a notour bankrupt or not;" in § 60 "1899" is substituted for "1893."

A verbal contract for the sale of goods valued at five hundred dollars, where there was no part delivery, actual or constructive, and nothing was given in earnest, is not enforceable. — Martin v. Newfoundland Railroad Company, (1884), 5 Morr. 4. Where there is a sale by sample the purchaser must be afforded an opportunity to examine the goods. — Woods v. White, (1860), 2 Morr. 458. The town of St. John's is a market overt. — Baine, Johnston & Co. v. Chambers, (1819), Tucker, 173; 1 Morr. 154. Where the purchase price depends upon the quantity and quality of the goods, the title does not pass until the quantity and quality have been determined, unless the contract discloses a different intention. — Murray v. Goodridge, (1893), 5 Morr. 760. Where no time of delivery is stipulated, but the purchaser has the right to reject such of the objects of the sale as do not meet a certain standard, provided he exercises this right within a specified time, but he fails to do so and accepts part delivery, the risk of loss as to the remainder of the goods is on the purchaser. — Harvey & Co. v. Goodfellow & Co., (1895), 5 Morr. 834. The seller of goods to which a trade mark, mark, or trade description has been applied is deemed to warrant that the mark or description is a genuine trade mark or trade description, unless the contrary is expressed in some writing signed by or on behalf of the seller, and delivered at the time of the sale to and accepted by the buyer. — Cons. St. 1892, c. 112, § 15.

Sea-Carriage of Goods.

Cons. St. 1892, c. 100. Of the Liabilities of Carriers by Water.

Interpretation. 1. In this chapter, unless the context otherwise requires: a) The expression "goods" means and includes goods, wares, merchandise, and articles of any kind whatsoever; b) The expression "valuable securities" includes every document forming the title or evidence of the title to any property of any kind whatsoever.

Duties and liabilities of carriers by water. 2. 1. Carriers by water shall, at the times and in the manner and on the terms of which they have respectively given public notice, receive and convey, according to such notice, all persons applying for passage, and all goods offered for conveyance, unless in either case there is reasonable and sufficient cause for not doing so. 2. They shall be responsible not only for goods received on board their vessels, but also for goods delivered to them for conveyance by any such vessel, and they shall be bound to use due care and diligence in the safe keeping and punctual conveyance of such goods, subject to the provisions hereinafter made. 3. Carriers by water shall be liable for the loss of or damage to the personal baggage of passengers by their vessels; and the oath or affirmation of any such passenger shall be prima facie evidence of the loss of or damage to such articles and of their value: Provided that such liability shall not extend to any greater amount than two hundred dollars, or to the loss of or damage to any such valuable articles as are mentioned in subsection (c) following, unless the true nature and value of such articles so lost or damaged have been declared and entered, as provided by the said subsection (c). 4. They shall be liable for the loss of or damage to goods or personal baggage intrusted to them for conveyance as aforesaid, when caused by the fault or neglect of themselves, their agents, servants, or employees. 5. Provided that they shall not be liable to any extent whatsoever to make good any loss or damage happening without their actual fault or privity, or the fault or neglect of their agents, servants, or employees: a) To any goods or personal baggage on board any such vessel, or delivered to them for conveyance therein, by reason of fire or the dangers of navigation; b) Arising from any defect in or from the nature of the goods themselves, or from armed robbery, or other irresistible force; c) To any gold, silver, diamonds, watches, jewels, or precious stones, money, or valuable securities, or articles of great value not being ordinary merchandise, by reason of any robbery, theft, embezzlement, removal or secreting thereof, unless the true nature and value thereof has, at the time of delivery for conveyance, been declared by the owner or shipper thereof to the carrier, or his agent or servant, and entered in the bill of lading or otherwise in writing.

The carrier may exempt himself from liability for loss of or damage to the goods transported, even where such loss or damage is occasioned by the negligence of himself or of his servants or agents. — Fennell v. Montreal Steamship Co., (1876), 4 Morr. 124. Seemle, even where the negligence was gross. — Southcott v. Montreal Steamship Co., (1881), 4 Morr. 273. Where goods arrive at their destination, and notice is given to the consignee of their arrival, and that the goods would be "at owner's risk" and expense while stored, the liability as carrier ceases. — Anderson v. Reid, (1900), M. & B. 372. A shipowner's liability ceases upon delivery of the goods at the usual wharf. Notice of arrival is not necessary. The consignee is bound to take the goods as they are passed out of the ship. — Bennett & Co. v. Black Diamond Co., (1894), 5 Morr. 819. A stipulation that "in case the whole or any part of the goods specified herein be prevented from any cause from going in said steamer, the shipowners are only bound to forward them by the succeeding steamer of this line, and incur no further penalty, "does not justify the carrier in receiving for carriage such an excessive quantity of freight as to preclude themselves from the ability to transport the shipper's goods within a reasonable time. — Gibb v. Allen, (1883), 4 Morr. 499. As to the interpretation of an agreement to discharge cargo "where ordered, or as near thereto as she (the ship) may safely go," see Pyman v. Newfoundland Railway Co., (1882), 4 Morr. 421. The carrier has a lien on the goods transported for the freight, but in the absence of a special contract to that effect he does not have a general lien in respect of other claims against the owner of the goods. — Moore v. Reid, (1900), M. & B. 367. Where goods are delivered to the consignee by a carrier who has transported them without a bill of lading, the consignee is not liable for the payment of the freight. — Baine, Johnston & Co. v. Boyd, (1899), M. & B. 286. The burden of proof that the injury to goods transported arose from the dangers of the sea is on the carrier. — Harvey v. Ellie, (1877), 4 Morr. 128. Stress of weather does not relieve a shipowner from liability for demurrage stipulated for in the charter party, unless the contract specifically excuses performance on that ground. — Steer v. Phillip, (1892), 5 Morr. 586. Nor does it excuse the charterer from liability for failure to load within the time specified. — Job v. Boe, (1900), M. & B. 405. A railway company may contract itself out of liability for the carriage of goods, even where the loss occurs through its negligence. — Garland v. Reid Newfoundland Co., (1906).

Bills of Exchange.

Cons. St. 1892, c. 93. Of Bills of Exchange, Cheques, and Promissory Notes.

Summary.

The chapter is identical with the Imperial Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, (45 & 46 Vic. c. 61), except as follows:

1. §§ 1—74 correspond with §§ 2—75 of the Imperial Act; §§ 75—86 correspond with §§ 83—94 of the Imperial Act; § 87 corresponds with § 97 (2) of the Imperial Act. 2. The following sections of the Imperial Act are not reproduced in the Newfoundland Act §§ 1, 53 (2), 76—82, 95, 96, 97 (1, 3), 98—100. 3. In §§ 1, 8, 10, 28, 33, 36, 39, 42, 44—47, 49, 50, 52, 56, 71, 73, 81—87, of the Newfoundland Act "this chapter" is substituted for "this Act;" in § 1 "insolvent" is substituted for "bankrupt," and "insolvency" for "bankruptcy," "an" is omitted before "indorsement," and the following is added at the end of the section: "Colony" signifies Newfoundland and its dependencies;" in § 3 (1) "Colony" is substituted for "British Islands," and the sentence beginning with "for the purposes of this Act" is omitted; § 7 (4) reads as follows: "A bill is payable to order which is expressed to be so payable, or which is expressed to be payable to a particular person, and does not contain words prohibiting transfer or indicating an intention that it should<sup>1)</sup> be transferable;" § 13 reads as follows: "Where a bill is not payable on demand, the day on which it falls due is determined as follows: 1. Three days, called days of grace are, in every case where the bill itself does not otherwise provide, added to the time of payment as fixed by the bill, and the bill is due and payable on the last day of grace; provided that (a) when the last day of grace falls on Sunday, Good Friday, Christmas Day, the Queen's<sup>1)</sup> Birthday, or the day appointed to be kept in its place, any day appointed by proclamation of the Governor as a public fast or thanksgiving day, or public holiday, New Year's<sup>2)</sup>, or the day after Christmas Day, and the day after New Year's Day, when these days fall on Sundays, the bill is payable and due on the succeeding business day. (b) 2. Where a bill is payable at a fixed period after date, after sight, or after the happening of a specified event, the time of payment is determined by excluding the day from which the time is to begin to run, and including the day of payment. 3. Where a bill is payable at a fixed period after sight, the time begins to run from the date of the acceptance, if the bill be accepted and from the date of the noting or protest, if the bill be noted or protested for non-acceptance or for non-delivery. 4. The term 'month' in a bill means calendar month;" in § 16 (2) (a) "and signed" is substituted for "and be signed;" in § 19 (1) "stamped" and "the stamp will cover" are omitted; in § 20 (1) "when an acceptance" is substituted for "where an acceptance;" in § 21 (1) "as a drawer" is substituted for "as drawer," and "under law" for "under the law;" in § 22 (1) "or an assumed name" is substituted for "or assumed name," and "persons so liable" for "persons liable;" in § 25 (2) "or" is inserted<sup>3)</sup> before "by whose hand;" in § 29 (2) "force or fear" is substituted for "force and fear;" in § 31 (4) "thinks fit" is substituted for "think fit;" in § 34 (2) "expressly authorises" is substituted for "expressly authorise;" § 38 (4) reads as follows: "Where the holder of a bill drawn payable elsewhere than at the place of business or residence of the drawee has not time with the exercise of reasonable diligence to present the bill for acceptance before presenting it for payment on the day that it falls due, the delay caused by presenting the bill for acceptance before presenting it for payment is excused, and does not discharge the drawee<sup>4)</sup> or indorsers;" in § 40 (1) (d) "insolvent" is substituted for "bankrupt," and "or his assignee" is added at the end of the subsection; in § 40 (2) (a) "insolvent" is substituted for "bankrupt;" in § 43 (2) "the drawer or indorser" is substituted for "the drawer or an indorser;" in § 44 (3) "can be found there" is substituted for "can there be found;" in § 45 (1) "ceases to be operative" is substituted for "ceases to operate;" in § 49 (7) "notice<sup>5)</sup> given" is substituted for "notice is given;" in § 49 (10) "insolvent" is substituted for "bankrupt," and "or assignee" is added at the end of the subsection; in § 50 (5) "when the acceptor" is substituted for "where the acceptor," and "insolvent" for "bankrupt or insolvent;" § 50 (6) (b) reads as follows: "When a bill drawn payable at the place of business or residence of some person other than the drawer<sup>6)</sup> has been dishonoured by non-acceptance, it must be protested for non-payment at the place where it is expressed to be payable, and no further presentment for payment to or on<sup>7)</sup> demand on the drawee is necessary;" in § 50 (9) "circumstances" is substituted for "circumstance;" in § 51 (4) "when the holder" is substituted for "where the holder;" in § 52 "this subsection shall not extend to Scotland" is omitted; in § 53 (2) (b) "to a drawer's order" is substituted for "to drawer's order;" § 54 (2) (b) reads as follows: "Is precluded from denying to a holder in due course, the genuineness and regularity in all respects of the drawee's<sup>8)</sup> signature, and all previous indorsements;" in § 56 (1) (c) "expense of protest" is substituted for "expenses of protest;" in § 58 (1) "thereof if in good faith" is substituted for "thereof in good faith;" in § 62 (3) "but when a bill" is substituted for "but where a bill;" in § 63 (1) "when a bill" is substituted for "where a bill;" in § 64 (5) "when a bill" is substituted for "where a bill;" in § 65 (1) "by accepting engages" is substituted for "by accepting it engages;" in § 66 (2) "and when the address" is substituted for "and where the address;" in § 66 (3) "circumstances" is substituted for "circumstance;" in § 66 (4) "by an acceptor" is substituted for "by the acceptor;" in § 68 "refuse to give" is substituted for "refuses to give;" in § 70 (2) "when the holder" is substituted for "where the holder;" in § 70 (3) "as between the holders" is substituted for "as between such holders;" in § 70 (5) "the part at maturity" is substituted for "that part at maturity;" in § 70 (6) "when any one part" is substituted for "where any 'Non-business days,' for the purposes of this chapter, mean Sunday, Good Friday, Christmas Day, New Year's Day, the Queen's<sup>1)</sup> Birthday, or the day appointed to be kept in its place; a day appointed by proclamation as a public fast, thanksgiving day, or public holiday, the day after Christmas and New Year's Day when these days fall on a Sunday<sup>2)</sup>. Any other day is a business day;" in § 86 (= Imp. § 94) "the form of protest given in the Schedule to this chapter" is substituted for "the form given in Schedule 1 to this Act;" § 87 = Imp. § 97 (2). The Schedule containing the form of protest is substantially identical with the form contained in Schedule 1 of the Imperial Act.

It was once held that the Imperial Act 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 78, requiring acceptance of inland bills to be in writing applied in Newfoundland. — Moore v. Beake, (1858), 2 Morr. 231. The holder of a dishonoured bill may treat it as a nullity and sue on the common counts. — Sparrow v. Boutin, (1857), 2 Morr. 172. Provided the instrument is under his control, and not in the hands of any other party entitled to sue upon it. — Fowler v. Malada, (1881), 4 Morr. 263. The acceptance of a bill of exchange in payment of a debt is not a discharge of the debt, unless the bill is subsequently paid, unless the agreement of the parties evidences an intention to accept the bill in lieu of cash. — March v. Thorburn (1888), 5 Morr. 357. It was held in an early case that keeping a bill of exchange for ten months is evidence of lack of due diligence. — Brine v. Meehan, (1817), Tucker, 1. But in the same case it was later held that a custom in the Colony for parties to retain bills of exchange for an indefinite period, without prejudice to the right of recovery, was reasonable, and should be sustained. — Meehan v. Brine, (1817), Tucker, 5; 1 Morr. 5. Provided that it did not exceed the period allowed for the bringing of suit under the Statute of Limitations. — Hayes v. Neave, (1821), Tucker, 290; 1 Morr. 259. The rule of notice of dishonour by non-acceptance does not apply as between the original parties to the instrument. — Sparrow v. Boutin, (1857) 2 Morr. 172. The notorious insolvency of the makers of a promissory note is no excuse for non-presentment for payment. But presentment may be waived by an indorser, and a distinct promise by the indorser to pay the amount of the bill or note, made with knowledge of the fact that due presentment to the acceptor or maker was not made, operates as a waiver. — Newfoundland Savings Bank v. McPherson, (1860), 2 Morr. 462. The right of a holder of a bill drawn under an open letter of credit can not be affected by a private agreement not expressed in the letter, and of which he had no notice, between the person issuing the letter of credit and the holder thereof limiting the use of the letter. — Merchants Bank of Halifax v. Winter, (1898), M. & B. 30. The effect of a bank's initialling a cheque drawn upon it is to certify that the drawer has funds on deposit sufficient to meet such cheque. A bank receiving a certified cheque on deposit, and crediting the depositor with the amount thereof, does not thereby guarantee its payment by the bank certifying the cheque; it acts merely as an agent of the depositor for the purpose of collection. — Gaden v. Newfoundland Savings Bank, (1898), M. & B. 46. The custom of banks in Newfoundland is to regard post-dated cheques as bills of exchange payable on the date they bear.

Bank Holidays.

a) Cons. St. 1892, c. 95. Of Banks and Banking.

b) 3 Edw. 7, c. 5. An Act respecting Empire Day (20th May, 1903).

Summary.

The following days are declared bank holidays: Sunday, New Year's Day, Good Friday, Christmas Day, Empire Day (24th May), the day after New Year's Day, the day after Christmas Day, and the 25th May, when New Year's Day, Christmas Day, or Empire Day fall on a Sunday, and any day appointed by proclamation of the Governor for a public holiday or for a fast or thanksgiving day in the Colony.

<sup>1)</sup> Including Her Majesty's successors. — Cons. St. 1892, c. 1, § 6. — <sup>2)</sup> To the public holidays here enumerated must be added Empire Day. — See infra.

Insolvency.

a) Cons. St. 1892, c. 83. Of Insolvency.<sup>1)</sup>

b) 4 Edw. 7, c. 3. An Act respecting the Supreme Court (28th April, 1904).

Summary.

Petition and hearing.

213—221. Petitions directed to the Supreme Court or a Judge thereof, or a declaration in insolvency may be filed by the debtor, or by any creditor. The petition must be accompanied by a schedule of assets and liabilities of the debtor, and both petition and schedule must be verified by affidavit. Where the application is made in St. John's, notice of the time and place of hearing must be published in the Royal Gazette and one other newspaper. If made elsewhere the Court determines the manner of giving notice. With the consent of the petitioner, the hearing may be adjourned from time to time, but except in cases of liquidation or composition a creditor's petition may not be withdrawn or proceedings thereon be stayed, if any creditor object thereto, and it appear to the Court that the debtor is insolvent. The Court may direct the examination of witnesses before an examiner at any place. The Court may declare the debtor insolvent, may discharge him from custody where his imprisonment was for non-payment of money, may exonerate his bail, and upon the delivery of property attached, or payment of its value into court, may discharge the sureties therefor from further liability on their bonds. Discharge from custody may be conditioned upon performance of such acts as the Court may deem expedient.

Con. St. 1892, c. 83, §§ 1—7, 9, 16. The debtor petitioning to be declared insolvent must show to the satisfaction of the Judge that he is insolvent. — In re Morison, (1860), 2 Morr. 522. Parties to a deed under which the property of an individual is conveyed to trustees for the benefit of creditors are precluded from setting up such deed as an act of insolvency. — Ex parte Brooking, In re Little, (1818), Tucker, 118; 1 Morr. 101. Opinions of counsel to the effect that the title of property mortgaged to secure the payment of a debt is defective is not sufficient to sustain a charge of misrepresentation of title, and do not warrant the mortgagees in treating the deed as a nullity, and claiming the debt secured by it as one recoverable in praesenti. — In re Joy, (1886), 5 Morr. 126.

Trustees.

222—228. The Court may vest the estate of the alleged insolvent in a trustee or trustees, to receive the same and hold it subject to order, and in the event of a declaration of insolvency, to invest, realize, and distribute the same. Trustees may sue in their own names in actions for the benefit of the insolvent estate. Trustees or assignees under a conveyance or assignment for the benefit of creditors are subject to the same provisions of law as trustees appointed by the Court. A trustee may disclaim leasehold interests and tenancies by notice in writing to the landlord, the estate remaining liable for the rent from the time of the appointment of the trustee until such notice shall have expired. The working tools and implements of trade of the debtor, his fishing skiff or punt, and the necessary cooking utensils, bedding and wearing apparel of himself and family do not vest in the trustee. At the instance of a majority in number and value of the creditors a trustee may be changed or removed, and another person recommended by such creditors appointed, or the Court may remove a trustee or require him to find sureties for the proper discharge of his duties. The trustees are entitled to reimbursement for actual and reasonable expenses incurred, and to a compensation not exceeding five per cent. on the realized value of the assets of the estate. Upon the realization of all of the assets and the distribution of the final dividends, or upon the termination of the trusteeship for any other reason, the trustee upon the filing and approval of the final account, and the fulfilment of all duties upon him is entitled to his discharge; but a discharge obtained by fraud may be revoked.

<sup>1)</sup> Substantially re-enacted in, but not expressly repealed by, 4 Edw. 7, c. 3. The numbering of the sections as here given is that of the latter Act. The corresponding sections of the Act consolidated in 1892 are given in the notes.

Cons. St. 1892, c. 83, §§ 12—15. As to administration of property, see Trustees v. Huie, (1817), Tucker, 18, 26; 1 Morr. 16. As to trustees' right to disclaim lease to the bankrupt, see Little v. Trustees, (1817), Tucker, 35; 1 Morr. 29. Where there are two leases of the same property, they may disclaim one and hold the other. — Ex parte Haly, In re Johnston, (1818), Tucker, 143; 1 Morr. 125. Where goods of the debtor have been seized by the sheriff under a writ of fieri facias in satisfaction of a judgment, but not sold before the date of the vesting order they do not pass to the trustee. — MacPherson v. Carroll, (1908). A trustee can not make a profit out of the estate other than that allowed by the Court. — In re Duder, (1904).

Duties and discharge of debtor.

229—231. It is the duty of the debtor to make a full disclosure and delivery of his property, to conform to the orders of the court, and to assist in the collection of the assets. Wilful failure to do so renders him liable for contempt of court, and precludes him from receiving his discharge. By and with the consent of a majority in number and value of the creditors, or upon the application of the insolvent, the insolvent may be granted a certificate of discharge, provided he has performed his duties and has not been guilty of any of the acts set forth below in sections 266 and 267. Such certificate is a release of any judgment recovered and a bar to any subsequent suit brought for any debt or liability due or owing at the time of his being declared insolvent, or becoming due under any contract previously entered into. But a certificate of insolvency does not release from any debt or liability incurred by means of the debtor's fraud or fraudulent breach of trust, nor whereon he has obtained forbearance by any fraud to which he was a party, nor from rent becoming due after the declaration of insolvency under a tenancy originating previously and continued by the insolvent subsequently to the declaration of insolvency.

Cons. St. 1892, c. 83, §§ 21—23. At the hearing of the application for the certificate of insolvency creditors may bring forward objections which might have been urged on the original application for insolvency. — In re Bulley, Mitchell & Co., (1859), 2 Morr. 401. Where the objection against the granting of a certificate of insolvency is that the insolvent contracted "debts without a reasonable or probable expectation of paying them," it is necessary to show that the debts were fraudulently contracted without hope of being able to pay them. — In re John Hogsett, (1861), 2 Morr. 527.

Proof of debts.

232—238. Proof of debts must be made as soon as possible after the declaration of insolvency, and is effected by an affidavit containing or referring to a statement of account or by an account sworn to before a commissioner. Claims by or against an insolvent may be referred to a master for report. Secured creditors are entitled to dividends on their claims, after deducting the value of the security, or in respect of their entire claim, if they give up their security. When any rent or other payment falls due at stated periods, and the declaration of insolvency is ordered at any other than one of such periods, the person entitled may prove for a proportionate part thereof up to the declaration of insolvency as if such rent or payment grew from day to day. The landlord or other person to whom any rent is due from the debtor at any time before or after the appointment of the trustee may distrain upon the goods of the debtor for the rent due. But if such distress be levied after the appointment of the trustee, or after an arrangement has been acted upon by the Court, or if the distress be levied before such appointment or arrangement and the goods distrained lawfully sold under the distress at the time of such appointment or arrangement, the distress is available in case of declaration of insolvency or in case of an arrangement acted upon as aforesaid, for one year's rent accrued due prior to the date of such appointment or arrangement. But the balance, if any, is provable as an ordinary debt. Where there have been mutual credits or other mutual dealings between the debtor and any person who is or claims to be a creditor an account must be taken of what is due from the one party to the other in respect of such mutual dealings, and the balance of the account may be claimed or paid on either side respectively. But a creditor is not entitled to claim the benefit of any set-off against the debtor where at the time of giving credit to the debtor he had notice of the insolvency.

Cons. St. 1892, c. 83, §§ 18, 19, 38, 53, 54, 57. A distress may be made by seizing one article in the name of the whole, provided that the latter be in the power of the distrainer. — In re Meehan, (1879) 3 Morr. 172. The relation of banker and customer ceases on the happening of insolvency, and thereafter the bank is not entitled to charge compound interest against the estate of the insolvent. — Trustees, etc. v. Receivers of the Union Bank, (1898), M. & B. 116. As to set-off, see Taylor v. Trustees Commercial Bank, (1897), M. & B. 6.

239. When it shall be made to appear that the hirer or employer of any seaman, fisherman, or other servant is insolvent, or unable to pay his creditors one hundred cents in the dollar, such seaman, fisherman, or other servant actually employed in the catching, curing, or making of fish or oil, and such person as shall have supplied bait to the hirer or employer aforesaid, and who shall be creditors for wages, shares, or bait money for the current season, shall upon all such fish and oil taken, cured or made by the hirer or employer aforesaid, or out of the produce or value thereof, if the same be in the possession of the hirer or employer, or of any other person aware of or privy to the hiring or employing of any such seaman, fisherman, or other servant whether the same be accruing or due at or before the time of such other person receiving such fish or oil or the produce or value thereof, or before paying the hirer or employer for the same, be considered privileged creditors, and shall first be paid one hundred cents in the dollar, so far as such fish or oil, or the produce or value thereof, shall go.

Cons. St. 1892, c. 83, § 24. The custom of giving fishery servants the first claim on the voyage has existed in the Colony since the fishery began. — Prowse, History of Newfoundland, p. 435. The Act of Parliament of 1775 gave seamen and fishermen a preferential claim on the fish and oil taken. — 15 Geo. 3, c. 31, 16. A similar preference, limited to the wages of the current season, was given by the Act of 1809. — 49 Geo. 3, c. 27. Cp. Brehaut v. Le Messurier's Estate, (1823), Tucker, 414; 1 Morr. 361; Benning & Holohan v. Brown, Hoyles & Co., (1820), Tucker, 225; 1 Morr. 199. Passage money can not rank as wages unless it has been expressly agreed that it should form part of the hire. — In re Cook's Insolvency, (1820), Tucker, 245; 1 Morr. 218. It was held under the Act 19 Vic. c. 14, that fishery servants in the case of liver of cod purchased and manufactured were only entitled to claim upon the net proceeds of the liver after its manufacture into oil, after deducting the cost paid for the liver. — In re Kavanagh v. Dallord, (1862), 2 Morr. 704. There is no liability on a trustee for the wages of a servant for any time after his agreement has expired, even though he has been improperly kept out of his wages. — In re Kavanagh, (1862), 2 Morr. 708. The servant of the supplier of bait is not entitled to a preferential claim for his wages out of the estate of the person to whom the bait was supplied. — McGrath v. Kavanagh, (1861), 2 Morr. 565.

240. Where such fish and oil shall be insufficient for the full payment of the wages or shares of all such seamen, fishermen, or other servants, or of the persons who shall supply bait as aforesaid, they shall be paid their claims rateably in proportion to their respective wages, shares, or bait money, and may claim for any balances upon the insolvent estate in such manner as they may be respectively entitled under the provisions of this part of the Act.

Cons. St. 1892, c. 83, § 25.

241. In case the receiver be the supplying merchant, no seaman, fisherman or other servant engaged without his knowledge and consent shall be privileged creditors under the two next preceding sections.

Cons. St. 1892, c. 83, § 26. A fishery servant is entitled to follow the voyage to obtain his wages into the hands of any person receiving such voyage with notice of the claim. — In re Hennessey, (1898), M. & B. 20. Where servants are hired on the premises of the merchant this fact is evidence of privity of knowledge by the merchant. In this case there were also other facts showing notice on the part of the supplier. — Antle v. Baine, Johnston & Co., (1885), 5 Morr. 99.

242. Any person who may be bona fide engaged or shipped in the place of any such seaman, fisherman, or other servant who may during the voyage have been discharged, or have left, or deserted, or have died, or have been incapacitated by illness or other cause from continuing his service, shall be a privileged creditor in manner aforesaid, and shall be entitled to claim on the supplying merchant, being such receiver, for the period he may have served in such stead.

Cons. St. 1892, c. 83, § 27.

243. Any defence which the hirer or employer could have made if the action had been taken against him by such seaman, fisherman, or other servant or supplier of bait, for such wages, share or bait money, shall be equally available for the receiver to make on the trial of any action brought against him by such seaman, fisherman, or other servant or supplier of bait, for such wages, share, or bait money, or the value of such fish and oil or any part thereof as aforesaid: Provided that the receiver of the voyage or any part of the produce or value of same, shall not be liable for the payment of the wages or share of such seaman, fisherman, or other servant or supplier of bait, or any part thereof, unless it be proven on the trial that such receiver is liable under the provisions of this part of the Act: Provided that any shareman selling or lawfully disposing of his share of fish or oil, or any part thereof, may sue and recover payment for same from the purchaser thereof, according to the terms of his contract, and any shareman, fisherman, or other servant may sue for and recover his wages or share from his hirer or employer notwithstanding the provisions of this part of the Act.

Cons. St. 1892, c. 83, § 28.

244. To enable such seaman, fisherman, or servant or person supplying bait as aforesaid, to recover the amount of his wages, share or bait money from the receiver of such fish and oil, or the produce or the value thereof, or to make a claim against the insolvent estate of such receiver, it shall not be necessary that the hirer or employer should have been formally declared insolvent; but it will be sufficient if it be made to appear on the trial of any action or the hearing of any reference that the share, wages, of bait money was due at the time of bringing such action, and that the said hirer or employer was then insolvent or unable to pay his creditors one hundred cents in the dollar.

Cons. St. 1892, c. 83, § 29. Under 19 Vic. c. 14 formal declaration of insolvency of the employer was unnecessary. — In re Boutin, (1860), 2 Morr. 519.

245. If such seaman, fisherman, or other servant or supplier of bait has knowingly or wilfully colluded with or assisted the hirer or employer in disposing of his voyage otherwise than to his supplying merchant, such supplying merchant not being paid to the extent of his supplies over and above the unpaid wages or bait money at the time of the action being brought, such seaman, fisherman, or other servant or supplier of bait, shall not be entitled to recover in any action brought against any receiver being a supplying merchant.

Cons. St. 1892, c. 83, § 30.

246. Nothing herein contained shall prevent such seaman, fisherman or other servant from recovering such share or wages from any person other than the supplying merchant who may have received such voyage or any part thereof, and who would be otherwise liable under this part of the Act.

Cons. St. 1892, c. 83, § 31.

247. Sealers who have put in or sold their shares of seals' pelts, skins, or oil to the owners or outfitters of sealing ships, shall, in like manner with servants, under section 239, be privileged creditors upon the estates of such owners or outfitters in the event of their insolvency. Sealers who have sold their shares of seals' pelts, skins, or oil to a vendee other than the owners or outfitters, aforesaid, shall rank in like manner upon the estate of such vendee in the event of his insolvency. In the cases provided for by this section, the seals' pelts, skins, or oil must have been delivered to the owner, outfitter, or other vendee, within six months prior to the declaration of insolvency. Nothing in this section contained, shall entitle sealers to claim for their share of seals' pelts, skins, or oil, to which, according to the terms of their agreement, they may have forfeited their right; and in such case the persons entitled to their forfeiture shall be entitled to the claim as aforesaid in their stead. Nothing in this section contained shall be construed to affect any custom as to set-off against the shares of seals' pelts, skins, or oil, of hirers' or employers' accounts.

Cons. St. 1892, c. 83, § 32.

248—251. Insolvent estates are distributed rateably, after the payment of the costs and expenses of the insolvency, among the creditors, subject, however, to the preferential claims of the following classes of creditors, in the order named: 1. Clerks, servants, labourers, and workmen in respect of wages earned by them at time within one year prior to the appointment of a trustee, and fishery servants and seamen, under the circumstances mentioned in the preceding paragraphs. Persons wrongfully dismissed from service who would have been entitled to claim as belonging to this preferred class may prove their claim and become entitled to preference. 2. The Crown, the Government, and the Newfoundland Savings Bank. 3. Creditors for supplies necessarily and bona fide furnished for the prosecution of the fishery during the current season.

Cons. St. 1892, c. 83, §§ 33—35. Rent received by a general merchant as agent of the landlord, unless specifically set apart, is not entitled to priority as a trust fund. — Newman v. Trustees of Tremlett, (1818), Tucker, 138; 1 Morr. 121. But claims intrusted to a banker for collection, and to pay the same over, are such a trust fund. — Trustees of Union Bank v. Trustees of Commercial Bank, (1896), 5 Morr. 879; London & Westminster Bank v. Trustees of Commercial Bank, (1897), M. & B. 8. The rules of a mutual marine insurance club providing that the club shall have a lien on each vessel insured for the proportion of the losses of the year do not create a charge on the vessel in the nature of an equitable mortgage, and the contributions due by the owner of the vessel in respect of his share of the losses are not entitled to preference on this ground. — In re Tucker, Ex parte Marine Insurance Club, (1886), 5 Morr. 123. Where mortgaged premises are destroyed by fire after the insolvency of the mortgagor, the mortgagee can claim on the general fund for the amount. — Ex parte Little, In re Dooling & Kelley, (1817), Tucker, 51; 1 Morr. 45. As to right of the wife to recover from the insolvent estate of her husband the rents and other income of her separate property collected by her husband from time to time and appropriated to his business, with his wife's knowledge, see In re Harvey, (1890), 5 Morr. 442. For a case where the circumstances were held not to create a trust, see Hann v. Rendell, (1902), M. & B. 523.

Fraudulent assignments.

252. Every charge, mortgage, conveyance, grant, or assignment of the property or effects of any insolvent, or of any part thereof, and every gift, delivery, or transfer of any of his goods or chattels, and every payment made by him in money, or otherwise, and every cognovit, warrant of attorney, judgment, or other security whatsoever, paid, made, or given by any insolvent within two months prior to the filing of any petition praying for a declaration of his insolvency or for the distribution of his estate, and with a view to give an undue preference to any creditor is null and void in case the person taking or receiving the same, or for whose benefit the same was taken or received, had notice of the insolvency. But such transfers are not invalidated where the property has subsequently come into the hands of a bona fide purchaser. In such case the original assignee or transferee is liable to account for the value to the trustee of the insolvent estate.

Cons. St. 1892, c. 83, § 11. A preference given in contemplation of insolvency is not void if given in pursuance of a previous agreement so to do. — Trustees of Dalton & Ryan v. Attwood & Haynes, (1818), Tucker, 81; 1 Morr. 67. For cases where under the circumstances the preference was declared not to be fraudulent, see In re Saint, (1883), 4 Morr. 477; Hunt v. Hearn, (1892), 5 Morr. 615. See further as to deeds of assignment, and the rights of creditors thereunder, Thomas v. Tasker & Bruce, (1858), 2 Morr. 197; Seaton v. Prowse, (1856), 2 Morr. 112. As to fraudulent assignments in the case of limited partnerships, see Cons. St. 1892, c. 98, §§ 20—22.

Dividends.

253—255. In determining the amount of a dividend the trustee must make provision for debts appearing to be due to creditors resident at such distance that in the ordinary course of communication they have not had time to establish their claims, and also for claims tendered but not yet determined. Creditors failing to prove before the declaration of dividends are entitled after proof and acceptance of their claim to a dividend out of any moneys for the time being in the hands of the trustee, but can not disturb the distribution of dividends declared before proof of their debts. When all of the property of the insolvent is realized a final dividend is declared, but before declaring such final dividend creditors whose claims have not been established must be given an opportunity to establish the same.

Cons. St. 1892, c. 83, §§ 55, 56. For a case where under the direction of the court, after payment of a dividend, the surplus of the estate was remitted to England to be invested in public securities to abide an appeal pending in the Privy Council, see In re Dooling & Kelly, (1818), Tucker, 127; 1 Morr. 109.

Estates of deceased persons.

256. Where the estate of a deceased person is not sufficient to pay his just debts a trustee may be appointed on the petition of the executor or administrator, or of a creditor of the deceased. The administration of the estate is subject to the rules relating to an insolvent estate.

Cons. St. 1892, c. 83, § 37. As to the rights of the holder of an equitable mortgage, and the application of the Registry Act, see In re Estate John Boone, (1887), 5 Morr. 196.

Arrangements.

257—264. At any time after a petition has been filed and before the estate has been distributed the Court or Judge may, on proof that either before or since the filing of such petition an arrangement by liquidation or for a composition has been entered into by the debtor and two-thirds in number and value of the creditors resident or having houses of business in Newfoundland, and two-thirds of his creditors elsewhere, or of three-fourths of the whole of such creditors in number and value, make an order dissolving the proceedings in insolvency or staying such proceedings, and the release of the estate either altogether or for a limited time on such terms and subject to such conditions as the Court or Judge may think fit, or may from time to time determine. In calculating the two-thirds or three-fourths, as the case may be, in number and value of the creditors, creditors whose claims do not exceed twenty dollars shall be reckoned in value and not in number. Preferential creditors may not be counted at all unless they have consented to rank as ordinary creditors. In case of the composition or arrangement the trustee may be relieved in whole or in part from his position. If a creditor not assenting to the composition or arrangement shall show to the satisfaction of the Court that the debtor has been guilty of committing any act prohibited under section 266, the Court or Judge is competent to refuse to act upon the composition or arrangement. The Court or Judge may order that the debtor remain liable for the whole or a part of the unpaid balance, after payment of the dividend, of any debt due to a creditor not consenting to the composition or arrangement, where such debt was incurred, or increased by any fraud or collusion, or whereof before the date of the composition or arrangement he obtained forbearance by any fraud or collusion. The Court or Judge may also discharge the order for staying or dissolving proceedings in insolvency by reason of a composition or arrangement where it appears that the same can not be carried out without injustice or undue delay. Preferred creditors not parties to the composition or arrangement are entitled to be paid in full, as in insolvency. The Court or Judge may grant to the debtor a certificate having the same effect as a certificate of insolvency.

Cons. St. 1892, c. 83, §§ 43—51. For a case where an adjudication of insolvency was superseded at the request of the trustees, who were the sole creditors, on the ground that an arrangement had been made, see In re Lane, (1817), Tucker, 66. But after a certificate and final discharge has been granted, semble, a deed of composition will not be confirmed. — In re McKay, (1885), 5 Morr. 44. The assent of creditors to a deed is based on the understanding that all shall share alike, and parties to such deed can not stipulate for special advantages. — Trustees, etc. v. Alliance Bank, (1875), 4 Morr. 68. Under the terms of a deed of composition the debtor was to carry on the business, and to pay ten shillings in the pound. The debtor in carrying on the business incurred new debts, and paid to some of the original creditors eight shillings in the pound. The estate was again placed in liquidation, and on application for an order for payment of a dividend it was held that the original creditors who had not received any dividend under the deed should first be paid eight shillings in the pound, and that the residue of the estate should be divided rateably among all of the creditors of the estate. — In re Ridley & Sons, (1875), 4 Morr. 56; reversing the order of the Chief Justice in the s. c. (1875), 4 Morr. 44. As to the position of trustees under an assignment for the benefit of creditors, where a deed of composition is afterwards entered into, and confirmed, see Morris v. Tobin, (1898), M. & B. 100. As to compromises or compositions of partners and joint debtors, see Cons. St. c. 99. Partnership creditors are not entitled to rank upon the separate estate of a partner, until the separate creditors are satisfied. Conversely, separate creditors are not entitled to rank upon the partnership estate until the partnership creditors are satisfied. — In re Martin, (1907).

Cons. St. 1892, c. 83, § 52.

Penal proceedings.

266—267. A person who has been declared insolvent, and who when insolvent and with a view of giving an undue preference has made a conveyance, gift, transfer, or mortgage of any of his property, or discharged any debtor, or concealed any of his property with intent of diminishing the sum to be divided among his creditors, or falsified, concealed, or destroyed his books or papers, or contracted debts by means of a breach of trust or false pretences, or without reasonable expectation of paying the same, or has put a creditor to unnecessary expense by vexatious defences, or is indebted for damages recovered in actions for certain torts, or has done any other act fraudulent as regards his creditors, may be found guilty of a misdemeanour. Maximum penalty: imprisonment for two years, with or without hard labour. The Court has summary jurisdiction of this class of cases.

Cons. St. 1892, c. 83, § 8. For a case where an insolvent was found guilty of fraud, see In re Russell, (1862), 2 Morr. 699.

Costs.

232, 233, 236, 268. The costs of proceedings whereby any portion of the estate is secured before the declaration of insolvency are payable out of the estate. The costs of the petition, and all other costs are in the discretion of the Court or Judge. The costs of proof of debts are borne by the proving creditor. A creditor opposing the claim of another creditor by frivolous or vexatious defences may have the extraordinary expense of such proof deducted from his dividends.

Cons. St. 1892, c. 83, §§ 17—20. The costs of an attachment levied before the declaration of insolvency may be allowed out of the estate, but not the subsequent costs of proving the debts in the insolvency. — In re McDonald & Ryan, (1861), 2 Morr. 556.

Foreign insolvency.

The above Acts contain no provisions relating to foreign decrees in insolvency, and the distribution of local assets. An English bankruptcy does not necessarily supersede a local declaration of insolvency, but if it appear to the Court that the claims of creditors generally can be most satisfactorily arranged and adjusted in England, the local insolvency may be superseded. — Stabb, Preston & Prowse v. Stabb, Preston, Prowse & Co. (1821). Tucker, 298; 1 Morr. 267. Where the residence and place of business of an insolvent is in Newfoundland, and bankruptcy proceedings are taken against him in England, while he is temporarily in that country, and a vesting order made, the effect of such order is to vest in the trustee the debtor's personal property in Newfoundland. — Williams v. Rogerson (1854), 2 Morr. 21. And a local trustee appointed after the date of the English vesting order will be ordered to hand over to the English trustee all assets of the bankrupt in this Colony which may have come into his hands. — In re Rutherford, (1854), 2 Morr. 55. Where a partnership is doing business in Newfoundland, the non-resident partners are subject to the jurisdiction of the Newfoundland courts in insolvency, and their partnership property is available for distribution among their creditors. — Trustees, etc. v. Alliance Bank, (1875), 4 Morr. 68. Where two firms composed of the same members carry on distinct branches of trade in Newfoundland and in another country, and both firms become insolvent, the property and effects of the firm in Newfoundland are to be distributed by trustees appointed in that Colony, and subject to the local law. — In re Crawford & Co. (1818), Tucker, 100; 1 Morr. 85; and see s. c. Tucker, 242. And, semble, the same rule would apply where there are two distinct branches of the same firm, one carrying on business in Newfoundland, the other in another country or colony. — In re Ryan, (1818), Tucker, 113; 1 Morr. 96. In that event the property of the firm in each country is exclusively divisible among the creditors, local and foreign, who trusted the branch of the firm established in that country where the property is situated. — In re Ryan, (1818), Tucker, 113; 1 Morr. 96; Ryan & Sons v. Trustees, (1819), Tucker, 164; 1 Morr. 147. Sed quære. All of the assets of the firm form a common fund for the satisfaction of the claims of the general body of creditors, subject to such priorities as may exist under the laws of each country or colony. — In re Slade, (1862), 2 Morr. 710.

Bermuda.

Introduction.<sup>1)</sup>

The Bermudas or Somers' Islands form a group of about three hundred small islands, of which about twenty are inhabited. Next to Newfoundland the Bermudas are the oldest British colony, and they were the first to obtain representative institutions.

History and government.<sup>2)</sup>

The discovery of the Bermudas is generally attributed to the Spanish mariner, Juan Bermudez, in 1515. But in the Legatio Babylonica of Peter Martyr, published in 1511<sup>3)</sup>, there is a map upon which an island called "La bermuda" is noted, although there is no reference to the Bermudas in the book itself. "We are forced, therefore," says Lefroy<sup>4)</sup>, "to conclude that if Juan de Bermudez was the discoverer, as Herrera<sup>5)</sup> plainly states, and as the association of his name with the group implies, he must have found them on a previous voyage." Several proposals for the settlement of the Bermudas were made to the Spanish government, but none was acted on, and when Admiral Sir George Somers, conveying a party of colonists to the new plantations in Virginia, was wrecked on the Islands in 1609, they were still uninhabited<sup>6)</sup>.

Accounts of the beauty and fertility of the Islands were carried back to England by companions of Admiral Somers, and in 1612 the Virginia Company despatched Richard Moore and fifty settlers to Bermuda. In the same year the Virginia Company transferred its rights to Bermuda to a new company. On 29th June, 1615, the Bermuda Company was incorporated by letters patent, and a regular government established. The first assizes were held 15th June, 1616<sup>7)</sup>, and a representative government inaugurated in 1620. As early as 1620 an Act regulating the manufacture of tobacco was passed, and in the laws of 1622 several sections are devoted to trade. In 1623 and again in 1673 Acts were passed regulating the sale of goods on ship board. The Laws of the Bermuda Company provided that wherever possible the law of England was to be applied<sup>8)</sup>.

The Charter of the Bermuda Company was revoked in 1684<sup>9)</sup>, and on 6th June, 1687, the first Assembly under the Crown was held. Among the Acts passed by this Assembly was one for the establishment of Courts of Judicature.

<sup>1)</sup> The author desires to express his indebtedness to the Honourable Reginald Gray, Attorney-General of Bermuda, for valuable information regarding the law of Bermuda, to the authorities in the office of the Colonial Secretary for copies of the Acts, and to the officials of the Bank of Bermuda and the N. T. Butterfield & Son Bank for information concerning the customs of banks in the Colony. — <sup>2)</sup> In addition to the works cited in this section, see Williams, An historical and statistical account of the Bermudas, Godet, Bermuda, its history, etc. A bibliography of works relating to Bermuda is contained in Lefroy, 1. c., Vol. II, pp. XI.—XVI. Trott*, (1849), 6 Moo. P. C. 449.

The present government is regulated by Letters Patent of 19th January, 1888, and 20th January, 1891. The governor is assisted by an executive council appointed by the Crown. The legislative authority is vested in the Legislative Council, consisting of nine members, appointed by the Crown, and a representative House of Assembly, consisting of thirty-six members<sup>1</sup>).

Law in force.

The common law, the doctrines of equity, and the statutes of general application in force in England at the time of the settlement (11th June, 1612), and applicable to local conditions, are in force, except in so far as they have been modified by local enactments or Imperial legislation extended to the Colony<sup>2</sup>).

The law of England relating to the making, operation, assignment, and discharge of contract is in force. The Statute of Frauds<sup>3</sup>) is not in force in Bermuda, and there is no local Act covering this topic. The rate of interest is governed by the Act of 1861<sup>4</sup>). The rights of aliens are governed by the Alien Act, 1907<sup>5</sup>), and the

of land by deed to an extent of more than two thousand acres in the whole, or to a greater extent than four hundred acres in any one parish, exclusive of allotments made in the City of Hamilton or the Town of St. George; c) That no alien shall acquire land by deed and hold the same to a greater extent at any one time than fifteen thousand superficial feet if the land is situated in Hamilton or St. George's, or to a greater extent than twenty-five acres if situated elsewhere. 2. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in the preceding subsection the Governor-in-Council may sanction the acquisition by an alien, by deed, of land exceeding the amount therein specified if such land has been held and enjoyed by the vendor as a single undivided property. 3. The Governor-in-Council may make regulations prescribing the form and manner in which applications shall be made to obtain the sanction of the Governor-in-Council for the acquisition of land by aliens, and any matters incidental thereto. 4. Any alien applying to the Governor-in-Council for his sanction for the acquisition of land by such alien shall pay to the Colonial Secretary a fee of one pound, and such fee shall be paid into the Public Treasury. 4. 1. Whenever any alien shall take or acquire any land in these Islands by deed, or by devise or inheritance, he shall within six months after the date on which he shall acquire such land deposit in the Colonial Secretary's Office of the said Islands a memorandum in writing containing the name of such alien, the name of the person from whom he acquired such land, the date of acquisition, the mode of acquisition, a full description of the land acquired including the accurate area thereof and the estate or interest so taken or acquired by the alien therein, and such memorandum shall be signed by such alien, or by his attorney or agent, and a fee of three shillings shall be paid on the deposit of such memorandum, and the Colonial Secretary shall cause all such memorandums to be recorded in a book to be provided and kept for the purpose. 2. If any alien shall not within six months after the date on which he shall take or acquire any land in these Islands deposit in the Colonial Secretary's Office the memorandum required by the preceding sub-section, such land, shall, except as hereinafter otherwise provided, be liable to be escheated to the Crown; provided always, that at any time prior to such escheat the Governor-in-Council may, on the written application of such alien, allow such alien such further time for the deposit of such memorandum as the Governor-in-Council shall see fit, on such alien paying into the public treasury such fine not exceeding one hundred pounds as the Governor-in-Council shall see fit to impose on such alien for his failure to comply with the preceding sub-section, and if such memorandum shall be deposited and such fine paid within the time allowed as aforesaid the effect thereof shall be the same as if such alien had duly complied with the provisions of the said subsection. 3. A citizen of the United States of America to whom real property has passed under the conditions mentioned in the Convention set forth in the first schedule to this Act shall not, during the time, or any prolongation thereof allowed to him as hereinafter provided, to sell such property, be bound to deposit the memorandum in the first subsection mentioned but such liability shall be deemed to commence only as from the expiration of such time or any prolongation thereof. Provided always that nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the deposit of such memorandum at any time prior to the expiration of the time allowed for the sale of such real property for any such prolongation thereof as aforesaid. 5. Nothing contained in this Act shall qualify an alien, by reason of his own or his wife's ownership of land, to be a member of the Legislature, or for any parliamentary, parochial, or municipal franchise. 6. Nothing contained in this Act shall entitle any alien to engage in the business of dealing or speculating in land. Whether an alien is or is not engaged in the business of dealing or speculating in land shall be a question of fact to be decided in any proceedings for escheat taken in respect of the contravention of the provisions of this section by an alien. 7. 1. Subject to the provisions of subsection 2 of section three nothing contained in this Act shall entitle an alien to hold, at any one time, land to a greater extent than twenty-five acres which has become vested in him by virtue of a judgment for foreclosure, or as a result of any such judgment and of acquisition by deed, but any such alien shall, subject to the provisions aforesaid, dispose of any excess of land over and above the twenty-five acres aforesaid within a period of two years after such excess shall have been created. 2. No land held in excess in the manner in the preceding subsection mentioned shall be escheated during the aforesaid period of two years. 8. The limitations imposed by this Act on the amount of land acquired by deed that may be held by an alien shall apply to the combined holdings of land by a husband and wife. 9. Any deed by which a married woman, being an alien, shall dispose of land in these Islands, may be executed without the concurrence of her husband in the same manner as if she were unmarried, and her receipt alone shall be a good discharge for the purchase money, and it shall not be necessary for such deed to be acknowledged in the manner in which married women are now required by law to acknowledge certain deeds executed by them for conveying land in these Islands. The land must be acquired within six months. — Act No. 2 of 1911, § 1.

Courts and procedure.

The judicial system comprises a Supreme Court and courts of justices of the peace. The Supreme Court is composed of a Chief Justice and two Assistant Justices<sup>1)</sup>. The Supreme Court is a superior court of record, and, in addition to any jurisdiction specially conferred under any Act, has the jurisdiction existing prior to 1905 in the following Courts of the Colony: The Court of General Assize, the Court of Chancery, the Court of Exchequer, the Court of Probate, the Court of Ordinary, and the Court of Bankruptcy<sup>2)</sup>. Law and equity are administered concurrently, the rules of equity prevailing in case of conflict<sup>3)</sup>. The Supreme Court is a Court of Appeals from the inferior courts of the Colony<sup>4)</sup>, and a Court of Admiralty under the Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act, 1890<sup>5)</sup>.

The Justices' Courts have summary jurisdiction in actions of trespass where the amount involved does not exceed 24 s., in actions of debt where the amount involved does not exceed £10<sup>6)</sup>, and in actions on balance of accounts not exceeding £10, provided that the sum sued for has been acknowledged by the defendant in writing, or such acknowledgment is proved by two witnesses<sup>7)</sup>. An appeal lies to the Supreme Court.

An appeal lies to the Privy Council from any final judgment or order of the Supreme Court: in any suit, action, or matter in which the sum or matter at issue exceeds the amount or value of £300, or in which there is involved directly or indirectly any claim, demand, or question to or respecting any property or civil right of the said amount or value. A petition for leave to appeal must be filed within twenty-one days after the date of the judgment or order, and security not exceeding £500 for the due prosecution of the appeal must be furnished within three months<sup>8)</sup>.

Actions of account and upon the case, other than such accounts as concern the trade between merchants, their factors or servants, actions of debt arising out of a simple contract, actions for rent, detinue, replevin, and actions for seamen's wages, must be brought within six years next after the cause of action arose<sup>9)</sup>.

Application of Law.

No. 4 of 1905. The Supreme Court Act, 1905 (15th February, 1905).

How far law of England in force. 12. Subject to the provisions of any Acts which have been passed in any way altering, amending, or modifying the same, and of this Act, the common law, the doctrines of equity, and the statutes of general application which were in force in England at the date when these Islands were settled, that is to say on the eleventh day of July one thousand six hundred and twelve, shall be, and are hereby declared to be, in force within these Islands.

Although the Act contains no limitation to that effect, only such Imperial Acts and doctrines of the law of England are in force as are applicable to local conditions. By virtue of this section, semble, the following Imperial Acts are, inter alia, in force, except as affected by the Bankruptcy Act, 1876:

3 Hen. 7, c. 4. Fraudulent deeds of gift.

13 Eliz. c. 5. Fraudulent conveyances.

27 Eliz. c. 4. Fraudulent conveyances. But voluntary conveyances of land, if bona fide, are not avoided if registered within six months. — Act No. 24 of 1906.

Partnership.

a) No. 24 of 1883. The Limited Partnership Act, 1883 (18th December, 1883).

Short title. 1. The Limited Partnership Act, 1883.

Limited partnerships may be formed. 2. Limited partnerships for the transaction of all mercantile, mechanical, manufacturing, or other business, except banking or insurance, may be formed by two or more persons.

Limited partnership of whom to consist. 3. Such partnership may consist of one or more general partners, who shall be jointly and severally responsible, as partners now are by law, and also of any other persons who shall contribute to the common stock, a specific sum in actual cash payments as capital, who shall be called special partners, and shall not be personally liable for any debts of the partnership, except as hereinafter mentioned.

What certificate required. 4. The persons forming such partnerships shall make and severally sign a certificate, which shall contain the name of the firm of the partnership, the names and respective places of residence of the general and special partners, distinguishing the general from the special, the amount of capital each special partner has contributed, the general nature of the business to be transacted, and the time when the partnership is to commence and terminate.

When deemed to be formed. 5. No such partnership shall be deemed to have been formed until a certificate, made as aforesaid, shall be registered in the office of the Registrar of the Supreme Court, in a book to be kept for that purpose, open to public inspection; and if any false statement shall be made in such certificate, all the persons interested in the partnership shall be liable as general partners for the engagements thereof.

Copy of certificate to be published. 6. The partners shall, for six weeks immediately following such registry publish a copy of the certificate above mentioned in the Gazette; if such publication be not so made the partnership shall be deemed general.

Duration of liability. 7. Every such partnership shall be held to continue on the original terms, unless the special partners, or any one or more of them, desire to be discharged from further liability, in which case a certificate shall be signed and registered, as in the first instance, declaring their withdrawal from the concern, but no special partner shall be allowed to withdraw before having paid up all the capital for which he has subscribed.

The firm to contain the names of the general partners only.<sup>5</sup> 8. The business of the partnership shall be conducted under a firm in which the surname or surnames of the general partners only shall be inserted, without the addition of the word "company" or any other general term; and if the name of any special partner shall be used in such firm with his privity, or if he shall personally make any contract with any person except the general partners respecting the concerns of the partnership, he shall be deemed a general partner.

The partnership business to be conducted by the general partners. 9. The general partners only shall be authorised to transact business and sign for the partnership, and to bind the same.

General partners' liability to account. 10. The general partners shall be liable to account to each other, and to the special partners, for their management of the concern, both at law and in equity, as other partners are now liable.

Partners guilty of fraud liable both civilly and criminally. 11. Every partner who shall be guilty of any fraud in the affairs of the partnership shall be liable civilly to the party injured to the extent of his damage, and shall also be liable to an indictment for a misdemeanour, punishable on conviction by fine or imprisonment or both, at the discretion of the Court by which he shall be tried.

During partnership capital not to be withdrawn. 12. During the continuance of any such partnership, no part of the capital stock thereof shall be withdrawn, nor any division of interest or profits be made, so as to reduce such capital stock below the sum stated in the certificate before mentioned.

Transfer of interest. 13. Any special partner, or in case of his death his executors or administrators, may at any time sell his individual interest or any part thereof in the partnership; but no transfer of such interest shall be deemed to be completed until a certificate shall be made and signed by the vendor and by the purchaser, and registered in the book to be kept in the office of the Prothonotary, which certificate shall contain the names of the vendor and purchaser, the amount of stock transferred and the price paid for the same; and on such certificate being registered the purchaser shall be deemed a special partner with respect to the amount of stock transferred.

No assignment of partnership assets allowed except on certain conditions. 14. No general assignment by such partnership in case of insolvency or insufficiency of assets for the payment of the partnership debts shall be valid without the consent in writing of two-thirds in value of the creditors of the partnership, nor unless it shall provide for a distribution of the partnership property among all the creditors in proportion to the amount of their several claims; notice of which shall be given in the Gazette; but debts due to Her Majesty shall first be paid or secured.

Assignments and securities in fraud of creditors to be void. 15. Every sale, assignment or transfer, of the property or effects of any such partnership made by such partnership when actually insolvent or bankrupt, or in contemplation of insolvency or bankruptcy, or after or in contemplation of the insolvency or bankruptcy of any partner, with the intent of giving a preference to any creditor or creditors of such partnership over any other creditor or creditors thereof, and every judgment confessed, lien created, or security given, by such partnership, or any partner thereof, under the like circumstances, and with the like intent, shall be void as against the creditors of such partnership.

Claims of special partners to be postponed in case of bankruptcy to other creditors. 16. In case of the insolvency or bankruptcy of the partnership no special partner shall under any circumstances be allowed to claim as a creditor until the claims of all the other creditors of the partnership shall be satisfied.

Actions, by and against whom. 17. All suits respecting the business of such partnership shall be prosecuted by and against the general partners only, except in those cases where special partners shall be held severally responsible.

Alterations in names of partners to be certified and published. 18. Every alteration which shall be made in the names of the partners, in the nature of the business, or in the capital or shares thereof, or in any other matter specified in the original certificate, shall be deemed a dissolution of the partnership, unless a certificate of such alteration shall have been made and signed, and such certificate shall have been registered and published, in the manner hereinbefore provided with respect to the original formation of such partnership; and any such partnership which shall in any manner be carried on after any such alteration shall have been made, otherwise than in accordance with this enactment, shall be deemed a general partnership, unless renewed as a special partnership in accordance with the provisions of the next section of this Act.

Continuance of partnership to be certified and published. 19. Every renewal or continuance of such partnership beyond the time originally fixed for its duration shall be certified and registered, and notice thereof shall be given, in the manner herein required for its original formation: and every such partnership which shall be otherwise renewed or continued shall be deemed a general partnership.

Dissolution. 20. Except as hereinbefore provided, no dissolution of such partnership shall take place, except by operation of law, unless a notice thereof shall be registered in the same manner as the original certificate, and unless such notice shall be published for six successive weeks in the Gazette.

Rights and liabilities. 21. In all cases not otherwise herein provided for, the members of limited partnerships shall be subject to all the liabilities, and entitled to all the rights of general partners.

Dividends and profits. 22. A certificate of the dividends interest or profits derived from any such partnership by the special partners, shall, as often as the same shall be ascertained or declared, be signed by the general partners or one of them, setting forth the amount of the actual cash payments originally subscribed and paid by the special partners, and the dividend or profits and sums of money declared payable under such statement to each of all the partners; which certificate shall be registered in the office of the Registrar of the Supreme Court; but no such dividend shall be declared for any period of less than one year.

Book to be procured by Prothonotary. May be inspected. Fees to Prothonotary. 23. The Registrar of the Supreme Court shall procure at the public expense, a suitable book in which be registered or recorded the certificates and notices above mentioned; which book shall be open, during office hours, to the inspection of all persons desiring to view the same, on payment to the said Prothonotary of the fee of two shillings and the said Prothonotary shall be entitled to receive the sum of £1 for registering or recording every such certificate and notice as hereinbefore mentioned; and such book and the entries therein shall be receivable in evidence in any Court of law or equity in these Islands.

Companies.<sup>1)</sup>

No. 27 of 1885. An Act relating to Suits against Public Companies abroad having Agencies in these Islands (10th November, 1885).

Companies incorporated abroad but trading through local agencies made liable to be sued in the Court of General Assize in respect of causes of action arising in these Islands. Service of process on local agent sufficient. Power to Court to protect defendant companies against surprise. 1. Companies and corporate bodies incorporated out of these Islands, for banking, insurance, or other trading purposes, and doing business in these Islands by agents or branches, may be sued, at law or in equity, in the Court of General Assize of these Islands, for any cause of action, legal or equitable, arising in whole or in part in these Islands, by the name whereby they are, or purport to be, associated or incorporated, or under which they carry on business in these Islands; and service of any process, pleading, rule, or notice on the agent, or any one of the agents, or manager, of the company or association in these Islands shall be deemed good and sufficient service on the company; and all such suits may be prosecuted and carried on to judgment or decree in like manner as if the defendant company were formed, or incorporated, or established in these Islands, or had its principal place of business therein; provided that in all such suits and proceedings it shall be competent to the Court to make such orders with respect to pleading and practice as the Court shall deem necessary for securing the defendant company against surprise, or undue haste in prosecuting the suit or other proceeding.

Time may be allowed to agent to communicate with company. 2. The Court or a Judge at Chambers may on sufficient cause shewn allow reasonable time for the agent or manager to communicate with the defendant company and may make such order with respect thereto, and on such terms or conditions, as justice may require.

Judgment in any such suit to bind the real estate and execution to bind the personal estate of the company in these islands. 3. If judgment shall pass, or any decree or order shall be made, in any such suit or proceeding, in favour of the plaintiff or person suing, or against the defendant company, such judgment or decree shall be or create a charge on any real estate of the company in these Islands, and execution or other process for enforcing such judgment or decree may be sued out in like manner and form against the defendant company as if such company were established or had its principal place of business in these Islands, or as near thereto as circumstances will permit, or in such form as the Court, or a Judge at Chambers, shall sanction, and may be served on the agent or manager, and shall bind the assets of the company in these Islands or which then are in, or afterwards shall come to, the hands or under the control of such agent or manager, subject always to the agent's or manager's lawful charges or commissions thereon.

Agent may be examined as to defendant company's assets in these Islands. 4. After any judgment or decree given, or any order made, in any suit against the defendant company, it shall be lawful for the Court, or a Judge at Chambers, to cause the agents or managers of the company to be examined from time to time on oath before the Court or a Judge concerning the assets or property of the company in these Islands; and it shall be lawful for the Court or Judge to make such order therein as to justice may pertain, and such order may, if the Court or Judge shall so order, be enforced against any agent or manager personally.

Appeal to Court against order of Judge at Chambers. 5. From every order of any Judge at Chambers made under this Act there shall always lie an appeal to the Court; and the Court shall have power, by any special or general order, to direct how such appeal shall be conducted, and also shall have power on any such appeal to vary or rescind the order appealed against, or to make such other order in the matter as the Court shall see fit.

Costs to be in the discretion of the Court. 6. In any suit or proceeding under this Act the Court shall have power to allow such costs to either party, whether as between client and solicitor, or as between party and party, as to the Court shall seem fit.

This Act not to derogate from existing rights against absent companies. 7. Nothing in this Act contained shall prevent any person proceeding against any company or association of persons out of these Islands, or the assets, property, or effects of any company or association of persons out of these Islands, in like manner as if this Act had not been passed.

Trading Stamps.

No. 7 of 1905. The Trading Stamp Act, 1905 (17th March, 1905).

Interpretation. 1. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires, the following expressions and words shall have the meanings assigned to them in this section: 1. "Trading stamp" means any stamp, ticket, coupon, label, or other similar device, which will entitle the holder thereof on presentation thereof, either singly or in any definite number, to receive either directly from the vendor or indirectly from any other person money or goods. 2. "Money" means British money. 3. "Goods" means goods, wares, or merchandise. 4. "Vendor" means any person engaged in any trade; business, profession, or occupation who on or in consideration of the purchase from him of any goods, issues, gives, or delivers to the purchaser any trading stamp.

Vendors not to issue trading stamps unless the redeemable value is stamped or printed thereon. 2. After this Act shall come into operation it shall not be lawful for any vendor to issue any trading stamp to any person unless the same shall have legibly stamped or printed on the face thereof the redeemable value thereof in money, which shall not be less than one fifth of a penny.

Trading stamps to have stamped or printed thereon the name of the vendor, and to be redeemable by him at their face value. 3. Every trading stamp issued by any vendor shall have legibly stamped or printed on the face thereof the initials and surname, or corporate or firm name, of the vendor, and every vendor shall be liable upon presentation thereof by the holder to redeem all trading stamps issued by such vendor at the face value thereof in money, and it shall not be necessary for the holder to have any stipulated number of trading stamps before being entitled to demand redemption of the same in money, except that a vendor shall not be liable to redeem any trading stamps aggregating in face value less than three pence nor to redeem at any time any trading stamps the face value of which is a fractional part of one penny.

Goods kept by any vendor to be supplied in exchange for stamps to have value marked thereon and corresponding number of stamps. 4. Every vendor who has or keeps on his business premises any goods to be delivered or supplied to the holders of trading stamps issued by such vendor in exchange for such trading stamps shall legibly mark on each article the value thereof in money, and the corresponding number of trading stamps issued by such vendor which will be received by him in exchange for such article, and the holder of any trading stamps of such vendor shall be entitled to demand and receive such article from such vendor in exchange for the number of stamps so marked thereon.

Penalties on vendors issuing trading stamps without the value or name thereon. 5. Any vendor who shall issue any trading stamp which has not legibly stamped or printed on the face thereof the redeemable value thereof in money, and the initials and surname, or corporate or firm name, of the vendor, shall be liable on conviction before any two Justices of the Peace, or any Police Magistrate, to such penalty not exceeding five pounds for a first offence, and not exceeding ten pounds for a second or any subsequent offence as the Justices or Police Magistrate shall award, besides costs of prosecution if awarded.

Remedy where vendor refuses to redeem stamps. 6. If any vendor shall refuse to redeem any trading stamps as required by the third section of this Act the holder of such stamps shall be entitled to recover the face value thereof from the vendor as a debt.

Publication of Act. 7. This Act shall be published in the Gazette as soon as practicable after the passing thereof.

Exemptions from operation of Act. 8. This Act shall not apply in any of the following cases: 1. To any printed ticket, coupon, label, or other voucher which is placed in or on any wrapper package or goods supplied in that condition by any merchant or manufacturer abroad to any person in these Islands and sold by him in the like condition, where it is clearly indicated on such ticket, coupon, label, or other voucher that it is redeemable in the manner indicated thereon only by such merchant or manufacturer, or on his behalf by the person selling the same; 2. To any printed ticket, coupon, label, or other voucher which is placed by any merchant or tradesman in these Islands in or on any wrapper, package, or goods supplied by him in that condition to any person who sells the same in the like condition, where it is clearly indicated on such ticket, coupon, label, or other voucher that it is redeemable in the manner indicated thereon only by such merchant or tradesman; 3. To any printed ticket, coupon, label, or other voucher issued by any merchant or tradesman in his own name to a cash customer at the time of the purchase by him of any goods from such merchant or tradesman, where it is clearly indicated on such ticket, coupon, label, or other voucher that it is redeemable in the manner indicated thereon only by such merchant or tradesman. Provided that, in any prosecution for any offence under this Act in which the defendant claims exemption under any of the provisions of this section the burden of proving such exemption shall be on the defendant.

Commencement on 1 July 1905, or later by proclamation, and duration, 31 December, 1907. 9. This Act shall come into operation on the first day of July next or on such later date as the Governor shall notify by proclamation for the purpose, and shall continue in force until and throughout the last day of December one thousand nine hundred and seven.

The Act has been continued in force to 31st December, 1912. — Act No. 26 of 1907, § 1.

Bills of Lading.

No. 2 of 1863. An Act to adopt certain Provisions of the Law of England relating to Bills of Lading (3d August, 1863).

Consignee and endorsee to have rights and liabilities of suit for the property conveyed in bills of lading. 1. Every consignee of goods named in a bill of lading, and every endorsee of a bill of lading to whom property in the goods therein mentioned shall pass, upon or by reason of such consignment or endorsement, shall have transferred to and vested in him all rights of suit, and be subject to the same liabilities, in respect of such goods, as if the contract contained in the bill of lading had been made with himself.

No rights against original shipper or consignee or endorsee to be prejudiced. 2. Nothing herein contained shall prejudice or effect any right of stoppage in transitu, or any right to claim freight against the original shipper or owner, or any liability of the consignee or endorsee, be reason or in consequence of his being such consignee or endorsee, or of his receipt of the goods by reason or in consequence of such consignment or endorsement.

Bill of lading good evidence of the articles it specifies against master, unless, etc. Proviso. 3. Every bill of lading in the hands of a consignee or endorsee for valuable consideration, representing goods to have been shipped on board a vessel, shall be conclusive evidence of such shipment as against the master or other person signing the same, notwithstanding that such goods or some part thereof may not have been so shipped; unless such holder of the bill of lading shall have had actual notice at the time of receiving the same, that the goods had not been in fact laden on board; provided, that the master or other person so signing may exonerate himself in respect of such misrepresentation by showing that it was caused without any default on his part, and wholly by the fraud of the shipper, or of the holder, or of some person under whom the holder claims.

A carrier's liability continues until the goods are delivered to the consignee or his agent (e. g., a carman). A mere placing on the wharf, and removal by a carman or other person without the knowledge or authority of the freight clerk is not a delivery. — Fraser v. Burrows, Royal Gazette, 26th April, 1883.

No. 3 of 1874. An Act to amend the Law relating to Bonds and Promissory Notes (16th July, 1874).

Repeal of 6 of 1786. 1. The Act entitled "An Act for the better recovery of debts due on promissory notes and the assignment of bonds, obligations and notes" is hereby repealed, except as to any contracts, rights, or liabilities already obtained or contracted before the passing of this Act, which may be sued on and enforced as if this Act had not been passed.

Promissory notes who liable on. 2. All notes in writing that after the passing of this Act shall be made and signed by any person, or body politic or corporate or by the servant or agent of any corporation, banker, merchant, or trader who is usually entrusted by him or them to sign such promissory notes for him or them whereby such person, body politic and corporate, his or their servant or agent doth or shall promise to pay to any other person, body politic or corporate, his or their order, or unto bearer any sum of money mentioned in such note, shall be construed and taken to be by virtue thereof due and payable to any such person, or body politic or corporate, to whom the same is made payable; and also every such note payable to any person, body politic or corporate, or his or their order, shall be assignable or endorsable over in the same manner as bills of exchange, and the person, or body politic or corporate, to whom such sum of money is or shall be by such note made payable, shall and may maintain an action for the same against the person, or body politic or corporate, who or whose servant or agent signed the same; and any person, or body politic or corporate, to whom such note that is payable to any person, or body politic or corporate, or his or their order, is endorsed or assigned, or the money therein mentioned ordered to be paid by endorsement thereon, shall or may maintain his or their action for such sum of money, either against the person, or body politic or corporate, who or whose servant or agent signed such note, or against any of the persons that endorsed the same, in like manner as in cases of bills of exchange.

Bonds or bills, who liable on. 3. It shall be lawful for any person, or body politic or corporate, to assign by endorsement or otherwise any bond, bill, or other obligation by which the payment of money may be secured to such person, or body politic or corporate, to any other person or body politic or corporate, and the assignee or endorsee of such bond, bill, or other obligation, his and their executors, administrators or successors, shall by virtue of such assignment or endorsement have lawful power to commence and prosecute any suit at law in his or their own name or names, for the recovery of any debt due by such bond, bill, or other obligation as the first obligee, his executors or administrators, might or could lawfully have done. Provided that in any suit under this clause, on any such bond, bill, or other obligation so made assigned or endorsed, the plaintiff shall allow the defendant to set off all lawful demands of the defendant against the original obligee, which were incurred or became due before the defendant had notice of such assignment or endorsement.

Bills of exchange not affected. 4. Nothing in this Act shall affect the law relating to bills of exchange, or the respective rights or liabilities of persons consequent on the endorsement or assignment of bills of exchange.

Public Holidays.

No. 18 of 1901. The Victoria Day Act, 1901 (3d October, 1901).

The 24th May to be called Victoria Day. 1. From and after the passing of this Act the twentyfourth day of May in each year shall be called "Victoria Day" to perpetuate the memory of our late Most Gracious Sovereign Lady Queen Victoria.

See note to Act No. 3 of 1874.

Victoria Day to be observed as a public holiday in all public offices. 2. Victoria Day, or, if that day fall on a Sunday, the following Monday, shall hereafter in each year be observed as a public holiday in all the public offices of the Colony, and, except as hereinafter provided, no public officer shall on that day be required to perform any public duty or service; provided that the said day shall only be observed as a post office holiday on the same conditions as other post office holidays under the provisions of the fourth section of The Post Office Act, 1900; and provided also that nothing herein contained shall prevent any part of the work of the Revenue Department being performed on the said day in cases expressly provided for or allowed by law with respect to other office holidays in that Department.

Bankruptcy.

a) No. 27 of 1876. An Act to provide for the better Administration of the Estates of Insolvent Debtors (4th November, 1876).<sup>1)</sup>

Preliminary.

Short title. 1. This Act may be cited as the Bermuda Bankruptcy Act, 1876. Imp. § 1.

Interpretation of certain terms in the Act. 2. In this Act, if not inconsistent with the context, the following terms have the meanings hereinafter respectively assigned to them, that is to say: "The Court" shall mean the Court having jurisdiction in bankruptcy as by this Act provided. "The Registrar" shall mean the Registrar of "the Court" as above defined. "Prescribed" shall mean prescribed by Rules of Court to be made as in this Act provided. "Property" shall mean and include money, goods, things in action, land, and every description of property, whether real or personal; also obligations, easements, and every description of estate, interest and profit, present or future, vested or contingent, arising out of or incident to property as above defined. "Debt provable in bankruptcy" shall include any debt or liability by this Act made provable in bankruptcy. "Person" shall include a body corporate. "Gazette" shall mean any newspaper in which Government notices are published by authority.

Part I. Adjudication and Vesting of Property.

Adjudication.

Petition for adjudication in bankruptcy. 3. A single creditor, or two or more creditors, if the debt due to such single creditor, or the aggregate amount of debts due to such several creditors from any debtor amount to a sum of not less than fifty pounds, may present a petition to the Court, praying that the debtor be adjudged a bankrupt, and alleging as the ground for such adjudication any one or more of the following acts or defaults, hereinafter deemed to be and included under the expression "acts of bankruptcy:" 1. That the debtor has, in Bermuda or elsewhere, made a conveyance or assignment of his property to a trustee or trustees for the benefit of his creditors generally; 2. That the debtor has, in Bermuda or elsewhere, made a fraudulent conveyance, gift, delivery, or transfer of his property, or of any part thereof; 3. That the debtor has, with intent to defeat or delay his creditors, done any of the following things, namely departed out of Bermuda, or being out of Bermuda remained out of Bermuda, or departed from his dwelling house, or otherwise absented himself, or begun to keep house; 4. That the debtor has filed in the prescribed manner in the Court a declaration admitting his inability to pay his debts; 5. That execution issued against the debtor on any legal process for the purpose of obtaining payment of not less than fifty pounds has been levied by seizure and sale of his goods; 6. That the creditor presenting the petition has served in the prescribed manner on the debtor a debtor's summons requiring the debtor to pay a sum due, of an amount of not less than fifty pounds, and that the debtor has, for a space of three weeks succeeding the service of such summons, neglected to pay such sum, or to secure or compound for the same. But no person shall be adjudged a bankrupt on any of the above grounds unless the act of bankruptcy on which the adjudication is grounded has occurred within six months before the presentation of the petition for adjudication; moreover, the debt of the petitioning creditor must be a liquidated sum due at law or in equity, and must not be a secured debt, unless the petitioner state in his petition that he will be ready to give up such security for the benefit of the creditors in the event of the debtor being adjudicated a bankrupt, or unless the petitioner is willing to give an estimate of the value of his security, in which latter case he may be admitted as a petitioning creditor to the extent of the balance of the debt due to him after deducting the value so estimated, but he shall, on an application being made by the trustee within the prescribed period after the date of adjudication, give up his security to such trustee for the benefit of the creditors upon payment of such estimated value.

Imp. §§ 4, 6.

Proceedings in relation to a debtor's summons. 4. A debtor's summons may be granted by the Court on a creditor proving to its satisfaction that a debt sufficient to support a petition in bankruptcy is due to him from the person against whom the summons is sought, and that the creditor has failed to obtain payment of his debt after using reasonable efforts to do so. The summons shall be in the prescribed form, resembling, as nearly as circumstances admit, a writ issued by the Court of General Assize. It shall state that in the event of the debtor failing to pay the sum specified in the summons, or to compound for the same to the satisfaction of the creditor, a petition may be presented against him, praying that he may be adjudged a bankrupt. The summons shall have an endorsement thereon to the like effect, or such other prescribed endorsement as may be best calculated to indicate to the debtor the nature of the document served upon him, and the consequences of inattention to the requisitions therein made. Any debtor served with a debtor's summons may apply to the Court in the prescribed manner, and within the prescribed time, to dismiss such summons on the ground that he is not indebted to the creditor serving such summons, or that he is not indebted to such amount as will justify such creditor in presenting a bankruptcy petition against him; and the Court may dismiss the summons, with or without costs, if satisfied with the allegations made by the debtor, or it may, upon such security (if any) being given as the Court may require for payment to the creditor of the debt alleged by him to be due, and the cost of establishing such debt, stay all proceedings on the summons for such time as will be required for the trial of the question relating to such debt which question may be tried by the Court with or without the assistance of a jury as by this Act provided for.

Imp. § 7.

Proceedings on petition. 5. A petition praying that a debtor may be adjudged a bankrupt, in this Act referred to as a bankruptcy petition, shall be served in the prescribed manner. At the hearing the Court shall require proof of the debt of the petitioning creditor, and of the act of bankruptcy, or if more than one act of bankruptcy is alleged in the petition, of some one of the alleged acts of bankruptcy, and, if satisfied with such proof, shall adjudge the debtor to be bankrupt. The Court may adjourn the petition, either conditionally or unconditionally, for the procurement of further evidence, or for any other just cause, or may dismiss the petition, with or without costs, as the Court thinks just.

Imp. §§ 4, 7.

Proceedings if debt of petitioning creditor is contested. 6. When the debtor appears on the petition, and denies that he is indebted to the petitioner, or that he is indebted to such amount as would justify the petitioner in presenting a bankruptcy petition against him, the Court, upon such security (if any) being given as the Court may require for payment to the petitioner of any debt which may be established against him in due course of law, and of the costs of establishing such debt, may stay all proceedings on the petition for such time as may be required for trial of the question relating to such debt, and such trial shall be had in manner hereinafter provided with respect to disputed debts under debtor's summonses. Where proceedings are stayed the Court may, if by reason of the delay caused by such stay of proceedings or for any other cause it thinks just, adjudge the debtor a bankrupt on the petition of some other creditor, and shall thereupon dismiss, upon such terms as it thinks just, the petition proceedings in which have been stayed as aforesaid.

Imp. § 7 (5, 6).

Advertisement of order of adjudication. 7. A copy of an order of the Court adjudging the debtor to be a bankrupt shall be published in the Gazette and the date of such order shall be the date of the adjudication for the purposes of this Act, and the production of a copy of the Gazette containing such order as aforesaid shall be conclusive evidence in all legal proceedings of the debtor having been duly adjudged a bankrupt, and of the date of the adjudication.

Imp. § 13.

Definition of commencement of bankruptcy. 8. The bankruptcy of a debtor shall be deemed to have relation back to and commence at the time of the act of bankruptcy being completed on which the order is made adjudging him to be bankrupt or if the bankrupt is proved to have committed more acts of bankruptcy than one to have relation back to and commence at the time of the first of the acts of bankruptcy that may be proved to have been committed by the bankrupt within twelve months next preceding the order of adjudication, but the bankruptcy shall not relate to any prior act of bankruptcy unless it be that at the time of committing such prior act the bankrupt was indebted to some creditor or creditors in a sum or sums sufficient to support a petition in bankruptcy, and unless such debt or debts are still remaining due at the time of the adjudication.

Imp. § 43.

Creditors bound by bankruptcy proceedings. 9. Where a debtor shall be adjudicated a bankrupt no creditor to whom the bankrupt is indebted in respect of any debts provable in the bankruptcy shall have any remedy against the property or person of the bankrupt in respect of such debt except in manner directed by this Act. But this section shall not affect the power of any creditor holding a security upon the property of the bankrupt to realize or otherwise deal with such security in the same manner as he would have been entitled to realize or deal with the same if this section had not been passed.

Imp. § 9 (1).

Power of Court after presentation of petition to restrain suits, etc., and appoint receiver. 10. The Court may at any time after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition against the debtor restrain further proceedings in any action, suit, execution, or other legal process against the debtor in respect of any debt provable in bankruptcy or it may allow such proceedings whether in progress at the commencement of the bankruptcy or commenced during its continuance to proceed upon such terms as the Court may think just. The Court may also at any time after the presentation of such petition appoint a receiver or manager of the property or business of the debtor against whom the petition is presented or of any part thereof and may direct immediate possession to be taken of such property or business or any part thereof.

Imp. § 9 (2).

Appointment of trustee.

Meeting of creditors for appointment of persons to administer bankrupt's property. 11. When an order has been made adjudging a debtor bankrupt, herein referred to as an order of adjudication, the property of the bankrupt shall become divisible amongst his creditors in proportion to the debts proved by them in the bankruptcy and for the purpose of effecting such division the Court shall as soon as may be summon a general meeting of his creditors and the creditors assembled at such meeting shall and may do as follows: 1. They shall by resolution appoint some fit person, whether a creditor or not, to fill the office of trustee of the property of the bankrupt at such remuneration as they may from time to time determine if any; or they may resolve to leave his appointment to the committee of inspection hereinafter mentioned; 2. They shall when they appoint a trustee by resolution declare what security is to be given and to whom by the person so appointed before he enters on the office of trustee; 3. They shall by resolution appoint some other fit persons not exceeding three in number and being creditors qualified to vote at such first meeting of creditors as is in this Act mentioned or authorised in the prescribed form by creditors so qualified to vote to form a committee of inspection for the purpose of superintending the administration by the trustee of the bankrupt's property; 4. They may by resolution give directions as to the manner in which the property is to be administered by the trustee and it shall be the duty of the trustee to conform to such directions unless the Court for some just cause otherwise orders.

Imp. §§ 20, 21.

Description of bankrupt's property divisible among creditors. 12. The property of the bankrupt divisible among his creditors and in this Act referred to as the property of the bankrupt shall not comprise the following particulars: 1. Property held by the bankrupt on trust for any other person; 2. The tools (if any) of his trade and the necessary wearing apparel and bedding of himself his wife and children to a value inclusive of tools and apparel and bedding not exceeding twenty pounds in the whole. But it shall comprise the following particulars: 3. All such property as may belong to or be vested in the bankrupt at the commencement of the bankruptcy or may be acquired by or devolve on him during its continuance; 4. The capacity to exercise and to take proceedings for exercising all such powers in or over or in respect of property as might have been exercised by the bankrupt for his own benefit at the commencement of his bankruptcy or during its continuance; 5. All goods and chattels being at the commencement of the bankruptcy in the possession, order, or disposition of the bankrupt by the consent and permission of the true owner of which goods and chattels the bankrupt is reputed owner or of which he has taken upon himself the sale or disposition as owner: Provided, that things in action other than debts due to him in the course of his trade or business shall not be deemed goods and chattels within the meaning of this clause.

Imp. § 44.

Regulations as to first meeting of creditors. 13. The general meeting of creditors to be summoned as aforesaid by the Court and in this Act referred to as the first meeting of creditors shall be held in the prescribed manner and subject to the prescribed regulations as to the quorum, adjournment of meeting, and all other matters relating to the conduct of the meeting or the proceedings thereat. Provided that: 1. The meeting shall be presided over by the Registrar or in the event of his being unable to attend through illness or any unavoidable cause by such chairman as the meeting may elect; 2. A person shall not be entitled to vote as a creditor unless at or previously to the meeting he has in the prescribed manner proved a debt provable under the bankruptcy to be due to him; 3. A creditor shall not vote at the said meeting in respect of any unliquidated or contingent debt or any debt the value of which is not ascertained; 4. A secured creditor shall for the purpose of voting be deemed to be a creditor only in respect of the balance (if any) due to him after deducting the value of his security and the amount of such balance shall until the security be realized be determined in the prescribed manner. He may however at or previously to the meeting of creditors give up the security to the trustee and thereupon he shall rank as a creditor in respect of the whole sum due to him; 5. A "secured creditor" shall in this Act mean any creditor holding any mortgage, charge, or lien on the bankrupt's estate or any part thereof as security for a debt due to him. 6. Votes may be given either personally or by proxy; 7. An ordinary resolution shall be decided by a majority in value of the creditors present personally or by proxy at the meeting or voting on such resolution; 8. A special resolution shall be decided by a majority in number and three-fourths in value of the creditors present personally or by proxy at the meeting and voting on such resolution.

Imp. § 15, Sched. II.

Devolution of property on trustee. 14. Until a trustee is appointed the Registrar shall be the trustee for the purposes of this Act and immediately upon the order of adjudication being made the property of the bankrupt shall vest in the Registrar. On the appointment of a trustee the property shall forthwith pass to and vest in the trustee appointed. The expression "trustee" when used in this Act shall include the person for the time being filling the office of trustee whether he be the Registrar or not, but when the Registrar holds the office of trustee he shall unless the Court otherwise orders in the administration of the property of the bankrupt apply to the Court for directions as to the mode of administering such property and shall not take possession thereof unless directed by the Court.

Imp. § 54.

Evidence of appointment of trustee. 15. The appointment of a trustee shall be reported to the Court and the Court upon being satisfied that the requisite security has been entered into by him shall give a certificate declaring him to be trustee of the bankruptcy named in the certificate and such certificate shall be conclusive evidence of the appointment of the trustee and such appointment shall date from the date of the certificate. When the Registrar holds the office of trustee or when the trustee is changed a like certificate of the Court may be made declaring the person therein named to be trustee and such certificate shall be conclusive evidence of the person therein named being trustee.

Part II. Administration of Property.

General provisions.

Conduct of bankrupt. 16. The bankrupt shall to the utmost of his power aid in the realization of his property and the distribution of the proceeds amongst his creditors. He shall produce a statement of his affairs to the first meeting of creditors and shall be publicly examined thereon on a day to be named by the Court and subject to such adjourned public examination as the Court may direct. He shall give such inventory of his property, such list of his creditors and debtors, and of the debts due to and from them respectively, submit to such examination in respect of his property or his creditors, attend such meetings of his creditors, wait at such times on the trustee, execute such powers of attorney, conveyances, deeds, and instruments, and generally do all such acts and things in relation to his property and the distribution of the proceeds amongst his creditors as may be reasonably required by the trustee, or may be prescribed by rules of Court, or be directed by the Court by any special order or orders made in reference to any particular bankruptcy, or made on the occasion of any special application by the trustee or any creditor. If the bankrupt wilfully fail to perform the duties imposed on him by this section or if he fail to deliver up possession to the trustee of any part of his property which is divisible amongst his creditors under this act, and which may for the time being be in the possession or under the control of such bankrupt, he shall in addition to any other punishment to which he may be subject be guilty of a contempt of Court and may be punished accordingly.

Imp. § 24.

Conduct of trustee and appeal to Court against trustee. 17. The trustee shall in the administration of the property of the bankrupt and in the distribution thereof amongst his creditors have regard to any directions that may be given by resolution of the creditors at any general meeting or by the committee of inspection and any directions so given by the creditors at any general meeting shall be deemed to override any directions given by the committee of inspection; the trustee shall call a meeting of the committee of inspection once at least every three months, when they shall audit his accounts, and determine whether any or what dividend is to be paid; he may also call special meetings of the said committee as he thinks necessary. Subject to the provisions of this Act and to such directions as aforesaid the trustee shall exercise his own discretion in the management of the estate and its distribution amongst the creditors. The trustee may from time to time summon general meetings of the creditors for the purpose of ascertaining their wishes; he may also apply to the Court in manner prescribed for directions in relation to any particular matter arising under the bankruptcy. The bankrupt or any creditor, debtor, or other person aggrieved by any act of the trustee may apply to the Court, and the Court may confirm, reverse, or modify the act complained of and make such order in the premises as it may think just. The Court may from time to time during the continuance of bankruptcy summon general meetings of the creditors for the purpose of ascertaining their wishes, and may, if the Court thinks fit, direct the Registrar to preside at such meetings. The trustee shall in relation to and for the purpose of acquiring or retaining possession of the property of the bankrupt be in the same position in all respects as if he were a receiver of such property appointed by the Court of Chancery, and the Court may on his application enforce such acquisition or retention of property accordingly.

Imp. § 104.

Regulations as to general meetings of creditors subsequent to first meeting.

18. The provisions of this Act with respect to the first general meeting of creditors shall apply to any subsequent general meeting of creditors in a bankruptcy with this exception that subsequent meetings of creditors may be summoned by the trustee, or by a member of the committee of inspection and that such meetings may, unless otherwise directed by the Court, in the case of meetings summoned by the Court, be presided over by any person chosen by the creditors assembled at such meeting, and that any creditor whose debt has been proved or the value of whose debt has been ascertained at or subsequently to such first meeting shall be allowed to be present and to vote thereat.

Dealings with bankrupt's property.

Possession of property by trustee. 19. Where any portion of the property of the bankrupt consists of stock, shares in ships, shares, or any other property transferable in the books of any company, office, or person, the right to transfer such property shall be absolutely vested in the trustee to the same extent as the bankrupt might have exercised the same if he had not become bankrupt. Where any portion of such estate consists of Crown land or glebe land the trustee may deal with the same manner as the bankrupt himself but for his bankruptcy might do. By Crown land shall be meant land held subject to a quit rent commonly so called. By glebe land shall be meant land held under any sale of glebe land under any Act of the Legislature. Where any portion of the property of the bankrupt consists of things in action any action, suit, or other proceeding for the recovery of such things instituted by the trustee shall be instituted in his official name as in this Act provided; and such things shall for the purpose of such action, suit, or other proceeding be deemed to be assignable in law and to have been duly assigned to the trustee in his official capacity. The trustee shall as soon as may be take possession of the deeds, books, and documents of the bankrupt and all other property capable of manual delivery. The trustee shall keep in such manner as rules of Court shall direct proper books in which he shall from time to time make or cause to be made entries or minutes of proceedings at meetings, and of such other matters as rules of Court shall direct, and any creditor of the bankrupt may subject to the control of the Court personally or by his agent inspect such books.

Imp. § 56.

Disclaimer as to onerous property. 20. When any property of the bankrupt acquired by the trustee under this Act consists of land of any tenure burdened with onerous covenants, of unmarketable shares in companies, of unprofitable contracts, or of any other property that is unsaleable or not readily saleable, by reason of its binding the possessor thereof to the performance of any onerous act, or to the payment of any sum of money, the trustee, notwithstanding he has endeavoured to sell or has taken possession of such property or exercised any act of ownership in relation thereto, may, by writing under his hand, disclaim such property, and upon the execution of such disclaimer the property disclaimed shall, if the same is a contract be deemed to be determined from the date of the order of adjudication, and if the same is a lease be deemed to have been surrendered on the same date, and if the same be shares in any company be deemed to be forfeited from that date, and if any other species of property it shall revert to the person entitled on the determination of the estate or interest of the bankrupt; but if there shall be no person in existence so entitled then in no case shall any estate or interest therein remain in the bankrupt. Any person interested in any disclaimed property may apply to the Court, and the Court may upon such application order possession of the disclaimed property to be delivered up to him, or make such other order as to the possession thereof as may be just. Any person injured by the operation of this section shall be deemed a creditor of the bankrupt to the extent of such injury and may accordingly prove the same as a debt under the bankruptcy.

Imp. § 55.

Limitation of time for disclaimer. 21. The trustee shall not be entitled to disclaim any property in pursuance of this Act in cases where an application in writing has been made to him by any person interested in such property requiring such trustee to decide whether he will disclaim or not, and the trustee has for a period of not less than twenty-eight days after the receipt of such application or such further time as may be allowed by the Court declined or neglected to give notice whether he disclaims the same or not.

Imp. § 55 (4).

Power of trustee to deal with property. 22. Subject to the provisions of this Act, the trustee shall have power to do the following things: 1. To receive and decide upon proof of debts in the prescribed manner and for such purpose to administer oaths; 2. To carry on the business of the bankrupt so far as may be necessary for the beneficial winding, — up of the same; 3. To bring or defend any action, suit, or other legal proceeding relating to the property of the bankrupt; 4. To deal with any property to which the bankrupt is beneficially entitled as tenant in tail in the same manner as the bankrupt might have dealt with the same; and the several Acts of the Legislature of these Islands enabling the holders in fee-tail of lands in these Islands to alter the tenure of the same to fee-simple shall extend and apply to proceedings in bankruptcy under this Acts as if those Acts were here reenacted and made applicable in terms to such proceedings; 5. To exercise any powers the capacity to exercise which is vested in him under this Act and to execute all powers of attorney, deeds, and other instruments expedient or necessary for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this Act; 6. To sell all the property of the bankrupt (including the good will of the business if any and the book debts due or growing due to the bankrupt) by public auction or private contract with power if he thinks fit to transfer the whole thereof to any person or company or to sell the same in parcels; 7. To give receipts for any money received by him which receipt shall effectually discharge the person paying such moneys from all responsibility in respect of the application thereof; 8. To prove, rank, claim, and draw a dividend in the matter of the bankruptcy, or sequestration, of any debtor of the bankrupt.

Imp. § 56.

Power to allow bankrupt to manage property. 23. The trustee may appoint the bankrupt himself to superintend the management of the property or of any part thereof or to carry on the trade of the bankrupt (if any) for the benefit of the creditors and in any other respect to aid in administering the property in such manner and on such terms as the creditors direct.

Imp. § 64.

Power of trustee to compromise. 24. The trustee may, with the sanction of the committee of inspection, do all or any of the following things: 1. Mortgage or pledge any part of the property of the bankrupt for the purpose of raising money for the payment of his debts; 2. Refer any dispute to arbitration, compromise all debt, claims, and liabilities, whether present or future, certain or contingent, liquidated or unliquidated, subsisting or supposed to subsist, between the bankrupt and any debtor or person who may have incurred any liability to the bankrupt, upon the receipt of such sums, payable at such times, and generally upon such terms, as may be agreed upon; 3. Make such compromise or other arrangement as may be thought expedient with creditors, or persons claiming to be creditors, in respect of any debts provable under the bankruptcy. 4. Make such compromise or other arrangement as may be thought expedient with respect to any claim arising out of, or incidental to, the property of the bankrupt, made or capable of being made, on the trustee by any person, or by the trustee on any person; 5. To divide in its existing form amongst the creditors, according to its estimated value, any property which from its peculiar nature, or other special circumstances, can not advantageously be realised by sale. The sanction given for the purposes of this section may be a general permission to do all or any of the above mentioned things or a permission to do all or any of them in any specified case or cases.

Imp. § 57.

Power of trustee to accept composition or general scheme of arrangement.

25. The trustee may, with the sanction of a special resolution of the creditors assembled at any meeting of which notice has been given specifying the object of such meeting, accept any composition offered by the bankrupt, or assent to any general scheme of settlement of the affairs of the bankrupt, upon such terms as may be thought expedient, and with or without a condition that the order of adjudication is to be annulled, subject nevertheless to the approval of the Court, to be testified by the Judge of the Court signing the instrument containing the terms of such composition, or scheme, or embodying such terms in an order of the Court. Where the annulling the order of adjudication is made a condition of any composition with the bankrupt or of any general scheme for the liquidation of his affairs the Court if it approves of such composition or general scheme shall annul the adjudication on an application made by or on behalf of any person interested, and the adjudication shall be annulled from and after the date of the order of annulling the same. The provisions of any composition or general scheme made in pursuance of this Act may be enforced by the Court on a motion made in a summary manner by any person interested, and any disobedience of the order of the Court made on such motion shall be deemed to be a contempt of Court. The approval of the Court shall be conclusive as to the validity of any such composition or scheme, and it shall be binding on all the creditors so far as relates to any debts due to them and provable under the bankruptcy.

Trustee, if a solicitor, may be paid for services. 26. A trustee shall not without the consent of the committee of inspection employ a solicitor or other agent; but where the trustee is himself a solicitor he may contract to be paid a certain sum by way of percentage or otherwise as a remuneration for his services as trustee including all professional services; and any such contract shall notwithstanding any law to the contrary be lawful.

Imp. § 73 (2).

Trustee to pay moneys into bank. 27. The trustee shall pay all sums from time to time received by him to such person or persons as the majority of the creditors in number and value at any general meeting shall appoint; and if he at any time keep in his hands any sum exceeding fifty pounds for more than ten days he shall be subject to the following liabilities, that is to say: 1. He shall pay interest at the rate of twenty pounds per centum per annum on the excess of such sum above fifty pounds as he may retain in his hands; 2. Unless he can prove to the satisfaction of the Court that his reason for retaining the money was sufficient he shall on the application of any creditor be dismissed from his office by the Court, and shall have no claim for remuneration, and be liable to any expenses to which the creditors may be put by or in consequence of his dismissal.

Imp. § 75.

Payment of debts and distribution of assets.

Description of debts provable in bankruptcy. 28. Demands in the nature of unliquidated damages arising otherwise than by reason of a contract or promise shall not be provable in bankruptcy and no person having notice of any act of bankruptcy available for adjudication against the bankrupt shall prove for any debt or liability contracted by the bankrupt subsequently to the date of his so having notice. Save as aforesaid all debts and liabilities, present or future, certain or contingent, to which the bankrupt is subject at the date of the order of adjudication or to which he may become subject during the continuance of the bankruptcy by reason of any obligation incurred previously to the date of the order of adjudication shall be deemed to be debts provable in bankruptcy and may be proved in the prescribed manner before the trustee in the bankruptcy. An estimate shall be made according to the rules of the Court for the time being in force so far as the same may be applicable and where they are not applicable at the discretion of the trustee of the value of any debt or liability provable as aforesaid which by reason of its being subject to any contingency or contingencies or for any other reason does not bear a certain value. Any person aggrieved by any estimate made by the trustee as aforesaid may appeal to the Court and the Court may if it think the value of the debt or liability incapable of being fairly estimated make an order to that effect and upon such order being made such debt or liability shall for the purposes of this Act be deemed to be a debt not provable in bankruptcy; but if the Court think that the value of the debt or liability is capable of being fairly estimated it may direct such value to be assessed with the consent of all the parties interested before the Court itself without the intervention of a jury or if such parties do not consent by a jury of six qualified persons to be summoned by the Court in a summary manner for the purpose and may give all necessary directions for such purpose and the amount of such value when assessed shall be provable as a debt under the bankruptcy. "Liability" shall for the purposes of this Act include any compensation for work or labour done, any obligation or possibility of an obligation to pay money or money's worth on the breach of any express or implied covenant, contract, agreement, or undertaking whether such breach does or does not occur, or is or is not likely to occur, or capable of occurring before the close of the bankruptcy, and generally it shall include any express or implied engagement, agreement, or undertaking to pay, or capable of resulting in the payment of money or money's worth whether such payment be as respects amount fixed or unliquidated; as respects time present or future, certain or dependent on any one contingency, or on two or more contingencies; as to mode of valuation capable of being ascertained by fixed rules, or assessable only by a jury, or as a matter of opinion.

Imp. § 37.

Preferential debts. 29. The debts hereinafter mentioned shall be paid in priority to all other debts. Between themselves such debts shall rank equally and shall be paid in full unless the property of the bankrupt is insufficient to meet them in which case they shall abate in equal proportions between themselves, that is to say: 1. All parochial or other local rates and taxes due from him at the date of the order of adjudication and having become due and payable within twelve months next before such time; 2. All wages or salary of any clerk or servant in the employment of the bankrupt at the date of the order of adjudication not exceeding six months' wages or salary and not exceeding fifty pounds; all wages of any labourer or workman in the employment of the bankrupt at the date of the order of adjudication and not exceeding two months' wages. Save as aforesaid all debts provable under the bankruptcy shall be paid pari passu.

Imp. 51 & 52 Vic. c. 62, § 1.

Preferential claims in case of apprenticeship. 30. Where at the time of the presentation of the petition for adjudication any person is apprenticed or is an articulated clerk to the bankrupt the order of adjudication shall if either the bankrupt or apprentice or clerk give notice in writing to the trustee to that effect be a complete discharge of the indenture of apprenticeship or articles of agreement, and if any money has been paid by or on behalf of such apprentice or clerk to the bankrupt as a fee the trustee may on the application of the apprentice or clerk or of some person on his behalf pay such sum as such trustee subject to an appeal to the Court thinks reasonable out of the bankrupt's property to or for the use of the apprentice or clerk, regard being had to the amount paid by him or on his behalf and to the time during which he served with the bankrupt under the indenture or articles before the commencement of the bankruptcy and to the other circumstances of the case. Where it appears expedient to a trustee he may on the application of any apprentice or articulated clerk to the bankrupt or any person acting on behalf of such apprentice or articulated clerk instead of acting under the preceding provisions of this section transfer the indenture of apprenticeship or articles of agreement to some other person.

Imp. § 41.

Power of landlord to distrain for rent. 31. The landlord or other person to whom any rent is due from the bankrupt may at any time either before or after the commencement of the bankruptcy, distrain upon the goods or effects of the bankrupt, in the manner allowed by law, for the rent due to him from the bankrupt, with this limitation, that if such distress for rent be levied after the commencement of the bankruptcy it shall be available only for one year's rent accrued due prior to the date of the order of adjudication; but the landlord or other person to whom the rent may be due from the bankrupt may prove under the bankruptcy for the overplus due for which the distress may not have been available.

Imp. § 42.

Proof in case of rent and parochial payment. 32. When any rent or other payment falls due at stated periods and the order of adjudication is made at any time other than one of such periods the person entitled to such rent or payment may prove for a proportionate part thereof up to the day of adjudication as if such rent or payment grew due from day to day.

Imp. Sched. II, § 19.

Interest on debts. 33. Interest on any debt provable in bankruptcy may be allowed by the trustee under the same circumstances in which interest would have been allowable by a jury if an action had been brought for such debt.

Imp. Sched. II, § 20.

Proof in respect of distinct contracts. 34. If any bankrupt is at the date of the order of adjudication, liable in respect of distinct contracts as member of two or more distinct firms, or as a sole contractor and also as member of a firm, the circumstance that such firms are in whole or in part composed of the same individuals, or that the sole contractor is also one of the joint contractors, shall not prevent proof in respect of such contracts against the properties respectively liable under such contracts.

Imp. Sched. II, § 18.

Allowance to bankrupt for maintenance or service. 35. The trustee with the consent of the creditors, testified by a resolution passed in general meeting, may from time to time during the continuance of the bankruptcy make such allowance as may be approved by the creditors to the bankrupt out of his property for the support of the bankrupt and his family, or in consideration of his services if he is engaged in winding up his estate.

Imp. § 64 (2).

Set off. 36. Where there have been mutual credits, mutual debts, or other mutual dealings between the bankrupt and any other person proving or claiming to prove a debt under his bankruptcy an account shall be taken of what is due from the one party to the other in respect of such mutual dealings and the sums due from the one party shall be set off against any sum due from the other party, and the balance of such account and no more shall be claimed or paid on either side respectively; but a person shall not be entitled under this section to claim the benefit of any set off against the property of a bankrupt in any case where he had at the time of giving credit to the bankrupt notice of an act of bankruptcy committed by such bankrupt and available against him for adjudication.

Imp. § 38.

Provisions as to secured creditors. 37. A creditor holding a specific security on the property of the bankrupt or any part thereof may on giving up his security prove for his whole debt. He shall also be entitled to a dividend in respect of the balance due to him after realizing or giving credit for the value of his security in manner and at the time prescribed. A creditor holding such security as aforesaid and not complying with the foregoing conditions shall be excluded from all share in any dividend.

Distribution of dividends. 38. The trustee shall from time to time when the committee of inspection determines declare a dividend amongst the creditors who have proved to his satisfaction debts provable in bankruptcy, and shall distribute the same accordingly and in the event of his not declaring a dividend for the space of six months he shall summon a meeting of the creditors and explain to them his reasons for not declaring the same.

Imp. § 58.

Provisions for creditors residing at a distance, etc. 39. In the calculation and distribution of a dividend it shall be obligatory on the trustee to make provision for debts provable in bankruptcy appearing from the bankrupt's statements or otherwise to be due to persons resident in places so distant from the place where the trustee is acting that in the ordinary course of communication they have not had sufficient time to tender their proofs or to establish them if disputed and also for debts provable in bankruptcy the subject of claims not yet determined.

Imp. § 60.

Right of creditor who has not proved debt before declaration of dividend. 40.

Any creditor who has not proved his debt before the declaration of any dividend or dividends shall be entitled to be paid out of any moneys for the time being in the hand of the trustee any dividend or dividends he may have failed to receive before such moneys are made applicable to the payment of any future dividend or dividends but he shall not be entitled to disturb the distribution of any dividend declared before his debt was proved by reason that he has not participated therein.

Imp. § 61.

Final dividend. 41. When the trustee has converted into money all the property of the bankrupt or so much thereof as can in the joint opinion of himself and of the committee of inspection be realized without needlessly protracting the bankruptcy he shall declare a final dividend and give notice of the time at which it will be distributed.

Imp. § 62.

Bankrupt entitled to surplus. 42. The bankrupt shall be entitled to any surplus remaining after payment of his creditors and of the costs, charges, and expenses of the bankruptcy.

Imp. § 65.

No action for dividend. 43. No action or suit for a dividend shall lie against the trustee, but if the trustee refuses to pay any dividend the Court may if it thinks fit order the trustee to pay the same and also to pay out of his own moneys interest thereon for the time that it is withheld and the costs of the application.

Imp. § 63.

Close of bankruptcy.

Close of bankruptcy. 44. When the whole property of the bankrupt has been realized for the benefit of his creditors or so much thereof as can in the joint opinion of the trustee and committee of inspection be realized without needlessly protracting the bankruptcy, or a composition or arrangement has been completed, the trustee shall make a report accordingly to the Court and the Court if satisfied that the whole of the property of the bankrupt has been realized for the benefit of his creditors, or so much thereof as can be realized without needlessly protracting the bankruptcy, or that a composition or arrangement has been completed, shall make an order that the bankruptcy has closed and the bankruptcy shall be deemed to have closed at and after the date of such order. A copy of the order closing the bankruptcy may be published in the Gazette and the production of a copy of such Gazette containing a copy of the order shall be conclusive evidence of the order having been made and of the date and contents thereof.

Imp. § 82.

Discharge of bankrupt.

Order of discharge. 45. When a bankruptcy is closed or at any time during its continuance with the assent of the creditors testified by a special resolution the bankrupt may apply to the Court for an order of discharge; but such discharge shall not be granted unless it is proved to the Court that one of the following conditions has been fulfilled, that is to say, either that a dividend of not less than ten shillings in the pound has been paid out of his property, or might have been paid except through the negligence or fraud of the trustee, or that a special resolution of his creditors has been passed to the effect that his bankruptcy or the failure to pay ten shillings in the pound has in their opinion arisen from circumstances for which the bankrupt can not justly be held responsible and that they desire that an order of discharge should be granted to him; and the Court may suspend for such time as it deems to be just or withhold altogether the order of discharge in the circumstances following; namely, if it appears to the Court on the representation of the creditors made by special resolution of the truth of which representation the Court is satisfied, or by other sufficient evidence, that the bankrupt has made default in giving up to his creditors the property which he is required by this Act to give up; or that a prosecution has been commenced against him in pursuance of the provision relative to the punishment of fraudulent debtors contained in the

Debtors Act, 1876. in respect of any offence alleged to have been committed by him against that Act.

Imp. § 28.

Effect of order of discharge. 46. An order of discharge shall not release the bankrupt from any debt or liability incurred by means of any fraud or breach of trust nor from any debt or liability whereof he has obtained forbearance by any fraud but it shall release the bankrupt from all other debts provable under the bankruptcy with the exception of: 1. Debts due to the Crown; 2. Debts with which the bankrupt stands charged at the suit of the Crown or of any person for any offence against a statute relating to any branch of the Public Revenue or at the suit of the Provost Marshal General or other Public Officer on a bail bond entered into for the appearance of any person prosecuted for any such offence. And he shall not be discharged from such excepted debts unless the Governor of these Islands by and with the advice and consent of Her Majesty's Council certify in writing his consent to his being discharged therefrom. An order of discharge shall be sufficient evidence of the bankruptcy and of the validity of the proceedings thereon and in any proceedings that may be instituted against a bankrupt who has obtained an order of discharge in respect of any debt from which he is released by such order the bankrupt may plead that the cause of action occurred before his discharge and may give this Act and the special matter in evidence.

Imp. § 30 (1-3).

Exception of joint debtors. 47. The order of discharge shall not release any person who at the date of the order of adjudication was a partner with the bankrupt or was jointly bound, or had made any joint contract with him.

Imp. § 30 (4).

Release of trustee.

Release of trustee. 48. When the bankruptcy is closed the trustee shall call a meeting of the creditors to consider an application to be made to the Court for his release. At the meeting the trustee shall lay before the assembled creditors an account shewing the manner in which the bankruptcy has been conducted with a list of the unclaimed dividends, if any outstanding, and shall inform the meeting that he proposes to apply to the Court for a release. The creditors assembled at the meeting may express their opinion as to the conduct of the trustee and they or any of them may appear before the Court and oppose the release of the trustee. The Court after hearing what if anything can be urged against the release of the trustee shall grant or withhold the release accordingly, and if it withhold the release shall make such order as it thinks just charging the trustee with the consequences of any act or default he may have done or made, contrary to his duty, and shall suspend his release until such charging order has been complied with and the Court thinks just to grant the release of the trustee.

Imp. § 82 (1, 2).

Duty of trustee as to unclaimed dividends and outstanding property. 49. Unclaimed dividends and any other monies arising from the property of the bankrupt remaining under the control of the trustee at the close of the bankruptcy of any bankrupt or accruing thereafter shall be paid into the Public Treasury of these Islands, and any parties entitled thereto may claim the same in manner directed by the rules of the Court, the Receiver General being entitled to deduct therefrom a commission of sixpence in the pound on paying out the same. The trustee shall also deliver a list of any outstanding property of the bankrupt to the prescribed persons and the same shall when practicable be got in and applied for the benefit of the creditors in manner prescribed.

Effect of release of trustee. 50. The order of the Court releasing the trustee of a bankruptcy shall discharge him from all liability in respect of any act done or default made by him in the administration of the affairs of the bankrupt or otherwise in relation to his conduct as trustee of such bankrupt, but such order may be revoked by the Court on proof that it was obtained by fraud.

Imp. § 82 (3).

Status of undischarged bankrupt.

Status of undischarged bankrupt. 51. Where a person who has been made bankrupt has not obtained his discharge then, from and after the close of his bankruptcy the following consequences shall ensue: 1. No portion of a debt provable under the bankruptcy shall be enforced against the property of the person so made bankrupt until the expiration of three years from the close of the bankruptcy, and during that time if he pay to his creditors such additional sum as will with the dividends paid out of his property during the bankruptcy make up ten shillings in the pound he shall be entitled to an order of discharge in the same manner as if a dividend of ten shillings in the pound had originally been paid out of his property; 2. At the expiration of a period of three years from the close of the bankruptcy if the debtor made bankrupt has not obtained an order of discharge any balance remaining unpaid in respect of any debt proved in such bankruptcy (but without interest in the meantime) shall be deemed to be a subsisting debt in the nature of a judgment debt and subject to the rights of any persons who have become creditors of the debtor since the close of his bankruptcy may be enforced against any property of the debtor with the sanction of the Court but to the extent only and at the time and in manner directed by such Court and after giving such notice and doing such acts as may be prescribed in that behalf.

Audit.

Registrar to be auditor. 52. The trustee having had his quarterly statement of accounts audited by the committee of inspection shall within the prescribed time forward the certified statement in the prescribed form to the Registrar.

Imp. § 78 (1, 2).

Return of accounts to Registrar. 53. Every trustee of a bankrupt shall from time to time as may be prescribed and not less than once in every year during the bankruptcy transmit to the Registrar a statement showing the proceedings in such bankruptcy up to the date of the statement containing the prescribed particulars and made out in the prescribed form and any trustee failing to transmit accounts in compliance with this section shall be deemed guilty of a contempt of Court and be punishable accordingly.

Imp. § 81.

Duty of Registrar. 54. The Registrar shall examine the statements transmitted to him and shall call the trustee to account for any misfeasance, neglect, or omission which may appear on such statements and may require the trustee to make good any loss the estate of the bankrupt may have sustained by such misfeasance, neglect, or omission. If the trustee fail to comply with such requisition of the Registrar the Registrar may report the same to the Court, and the Court, after hearing the explanation if any of the trustee, shall make such order in the premises as it thinks just.

Powers of Registrar. 55. The Registrar may at any time require any trustee to answer any inquiry made by him in relation to any bankruptcy in which such trustee is engaged, and may if he think fit apply to the Court to examine on oath such trustee, or any other person, concerning such bankruptcy; he may also direct an investigation to be made of the books and vouchers of the trustees.

Part III. Constitution and Powers of Court.

Description of Court.

Court of General Assize to be the Court of bankruptcy. 56. The Court of General Assize shall constitute the Court of bankruptcy for the execution and purposes of this Act; and every Judge of the Court of General Assize shall be a Judge of the Court of bankruptcy and the Court shall sit on application to the Chief Justice or in his absence the senior Assistant Justice whenever the business shall require it.

The jurisdiction is now vested in the Supreme Court. — Act No. 4 of 1905, § 3.

Court to be a Court of record. 57. The Court shall for the purposes of jurisdiction in bankruptcy be a Court of law and of equity and a Court of record.

General power of the Court. 58. Subject to the provisions of this Act the Court shall have full power to decide all questions of priorities, and all other questions whatsoever, whether of law or fact, arising in any case of bankruptcy coming within the cognizance of such Court, or which the Court may deem it expedient or necessary to decide for the purpose of doing complete justice, or making a complete distribution of property, in any such case; and the Court shall not be subject to be restrained in the execution of its powers under this Act by the order of any other Court, nor shall any appeal lie from its decision except in manner directed by this Act; and if in any proceeding in bankruptcy there arises any question of fact which the parties desire to be tried before a jury instead of by the Court itself, or which the Court thinks ought to be tried by a jury, the Court may direct such trial to be had, and such trial may be had accordingly, in the Court before a jury of six persons qualified by law to serve as jurors in the Court of General Assize to be summoned in a summary manner by order of the Court and sworn and empanelled for the trial of the question which they are summoned to try.

[59—60 are repealed.]

Commitment to prison. 61. When the Court commits any person to prison the commitment may be to such prison as the Court thinks expedient, and if the gaoler of any prison refuse to receive any prisoner so committed he shall be liable for every such refusal to a penalty not exceeding one hundred pounds.

Rules of Court.

General rules to be made by the Court. 62. The Court may from time to time make, and may from time to time revoke and alter, general rules, in this Act described as rules of Court, for the effectual execution of this Act, and of the objects thereof, and the regulation of the practice and procedure of bankruptcy petitions and the proceedings therein; and such rules shall go into force after being sanctioned by the Governor and Council and shall continue in force until revoked or altered with their consent. Any general rules made as aforesaid, may prescribe regulations as to the service of bankruptcy petitions, including provisions for substituted service; as to the valuation of any debts provable in a bankruptcy; as to the valuation of securities held by creditors; as to the giving or withholding interest or discount on or in respect of debts or dividends; as to the funds out of which costs are to be paid, the order of payment, and the amount and taxation thereof; and as to any other matter or thing whether similar or not to those above enumerated, in respect of which it may be expedient to make rules for carrying into effect the objects of this Act; and any rules made and sanctioned as aforesaid shall be deemed to be within the powers conferred by this Act, and shall be of the same force as if they were enacted in the body of this Act.

Imp. § 127. The Rules of Court in force at the time of the commencement of the Supreme Court Act, 1905, were not affected by that Act. — Act No. 4 of 1905, § 14.

Power to administer oaths. 63. Every Judge and Registrar of the Court and every person appointed by the Court a Commissioner to receive oaths in bankruptcy or in such cases as are allowed by law, solemn declarations instead of oaths, shall have power to administer oaths or solemn declarations in all matters and proceedings in bankruptcy or preliminary or preparatory to any proceeding in bankruptcy.

[64—65 are repealed.]

Fees to Judges and officers. 66. Jurors sworn in the Court shall be allowed such remuneration as is allowed by law to jurors serving in the Court of General Assize. The officers and solicitors of the Court shall in all business transacted by them be allowed such fees to be paid by the parties as shall be prescribed by the Court and sanctioned by the Legislature.

Imp. §§ 128, 129.

[67 is repealed.]

Part IV. Supplemental Provisions.

As to proceedings.

Supplemental regulations as to proceedings in bankruptcy. 68. The following regulations shall be made with respect to proceedings in bankruptcy, namely: 1. Every bankruptcy petition shall be accompanied by an affidavit of the petitioner in the prescribed form verifying the statements contained in such petition; 2. Where two or more bankruptcy petitions are presented against the same debtor or against debtors being members of the same partnership the Court may consolidate the proceedings or any of them upon such terms as the Court thinks fit; 3. A corporation may prove a debt, vote, and otherwise act in bankruptcy by an agent duly authorized under the seal of the corporation; 4. A creditor may in the prescribed manner by instrument in writing appoint a person to represent him in all matters relating to any debtor or his affairs in which a creditor is concerned in pursuance of this Act and such representative shall thereupon for all the purposes of this Act stand in the same position as the creditor who appointed him; 5. When a debtor who has been adjudicated a bankrupt dies the Court may order that the proceedings in the matter be continued as if he were alive; 6. The Court may at any time on proof to its satisfaction that proceedings in bankruptcy ought to be stayed, by reason that negotiations are pending for the liquidation of the affairs of the bankrupt by arrangement, or for the acceptance of a composition by the creditors in pursuance of the provisions hereinafter contained, or on proof to its satisfaction of any other sufficient reason for staying the same, make an order staying the same either altogether or for a limited time, on such terms and subject to such conditions, as the Court may think just.

Imp. § 105.

Consequences of annulling of adjudication. 69. Whenever any adjudication in bankruptcy is annulled, all sales, and disposition of property, and payments duly made, and all acts theretofore done by the trustee, or any person acting under his authority, or by the Court, shall be valid; but the property of the debtor who was adjudged a bankrupt shall in such case vest in such person as the Court may appoint, or in default of any such appointment revert to the bankrupt for all his estate or interest therein, upon such terms and subject to such conditions if any as the Court may declare by order. A copy of the order of the Court annulling the adjudication of a debtor as a bankrupt shall be forthwith published in the Gazette and the production of a copy of the Gazette containing such order shall be conclusive evidence of the fact of the adjudication having been annulled and of the terms of the order annulling the same.

Imp. § 132.

Formal defects not to invalidate proceedings. 70. No proceeding in bankruptcy shall be invalidated by any formal defect or by any irregularity unless the Court before which an objection is made to such proceeding is of opinion that substantial injustice has been caused by such defect or irregularity and that such injustice can not be remedied by any order of such Court.

Imp. § 143.

As to trustee and committees of inspection.

Regulations of the trustees, etc. 71. The following regulations shall be made with respect to the trustee and committee of inspection: 1. The creditors may if they think fit appoint more persons than one to the office of trustee, and where more than one are appointed they shall declare whether any act required or authorised to be done by the trustee is to be done by all or any one or more of such persons, but all such persons are in this Act included under the term "trustee" and shall be joint tenants of the property of the bankrupt. The creditors may also appoint persons to act as trustees in succession in the event of one or more of the persons first named declining to accept the office of trustee; 2. If any vacancy occur in the office of trustee by death, resignation, or otherwise the creditors in general meeting for the purpose of filling up such vacancy may be convened by the continuing trustee if there be more than one or by the Registrar on the requisition of any creditor. 3. If through any cause whatever there is no trustee acting during the continuance of a bankruptcy the Registrar of the Court for the time being having jurisdiction in the bankruptcy shall act as such trustee; 4. The Court may upon cause shown remove any trustee. The creditors may be special resolution at a meeting specially called for that purpose, of which seven days' notice has been given, remove the trustee and appoint another person to fill his office, and the Court shall give a certificate declaring him to be the trustee; 5. If a trustee be adjudged bankrupt he shall cease to be trustee, and the Registrar shall if there be no other trustee call a meeting of creditors for the appointment of another trustee in his place; 6. The property of the bankrupt shall pass from trustee to trustee, including under that term the Registrar when he fills the office of trustee, and shall vest in the trustee for the time being during his continuance in office without any conveyance, assignment, or transfer whatever; 7. The trustee of a bankrupt may sue and be sued by the official name of "The Trustee of the property of a bankrupt," inserting the name of the bankrupt, and by that name may hold property of every description, make contracts, sue and be sued, enter into any engagements binding upon himself and his successors in office, and do all other acts necessary or expedient to be done in the execution of his office; 8. The certificate of appointment of a trustee shall for all purposes of any law in force in these Islands requiring registration, enrolment, or recording of conveyances or assignments of property, be deemed to be a conveyance or assignment of property and may be registered, enrolled, and recorded accordingly; 9. Any member of the committee of inspection may resign his office by notice in writing signed by him and delivered to the trustee; 10. The creditors may by resolution fix the quorum required to be present at a meeting of the committee of inspection; 11. Any member of the committee of inspection may also be removed by a special resolution at any meeting of creditors of which the prescribed notice has been given stating the object of the meeting; 12. On any vacancy occurring in the office of a member of the committee of inspection by removal, death, resignation, or otherwise the trustee shall convene a meeting of creditors for the purpose of filling up such vacancy; 13. The continuing members of the committee of inspection may act notwithstanding any vacancy in their body and where the number of members of the committee of inspection is for the time being less than five the creditors may increase that number so that it do not exceed five; 14. No defect or irregularity in the election of a trustee or of a member of the committee of inspection shall vitiate any act bona fide done by him; and no act or proceeding of the trustee or of the creditors shall be invalid by reason of any failure of the creditors to elect all or any members of the committee of inspection; 15. If a member of the committee of inspection become a bankrupt his office shall thereupon become vacant; 16. Where there is no committee of inspection any act or thing, or any direction or consent by this Act authorized or required to be done or given by such committee may be done or given by the Court on the application of the trustee.

Imp. §§ 21, 22.

Power of Court on failure of creditors to appoint trustee. 72. The Registrar may adjourn the first meeting of creditors from time to time and from place to place subject to the directions of the Court; but if at such first meeting of creditors or at any such adjournment thereof no trustee is appointed by reason of the prescribed quorum not being present or for any other reason whatever the Court may annul the adjudication unless it deems it expedient to carry on the bankruptcy with the aid of the Registrar as trustee. Moreover if any time during the bankruptcy no new trustee is appointed to fill a vacancy in that office the Court may either carry on the bankruptcy with the aid of the Registrar as trustee or annul the order of adjudication as it thinks just.

As to power over bankrupt.

Arrest of bankrupt under certain circumstances. 73. The Court may by warrant addressed to any constable or prescribed officer of the Court cause a debtor to be arrested and any books, papers, money, goods, and chattels in his possession to be seized and him and them to be safely kept as prescribed until such time as the Court may order under the following circumstances: 1. If after a petition of bankruptcy is presented against such debtor it appear to the Court that there is probable reason for believing that he is about to go abroad, or to quit his place of residence with a view of avoiding service of the petition, or of avoiding appearing to the petition, or of avoiding examination in respect of his affairs, or otherwise delaying or embarrassing the proceedings in bankruptcy; 2. If after a petition in bankruptcy has been presented against such debtor it appear to the Court that there is probable cause for believing that he is about to remove his goods or chattels with a view of preventing or delaying such goods or chattels being taken possession of by the trustee, or that there is probable ground for believing that he has concealed, or is about to conceal, or destroy, any of his goods or chattels, or any books, documents, or writings which might be of use to his creditors in the course of his bankruptcy; 3. If after the service of the petition on such debtor or after an adjudication in bankruptcy against him he remove any goods or chattels in his possession above the value of five pounds without the leave of the trustee, or if without good cause shewn he fails to attend any examination ordered by the Court.

Imp. § 25 (1).

Proceeds of sale and seizure of goods. 74. Where the goods of any person have been taken in execution in respect of a judgment for a sum exceeding fifty pounds and sold, the Provost Marshal General or other officer holding the proceeds of such goods shall retain the proceeds of such sale in his hands for a period of fourteen days and upon notice being served on him within that period of a bankruptcy petition having been presented against such person shall hold the proceeds of such sale after deducting expenses on trust to pay the same to the trustee; but if no notice of such petition having been presented be served on him within such period of fourteen days, or if such notice having been served the person against whom the petition has been presented is not adjudged a bankrupt on such petition or on any other petition of which the Provost Marshal General or other officer has notice, he may deal with the proceeds of such sale in the same manner as he would have done had no notice of the presentation of a bankruptcy petition been served on him.

Appropriation of portion of pay of officers to creditors. 75. Where a bankrupt is or has been an officer of the army or navy, or an officer or clerk, or otherwise employed or engaged in the civil service of the Crown, or is in the enjoyment of any pension or compensation granted by the Treasury or payable out of the Public Treasury of these Islands, the trustee during the bankruptcy, and the Registrar after the close of the bankruptcy, shall receive for distribution amongst the creditors so much of the bankrupt's pay, half-pay, salary, emolument, or pension as the Court upon the application of the trustee thinks just and reasonable to be paid in such manner and at such times as the Court, with the consent in writing of the chief officer of the Department under which the pay, half-pay, salary, emolument, pension, or compensation is enjoyed directs.

Imp. § 53 (1).

Appropriation of portion of salary to creditors. 76. Where a bankrupt is in the receipt of a salary or income other than as aforesaid the Court upon the application of the trustee shall from time to time make such order as it thinks just for the payment of such salary or income or of any part thereof to the trustee during the bankruptcy and to the Registrar if necessary after the close of the bankruptcy to be applied by him in such manner as the Court may direct.

Imp. § 53 (2).

Avoidance of voluntary settlements. 77. Any settlement of property made by any person not being a settlement made before and in consideration of marriage, or made in favor of a purchaser or incumbrancer in good faith and for valuable consideration, or a settlement made on or for the wife or children of the settler of property which has accrued to the settler after marriage in right of his wife, shall, if the settler becomes bankrupt within two years after the date of such settlement, be void as against the trustee of the bankrupt appointed under this Act, and shall, if the settler becomes bankrupt at any subsequent time within ten years after the date of such settlement, unless the parties claiming under such settlement can prove that the settler was at the time of making the settlement able to pay all his debts without the aid of the property comprised in such settlement be void against such trustee. Any covenant or contract made by any person in consideration of marriage for the future settlement upon or for his wife or children of any money or property wherein he had not at the date of his marriage any estate or interest whether vested or contingent in possession or remainder and not being money or property of or in right of his wife, shall upon his becoming bankrupt before such property or money has been actually transferred or paid pursuant to such contract or covenant, be void against his trustee appointed under this Act. "Settlement" shall for the purposes of this section include any conveyance or transfer of property.

Imp. § 47.

Avoidance of fraudulent preferences. 78. Every conveyance or transfer of property or charge thereon made, every payment made, every obligation incurred, and every judicial proceeding taken or suffered, by any person unable to pay his debts as they become due from his own moneys in favour of any creditor, or any person in trust for any creditor with a view of giving such creditor a preference over the other creditors, shall, if the person making, taking, paying, or suffering the same become bankrupt within three months after the date of making, taking, paying, or suffering the same be deemed fraudulent and void as against the trustee of the bankrupt appointed under this Act; but this section shall not affect the rights of a purchaser, payee, or incumbrancer in good faith and for valuable consideration.

Imp. § 48.

Payment of money by agents to trustee. 79. Any treasurer or other officer, or any banker, attorney, or agent of a bankrupt, shall pay and deliver to the trustee all moneys and securities in his possession or power as such officer or agent, if he be not by law entitled to retain as against the bankrupt or the trustee; if he do not he shall be guilty of a contempt of Court, and may be punished accordingly on the application of the trustee.

Protection of certain transactions with bankrupt. 80. Nothing in this Act contained shall render invalid: 1. Any payment made in good faith and for value received to any bankrupt before the date of the order of adjudication by a person not having at the time of such payment notice of any act of bankruptcy committed by the bankrupt and available against him for adjudication; 2. Any payment or delivery of money or goods belonging to a bankrupt made to such bankrupt by a depository of such money or goods before the date of the order of adjudication who had not at the time of such payment or delivery notice of any act of bankruptcy committed by the bankrupt and available against him for adjudication; 3. Any contract or dealing with any bankrupt made in good faith and for valuable consideration before the date of the order of adjudication by a person not having at the time of making such contract or dealing notice of any act of bankruptcy committed by the bankrupt and available against him for adjudication.

Imp. § 49.

Protection of certain transactions entered into by or relating to the property of the bankrupt. 81. Subject and without prejudice to the provisions of this Act relating to the proceeds of the sale and seizure of goods of any person, and to the provisions of this Act avoiding certain settlements, and avoiding, on the ground of their constituting fraudulent preferences, certain conveyances, charges, payments, and judicial proceedings, the following transactions, by and in relation to the property of a bankrupt, shall be valid notwithstanding any prior act of bankruptcy: 1. Any disposition or contract with respect to the disposition of property, by conveyance, transfer, charge, delivery of goods, payment of money or otherwise howsoever, made by any bankrupt in good faith, and for valuable consideration, before the date of the order of adjudication, with any person not having at the time of the making of such disposition of property notice of any act of bankruptcy committed by the bankrupt, and available against him for adjudication; 2. Any execution or attachment against the land of the bankrupt, executed in good faith, by seizure before the date of the order of adjudication, if the person on whose account such execution or attachment was issued had not, at the time of the same being so executed, by seizure, notice of any act of bankruptcy committed by the bankrupt, and available against him for adjudication; 3. Any execution or attachment against the goods of any bankrupt, executed in good faith by seizure and sale, before the date of the order of adjudication, if the person on whose account such execution or attachment was issued had not, at the time of the same being executed by seizure and sale, notice of any act of bankruptcy committed by the bankrupt, and available against him for adjudication.

Imp. § 49.

As to the discovery of bankrupt's property.

Court to summon persons before it suspected of having property of bankrupt. 82. The Court may on the application of the trustee at any time after an order of adjudication has been made against a bankrupt summon before it the bankrupt, or his wife, or any person whatever known or suspected to have in his possession any of the estate or effects belonging to the bankrupt, or supposed to be indebted to the bankrupt, or any person whom the Court may deem capable of giving information respecting the bankrupt, his trade, dealings, or property, and the Court may require any such person to produce any documents in his custody or power relating to the bankrupt, his dealings or property; and if any person so summoned, refuses to come before the Court at the time appointed, or refuses to produce such documents, having no lawful impediment made known to the Court at the time of its sitting, and allowed by it, the Court may, by warrant addressed as aforesaid, cause such person to be apprehended and brought up for examination.

Imp. § 27 (1, 2).

Examination of parties by Court. 83. The Court may examine upon oath, either by word of mouth or written interrogatories, any person so brought before it in manner aforesaid concerning the bankrupt, his dealings, or property.

Imp. § 27 (3).

Order of Court for payment of amount admitted on examination. 84. If any person on examination before the Court admit he is indebted to the bankrupt, the Court may on the application of the trustee, order him to pay to the trustee, at such time and in such manner as to the Court seems expedient, the amount admitted, or any part thereof, either in full discharge of the whole amount in question or not, as the Court thinks fit, with or without costs of the examination.

Imp. § 27 (4).

Seizure of property of bankrupt. 85. Any person acting under warrant of the Court may seize any property of the bankrupt divisible amongst his creditors under this Act, and in the bankrupt's custody or possession, or in that of any other person, and with a view to such seizure may break open any house, building, or room of the bankrupt, where the bankrupt is supposed to be, or any building or receptacle of the bankrupt where any of his property is supposed to be; and where the Court is satisfied that there is reason to believe that property of the bankrupt is concealed in a house or place not belonging to him, the Court may, if it thinks fit grant a search warrant to any constable or prescribed officer of the Court who may execute the same according to the tenor thereof.

Imp. § 51.

Power to present petition against one partner. 86. Any creditor whose debt is sufficient to entitle him to present a bankruptcy petition against all the partners of a firm may present such petition against any one or more partners of such firm without including the others.

Imp. § 110.

Power to dismiss petition against some respondents only. 87. Where there are more respondents than one to a petition the Court may dismiss the petition as to one or more of them without prejudice to the effect of the petition as against the other or others of them.

Imp. § 111.

Property of partners to be vested in same trustee. 88. Where one member of a partnership has been adjudicated a bankrupt any other petition for adjudication against a member of the same partnership shall be filed in the Court, and unless the Court otherwise directs, the property of such last mentioned member shall vest in the trustee appointed in respect of the property of the first mentioned member of the partnership; and the Court may give such directions for amalgamating the proceedings in respect of the properties of the members of the same partnership as it thinks just.

Imp. § 112.

Joint creditor may prove for purpose of voting. 89. If one partner of a firm is adjudged bankrupt any creditor to whom the bankrupt is indebted jointly with the other partners of the firm or any of them may prove his debt for the purpose of voting at any meeting of creditors, and shall be entitled to vote thereat, but shall not receive any dividend out of the separate property of the bankrupt until all the separate creditors have received the full amount of their respective debts.

Imp. § 114.

Joint and separate dividends. 90. Where joint and separate properties are being administered dividends of the joint and separate properties shall, subject to any order to the contrary that may be made by the Court on the application of any person interested, be declared together; and the expenses of and incident to such dividends shall be fairly apportioned by the trustee between the joint and separate properties, regard being had to the work done for and the benefit received by each property.

Imp. § 59 (2).

Suits by trustee and bankrupt's partner. 91. Where a member of a partnership is adjudged bankrupt the Court may authorize the trustee, with consent of the creditors certified by a special resolution, to commence and prosecute any action or suit in the names of the trustee and of the bankrupt's partner; and any release by such partner of the debt or demand to which the action or suit relates shall be void; but notice of the application for authority to commence the action or suit shall be given to such partner, and he may show cause against it, and on his application the Court may, if it thinks fit, directed that he shall receive his proper share of the proceeds of the action or suit, and, if he does not claim any benefit therefrom he shall be indemnified against costs in respect thereof as the Court directs.

Imp. § 113.

Evidence.

Evidence of proceedings at meeting of creditors. 92. The Registrar or any other person presiding at a meeting of creditors under this Act shall cause minutes to be kept, and duly entered in a book, of all resolutions and proceedings of such meeting, and any such minutes as aforesaid, if purporting to be signed by the chairman of the meeting at which such resolutions were passed or proceedings had, shall be received as evidence in all legal proceedings; and until the contrary is proved, every general meeting of the creditors in respect of the proceedings of which minutes have been so made shall be deemed to have been duly held and convened, and all resolutions passed thereat, or proceedings had, to have been duly passed and had.

Imp. § 133.

Evidence of proceedings in bankruptcy. 93. Any petition or copy of a petition in bankruptcy, any order or copy of an order made by the Court, any certificate or copy of a certificate made by the Court, any deed or copy of a deed of arrangement in bankruptcy, and any other instrument or copy of an instrument, affidavit, or document made or used in the course of any bankruptcy proceedings, or other proceedings had under this Act, may, if any such instrument as aforesaid or copy of an instrument appears to be sealed with the seal of the Court, or purports to be signed by any Judge of the Court, under this Act, be receivable in evidence in all legal proceedings whatever.

Imp. § 134.

Death of witness. 94. In case of the death of the bankrupt or his wife, or of a witness whose evidence has been received by any Court in any proceeding under this Act, the deposition of the person so deceased, purporting to be sealed with the seal of the Court, or a copy thereof purporting to be so sealed shall be admitted as evidence of the matters therein deposed to.

Imp. § 136.

Power of assignee to sue. 95. Any person to whom any thing in action belonging to the bankrupt is assigned in pursuance of this Act may bring or defend any action or suit relating to such thing in action in his own name.

Saving as to joint contracts. 96. Where a bankrupt is a contractor in respect of any contract jointly with any other person or persons such person or persons may sue or be sued in respect of such contract without the joinder of the bankrupt.

Imp. § 114.

Computation of time. 97. Where by this Act any limited time from or after any date or event is appointed or allowed for the doing of any act, or the taking of any proceeding, then, in the computation of such limited time, the same shall be taken as exclusive of the day of such date, or of the happening of such event, and as commencing at the beginning of the next following day; and the act or proceeding shall be done or taken at latest on the last day of such limited time according to such computation, unless such last day is a Sunday, Christmas Day, Good Friday, or Monday or Tuesday in Easter week, or a day appointed by the Governor for Public Fast, Humiliation or Thanksgiving, in which case any act or proceeding shall be considered as done or taken in due time if it is done or taken on the next day afterwards, not being one of the days in this section specified. Where by this Act any act or proceeding is directed to be done or taken on a certain day, then, if that day happen to be one of the days in this section specified, such act or proceeding shall be considered as done or taken in due time if it is done or taken on the next day afterwards, not being one of the days in this section specified.

Imp. § 141.

Imp. § 162.

Removal of bankrupt from trusteeship. 99. Where a bankrupt is a trustee the Court shall have power to appoint a new trustee in substitution for the bankrupt (whether voluntarily resigning or not) if it appears to the Court expedient to do so.

Part V. Persons having Privilege of Parliament.

Privilege of Parliament not to benefit in bankruptcy. 100. If any member of the Legislative Council or House of Assembly commits an act of bankruptcy he may be dealt with under this Act in like manner as if he were not a member.

Imp. § 124.

Vacating of seat in the Legislature. 101. If a person being a member of the Legislative Council or Assembly is adjudged bankrupt he shall be and remain during one year from the date of the order of adjudication incapable of sitting and voting in the Legislature unless within that time either the order is annulled or the creditors who prove debts under the bankruptcy are fully paid or satisfied. Provided that such debts (if any) as are disputed by the bankrupt shall be considered for the purpose of this section as paid or satisfied if within the time aforesaid he enters into a bond in such sum and with such sureties as the Court approves to pay the amount to be recovered in any proceeding for the recovery of or concerning such debts together with any costs to be given in such proceedings.

Imp. §§ 32, 33.

Certificate of bankruptcy to be given by the Court to the Speaker. 102. If within the time aforesaid the order of adjudication is not annulled, and the debts of the bankrupt are not fully paid or satisfied as aforesaid, then the Court shall immediately after the expiration of that time, certify the same to the Governor if the bankrupt is a member of the Legislative Council, or to the Speaker if the bankrupt is a member of the House of Assembly, and in the latter case the seat of such member of the Assembly shall be vacant and the House of Assembly shall proceed to take such steps thereupon as upon any vacancy arising from any other cause.

Part VI. Liquidation by Arrangement.

Regulations.

Regulations as to liquidation by arrangement. 103. The following regulations shall be made with respect to the liquidation by arrangement of the affairs of the debtor: 1. A debtor unable to pay his debts may summon a general meeting of his creditors, and such meeting may by a special resolution, as defined by this Act, declare that the affairs of the debtor are to be liquidated by arrangement and not in bankruptcy, and may, at that or some subsequent meeting, held at an interval of not more than a week appoint a trustee with or without a committee of inspection; 2. All the provisions of this Act relating to a first meeting of creditors, and to subsequent meetings of creditors, in the case of a bankruptcy, including the description of creditors entitled to vote at such meetings, and the debts in respect of which they are entitled to vote, shall apply respectively to the first meeting of creditors, for the purposes of this section, subject to the following modifications: a) That every such meeting shall be presided over by such chairman as the meeting may elect, and b) That no creditor shall be entitled to vote until he has proved by an affidavit or declaration a debt provable in bankruptcy to be due to him, and the amount of such debt with any prescribed particulars; and any person wilfully making a false declaration in relation to such debt shall be guilty of a misdemeanour. 3. The debtor, unless prevented by sickness or other cause satisfactory to such meeting, shall be present at the meeting at which the special resolution is passed, and shall answer any inquiries made of him, and he, or if he is so prevented from being at such meeting some one on his behalf, shall produce to the meeting a statement shewing the whole of his assets and debts, and the names and addresses of the creditors to whom his debts are due; 4. The special resolution together with the statement of the assets and debts of the debtor, and the name of the trustee appointed, and of the members if any of the committee of inspection, shall be presented to the Registrar, and it shall be his duty to inquire whether such resolution has been passed in manner directed by this section; but if satisfied that it was so passed, and that a trustee has been appointed, with or without a committee of inspection, he shall forthwith register the resolution, and the statement of the assets and debts of the debtor, and such resolution and statement shall be open for inspection on the prescribed conditions, and the liquidation by arrangement shall be deemed to have commenced as from the date of the appointment of the trustee; 5. All such property of the debtor as would if he were made bankrupt be divisible amongst his creditors shall from and after the date of the appointment of a trustee vest in such trustee under a liquidation by arrangement, and be divisible amongst the creditors, and all such settlements, conveyances, transfers, charges, payments, obligations, and proceedings as would be void against the trustee in the case of a bankruptcy shall be void against the trustee in the case of liquidation by arrangement; 6. The certificate of the Registrar in respect of the appointment of any trustee in the case of a liquidation by arrangement shall be of the same effect as a certificate of the Court to the like effect in the case of a bankruptcy; 7. The trustee under a liquidation shall have the same powers and perform the same duties, as a trustee under a bankruptcy; and the property of the debtor shall be distributed in the same manner as in a bankruptcy; and with the modification hereinafter mentioned, all the provisions of this Act shall, so far as the same are applicable, apply to the case of a liquidation by arrangement in the same manner as if the word "bankrupt" included a debtor whose affairs are under liquidation, and the word "bankruptcy" included liquidation by arrangement; and in construing such provisions the appointment of a trustee under a liquidation shall according to circumstances, be deemed to be equivalent to, and a substitute for, the presentation of a petition in bankruptcy, or the service of such petition or an order of adjudication in bankruptcy; 8. The creditors at their first or general meeting may prescribe the bank into which, or the names of the person or persons to whom, the trustee is to pay any moneys received by him and the sum which he may retain in his hands; 9. The provisions of this Act with respect to the close of the bankruptcy, discharge of a bankrupt, to the release of the trustee, and to the audit of accounts by the Registrar, shall not apply in the case of a debtor whose affairs are under liquidation by arrangement: but the close of the liquidation may be fixed, and the discharge of the debtor, and the release of the trustee may be granted by a special resolution of the creditors in general meeting, and the accounts may be audited in pursuance of such resolution at such time and in such manner and upon such terms and conditions as the creditors think fit; 10. The trustee shall report to the Registrar the discharge of the debtor, and a certificate of such discharge given by the Registrar shall have the same effect as an order of discharge given to a bankrupt under this Act; 11. Rules of Court may be made in relation to proceedings on the occasion of liquidation by arrangement in the same manner, and to the same extent, and of the same authority as in respect of proceedings in bankruptcy; 12. If it appear to the Court on satisfactory evidence that the liquidation by arrangement can not, in consequence of legal difficulties, or of there being no trustee for the time being, or for any sufficient cause proceed, without injustice or undue delay to the creditors or to the debtor, the Court may adjudge the debtor a bankrupt, and proceedings may be had accordingly; 13. Where no committee of inspection is appointed the trustee may act on his own discretion in cases where he would otherwise have been bound to refer to such committee; 14. In calculating a majority on a special resolution for the purposes of this section, creditors whose debts amount to sums not exceeding ten pounds shall be reckoned in the majority in value, but not in the majority in number.

Imp. 53 & 54 Vic. c. 71, § 3.

Part VII. Composition with Creditors.

Regulations.

Regulations as to composition by creditors. 104. The creditors of a debtor unable to pay his debts may without any proceedings in bankruptcy, by an extraordinary resolution, resolve that a composition shall be accepted in satisfaction of the debts due to them from the debtor. An extraordinary resolution of creditors shall be a resolution which has been passed by a majority in number, and three-fourths in value of the creditors of the debtor, assembled at a general meeting to be held in the manner prescribed, of which notice has been given in the prescribed manner, and has been confirmed by a majority in number and value of the creditors assembled at a subsequent general meeting of which notice has been given in the prescribed manner, and held at an interval of not less than seven days nor more than fourteen days from the date of the meeting at which such resolution was first passed. In calculating a majority for the purposes of a composition under this section, creditors whose debts amount to sums not exceeding ten pounds shall be reckoned in the majority in value but not in the majority in number, and the value of the debts of secured creditors shall, as nearly as circumstances admit, be estimated in the same way, and the same description of creditors shall be entitled to vote at such general meetings as in bankruptcy. The debtor, unless prevented by sickness or other cause satisfactory to such meetings, shall be present at both the meetings at which the extraordinary resolution is passed, and shall answer any inquiries made of him, and he, or if he is so prevented from being at such meetings some one on his behalf, shall produce to the meeting a statement shewing the whole of his assets and debts, and the names and addresses of the creditors to whom such debts respectively are due. The extraordinary resolution together with the statement of the debtor as to his assets and debts, shall be presented to the Registrar, and it shall be his duty to inquire whether such resolution has been passed in manner directed by this section; and if satisfied that it has been so passed he shall forthwith register the resolution and statement of assets and debts, but until such registration has taken place such resolution shall be of no validity, and any creditor of the debtor may inspect such statement at prescribed times and on payment of such fee if any as may be prescribed. The creditors may by an extraordinary resolution add to or vary the provisions of any composition previously accepted by them without prejudice to any persons taking interests under such provisions who do not assent to such addition or variation; and any such extraordinary resolution shall be presented to the Registrar in the same manner and with the same consequences, as the extraordinary resolution by which the composition was accepted in the first instance. The provisions of a composition accepted by an extraordinary resolution in pursuance of this section shall be binding on all the creditors whose names and addresses, and the amount of the debts due to whom, are shewn in the statement of the debtor produced to the meetings at which the resolution has passed, but shall not affect or prejudice the rights of any other creditors. Where a debt arises on a bill of exchange or promissory note if the debtor is ignorant of the holder of any such bill of exchange or promissory note he shall be required to state the amount of such bill or note, the date on which it falls due, the name of the acceptor or person to whom it is payable, and any other particulars within his knowledge respecting the same, and the insertion of such particulars shall be deemed a sufficient description of the creditor of the debtor in respect of such debt; and any mistake made inadvertently by a debtor in the statement of his debts may be corrected after the prescribed notice has been given, with the consent of a general meeting of his creditors. The provisions of any composition made in pursuance of this section, may be enforced by the Court, on a motion made in a summary manner by any person interested; and any disobedience of the order of the Court made on such motion shall be deemed to be a contempt of Court. Rules of Court may be made in relation to proceedings on the occasion of the acceptance of a composition by an extraordinary resolution of creditors in the same manner and to the same extent and of the same authority as in respect of proceedings in bankruptcy. If it appear to the Court on satisfactory evidence that a composition under this section can not, in consequence of legal difficulties, or for any sufficient cause, proceed without injustice or undue delay to the creditors or to the debtor, the Court may adjudge the debtor a bankrupt, and proceedings may be had accordingly.

Imp. 53 & 54 Vic. c. 71, § 3.

Registration of resolutions of creditors conclusive in certain cases. 105. The registration by the Registrar of a special resolution of the creditors on the occasion of a liquidation by arrangement under Part VI. of this Act, or of an extraordinary resolution of the creditors on the occasion of a composition under the VIIIth Part of this Act, shall, in the absence of fraud, be conclusive evidence, that such resolutions respectively were duly passed and all the requisitions of this Act in respect of such resolutions complied with.

Part VIII. Power of Court to order Arrest of absconding Debtors.

Arrest of debtor about to abscond. 106. The Court, or the Chief Justice, or in his absence any Judge of the Court, may by warrant addressed to any constable or prescribed officer of the Court, cause a debtor to be arrested and safely kept as prescribed until such time as the Court may order, if, after a debtor's summons has been granted in the manner prescribed by this Act, and before a petition of bankruptcy can be presented against him, it appear to the Court or Judge that there is probable reason for believing that the debtor is about to go abroad with a view of avoiding payment of the debt for which the summons has been granted, or of avoiding service of a petition of bankruptcy, or of avoiding appearing to such petition, or of avoiding examination in respect of his affairs, or otherwise avoiding, delaying, or embarrassing proceedings in bankruptcy: Provided, always, that nothing in this section contained shall be construed to alter or qualify the right of the debtor to apply to the Court in the prescribed manner to dismiss the said summons as in this Act is provided, or to pay, secure, or compound for the said debt within the time by the said Act provided, without being deemed to have committed an act of bankruptcy; and provided also that upon any such payment or composition being made, or such security offered as the Court shall think reasonable, the said debtor shall be discharged out of custody unless the Court shall otherwise order. Every order made by any single Judge of the Court under this section shall be liable to be revoked or altered by the Court as it may deem expedient.

Imp. § 25 (1).

When arrest not valid. 107. No arrest shall be valid or protected under this Act unless the debtor, before or at the time of his arrest, shall be served with the debtor's summons.

Imp. § 25 (1).

Security for debt given after arrest. 108. No payment or composition of a debt made or security for the same given after an arrest made under the provisions of this Part of this Act shall be exempted from the provisions of this Act relating to fraudulent preferences.

Imp. § 25 (2).

Commencement of the operation of this Act. 109. This Act shall go into operation on the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and seventy nine which day shall for all purposes be construed to be the commencement of this Act, except that at any time after the passing of this Act, the Court shall have power to make and prescribe rules and regulations to take effect at and from the commencement of this Act, and a scale of fees and charges to be submitted to the Legislature as herein provided.

b) No. 29 of 1876. An Act for the Abolition of Imprisonment for Debt, for the Punishment of Fraudulent Debtors and for other Purposes (18th November, 1876).<sup>1)</sup>

Part II. Punishment of Fraudulent Debtors.

Punishment of fraudulent debtors. 10. Any person adjudged bankrupt and any person whose affairs are liquidated by arrangement in pursuance of the Bankruptcy Act, 1876, shall in each of the cases following be deemed guilty of a misdemeanour, and on conviction thereof shall be liable to be imprisoned for any time not exceeding two years, with or without hard labor; that is to say: 1. If he does not to the best of his knowledge and belief fully and truly discover to the trustee administering his estate for the benefit of his creditors all his property, real and personal, and how, and to whom, and for what consideration, and when, he disposed of any part thereof, except such part as has been disposed of in the ordinary way of his trade, if any, or laid out in the ordinary expense of his family, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud; 2. If he does not deliver up to such trustee, or as he directs, all such parts of his real and personal property as are in his custody, or under his control, and which he is required by law to deliver up, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud; 3. If he does not deliver up to such trustee, or as he directs, all books, documents, papers, and writings in his custody or under his control, relating to his property or affairs, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud; 4. If after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition against him, or the commencement of the liquidation, or within four months next before such presentation or commencement, he conceals any part of his property to the value of ten pounds or upwards, or conceals any debt due to him or from him, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intention to defraud; 5. If after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition against him or the commencement of the liquidation or within four months next before such presentation or commencement he fraudulently removes any part of his property of the value of ten pounds or upwards; 6. If he makes any material omission in any statement relating to his affairs, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud; 7. If knowing or believing that a false debt has been proved by any person under the bankruptcy or liquidation he fail for the period of a month to inform such trustee as aforesaid thereof; 8. If after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition against him or the commencement of the liquidation he prevents the production of any book, document, paper, or writing affecting or relating to his property or affairs, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to conceal the state of his affairs or to defeat the law; 9. If after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition against him or the commencement of the liquidation or within four months next before such presentation or commencement he conceals, destroys, mutilates, or falsifies or is privy to the concealment, destruction, mutilation, or falsification of any book or document affecting or relating to his property or affairs, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to conceal the state of his affairs or to defeat the law; 10. If after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition against him or the commencement of the liquidation or within four months next before such presentation or commencement he makes or is privy to the making of any false entry in any book or document affecting or relating to his property or affairs, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to conceal the state of his affairs or to defeat the law; 11. If after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition against him or the commencement of the liquidation or within four months next before such presentation or commencement he fraudulently parts with, alters, or makes any omission or is privy to the fraudulently parting with, altering, or making any omission in any document affecting or relating to his property or affairs; 12. If after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition against him or the commencement of the liquidation or at any meeting of his creditors within four months next before such presentation or commencement he attempts to account for any part of his property by fictitious losses or expenses; 13. If within four months next before the presentation of a bankruptcy petition against him or the commencement of the liquidation he by any false representation or other fraud has obtained any property on credit and has not paid for the same; 14. If within four months next before the presentation of a bankruptcy petition against him or the commencement of the liquidation he obtains under the false pretence of carrying on business and dealing in the ordinary way of his trade any property on credit and has not paid for the same, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud; 15. If within four months next before the presentation of a bankruptcy petition against him or the commencement of the liquidation he pawns, pledges, or disposes of otherwise than in the ordinary way of his trade any property which he had obtained on credit and has not paid for, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud; 16. If he is guilty of any false representation or other fraud for the purpose of obtaining the consent of his creditors or any of them to any agreement with reference to his affairs or his bankruptcy or liquidation.

Imp. § 11.

Penalty for absconding with property. 11. If any person who is adjudged a bankrupt or has his affairs liquidated by arrangement after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition against him or the commencement of the liquidation or within four months before such presentation or commencement quits Bermuda and takes with him or attempts to make preparation for quitting Bermuda and taking with him any part of his property to the amount of twenty pounds or upwards which ought by law to be divided amongst his creditors he shall (unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud) be guilty of felony punishable with imprisonment for a time not exceeding two years with or without hard labour.

Imp. § 12.

Penalty of fraudulently obtaining credit. 12. Any person shall in each of the cases following be deemed guilty of a misdemeanour and on conviction thereof shall be liable to be imprisoned for any time not exceeding one year with or without hard labour, that is to say: 1. If in incurring any debt or liability he has obtained credit under false pretences or by means of any other fraud; 2. If he has with intent to defraud his creditors or any of them made or caused to be made any gift, delivery, or transfer of or any charge on his property; 3. If he has with intent to defraud his creditors concealed or removed any part of his property since, or within two months before, the date of any unsatisfied judgment or order for payment of money obtained against him.

Imp. § 13.

False claims, etc., a misdemeanour. 13. If any creditor in any bankruptcy or liquidation by arrangement or composition with creditors, in pursuance of the Bankruptcy Act, 1876, wilfully and with intent to defraud, makes any false claim, or any proof, declaration, or statement of account, which is untrue in any material particular, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanour, punishable with imprisonment not exceeding one year, with or without hard labour.

Imp. § 14.

Debts incurred by fraud. 14. Where a debtor makes any arrangement or composition with his creditors under the provisions of the Bankruptcy Act, 1876, he shall remain liable for the unpaid balance of any debt which he incurred or increased, or whereof, before the date of the arrangement or composition, he obtained forbearance, by any fraud, provided the defrauded creditor has not assented to the arrangement or composition otherwise than by proving his debt and accepting dividends.

Imp. § 15.

Order by Court for prosecution on report of trustee. 15. Where a trustee in any bankruptcy reports to the Court of bankruptcy that in his opinion a bankrupt has been guilty of any offence under this Act, or where the Court is satisfied upon the representation of any creditor or member of the committee of inspection that there is ground to believe that the bankrupt has been guilty of any offence under this Act, the Court shall, if it appears to the Court that there is a reasonable probability that the bankrupt may be convicted, order the trustee to prosecute the bankrupt for such offence.

Imp. § 16.

Application of Vexatious Indictments Act to offences under this Act. 16. Every misdemeanour under the second part of this Act shall be deemed to be an offence within and subject to the provisions of the Vexatious Indictments Act, 1876, and when any person is charged with any offence before any Justice or Justices such Justice or Justices shall take into consideration any evidence adduced before him or them tending to shew that the act charged was not committed with a guilty intent.

Imp. § 18.

Form of indictment. 17. In an indictment for an offence under this Act it shall be sufficient to set forth the substance of the offence charged in the words of this Act specifying the offence or as near thereto as circumstances admit, without alleging or setting forth any debt, act of bankruptcy, adjudication, or any proceedings in, or order, warrant, or document of the Court of bankruptcy.

Imp. § 19.

Punishments under this Act cumulative. 18. When any person is liable under any other Act of the Legislature of these Islands or at common law to any punishment or penalty for any offence made punishable by this Act, such person may be proceeded against under such other Act or at common law or under this Act, so that he be not punished twice for the same offence.

Imp. § 23.

Attachment law not to be affected by this Act. 19. Nothing in this Act contained shall affect the law for the attachment of the goods and chattels of absent debtors under any Act or Acts of the Legislature of these Islands.

British Honduras.

Introduction.<sup>1)</sup>

History and government.<sup>2)</sup>

The eastern coast of Central America was visited in 1502 by Columbus, and explored by Spanish navigators during the sixteenth century. In the closing years of the sixteenth century and the early part of the seventeenth century this coast became the resort of English, French, and Dutch traders and buccaneers. In 1630 King Charles I. granted two small islands off the Mosquito coast to an English trading company, and this company established a trading station at Cape Gracias a Dios. Between 1655 and 1670 the king of the Mosquito Indians placed his territory under the protection of the British Crown. About this period settlements of English woodcutters were made in British Honduras and Mosquitia, and prior to 1739 the government of Jamaica appears to have appointed justices of the peace in the Mosquito territory<sup>3)</sup>. Under the treaty of Paris (1763) the English settlers obtained formal recognition from the Spanish government. The treaty provided for the demolition of the fortifications erected in the territory, but stipulated that the woodcutters should not be disturbed in their occupation, and should be allowed to erect houses and magazines. Complaints being made of unwarrantable Spanish interference Sir William Burnaby, the commanding officer of the Jamaica station, was sent to confirm the settlers in their rights. He drew up a code of regulations, afterwards called the "Burnaby Code," which the settlers bound themselves to observe by an instrument under their hands and seals. Under this code five of the principal inhabitants were elected to act as magistrates, and were invested with authority to try and determine all disputes. A jury of thirteen was chosen in the same manner for their assistance, and the determination of the tribunal was declared to be final. The magistrates in full council, with the approval of a majority of the inhabitants in public meeting, were empowered to make additional regulations, and the officers of the British navy sent to the Settlement were invested with power to enforce the regulations. In the succeeding years the code was enlarged and amended, and it was published in 1809<sup>5)</sup>. As to the legal effect of these enactments it is said that though they could not exactly be considered as having the effect of law, yet by common consent of the inhabitants they were deemed to be binding, and were strictly acted upon and enforced<sup>6)</sup>. The rights of the settlers were confirmed by the treaty of Versailles (1783) and the convention of London (1786), but the sovereignty of Spain over the district was reserved. In 1786 a British superintendent was sent to Belize, and since 1797 there has always been a British representative in the Settlement.

The last attempt by the Spaniards to drive the English settlers out of British Honduras was made in 1798<sup>7)</sup>. The Privy Council has held that in or before 1817 the English Crown had assumed territorial sovereignty in the Settlement<sup>4)</sup>. "The exact time when the Spanish government can be said to have finally relinquished the territory, and the time when the British Crown assumed territorial jurisdiction over it are . . . both undefined. There certainly seems to have been an interval between the abandonment of Spanish and the assumption of British sovereignty, though the length of that interval can not be determined. During the time when the country was unquestionably under Spanish dominion, a superintendent was appointed by the English Crown<sup>1</sup>).

It was once held that British Honduras was not a territory belonging to England, at least within the meaning of the Navigation Acts<sup>2</sup>). By an Act of Parliament, passed in 1833<sup>3</sup>), the privileges of British registered ships in all direct trade between the United Kingdom or the British possessions in America and the Settlement of Honduras were accorded to ships built in the Settlement, and owned and navigated as British ships.

About 1830 the superintendent began to assume the power to legislate for the Settlement by means of proclamations, and in 1832 he claimed the power of appointing the magistrates. A conflict between the executive and the representative assembly ensued, which was partly adjusted in 1840 by the appointment of an executive council. In 1853 an Act<sup>4</sup>) was passed by the superintendent and the local assembly establishing a form of government with the legislative power vested in the superintendent and an assembly of twenty-one members<sup>5</sup>). By the Laws in Force Act (1856)<sup>6</sup>) it was provided that all rules, orders, resolutions, and enactments of magistrates, or of public meetings of a permanent and municipal character, or intended as general laws of the Settlement, which had not been revoked, altered, repealed, or superseded by any similar rules, orders, or resolutions, or by any order, proclamation, or other Act of Her Majesty's Government, or Her Majesty's superintendent for the time being, or by any other law of the Settlement prior to or during the then present session, and which had been acted upon as permanent and continuing laws since the 1st January, 1850, should be and continue, and were thereby declared to be laws of the Settlement as completely as if they had been expressly re-enacted by any other law under the then present constitution<sup>7</sup>).

In 1862 the superintendent was replaced by a lieutenant-governor, responsible to the governor of Jamaica, and the Settlement declared a colony. In 1870 British Honduras became a Crown colony, and in 1884 all connection with Jamaica was severed, except the right of appeal to the Supreme Court of Jamaica<sup>8</sup>).

"From an historical point of view," says Lucas, "British Honduras is a very interesting instance of the evolution of a colony. It began with private adventurers, who held their own in spite of a strong foreign power, and whose success practically obliged their own government to afford them some measure of recognition and protection. It originated with trade, trade begat settlement, and settlement brought about in fulness of time a colony. The trade and the settlement even at first more or less contraband, then actual facts produced trading rights by treaty, and trading rights developed by force of circumstances into ownership of the soil. All through the history the men and their actions forced the hands of the governments concerned, and it may almost be said that the colonization of British Honduras took place in spite of the State."<sup>9</sup>)

The present government is regulated by letters patent of 2d October, 1884<sup>10</sup>), and by local ordinances<sup>11</sup>). The executive power is vested in a governor, assisted by an executive council, and the legislative power in the governor and a legislative council composed of official and non-official members appointed by the Crown.

Law in force.

The provisions of the common law of England, and all statutes of general application of the Imperial Parliament in abrogation, or derogation, or declaratory of the common law, enacted on or before 31st December, 1898, are in force, except in so far as they are locally inapplicable or have been modified by local legislation<sup>1</sup>). But Imperial statutes relating to bankruptcy or insolvency, or to customs or excise, or relating to or regulating any business, trade, or profession do not extend to the Colony<sup>2</sup>). Acts of the Imperial Parliament expressly or impliedly operative in British Honduras are in force, regardless of the date of their enactment<sup>3</sup>). But the Crown has not reserved the power of legislating by order in council<sup>4</sup>).

The English law relating to the making, operation, assignment, and discharge of contracts is in force. The provisions of the fourth section of the Statute of Frauds<sup>5</sup>), relating to parol agreements is re-enacted, but the consideration for a guarantee need not appear in the writing<sup>6</sup>).

Aliens may acquire, hold and dispose of property on the same terms as British subjects<sup>7</sup>). The Imperial Married Women's Property Act, 1882<sup>8</sup>), is in force<sup>9</sup>), and married women may sue and be sued in the District Courts in cases where these courts have jurisdiction, without joinder of their husbands<sup>10</sup>). Specialty and simple contracts for the repayment of money lent or to be lent, or for goods supplied or to be supplied, except for necessities, and all accounts stated made with an infant are void, and may not be ratified upon the infant's attaining full age, even though new consideration be given for the promise<sup>11</sup>). Gaming contracts are void<sup>12</sup>). Bills of sale and liens on growing crops must be registered<sup>13</sup>).

Courts and procedure.<sup>14</sup>)

The Supreme Court consists of a chief justice and such other judge or judges as may be appointed<sup>15</sup>). The Supreme Court has all the jurisdiction, powers, and authorities vested in the English courts of Queen's Bench, Common Pleas, Exchequer, Chancery, Oyer and Terminer, Nisi Prius and Probate at the time of the passing of the Supreme Court of Judicature Act, 1873<sup>16</sup>). The Supreme Court also has jurisdiction in bankruptcy, in divorce and matrimonial causes<sup>17</sup>), escheat<sup>18</sup>), infancy, lunacy<sup>19</sup>), and all other jurisdiction expressly or impliedly conferred by any Imperial or local Acts<sup>20</sup>). Law and equity are administered concurrently<sup>21</sup>).

The Supreme Court has appellate jurisdiction over cases determined in all inferior courts, and in respect of any misdirections or misrulings of the judges thereof<sup>22</sup>).

Under the British Honduras (Court of Appeal) Act, 1881<sup>23</sup>), the Crown was authorized to constitute by order in council the Supreme Court of Judicature of Jamaica, a Court of Appeal from the Supreme Court of British Honduras<sup>24</sup>). An appeal also lies from the Supreme Court to the Privy Council in cases where the amount involved is $ 1500. A pro forma judgment suffices. Notice of appeal must be given within twenty-one days. Appellant must furnish security in an amount not exceeding $ 2500, within three months<sup>1)</sup>).

District Courts presided over by the district commissioner are established in each district<sup>2)</sup>. These courts have jurisdiction over all personal actions where the debt, demand, or damage claimed is not more than $ 100, whether on balance of account or otherwise<sup>3)</sup>. The District Courts also have jurisdiction of actions for the recovery of penalties, not exceeding $ 100, imposed by the rules of any body corporate, public body or institution, or other lawful society upon the members thereof or the subscribers thereto, for the infraction of the rules of any such body corporate, institution, or society<sup>4)</sup>. Causes of action may not be divided in order to bring several actions each within the jurisdictional amount<sup>5)</sup>, but where the amount claimed consists of a balance not exceeding $ 100, after an admitted set-off due to the defendant, jurisdiction may attach<sup>6)</sup>. The District Courts have no jurisdiction of actions of ejectment or in which the title to any corporeal or incorporeal hereditaments are in question, nor of actions for libel, slander, false imprisonment, malicious prosecution, seduction, criminal conversation, or breach of promise of marriage. All actions are heard and determined in a summary way<sup>7)</sup>.

Actions of account, actions of debt grounded upon any lending or contract without specialty, and actions for debt for arrears of rent must be brought within six years next after the cause of action arose<sup>8)</sup>. The same period of limitation is prescribed for actions in the Court of Vice-Admiralty in respect of seamen's wages<sup>9)</sup>. Actions of covenant or debt upon a bond or other specialty must be brought within twenty years<sup>10)</sup>. Actions of account or for not accounting, and suits for account concerning the trade between merchant and merchant, their factors and servants, are subject to a period of limitation of six years<sup>11)</sup>.

diction of the court and local circumstances reasonably permit, and render such extension suitable and appropriate, and subject to any existing or future laws of the Colonial Legislature. And for the purpose of facilitating the application of the said laws, it shall be lawful for the presiding judge to construe any enactment of an Imperial statute with such verbal alteration not affecting the substance as may be necessary to render the same applicable to the matter before the court; and every judge or officer of the Supreme Court having or exercising functions of the like kind, or analogous to the functions of any judge or officer referred to in such statute, shall be deemed to be within the meaning of the enactments thereof relating to such last-mentioned judge or officer; and whenever the great seal or any other seal is mentioned in any statute, it shall be read as if the seal of the Supreme Court were substituted therefor.

Provisions similar to those of this chapter were contained in the Ordinance of the 8th March, 1856, as modified by the Ordinances of 27th October, 1865, and 2d October, 1879. Under the last named Ordinance the Imperial laws were to "be deemed to extend thereto so far only as the jurisdiction of the court and local circumstances permit, and subject to any existing or future acts or ordinances of the Colonial Legislature." It was held by the Privy Council that the words "local circumstances permit" meant "local circumstances reasonably permit." Applying this principle it was further held that the English Mortmain Act (9 Geo. 2, c. 36) was framed for reasons affecting the land and society of England, and not for reasons applying to a new colony, and was therefore not applicable in British Honduras. — Jex v. McKinney, (1889), L. R. 14 A. C. 77. This interpretation is now incorporated in the statute itself.

To be read as if locally enacted. 2. In the construction of all such acts of the Imperial Parliament as are herein declared to extend to this Colony, they may, for the purpose of their local operation, and so far as may be necessary for their enforcement, be read as if they had been made and passed in this Colony; and all offenses and causes of action, triable in any county in England, may be tried in the courts of this Colony; and all absence in places beyond the seas may be considered absence in places beyond the limits of this Colony.

Common law extended and Imperial acts dealing with same. 3. Subject as aforesaid the common law of England, and all statutes of the Imperial Parliament in abrogation or derogation or in any way declaratory of the common law, shall extend to this Colony: but this shall not be held to confer or establish any freehold of office, all offices and appointments being held, as heretofore, and subject to all duties imposed upon the holders thereof by law.

It is to be noted that the common law as well as Imperial statutes in abrogation, derogation, or declaratory of the common law are adopted, in so far as applicable to local conditions. It is conceivable that the common law may continue in force in the Colony, although abrogated or modified as to England by an Imperial enactment, held not to be locally applicable. — Cp. Jex v. McKinney, (1889), L. R. 14 A. C. 77, 81. Or by an enactment adopted on or after 1st January, 1899, and therefore not extended to the Colony. — Ord. No. 14 of 1899, § 1, reprinted infra. The question whether a particular provision is locally applicable is a judicial one.

Criminal law extended. 4. Subject as aforesaid, and subject to the provisions of the Criminal Code, in its present or any future amended form, the criminal law of England as it may be at the time of the passing of this chapter, and as it may be from time to time amended or declared by any act of the Imperial Legislature, shall be in force in this Colony.

Cp. Ord. No. 14 of 1899, § 1, infra.

Imperial statutes not to come into force until twelve months after passing in England. 5. No Imperial statute shall come into force within this Colony by virtue of this chapter until after the lapse of twelve months from the day of the date of the passing thereof in England.

"Month" means calendar month. — Cons. Laws, 1887, c. 1, § 11.

Imperial (present and future) law relating to certain subjects excluded. 6. No Imperial statute of any local or limited operation, or relating to bankruptcy or insolvency, or to customs or excise, or relating to or regulating any trade, business, or profession shall extend to this Colony by virtue of this chapter.

The Ordinances relating to bankruptcy are given infra, p. 759.

Laws relating to powers of governor extended. 7. All laws relating to any powers or jurisdictions given to or exercised by the Governor shall be laws of this Colony, in so far as they are necessary to carry out and confirm any such powers or jurisdictions.

Saving clause as to express Imperial legislation. 8. This chapter is not intended to affect any statute of the Imperial Parliament in which this Colony is expressly named or the colonies generally are included.

The colonies are bound by any act of the Imperial Parliament expressly or impliedly extended to them, but the Crown has not reserved the right of legislating by order in council in British Honduras.

b) No. 14 of 1899. To amend chapter 7 of The Consolidated Laws (25th September, 1899).

Amendment of chapter 7. Saving clause. 1. Notwithstanding anything contained in chapter 7 of The Consolidated Laws, no Imperial statute passed on or after the first day of January, 1899, shall under and by virtue of that chapter come into force within this Colony.

By virtue of the provisions of this chapter as amended, and subject to the limitations therein set forth, semble, the following Imperial Acts relating to topics within the scope of this work are in force in British Honduras on 1st January, 1912:

Partnership, 53 & 54 Vic. c. 39<sup>1</sup>).

Companies, *25 & 26 Vic. c. 89; *30 & 31 Vic. c. 131; *40 & 41 Vic. c. 26; *42 & 43 Vic. c. 76; *43 & 44 Vic. c. 19; *46 & 47 Vic. c. 30; 53 & 54 Vic. c. 62; 53 & 54 Vic. c. 63; 53 & 54 Vic. c. 64; 56 & 57 Vic. c. 58; 61 & 62 Vic. c. 26<sup>2</sup>).

Sale of Goods, 56 & 57 Vic. c. 71<sup>3</sup>).

Factors, 52 & 53 Vic. c. 45.

*Bills of Lading, 18 & 19 Vic. c. 111.

*Bills of Exchange, 45 & 46 Vic. c. 61<sup>4</sup>).

Partnership.

Cons. Laws, 1887, c. 21.<sup>5</sup>)

Guarantee in the case of a firm. 7. No promise to answer for the debt, default or miscarriage of another made to a firm consisting of two or more persons, or to a single person trading under the name of a firm, and no promise to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of a firm consisting of two or more persons, or of a single person trading under the name of a firm shall be binding on the person making such promise in respect of anything done, or omitted to be done, after a change shall have taken place in any one or more of the persons constituting the firm, or in the person trading under the name of a firm, unless the intention of the parties that such promise shall continue to be binding notwithstanding such change, shall appear either by express stipulation or by necessary implication from the nature of the firm or otherwise.

Cp. Imp. Partnership Act, 1890, (53 & 54 Vic. c. 39) § 18.

Meaning of "person." 16. In the construction of the four next following sections of this chapter the word "person" shall include a partnership firm, a joint stock company, and a corporation.

Advance by way of loan at interest varying with profits not to constitute partnership. 17. The advance of money by way of loan to a person engaged or about to engage in any trade or undertaking upon a contract, oral or in writing, with such person that the lender shall receive a rate of interest varying with the profits, or shall receive a share of the profits arising from carrying on such trade or undertaking, shall not, of itself, constitute the lender a partner with the person or the persons carrying on such trade or undertaking, or render him responsible as such.

Cp. Imp. Partnership Act, 1890, (53 & 54 Vic. c. 39) § 2 (3) (d).

Crossed cheques are not in use. — <sup>5</sup>) Only the sections relating to partnership are herein reprinted. By virtue of Cons. Laws, 1887, c. 7, as amended by No. 14 of 1899, and subject to the limitations therein contained, the Imperial Partnership Act, 1890, (53 & 54 Vic. c. 39) is in force.

* Those marked with an asterisk are also set forth in the schedule of Imperial Acts probably in force in the Colony, prepared by Chief Justice Goodman, and annexed to the Consolidated Laws, 1887.

Salary by share of profits. 18. No contract for the remuneration of a servant or agent of any person engaged in any trade or undertaking, by a share of the profits of such trade or undertaking, shall, of itself, render such servant or agent responsible as a partner therein, or give him the right of a partner.

Cp. Imp. Partnership Act, 1890, (53 & 54 Vic. c. 39) § 2 (3) (b).

Annuity of widow or child of deceased partner. 19. No person being the widow or child of the deceased partner of a trader and receiving by way of annuity a portion of the profits made by such trader in his business, shall, by reason only of such receipt, be deemed to be a partner of, or to be subject to any liabilities incurred by such trader.

Cp. Imp. Partnership Act, 1890, (53 & 54 Vic. c. 39) § 2 (3) (c).

Share of profits as price of good-will. 20. No person receiving by way of annuity or otherwise a portion of the profits of any business, in consideration of the sale by him of the goodwill of such business, shall, by reason only of such receipt, be deemed to be a partner of, or be subject to the liabilities of the person carrying on such business.

Cp. Imp. Partnership Act, 1890, (53 & 54 Vic. c. 39) § 2 (3) (e).

Postponement of claim in case of insolvency, etc. 21. [As amended by No. 14 of 1901, § 37 (9)]. In the event of any such trader as aforesaid being adjudged a bankrupt, entering into an arrangement to pay his creditors less than twenty shillings in the pound, or dying in insolvent circumstances, the lender of any such money as aforesaid shall not be entitled to recover any portion of his principal, or of the profits or interest payable in respect of such loan, nor shall any vendor of a goodwill as aforesaid be entitled to recover any such profits as aforesaid, until the claims of the other creditors of the said trader for valuable consideration in money or money's worth have been satisfied.

Cp. Imp. Partnership Act, 1890, (53 & 54 Vic. c. 39) § 3. As to bankruptcy of partnerships, see Bankruptcy Ordinance, 1901, and the amendments thereof, reprinted infra, pp. 759.

Companies.

Cons. Laws, 1887, c. 87.<sup>1)</sup>

The Imperial Companies Acts extended to the Colony. 1. The following Acts of the Imperial Parliament are declared to be in force in the Colony, that is to say: 25 & 26 Vic. c. 89; 30 & 31 Vic. c. 131; 40 & 41 Vic. c. 26; 42 & 43 Vic. c. 76; 42 & 43 Vic. c. 76; 43 & 44 Vic. c. 19. Provided that the said Imperial Acts shall be read and construed in the manner provided in chapter 7.

Registrar and office. 2. The Registrar of the Supreme Court shall be the Registrar of Companies, and his office shall be the registry office, and, unless and until any new rules and tables of fees are framed, the fees hitherto in force under the Honduras Company Act, 1866, shall be payable as heretofore.

These fees are still in force.

Rules and fees. 3. The Governor in Council may make rules for the more effectual working of the said Imperial Acts in this Colony, and may frame tables of fees. Such rules and fees shall, after publication in the Gazette, be as binding as if incorporated in this chapter.

Sale of Goods.

Cons. Laws, 1887, c. 21.<sup>2)</sup>

Contract for the sale of goods for £10 or more. 8. No contract for the sale of any goods, wares, and merchandises for the price of ten pounds sterling or upwards

<sup>1)</sup> By virtue of Cons. Laws, 1887, c. 7, as amended by No. 14 of 1899, and by this section, and subject to the limitations imposed by these enactments, the following Imperial Acts relating to companies are in force in the Colony: 25 & 26 Vic. c. 89; 30 & 31 Vic. c. 131; 40 & 41 Vic. c. 26; 42 & 43 Vic. c. 76; 43 & 44 Vic. c. 19; 46 & 47 Vic. c. 62; 53 & 54 Vic. c. 62; 53 & 54 Vic. c. 63; 53 & 54 Vic. c. 64; 56 & 57 Vic. c. 58; 61 & 62 Vic. c. 26. Companies are not subject to the general provisions of the Bankruptcy Ordinance, 1901, but they are subject to the provisions of section 37 thereof relating to preferential payments in a winding-up.

— <sup>2)</sup> Only the section relating to sale of goods is herein reprinted. By virtue of Cons. Laws, shall be allowed to be good, except the buyer shall accept part of the goods so sold, and actually receive the same, or give something in earnest to bind the bargain, or in part of payment, or that some note or memorandum in writing of the said bargain be made and signed by the parties to be charged by such contract, or their agents thereunto lawfully authorized, and the enactments of this section shall extend to all contracts for the sale of goods of the value of ten pounds sterling and upwards, notwithstanding the goods may be intended to be delivered at some future time, or may not at the time of such contract be actually made, procured, or provided, or fit or ready for delivery, or some act may be requisite for the making or completing thereof, or rendering the same fit for delivery.

Cp. Imp. Statute of Frauds, (29 Chas. 2, c. 3) § 17, Sale of Goods Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vic. c. 71) § 4.

Importation of Sugar.

No. 18 of 1904. An Ordinance to give Effect to the Provisions of the Sugar Convention, signed the 5th day of March, 1902 (27th October, 1904).

Summary.

Short title. 1—6. The Sugar Convention Ordinance, 1904. This Ordinance authorizes the Governor in Council to prohibit the importation or bringing into the Colony of sugar from any foreign country not being a party to the Sugar Convention of 1902, and in which from the report of the Permanent Commission, or from other evidence, the Governor in Council is satisfied that a direct or indirect bounty is granted on the production or exportation of sugars. Sugar imported or brought into the Colony in violation of such prohibition order is liable to seizure and destruction. The Ordinance does not apply to molasses nor glucose, nor to sugar in transit through the Colony, except as to proof of the latter fact. The Governor in Council is authorized to make the necessary rules to carry the Ordinance into effect.

Public Holidays.

No. 7 of 1903. An Ordinance to regulate the Hours during which Public Offices shall be open (6th July, 1903).

Repeal. 1. Ordinance No. 13 of 1897 is hereby repealed.

Public office hours. 2. The public offices, including the Commissioners' Courts, shall be open daily throughout the year, during such hours as the Governor in Council may from time to time direct, except upon the following days, namely: Sundays, the birthday of the sovereign, the birthday of the heir to the throne, Victoria Day (the twenty-fourth day of May), St. George's Cay Day (the tenth day of September), New Year's Day, Good Friday, Christmas Day, and every other day or part of a day which the Governor in Council may (upon any occasion of national or local interest) direct to be celebrated and kept as a public holiday.

Power to alter day appointed for public holiday. 3. Whenever either of the royal birthday aforesaid, Victoria Day, St. George's Cay Day, New Year's Day, or Christmas Day shall fall on Sunday, the following day shall be observed and kept as a public holiday: Provided always that it shall be lawful for the Governor, 1887, c. 7, as amended by No. 14 of 1899, and subject to the limitations therein contained, the Imperial Sale of Goods Act, 1893, (56 & 57 Vic. c. 71) is in force since 20th February, 1895. On the sale or in the contract for the sale of any goods to which a trade mark, or mark, or trade description has been applied, the vendor is deemed to warrant that the mark is a genuine trade mark, and not forged or falsely applied, or that the trade description is not a false trade description within the meaning of the Merchandise Marks Ordinance, 1888, unless the contrary is expressed in some writing signed by or on behalf of the vendor, and delivered at the time of the sale or contract to and accepted by the vendee. — Ord. No. 3 of 1888, § 15. The sale of poisons is regulated by Ord. No. 17 of 1889, and Ord. No. 16 of 1908.

when he shall deem the same expedient, to direct that any of the last mentioned public holidays shall be celebrated and kept on any day (not being Sunday) that shall be appointed, other than that on which it would otherwise be kept.

Saving as to Supreme Court and Customs. Nothing herein contained shall be construed to alter or affect the powers of the Chief Justice under any law to appoint the hour of sitting of the Supreme Court, or to order any adjournment thereof; or to alter or affect the performance of any duty which may be incident to any public office, or to alter or affect the power vested in the Collector of Customs by section 6 of chapter 92 of "The Consolidated Laws of British Honduras."

Bankruptcy.

No. 14 of 1901. The Bankruptcy Ordinance, 1901 (10th July, 1901).<sup>1)</sup>

Preliminary.

Short title. 1. This Ordinance may be cited as The Bankruptcy Ordinance, 1901.
Imp. § 1.

Commencement of Ordinance. 2. This Ordinance shall, except as herein otherwise provided, come into operation on such day as the Governor may appoint by proclamation in that behalf published in the Gazette.

Imp. § 3. The Ordinance came into force on 1st August, 1902. — Proclamation, Gazette, 7th January, 1902.

Interpretation of terms. 3. 1. In this Ordinance, unless the context otherwise requires: "The Court" means the Supreme Court. "Affidavit" includes statutory declaration and affirmation. "Available act of bankruptcy" means any act of bankruptcy available for a bankruptcy petition at the date of the presentation of the petition on which the receiving order is made. "Bailiff" includes any officer charged with the execution of a writ or other process. "Debt provable in bankruptcy" or "provable debt" includes any debt or liability by this Ordinance made provable in bankruptcy. "Gazetted" means published in the Gazette. "General rules" includes forms. "Goods" includes all chattels personal. "Oath" includes affirmation and statutory declaration. "Ordinance" means any act or ordinance in force in the Colony. "Ordinary resolution" means a resolution decided by a majority in value of the creditors present, personally or by proxy, at a meeting of creditors and voting on the resolution. "Person" includes a body of persons corporate or unincorporate. "Prescribed" means prescribed by general rules within the meaning of this Ordinance. "Property" includes money, goods, things in action, land and every description of property, whether real or personal and whether situate in the Colony or elsewhere; also obligations, easements and every description of estate, interest and profit, present or future, vested or contingent, arising out of or incident to property as above defined. "Registrar" means the Registrar General. "Registry" means the office of the Registrar General in his capacity as Registrar of the Supreme Court. "Resolution" means ordinary resolution. "Secured creditor" means a person holding a mortgage, charge or lien on the property of the debtor, or any part thereof, which by the law of this Colony is valid against creditors as a security for a debt due to him from the debtor and includes a judgment creditor. "Schedule" means schedule to this Ordinance. "Special resolution" means a resolution decided by a majority in number and three-fourths in value of the creditors present, personally or by proxy, at a meeting of creditors and voting on the resolution. "Trustee" means the trustee in bankruptcy of a debtor's estate. 2. The Schedules to this Ordinance shall be construed and have effect as part of this Ordinance.

Imp. § 168.

Part I. Proceedings from Act of Bankruptcy to Discharge.

Acts of bankruptcy.

Acts of bankruptcy. Bankruptcy notice. 4. 1. A debtor commits an act of bankruptcy in each of the following cases: a) If in the Colony or elsewhere he makes a conveyance or assignment of his property to a trustee or trustees for the benefit of his creditors generally; b) If in the Colony or elsewhere he makes a fraudulent conveyance, gift, delivery or transfer of his property or of any part thereof; c) If in the Colony or elsewhere he makes any conveyance or transfer of his property or any part thereof, or creates any charge thereon, which would under this or any other Ordinance be void as a fraudulent preference if he were adjudged bankrupt; d) If with intent to defeat or delay his creditors he does any of the following things, namely: departs out of the Colony, or, being out of the Colony, remains out of the Colony, or departs from his dwelling-house or otherwise absents himself or begins to keep house; e) If execution against him has been levied by seizure of his goods under process in an action in any court and the goods have been either sold or held by the bailiff for twenty-one days. Provided that when an interpleader summons has been taken out in regard to the goods seized, the time elapsing between the date at which such summons is taken out and the date at which the bailiff is ordered to withdraw or any interpleader issue ordered thereon is finally disposed of shall not be taken into account in calculating such period of twenty-one days; f) If he files in the Court a declaration of his inability to pay his debts or presents a bankruptcy petition against himself; g) If a creditor has obtained a final judgment against him for any amount, and, execution thereon not having been stayed, has served on him in the Colony, or, by leave of the Court, elsewhere, a bankruptcy notice under this Ordinance requiring him to pay the judgment debt in accordance with the terms of the judgment or to secure or compound for it to the satisfaction of the creditor or the Court, and he does not within fifteen days after service of the notice, in case the service is effected in the Colony and in case the service is effected elsewhere, then within the time limited in that behalf by the order giving leave to effect the service, either comply with the requirements of the notice, or satisfy the Court that he has a counter-claim, set-off or cross-demand which equals or exceeds the amount of the judgment debt, and which he could not set up in the action in which the judgment was obtained. Any person who is for the time being entitled to enforce a final judgment shall be deemed a creditor who has obtained a final judgment within the meaning of this section; h) If the debtor gives notice to any of his creditors that he has suspended, or that he is about to suspend, payment of his debts. 2. A bankruptcy notice under this Ordinance shall be in the prescribed form, and shall state the consequences of non-compliance therewith and shall be served in the prescribed manner.

Imp. § 4.

5. = Imp. § 5, except: "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act."

6. = Imp. § 6, except: in (1) "two hundred and fifty dollars" is substituted for "fifty pounds," and "the Colony" is substituted for "England."

7. = Imp. § 7, except: in (1) "shall be" is inserted before "served in the prescribed manner."

8. = Imp. § 8.

9. = Imp. § 9, except: in (1) "the official receiver" is substituted for "an official receiver," "Ordinance" for "Act," and "legal proceeding" for "legal proceedings."

10—11. = Imp. §§ 10—11.

12. = Imp. § 12, except: in (1) "of a debtor's estate" is omitted; in (2) "official receiver" is substituted for "Board of Trade."

13. = Imp. § 13, except: "the Court by which the order is made" is omitted.

Proceedings consequent on order.

14. = Imp. § 15, except: "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act."

15. = Imp. § 16, except: in (2) "seven days" is substituted for "three days," and "fifteen days" for "seven days."

Public examination of debtor.

16. = Imp. § 17, except: in (5) "Court" is substituted for "Board of Trade," and "with or without counsel" is omitted; in (8) "on oath" is substituted for "upon oath," and "or by the debtor" is inserted after "read over to;" a new subsection is added: "(10) Where the debtor is a lunatic or suffers from any such mental or physical affliction or disability as in the opinion of the Court makes him unfit to attend his public examination, the Court may make an order dispensing with such examination or directing that the debtor be examined on such terms, in such manner, and at such place as to the Court seems expedient."

Composition or scheme of arrangement.

Composition or scheme of arrangement. 17. 1. Where a debtor intends to make a proposal for a composition in satisfaction of his debts, or a proposal for a scheme of arrangement of his affairs, he shall, within four days of submitting his statement of affairs or within such time thereafter as the official receiver may fix, lodge with the official receiver a proposal in writing, signed by him, embodying the terms of the composition or scheme which he is desirous of submitting for the consideration of his creditors, and setting out particulars of any sureties or securities proposed. 2. In such case the official receiver shall hold a meeting of creditors, before the public examination of the debtor is concluded, and send to each creditor, before the meeting, a copy of the debtor's proposal with a report thereon; and if at that meeting a majority in number and three-fourths in value of all the creditors who have proved resolve to accept the proposal, the same shall be deemed to be duly accepted by the creditors, and when approved by the Court shall be binding on all the creditors. 3. The debtor may at the meeting amend the terms of his proposal, if the amendment is, in the opinion of the official receiver, calculated to benefit the general body of creditors. 4. Any creditor who has proved his debt may assent to or dissent from the proposal by a letter, in the prescribed form, addressed to the official receiver, so as to be received by him not later than the day preceding the meeting, and any such assent or dissent shall have effect as if the creditor had been present and had voted at the meeting. 5. The debtor or the official receiver may, after the proposal is accepted by the creditors, apply to the Court to approve it, and notice of the time appointed for hearing the application shall be given to each creditor who has proved. 6. The application shall not be heard until after the conclusion of the public examination of the debtor. Any creditor who has proved may be heard by the Court in opposition to the application, notwithstanding that he may at a meeting of creditors have voted for the acceptance of the proposal. 7. The Court shall, before approving the proposal, hear a report of the official receiver as to the terms thereof, and as to the conduct of the debtor, and any objections which may be made by or on behalf of any creditor. 8. If the Court is of opinion that the terms of the proposal are not reasonable or are not calculated to benefit the general body of creditors, or in any case in which the Court is required where the debtor is adjudged bankrupt to refuse his discharge, the Court shall refuse to approve the proposal. 9. If any facts are proved on proof of which the Court would be required either to refuse, suspend or attach conditions to the debtor's discharge were he adjudged bankrupt, the Court shall refuse to approve the proposal unless it provides reasonable security for payment of not less than forty per centum on all the unsecured debts provable against the debtor's estate. 10. In any other case, the Court may either approve or refuse to approve the proposal. 11. If the Court approves the proposal, the approval may be testified by the seal of the Court being attached to the instrument, containing the terms of the proposed composition or scheme or by the terms being embodied in an order of the Court. 12. A certificate of the official receiver that a composition or scheme has been duly accepted and approved shall, in the absence of fraud, be conclusive as to its validity. 13. The provisions of a composition or scheme under this section may be enforced by the Court on application by any person interested, and any disobedience of an order of the Court made on the application shall be deemed a contempt of Court. 14. If default is made in payment of any instalment due in pursuance of the composition or scheme, or if it appears to the Court, on satisfactory evidence, that the composition or scheme can not, in consequence of legal difficulties, or for any sufficient cause, proceed without injustice or undue delay to the creditors or to the debtor, or that the approval of the Court was obtained by fraud, the Court may, if it thinks fit, on application by the official receiver or the trustee, or by any creditor, adjudge the debtor bankrupt, and annul the composition or scheme, but without prejudice to the validity of any sale, disposition or payment duly made, or thing duly done, under or in pursuance of the composition or scheme. Where a debtor is adjudged bankrupt under this subsection, any debt provable in other respects, which has been contracted before the adjudication, shall be provable in bankruptcy. 15. If under or in pursuance of a composition or scheme, a trustee is appointed to administer the debtor's property or manage his business, or to distribute the composition, section 26 and Part. V. of this Ordinance shall apply as if the trustee were a trustee in a bankruptcy, and as if the terms "bankruptcy," "bankrupt," and "order of adjudication" included respectively a composition or scheme of arrangement, a compounding or arranging debtor, and order approving the composition or scheme. 16. Part III. of this Ordinance shall so far as the nature of the case and the terms of the composition or scheme admit, apply thereto, the same interpretation being given to the words "trustee," "bankruptcy," "bankrupt," and "order of adjudication" as in the last preceding subsection. 17. No composition or scheme shall be approved by the Court which does not provide for the payment in priority to other debts of all debts directed to be so paid in the distribution of the property of the bankrupt. 18. The acceptance by a creditor of a composition or scheme shall not release any person who under this Ordinance would not be released by an order of discharge if the debtor had been adjudged bankrupt. 19. A composition or scheme accepted and approved in pursuance of this section shall be binding on all the creditors so far as relates to any debts due to them from the debtor and provable in bankruptcy, but shall not release the debtor from any liability under a judgment against him in an action for seduction, or under an affiliation order, or under a judgment against him as a co-respondent in a matrimonial cause, except to such an extent and under such conditions as the Court expressly orders in respect of such liability.

Adjudication of bankruptcy.

19. = Imp. § 20, except: in (1) "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act," in (2) "and" is inserted between "bankrupt" and "the date," and "and the court by which the adjudication is made" is omitted, "purpose" is substituted for "purposes," and "Ordinance" for "Act."

20. 1. = Imp. § 21 (1) 2. A person shall be deemed not fit to act as trustee of the property of a bankrupt where he has been previously removed from the office of trustee of a bankrupt's property for misconduct or neglect of duty. 3. = Imp. § 21 (2), except: "Court" is substituted for "Board of Trade," and for "Board," "unless it is of opinion that the appointment" is substituted for "unless they object to the appointment on the ground that it." 4. = Imp. § 21 (4). 5. = Imp. § 21 (5), except: "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act." 6. = Imp. § 21 (6), except: "Court and the Court shall thereupon appoint," is substituted for "Board of Trade and thereupon the Board of Trade shall appoint." 7. = Imp. § 21 (7), except: "Court" is substituted for "Board of Trade." 8. = Imp. § 21 (8).

21. = Imp. § 22, except: in (1) "qualified to vote" is omitted, and the following is inserted at the end of the subsection: "but a creditor who is appointed a member of a committee of inspection shall not be qualified to act until he has proved his debt, and the proof has been admitted;" in (8) "within their body" is substituted for "in their body;" in (9) "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act" and "Court" for "Board of Trade."

22. = Imp. § 23, except: in (1) "by special resolution" is omitted, and "and such resolution shall be the like resolution as is required for accepting a like proposal made by a debtor before an adjudication of bankruptcy" is inserted after "bankrupt's affairs;" in (3) "it appear" is substituted for "it appears."

Control over person and property of debtor.

23. = Imp. § 24, except: in (4) "among" is substituted for "amongst" and "Ordinance" for "Act."

24. = Imp. § 25, except: in (1) (a) "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act," and "has absconded or" is inserted before "is about to abscond;" in (1) (c) "twenty-five dollars" is substituted for "five pounds;" in (2) "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act."

25. = Imp. § 26, except: "postmaster" is substituted for "Postmaster-General."

26. = Imp. § 27, except: in (1) "document" is substituted for "documents;" in (6) "the Colony" is substituted for "England", and "in any place out of the Colony" for "in Scotland or Ireland, or in any place out of England."

Discharge of bankrupt.

Discharge of bankrupt. 27. 1. A bankrupt may, at any time after being adjudged bankrupt, apply to the Court for an order of discharge, and the Court shall appoint a day for hearing the application, but the application shall not be heard until the public examination of the bankrupt is concluded. The application shall be heard in open Court. 2. On the hearing of the application the Court shall take into consideration a report of the official receiver as to the bankrupt's conduct and affairs (including a report as to the bankrupt's conduct during the proceedings under his bankruptcy) and may either grant or refuse an absolute order of discharge, or suspend the operation of the order for a specified time, or grant an order of discharge subject to any conditions with respect to any earnings or income which may afterwards become due to the bankrupt or with respect to his after-acquired property; Provided that the Court shall refuse the discharge in all cases where the bankrupt has committed any offence under this Ordinance or under chapter 109 of the Consolidated Laws, or any other offence connected with his bankruptcy, unless for special reasons the Court otherwise determines, and shall, on proof of any of the facts hereinafter mentioned, either: i) Refuse the discharge; or ii) Suspend the discharge for a period of not less than two years; or iii) Suspend the discharge until a dividend of not less than fifty per centum has been paid to the creditors; or iv) Require the bankrupt as a condition of his discharge to consent to judgment being entered against him by the official receiver or trustee for any balance or part of any balance of the debts provable under the bankruptcy which is not satisfied at the date of the discharge, such balance or part of any balance of the debts to be paid out of the future earnings or after-acquired property of the bankrupt in such manner and subject to such conditions as the Court may direct; but execution shall not be issued on the judgment without leave of the Court, which leave may be given on proof that the bankrupt has since his discharge acquired property or income available towards payment of his debts. Provided, that if at any time after the expiration of two years from the date of any order made under this section, the bankrupt shall satisfy the Court that there is no reasonable probability of his being in a position to comply with the terms of such order, the Court may modify the terms of the order, or of any substituted order, in such manner and upon such conditions as it may think fit. 3. The facts hereinbefore referred to are: a) That the bankrupt's assets are not of a value equal to fifty per centum of the amount of his unsecured liabilities, unless he satisfies the Court that the fact that the assets are not of a value equal to fifty per centum on the amount of his unsecured liabilities has arisen from circumstances for which he can not justly be held responsible; b) That the bankrupt has omitted to keep such books of account as are usual and proper in the business carried on by him and as sufficiently disclose his business transactions and financial position within the three years immediately preceding his bankruptcy; c) That the bankrupt has continued to trade after knowing himself to be insolvent; d) That the bankrupt has contracted any debt provable in the bankruptcy without having at the time of contracting it any reasonable or probable ground of expectation (proof whereof shall lie on him) of being able to pay it; e) That the bankrupt has failed to account satisfactorily for any loss of assets or for any deficiency of assets to meet his liabilities; f) That the bankrupt has brought on, or contributed to, his bankruptcy by rash and hazardous speculations, or by unjustifiable extravagance in living, or by gambling, or by culpable neglect of his business affairs; g) That the bankrupt has put any of his creditors to unnecessary expense by a frivolous or vexatious defence to any action properly brought against him; h) That the bankrupt has within three months preceding the date of the receiving order incurred unjustifiable expense by bringing a frivolous or vexatious action; i) That the bankrupt has within three months preceding the date of the receiving order, when unable to pay his debts as they become due, given an undue preference to any of his creditors; j) That the bankrupt has within three months preceding the date of the receiving order incurred liabilities with a view of making his assets equal to fifty per centum of the amount of his unsecured liabilities; k) That the bankrupt has on any previous occasion been adjudged bankrupt, or made a composition or arrangement with his creditors; l) That the bankrupt has been guilty of any fraud or fraudulent breach of trust. 4. For the purposes of this section a bankrupt's assets shall be deemed of a value equal to fifty per centum of the amount of his unsecured liabilities when the Court is satisfied that the property of the bankrupt has realized, or is likely to realize, or with due care in realization might have realized, an amount equal to fifty per centum of his unsecured liabilities, and a report by the official receiver or the trustee shall be prima facie evidence of the amount of such liabilities. 5. For the purposes of this section, the report of the official receiver shall be prima facie evidence of the statements therein contained. 6. Notice of the appointment by the Court of the day for hearing the application for discharge shall be published in the prescribed manner, and sent fourteen days at least before the day so appointed to each creditor who has proved, and the Court may hear the official receiver and the trustee, and may also hear any creditor. At the hearing the Court may put such questions to the debtor and receive such evidence as it may think fit. 7. The powers of suspending and of attaching conditions to a bankrupt's discharge may be exercised concurrently. 8. A discharged bankrupt shall, notwithstanding his discharge, give such assistance as the trustee may require in the realization and distribution of such of his property as is vested in the trustee, and if he fail to do so, he shall be guilty of a contempt of Court; and the Court may also, if it thinks fit, revoke his discharge, but without prejudice to the validity of any sale, disposition, or payment duly made, or thing duly done, subsequent to the discharge but before its revocation.

Imp. § 28.

28. [As amended by No. 17 of 1901, § 3] = Imp. § 29.

29. = Imp. § 30, except: in (1) "or at the suit of the sheriff or other public officer on a bail bond entered into for the appearance of any person prosecuted for any such offence" is omitted, "Governor" is substituted for "Treasury," and "his consent" for "their consent;" in (3) "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act;" a new subsection is added: "(5) An order for discharge shall not release the bankrupt from any liability under a judgment against him in an action for seduction, or under an affiliation order, or under a judgment against him as a co-respondent in a matrimonial cause, except to such an extent and under such conditions as the Court expressly orders in respect of such liability."

30. = Imp. § 31, except: "this Ordinance" is substituted for "this Act," "one hundred dollars" for "twenty pounds," "an offence under chapter 109 of the Consolidated Laws" for "a misdemeanour under the Debtors Act, 1869", and "that chapter" for "that Act."

Part II. Disqualifications of Bankrupt.

Disqualification of bankrupt. 31. [As amended by No. 17 of 1901, § 3.] 1. Where a debtor is adjudged bankrupt he shall, subject to the provisions of this Ordinance, be disqualified for: a) Being appointed to, or sitting or voting in the Legislative Council or any committee thereof as an unofficial member; b) Being appointed or acting as a justice of the peace. 2. The disqualifications to which a bankrupt is subject under the section shall be removed and cease if and when: a) The adjudication of bankruptcy against him is annulled; or b) He obtains from the Court his discharge with a certificate to the effect that his bankruptcy was caused by misfortune without any misconduct on his part. The Court may grant or withhold such certificate as it thinks fit. 3. No disqualification arising by virtue of this section shall exceed a period of five years from the date of any discharge granted under and by virtue of this Ordinance.

Imp. §§ 32—34.

32. = Imp. § 35, except: in (1) the beginning word is "when" instead of "where;" in (2) the beginning word is "when" instead of "where," and "in such terms" is substituted for "on such terms."

33. = Imp. § 36, except: "the Ordinance" is substituted for "this Act."

Part III. Administration of Property.

Proof of debts.

34. = Imp. § 37, except: in (6) and in (8) "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act."

35. = Imp. § 38, except: "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act," and "any act of bankruptcy committed" for "an act of bankruptcy committed."

36. = Imp. § 39.

Priority of debts. 37. 1. In the distribution of the property of a bankrupt and in the distribution of the assets of any company being wound up under the provisions of any law in force in the Colony relating to companies there shall be paid in priority to all other debts: a) All local rates, land and property or other tax due from the bankrupt or the company at the date of the receiving order or as the case may be the commencement of the winding-up and having become due and payable within twelve months next before such time; b) All wages or salary of any clerk or servant in respect of services rendered to the bankrupt or the company during four months before the date of the receiving order or, as the case may be, the commencement of the winding-up not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars; and c) All wages of any labourer or workman not exceeding one hundred and twenty-five dollars whether payable for time or piece work, in respect of services rendered to the bankrupt or the company during the six months before the date of the receiving order or, as the case may be, the commencement of the winding-up. Provided that where any labourer has entered into a contract for the payment of a portion of his wages in a lump sum at the end of the term of hiring he shall have priority in respect of the whole of such sum or part thereof as the Court may decide to be due under the contract proportionate to the time of service up to the date of the receiving order, or, as the case may be, the commencement of the winding-up. 2. The foregoing debts shall rank equally between themselves, and shall be paid in full, unless the property of the bankrupt is or the assets of the company are insufficient to meet them, in which case they shall abate in equal proportions between themselves. 3. Subject to the retention of such sums as may be necessary for the costs of administration or otherwise, the foregoing debts shall be discharged forthwith, so far as the property of the debtor, or the assets of the company, as the case may be, is or are sufficient to meet them. 4. In the event of a landlord or other person distraining or having distrained on any goods or effects of a bankrupt or a company being wound up within three months next before the date of the receiving order or the winding-up order respectively, the debts to which priority is given by this section shall be a first charge on the goods or effects so distrained on, or the proceeds of the sale thereof: Provided that in respect of any money paid under any such charge the landlord or other person shall have the same rights of priority as the person to whom such payment is made. 5. This section shall apply in the case of a deceased person who dies insolvent, as if he were a bankrupt, and as if the date of his death were substituted for the date of the receiving order. 6. In the case of partners, the joint estate shall be applicable in the first instance in payment of their joint debts, and the separate estate of each partner shall be applicable in the first instance in payment of his separate debts. If there is a surplus of the separate estates, it shall be dealt with as part of the joint estate. If there is a surplus of the joint estate, it shall be dealt with as part of the respective separate estates in proportion to the right and interest of each partner in the joint estate. 7. Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance all debts proved in the bankruptcy shall be paid pari passu. 8. If there is any surplus after payment of the foregoing debts, it shall be applied in payment of interest from the date of the receiving order or, as the case may be, the commencement of the winding-up at the rate of six per centum per annum on all debts proved in the bankruptcy, or the winding-up. [9. Amends Cons. Laws, 1887, c. 21, § 21, and is there incorporated.] [10. Amends Cons. Laws, 1887, c. 88, § 24, relating to friendly societies.]

Imp. Preferential Payments in Bankruptcy Act, 1888, (51 & 52 Vic. c. 62).

38. = Imp. § 42, except: in (1) "six months' rent" is substituted for "one year's rent;" in (2) "of a debtor whose debts do not exceed fifty pounds or," is omitted.

Property available for payment of debts.

39. = Imp. § 43.

40. = Imp. § 44, except: "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act," "in trust" for "on trust," and "one hundred dollars" for "twenty pounds;" "except the right of nomination to a vacant ecclesiastical benefice" is omitted.

Effect of bankruptcy on antecedent transactions.

41. = Imp. § 45, except: in (1) "against goods of a debtor, or has attached" is substituted for "against the goods or lands of a debtor, or has attached;" (2) reads as follows: "For the purposes of this Ordinance, an execution against goods is completed by seizure and sale and an attachment of a debt by receipt of the debt."

Duties of bailiff as to goods taken in execution. 42. 1. Where any goods of a debtor are taken in execution, and before the sale thereof, or the completion of the execution by the receipt or recovery of the full amount of the levy, notice is served on the bailiff that a receiving order has been made against the debtor, the bailiff shall, on request, deliver the goods and any money seized or received in part satisfaction of the execution, to the official receiver or trustee but the costs of the execution shall be a first charge on the goods or money so delivered, and the official receiver or trustee may sell the goods, or an adequate part thereof, for the purpose of satisfying the charge. 2. Where under an execution in respect of a judgment for a sum exceeding one hundred dollars, the goods of a debtor are sold or money is paid in order to avoid sale, the bailiff shall deduct his costs of the execution from the proceeds of sale or the money paid and retain the balance for fourteen days, and if within that time notice is served on him of a bankruptcy petition having been presented against or by the debtor, and a receiving order is made against the debtor thereon, or on any other petition of which the bailiff has notice, the bailiff shall pay the balance to the official receiver or, as the case may be, to the trustee who shall be entitled to retain the same as against the execution creditor. 3. An execution levied by seizure and sale on the goods of a debtor is not invalid by reason only of its being an act of bankruptcy, and a person who purchases the goods in good faith under a sale by the bailiff shall in all cases acquire a good title to them against the trustee in bankruptcy.

Imp. § 53.

43. = Imp. § 47, except: in (1) "the" is omitted before "bankruptcy" in both instances, and "become bankrupt" is substituted for "becomes bankrupt;" in (2) "trustee in bankruptcy" is substituted for "trustee in the bankruptcy."

44. = Imp. § 48, except: in (1) "trustee in bankruptcy" is substituted for "trustee in the bankruptcy."

45. = Imp. § 49, except: "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act" in both instances.

Realization of property.

46. = Imp. § 50 (1—3, 5, 6), except: in (2) "Court" is substituted for "High Court."

47. = Imp. § 51, except: the following is added at the end of the section "in manner prescribed or in the same manner and subject to the same privileges in and subject to which a search warrant for property supposed to be stolen may be executed according to law."

Appropriation of portion of pay or salary to creditors. 48. 1. Where a bankrupt is an officer or clerk or otherwise employed or engaged in the civil service of the Crown, the trustee shall receive for distribution amongst the creditors so much of the bankrupt's pay or salary as the Court, on the application of the trustee, with the consent of the Governor, may direct. Before making an order under this subsection the Court shall communicate with the Governor as to the amount, time, and manner of the payment to the trustee, and shall obtain the written consent of the Governor to the terms of such payment. 2. Where a bankrupt is in receipt of a salary or income other than as aforesaid, or is entitled to any half-pay, or pension, the Court, on the application of the trustee, shall from time to time, make such order as it thinks just for the payment of the salary, income, half-pay or pension or of any part thereof, to the trustee to be applied by him in such manner as the Court may direct.

Imp. § 53.

49. = Imp. § 54, except: in (1) "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act;" in (4) "in force in any part of the British dominions" is omitted, and "registered or recorded" is substituted for "registered, enrolled, and recorded."

50. = Imp. § 55, except: in (1) "twelve months" is substituted for "three months," and for "two months," "or within such further time as may be allowed by the Court" is inserted before "after the first appointment" and before "after he first became aware thereof;" in (6) "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act," and the following is added at the end of the subsection: "Provided, however, that the Court may, if it thinks fit, modify the terms prescribed in the foregoing proviso so as to make the person in whose favour the vesting order may be made subject only to the same liabilities and obligations as if the lease had been assigned to him at the date when the bankruptcy petition was filed, and (if the case so requires) as if the lease had comprised only the property comprised in the vesting order."

51. = Imp. § 56, except: throughout "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act."

52. = Imp. § 57, except: subsections (8) and (7) of the Imperial Act constitute respectively subsections (7) and (8) of the Ordinance.

Distribution of property.

53—56. = Imp. §§ 58—61.

57. = Imp. § 62, except: "before doing so" is substituted for "before so doing."

58. = Imp. § 63, except: "that" is omitted before "it is withheld."

59. = Imp. § 64.

60. = Imp. § 65, except: "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act."

Part IV. Official Receivers.

Appointment by the Governor of official receiver of debtors' estates. 61. 1. The Governor may, at any time after the passing of this Ordinance, and from time to time appoint such person as he may think fit to be the official receiver of debtors' estates, and may remove any person so appointed from such office. The official receiver of debtors' estates shall be an officer of the Court. 2. The Court may, on the application of the official receiver, at any time appoint some fit person or persons to be the deputy or deputies of the official receiver, under such conditions as to remuneration and otherwise as may be prescribed.

62. = Imp. § 68, except: in (2) "the official receiver" is substituted for "an official receiver," and "Ordinance" for "Act;" in (3) "this Ordinance" is substituted for "the Act;" in (4) "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act."

63. = Imp. § 69, except: in (1) "an offence under chapter 109 of the Consolidated Laws, or under this Ordinance" is substituted for "a misdemeanour under the Debtors Act, 1869, or any amendment thereof, or under this Act." (2) reads as follows: "To make such other reports concerning the conduct of the debtor, to take such part in the public examination of the debtor and to take such part and give such assistance, in relation to the prosecution of any fraudulent debtor, as the Court may in each of such cases direct."

Any person shall in each of the cases following be deemed guilty of a misdemeanour, and on conviction thereof shall be liable to be imprisoned for any time not exceeding one year, with or without hard labour, that is to say: (1) if in incurring any debt or liability he has obtained credit under false pretenses, or by means of any other fraud; (2) if he has, with intent to defraud his creditors, or any of them, made or caused to be made any gift, delivery, or transfer of, or any charge on his property; (3) if he has, with intent to defraud his creditors, concealed or removed any part of his property since or within two months before the date of any unsatisfied judgment or order for payment of money obtained against him. — Cons. Laws, 1887, c. 109, § 6. See also Ord. No. 23 of 1907, § 2, infra.

64. = Imp. § 70, except: in (2) "Court" is substituted for "High Court", and for "Board of Trade;" (3) and (4) read as follows: (3) "The official receiver shall account to the Court and pay over all money and deal with all securities in such manner as the Court from time to time may direct. (4) The official receiver shall not, during his continuance in office, either directly or indirectly, by himself, his clerk, or partner, act as solicitor in any proceeding in bankruptcy or in any prosecution of a debtor by order of the Court, and if he does so act he shall be liable to be dismissed from office."

65. = Imp. § 72, except: in (1) "by the trustee" is inserted after "amount realized;" in (2) "Court" is substituted for "Board of Trade" in both places where the latter words occur. (4) reads as follows: "Where a trustee acts without remuneration he shall be allowed out of the bankrupt's estate such proper expenses incurred by him in or about the proceedings of the bankruptcy as the creditors may, with the sanction of the Court, approve."

Costs.

66. = Imp. § 73, except: in (1) "by statute or rules" is omitted; in (3) "Registrar" is substituted for "prescribed officer," and for "taxing master;" (4) reads as follows: "The sanction required under the preceding subsection for the employment of solicitors and other persons must be a sanction obtained before the employment, except in cases of urgency, and in such cases it must be shewn that no undue delay took place in obtaining the sanction;" in (5) [= Imp. § 73 (4)] "Registrar" is substituted for "proper officer."

Receipts, payments, accounts, audit.

Trustee to pay moneys into Treasury. 67. 1. Every trustee shall, save as in the next subsection provided, pay into the Treasury to a deposit account all moneys received by him as such trustee and the Treasurer is hereby authorized to receive the same and grant receipts therefor. All monies so paid into the Treasury shall be repayable to the trustee as he may require the same subject to his giving proper receipts. 2. If a trustee at any time retains for more than ten days a sum exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars, or such other amount as the Court in any particular case may authorize him to retain, then, unless he explains the retention to the satisfaction of the Court, he shall pay interest on the amount so retained in excess at the rate of twenty per centum per annum, and shall have no claim for remuneration and may be removed from his office.

Imp. § 74.

Audit of trustee's accounts. 68. 1. Every trustee shall, at such times as may be prescribed, but not less than twice in each year during his tenure of office, file in the Registry an account of his receipts and payments as such trustee; the account shall be in the prescribed form, and shall be verified by a statutory declaration in the prescribed form. 2. The Registrar shall audit the account and the trustee shall furnish the Registrar with such vouchers and information as the Registrar may require, and the Registrar may at any time require the production of and inspect any books or accounts kept by the trustee. Such account shall be open to the inspection of any creditor, or of the bankrupt or of any person interested.

69. = Imp. § 80.

Release of trustee.

70. = Imp. § 82, except: in (1) "the Registrar shall on his application prepare a report on his accounts, which shall be submitted to the Court; and the Court shall take into consideration the report and any objection, which may be urged by any creditor or person interested against his release, and shall either grant or withhold the release accordingly" is substituted for the part of the subsection beginning with "the Board of Trade" and ending with "High Court;" in (3) "Court" is substituted for "Board."

Official name.

71. = Imp. § 83, except: "in any part of the British Dominions or elsewhere" is omitted.

Appointment and removal.

72. = Imp. § 84, except: in (1) "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act;" in (2) "Court" is substituted for "Board of Trade."

73. = Imp. § 85.

74. = Imp. § 86, except: in (1) "ordinary" is omitted before "resolution;" (2) reads as follows: "If the Court is of opinion that a trustee appointed by the creditors is guilty of misconduct, or fails to perform his duties under this Ordinance, the Court may remove him from his office;" a new subsection is added as follows: "(3) The power of the Court to remove a trustee shall extend to any case in which the Court is of opinion that the trustee is, by reason of lunacy, or continued sickness, or absence, incapable of performing his duties, or that his connexion with or relation to the bankrupt or his estate, or any particular creditor, might make it difficult for him to act with impartiality in the interest of the creditors generally, or where in any other matter he has been removed from office on the ground of misconduct."

75. = Imp. § 87 (1, 2, 4).

Voting powers of trustee.

76. = Imp. § 88, except: "or solicitor" is substituted for "solicitor or solicitor's clerk."

Control over trustee.

77. = Imp. § 89, except: in (1) "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act;" in (2) "or whenever requested in writing to do so by one-fourth in value of the creditors" is omitted; in (4) "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act."

78. = Imp. § 90, except: "his creditors" is substituted for "the creditors," and "thinks fit" for "thinks just."

Part VI. Procedure and Powers of Court.

Jurisdiction.

Exercise of jurisdiction in chambers. 79. Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance and to general rules the Court may exercise in chambers the whole or any part of its jurisdiction.

Imp. § 98.

General powers of the Court. 80. [As amended by No. 17 of 1901, § 3.] 1. Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance, the Court shall have full power to decide all questions of priorities, and all other questions whatsoever, whether of law or of fact, which may arise in any case of bankruptcy coming within the cognizance of the Court, or which the Court may deem it expedient or necessary to decide for the purpose of doing complete justice or making a complete distribution of property in any such case. 2. If in any proceeding in bankruptcy there arises any question of fact which either of the parties desires to be tried before a jury instead of by the Court itself, or which the Court thinks ought to be tried by a jury, the Court may if it thinks fit direct the trial to be had by a jury, and the trial may be had accordingly in the same manner as if it were the trial of an issue of fact in an action. 3. When default is made by a trustee, debtor or other person in obeying any order or direction given by the Court, the Court may on the application of the official receiver order such defaulting trustee, debtor or person to comply with the order or direction so given; and the Court may also, if it shall think fit, upon any such application make an immediate order for the committal of such defaulting trustee, debtor or other person: Provided that the power given by this subsection shall be deemed to be in addition to and not in substitution for any other right or remedy in respect of such default. 4. When under section 3 of chapter 109 of the Consolidated Laws application is made by a judgment creditor, the Court may, if it thinks fit, decline to commit, or in lieu thereof with the consent of the judgment creditor, and on payment by him of the prescribed fee, make a receiving order against the debtor. In such case the judgment debtor shall be deemed to have committed an act of bankruptcy at the time the order is made.

Imp. § 102. Cons. Laws, 1887, c. 109, § 3 relates to the cases where a court may commit a debtor to prison.

Procedure.

81. = Imp. § 105, except: in (1) "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act" in both instances, and "Court" for "Judge before whom such issue is tried;" in (3) and (4) "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act;" in (6) "joint" is omitted between "such" and "debtor."

82. = Imp. § 106.

Property of partners to be vested in same trustee. 83. Where a receiving order has been made on a bankruptcy petition against or by one member of a partnership and any other bankruptcy petition is presented against or by a member of the same partnership, the same trustee or receiver shall, unless the Court otherwise directs, be appointed in respect of the property of the last mentioned member of the partnership as may have been appointed in respect of the property of the first mentioned member of the partnership, and the Court may give such directions for consolidating the proceedings under the petition as it thinks just.

Imp. § 112.

84. = Imp. § 107, except: "in his petition" is substituted for "on his petition," and "Ordinance" for "Act."

85—90. = Imp. §§ 108—111, 113, 114.

91. = Imp. § 115, except: "Ordinance in the name of the firms" is substituted for "Act in the name of the firm."

Part VII. Small Bankruptcies.

92. = Imp. § 121, except: in the introductory paragraph "fifteen hundred dollars" is substituted for "three hundred pounds," and "Ordinance" for "Act;" in (2) "court" is substituted for "Board of Trade;" in (3) "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act" in both instances.

Part VIII. Miscellaneous.

Exclusion of partnerships and companies, etc. 93. A receiving order shall not be made against any corporation or against any partnership or association, or company registered under any law in force in the Colony relating to companies.
Imp. § 123.

94. (1), (2) = Imp. § 125 (1), (2). 3. A petition for administration under this section shall not be presented to the Court after proceedings have been commenced for the administration of the deceased debtor's estate, but the Court may in such case, if it is satisfied that the estate is insufficient to pay its debts, make an order in the prescribed manner, for the administration of the estate of the deceased debtor, and the like consequences shall ensue as under an administration order made on the petition of a creditor. 4. Upon an order being made for the administration of a deceased debtor's estate, the property of the debtor shall vest in the official receiver as trustee thereof, and he shall forthwith proceed to realize and distribute the same in accordance with the provisions of this Ordinance. 5. With the modifications hereinafter mentioned, all the provisions of Part III. of this Ordinance, relating to the administration of the property of a bankrupt, shall, so far as the same are applicable, apply to the case of an administration order under this section in like manner as to an order of adjudication under this Ordinance. 6. In the administration of the property of the deceased debtor under an order of administration, the official receiver shall have regard to any claim by the legal personal representative of the deceased debtor to payment of the proper funeral and testamentary expenses incurred by him in and about the debtor's estate, and such claim shall be deemed a preferential debt under the order and be payable in full, out of the debtor's estate, in priority to all other debts. 7. If, on the administration of a deceased debtor's estate, any surplus remains in the hands of the official receiver, after payment in full of all the debts due from the debtor, together with the costs of the administration and interest as provided by this Ordinance in case of bankruptcy, such surplus shall be paid over to the legal personal representative of the deceased debtor's estate, or dealt with in such other manner as may be prescribed. 8. Notice to the legal personal representative of a deceased debtor of the presentation by a creditor of a petition under this section shall, in the event of an order for administration being made thereon, be deemed to be equivalent to notice of an act of bankruptcy, and after such notice no payment or transfer of property made by the legal personal representative shall operate as a discharge to him as between himself and the official receiver; save as aforesaid nothing in this section shall invalidate any payment made or any act or thing done in good faith by the legal personal representative before the date of the order for administration. 9. In cases of administration in bankruptcy, in pursuance of this section, of estates of persons dying insolvent, the creditors shall have the same powers as to appointment of trustees and committees of inspection as they have in other cases where the estate of a debtor is being administered or dealt with in bankruptcy and the provisions of this Ordinance relating to trustees and committees of inspection, shall apply to trustees and committees of inspection appointed under the power conferred by this section. 10. General rules, for carrying into effect the provisions of this section, may be made in the same manner and to the like effect and extent as in bankruptcy.

Power to make, revoke, and alter general rules. 95. 1. The Chief Justice may at any time after the passing of this Ordinance and from time to time make, revoke and alter general rules for carrying into effect the objects of this Ordinance, and may also from time to time prescribe a scale of fees and percentages to be charged for in respect of proceedings under this Ordinance. 2. All general rules made under the foregoing provisions of this section shall be laid before the Legislative Council within three weeks after they are made, if the Legislature is then sitting, and if the Legislative Council is not then sitting within three weeks after the beginning of the then next session of the Legislative Council, and shall be judicially noticed, and shall have effect as if enacted by this Ordinance.

Imp. § 127.

96. = Imp. § 133, except: in (1) "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act".

97. = Imp. § 136, except: "the Court" is substituted for "any court," and "Ordinance" for "Act."

Statement or admission not admissible as evidence in certain criminal proceedings. 98. A statement or admission made by any person in any compulsory examination or deposition before any Court on the hearing of any matter in bankruptcy shall not be admissible as evidence against that person in any proceeding in respect of any of the crimes specified in the following sections and subsections of the Criminal Code, viz: section 165, (i); section 171; section 174; section 177, (ii), (iii).

The offences set forth in the sections of the Criminal Code (Cons. Laws, 1887, c. 24a) referred to are: theft of anything of which the defendant had the custody, control, or possession, or to which he had the means of access by reason or any office, employment, or service; fraudulent breach of trust; falsification of accounts; and concealment, alteration, or falsification of any bill of lading, invoice, manifest, receipt, or similar document, or of accounts or documents relating to the affairs of any company or trust, or which he is under any duty to keep or deal with as the clerk or servant of another person.

99. = Imp. § 138, except: "Registrar" is substituted for "Board of Trade," and "Ordinance" for "Act."

Formal defects not to invalidate proceedings. 100. 1. No proceeding in bankruptcy shall be invalidated by any formal defect or by any irregularity, unless the Court is of opinion that substantial injustice has been caused by the defect or irregularity. 2. No defect or irregularity in the appointment or election of a receiver, trustee, or member of a committee of inspection shall vitiate any act done by him in good faith.

Imp. § 143.

101. = Imp. § 132, except: in (1) "Gazette" is substituted for "London Gazette," and "Ordinance" for "Act;" in (2) "Gazette" is substituted for "London Gazette."

102. = Imp. § 134, except: in both instances "the Court" is substituted for "any court," and "having jurisdiction in bankruptcy" is omitted; "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act," and "the Registrar" for "any Registrar."

Swearing of affidavits. 103. Subject to general rules, any affidavit to be used in any bankruptcy proceeding may be sworn before any person authorized to administer oaths in the Supreme Court, or before a justice of the peace, or, in the case of a person who is out of the Colony, before a British minister or British Consul, before a magistrate or justice of the peace or other person qualified to administer oaths in the country where he resides (he being certified to be a magistrate or justice of the peace, or qualified as aforesaid by a British minister or British consul or by a notary public).

Imp. § 135.

Computation of time. 104. 1. Where by this Ordinance any limited time from or after any date or event is appointed or allowed for the doing of any act or the taking of any proceeding, then in the computation of that limited time the same shall be taken as exclusive of the day of that date or of the happening of that event, and as commencing at the beginning of the next following day; and the act or proceeding shall be done or taken at latest on the last day of that limited time as so computed, unless the last day is a Sunday, New Year's Day, Good Friday, Christmas Day, or a day appointed to be kept as a public holiday or a day on which the offices of the Court are closed, in which case any act or proceeding shall be considered as done or taken in due time if it is done or taken on the next day afterwards, which shall not be one of the days in the section specified. 2. = Imp. § 141 (2), except: "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act."

Imp. § 141.

105. = Imp. § 142.

106. = Imp. § 145, except: "bailiff" is substituted for "sheriff," "one hundred dollars" for "twenty pounds," and "in the prescribed manner by the bailiff" for "by the sheriff."

Application of Chapter 45 Consolidated Laws to bankruptcy of trustee. 107. Where a bankrupt is a trustee within chapter forty-five of the Consolidated Laws, section fifteen of that chapter shall have effect so as to authorize the appointment of a new trustee in substitution for the bankrupt (whether voluntarily resigning or not), if it appears expedient to do so, and all provisions of that chapter shall have effect accordingly.

Imp. § 147. Whenever it shall be expedient to appoint a new trustee or new trustees, and it shall be found inexpedient, difficult, or impracticable so to do without the assistance of the court, it shall be lawful for the court to make an order appointing a new trustee or new trustees, either in substitution for or in addition to any existing trustee or trustees. — Cons. Laws, 1887, c. 45, § 15.

108. = Imp. § 148, except: "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act."

109. = Imp. § 150, except: "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act."

110. = Imp. § 162 (1, 3, 4), except: in (1) "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act," "Treasury" for "Bank of England," and "Treasurer" for "Board of Trade;" in (3) (= Imp. § 162 [4]) "Treasurer" is throughout substituted for "Board of Trade," and "Supreme Court" for "High Court;" a new subsection is added: "(4) The Treasurer may at any time after the coming into operation of this Ordinance open the account at the Treasury referred to in this Ordinance as the Bankruptcy Estates Account."

The Court to act in aid of and auxiliary to certain Courts in United Kingdom.

111. The Court and its officers shall act in aid of and be auxiliary to any Court in the United Kingdom having jurisdiction in bankruptcy, and shall give effect to the title of every receiver, trustee or assignee, in any proceeding in any such Court to any property of a person subject to such jurisdiction which is situate within the Colony; and any execution, attachment, or other process in the Colony against the property of such person which has not been completed before the date on which the title of such receiver, trustee or assignee, takes effect shall be void as against such receiver, trustee or assignee.

Imp. § 118.

112. = Imp. § 152, except: "Ordinance" is substituted for "Act," and "Imperial" is inserted after "1882."

Right of appeal to King in Council under certain terms and conditions, Chap. 8, Cons. Laws, to apply to every such appeal. 2. Orders made by the Supreme Court under The Bankruptcy Ordinance, 1901, shall at the instance of any person aggrieved be subject to appeal to His Majesty in Council under such regulations and upon such terms and conditions as His Majesty in Council shall be pleased to establish. The provisions as to appeals contained in chapter 8 of the Consolidated Laws shall apply to every appeal made under this section in the same manner as if the person appealing or intending to appeal were a party to an action in the Supreme Court.

The provisions relating to appeals are given supra, p. 753.

3. [Amends No. 14 of 1901, supra, and is there incorporated.]

c) No. 23 of 1907. An Ordinance to amend The Bankruptcy Ordinance, 1901, (31st October, 1907).

Construction. 1. This Ordinance shall be read and construed as one with Ordinance No. 14 of 1901, The Bankruptcy Ordinance, 1901, hereinafter referred to as the principal Ordinance.

Penalty for certain offences committed by a person against whom a receiving order is made. 2. Any person against whom a receiving order in bankruptcy has been or shall hereafter be made shall in each of the following cases be guilty of a misdemeanour, and shall be liable, on conviction thereof, to imprisonment, with or without hard labor, for any term not exceeding two years, that is to say: 1. If he does not to the best of his knowledge and belief fully and truly discover to the trustee administering his estate for the benefit of his creditors all his property, real and personal, and how, and to whom, and for what consideration, and when, he disposed of any part of his property except such part as had been disposed of in the ordinary way of his trade (if any) or laid out in the ordinary expense of his family, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud. 2. If he does not deliver up to such trustee or as he directs all such part of his real and personal property as is in his custody or under his control and which he is required by law to deliver up, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud. 3. If he does not deliver up to such trustee, or as he directs, all books, documents, papers and writings, in his custody or under his control, relating to his property or affairs, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud. 4. If after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him, or within six months next before such presentation, he conceals or removes any part of his property to the value of fifty dollars or upwards, or conceals any debt due to or from him, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud. 5. If he makes any material omission in any statement required under the principal Ordinance, relating to his affairs, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud. 6. If, knowing or believing that a false debt has been proved by any person under the bankruptcy proceedings, he fails for the period of a month to inform the trustee thereof, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud. 7. If after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him he prevents the production of any books, document, paper or writing, affecting or relating to his property or affairs, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to conceal the state of his affairs or to defeat the law. 8. If after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him or within six months next before such presentation he conceals, destroys, mutilates, or falsifies, or is privy to the concealment, destruction, mutilation, or falsification of any book or document affecting or relating to his property or affairs, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to conceal the state of his affairs or to defeat the law. 9. If after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him or within six months next before such presentation he makes, or is privy to the making of any false entry in any book or document affecting or relating to his property or affairs, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to conceal the state of his affairs or to defeat the law. 10. If after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him or within six months next before such presentation, he parts with, alters or makes any omission in, or is privy to the parting with, altering, or making any omission in, any document affecting or relating to his property or affairs, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud. 11. If after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him or at any meeting of his creditors within six months next before such presentation he attempts to account for any part of his property by fictitious losses or expenses. 12. If within six months next before the presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him he by any false representation or other fraud obtains any property on credit, and has not paid for the same. 13. If within six months next before the presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him he obtains under the false pretence of carrying on business and dealing in the ordinary way of his business any property on credit, and has not paid for the same, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud. 14. If within six months next before the presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him he pawns, pledges, or disposes of otherwise than in the ordinary way of his business any property which he has obtained on credit and has not paid for, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud. 15. If he is guilty of any false representation or other fraud for the purpose of obtaining the consent of his creditors, or any of them, to any agreement with reference to his affairs, or his bankruptcy. 16. If after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him or within a period of six months next before such presentation he quits the Colony and takes with him, or attempts or makes preparation for quitting the Colony and for taking with him, any part of his property to the amount of one hundred dollars or upwards, which would by law be divisible amongst his creditors under the bankruptcy, unless the jury is satisfied that he had no intent to defraud.

Penalty for any false claim etc., by a creditor in bankruptcy. 3. If any creditor in any bankruptcy or liquidation by arrangement or composition with creditors in pursuance of principal Ordinance wilfully and with intent to defraud makes any false claim or any proof, declaration, or statement of account which is untrue in any material particular, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanour punishable with imprisonment not exceeding one year with or without hard labour.

Imp. 32 & 33 Vic. c. 62, § 11.

Liability of debtor for unpaid balance of debt in certain cases. 4. Where a debtor makes any arrangement or composition with his creditors under the provisions of the principal Ordinance, he shall remain liable for the unpaid balance of any debt which he incurred or increased, or whereof, before the date of the arrangement or composition, he obtained forbearance by any fraud, provided the defrauded creditor has not assented to the arrangement or composition otherwise than by proving his debt and accepting dividends.

Misdemeanours. 5. 1. Where there is in the opinion of the Court ground to believe that a bankrupt or any other person has been guilty of an offence which is by law made a misdemeanour in cases of bankruptcy the Court may commit the bankrupt or such other person for trial. 2. For the purpose of committing the bankrupt or such other person for trial the Court shall have all the powers of a justice of the peace as to taking depositions, binding over witnesses to appear, admitting the accused to bail or otherwise.

Attorney-General to prosecute where the Court orders prosecution. 6. Where the Court orders a prosecution of any person for any offence under this Ordinance or for any offence arising out of or connected with any bankruptcy proceedings it shall be the duty of the Attorney-General to institute and carry on the prosecution.

Falkland Islands.

Introduction.<sup>1)</sup>

The Colony of the Falkland Islands embraces besides the islands properly so called the groups of islands known as South Georgia, the South Orkneys, the South Shetlands, the Sandwich Islands, and the territory known as Graham's Land, situated in the South Atlantic Ocean to the south of the fiftieth parallel of south latitude, and lying between the twentieth and eightieth degrees of west longitude<sup>2)</sup>.

History and government.<sup>3)</sup>

The Falkland Islands were discovered in 1592 by Captain Davis, who accompanied Cavendish on his last voyage. Davis made no observations as to their position, and "left them as he found them, without a name."<sup>4)</sup> In 1594 they were seen by Sir Richard Hawkins, who named them in honor of his Queen and of himself, Hawkins's Maidenland. The Dutch navigators, Verhagen and Sebald de Wert, reached them in 1598, and named them Sebald's Islands. Their present name was probably given them in 1689 by Strong.

In 1748 ships were fitted out by the British government to obtain a more complete knowledge of the islands. This aroused the suspicion and opposition of the Spanish ambassador at London. Sir Benjamin Keene, then representing England at Madrid, was interrogated by Carvajal concerning the expedition. In conformity with his instructions he informed the Spanish government that mere discovery was intended, and no settlement contemplated. But this did not satisfy the Spanish government, and the British government finally dismissed the whole design<sup>5)</sup>.

In 1764 the Islands were taken possession of by the French, and a colony of Acadians planted at Port Louis on East Falkland. In 1765 Capt. Byron, acting for the British government, took formal possession, and early in the following year Capt. Macbride arrived in the Islands, erected a small block house and stationed a garrison at Port Egmont. These acts were done in ignorance of the existence of the settlement at Port Louis<sup>6)</sup>. The rights of the French had in the meantime been transferred to Spain. On 28th November, 1769, Capt. Hunt, in command of the English garrison, commanded a Spanish schooner hovering about the island to depart. The Spanish commander obeyed, but in a few days returned with a letter dated Malouina, 30th November, 1759, signed by the chief officer of the settlement on East Falkland, and claiming the islands as a part of Spain. Capt. Hunt in turn asserted the rights of Great Britain to the islands. In the following year a Spanish fleet of five frigates with sixteen hundred men was sent to assert Spanish sovereignty, and the English garrison surrendered. Diplomatic negotiations followed. England demanded the restitution of the Falkland Islands, and a disavowal of the acts of the Spanish officers. Spain offered a compromise providing for a mutual disavowal of Hunt's act of warning and the acts of the Spanish officers. This was refused, the British representative at Madrid was ordered to withdraw, and warlike preparations were made by England. Spain then disavowed the acts of the Spanish officers, and agreed to restore Port Egmont to Great Britain, leaving the question of the prior right of sovereignty unaffected<sup>7)</sup>. The action of the English ministry was the occasion of the bitter attacks on the government by Junius, and brought forth the vindication of its actions by Samuel Johnson.

The islands appear to have been abandoned by Great Britain in 1774. In 1820 the Republic of Buenos Ayres took possession of them, and in 1826 made a grant of East Falkland to Don Luis Vernet. In 1831 Vernet, acting under a decree of 10th June, 1829, as political and military governor of the islands, seized three American schooners for violating the sealing regulations of the government of Buenos Ayres. President Jackson in his annual message to Congress (6th December, 1831) referred to the incident, and denied the jurisdiction of the Buenos Ayres government<sup>1</sup>). In December, 1831, Capt. Duncan of the U. S. S. "Lexington" proceeded from Buenos Ayres to the Falkland Islands, released the captured American vessels and their crews, and dispersed the Argentine colonists<sup>2</sup>). The incident gave rise to demands for indemnity by both the American and the Buenos Ayres governments, and resulted finally in Mr. Baylies, the American chargé d'affaires at Buenos Ayres, demanding his passports.

On 3d January 1833, Great Britain took formal possession of the Islands, claiming them under the recognition of the British claims by Spain in 1770 and 1771. The government of Buenos Ayres vigorously protested, but the British sovereignty has been exercised continuously since 1833<sup>3</sup>).

Prior to the establishment of civil government in 1843, the Islands were administered by naval officers. Civil government was established by letters patent of 23d June, 1843, issued under the authority of the Act of Parliament of 11th April 1843<sup>4</sup>). Further provision for the government of the Falkland Islands was made by letters patent of 28th April, 1876, creating the office of Governor and Commander-in-Chief. The Falkland Islands Company was incorporated by Royal Charter, 23d December, 1851.

The present constitution of the Colony is contained in the letters patent of the 25th February, 1892<sup>5</sup>). The executive authority is vested in a Governor and Commander-in-Chief, assisted by an executive council<sup>6</sup>). The legislative council is composed of the Governor and of not less than two other members appointed by the Crown, and is invested with power to establish ordinances not repugnant to the law of England, and to constitute courts<sup>7</sup>). The right to disallow local Acts and to legislate by means of orders in council is expressly reserved<sup>8</sup>). The government of the Dependencies is regulated by letters patent of 21st July, 1908<sup>9</sup>).

Law in force.

The Falkland Islands having been acquired by occupation, the law in force is the common law of England, as modified by Imperial Acts expressly or impliedly extended to the colony, and by local ordinances<sup>10</sup>). The law in force in England on 1st January, 1850, in so far as applicable to local conditions was adopted by an ordinance of 1876<sup>11</sup>).

The common law and statutes of general application which were in force in England on the 22d May, 1900, are, subject to all local ordinances and orders in council for the time being in force, declared to be in force in the Colony and dependencies, but so far only as the circumstances of the Colony and dependencies and their inhabitants and the limits of the colonial jurisdiction permit, and subject to such qualifications as local circumstances render necessary<sup>12</sup>).

Courts and procedure.

The Supreme Court consists of the Chief Justice, and, if assessors are summoned, of the Chief Justice and such assessors, and of such other Judge or Judges as may be appointed<sup>1)</sup>. The same person may be appointed to the offices of Chief Justice and Police Magistrate, and any person so appointed ceases to be styled the Chief Justice, and is styled the Judge<sup>2)</sup>. Whenever the same person holds the office of Judge and Police Magistrate the Supreme Court for the purpose of hearing appeals from the police court, but for no other purpose, is held before the Judge and three Justices, and on such appeals all questions are determined by a majority of the Court, the Judge having a casting vote in the case of an equality of votes<sup>3)</sup>.

The Supreme Court has within the Colony all the jurisdiction, powers and authority of the following Courts and Judges in England: 1. The King's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice; 2. The Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice; 3. The Courts and Justices of Oyer and Terminer and general gaol delivery; 4. Any Court of Quarter Sessions in England; 5. The Probate, Divorce and Admiralty Division of the High Court of Justice in matters of probate and admiralty, and in matters of divorce subject to Her Majesty's Order in Council of 28th November, 1899, and to any Order in Council that may be made altering or amending such jurisdiction<sup>4)</sup>. The Supreme Court also exercises jurisdiction in matters of insolvency and bankruptcy<sup>5)</sup>, escheat<sup>6)</sup>, and the guardianship of infants and lunatics<sup>7)</sup>. Law and equity are administered concurrently; where there is a conflict between the rules of equity and the rules of common law, the former prevail<sup>8)</sup>.

The Chief Justice may cause any member of council or justice to be summoned to sit with him as an assessor in the trial of any cause or the hearing of any proceeding, civil or criminal. Such assessors have no voice in the decision of any case, but the name of every assessor who dissents from the judgment of the Court, together with a note of the grounds of such dissent, is recorded on the proceedings and signed by the assessor so dissenting<sup>9)</sup>. The Chief Justice may by summary order remove into the Supreme Court any suit instituted in a lower court, and may also remove from the Supreme Court into a lower court any suit involving directly or indirectly any claim, demand, or question to, or respecting property, or any civil right amounting to or of the value of not more than £50, and which, in his opinion, can properly be tried in such lower courts, and thereupon the Police Magistrate or Judge of the summary court, as the case may be, may summarily try the same<sup>10)</sup>.

The Supreme Court has appellate jurisdiction over all cases determined in the inferior courts, and in respect of any misdirections or misrulings of the judges thereof, and may set aside or correct the same<sup>11)</sup>. Any person dissatisfied with any judgment of any inferior court may appeal to the Supreme Court by petition within fourteen days after the day on which judgment was given, or within such further time as the Chief Justice may allow. The Supreme Court may determine the case upon the evidence taken in the Police Court, or may rehear the case and admit new evidence, and determine the case in a summary way, or remit it to be tried by a jury, and allow such costs to either party as it deems just<sup>12)</sup>. No right of appeal exists in the following cases: 1. Where the truth of the accusation or correctness of the claim has been admitted; 2. Where imprisonment is adjudged for failure to comply with an order for the payment of money, for the finding of sureties, for the entering into any recognizance, or for the giving of any security; 3. Where in a civil case before judgment both parties agree in writing that the judgment of the inferior court shall be final; and 4. Where the accused has consented to an adjudication of his case by the inferior court<sup>13)</sup>.

Stipendiary Magistrates and Justices may be appointed by the Governor<sup>14)</sup>. A Magistrate may summon two Justices to sit with him as assessors on the trial of any civil or criminal case<sup>15)</sup>. In addition to criminal jurisdiction, a Magistrate sitting alone has jurisdiction in all suits where the claim, debt or damage or balance

An appeal lies to the Privy Council from any final judgment of the Supreme Court in respect of any matter above the value of £500, and at the discretion of the Court from any other judgment, final or interlocutory. Notice of appeal must be given within twenty-one days next after the judgment, and security for the prosecution of the appeal and the payment of costs must be furnished within three months. The judgment appealed from may be carried into execution or be suspended pending the appeal, as the Chief Justice may direct, and upon such terms and subject to such security to be given by either party as may appear to be most consistent with real and substantial justice<sup>2</sup>).

Except as otherwise provided by local Ordinance or Order in Council, the procedure of the High Court of Justice in England is adopted in the Supreme Court, and the procedure in Police Magistrates' Courts in England is adopted in the Magistrate's Court<sup>3</sup>).

Introduction.

History and government.

The Colony of British Guiana was acquired by conquest from the Batavian Republic in 1803. At the date of the conquest the Colony was divided into the three Dutch Settlements of Demerara and Essequibo, under one governor, and Berbice, under another governor. It appears from the despatches received by the British Admiralty on the 29th November, 1803, which are published in the "London Gazette" of the same date that by the Articles of Capitulation of the settlements of Demerara and Essequibo dated 18th September, 1803, the laws and usages of the Colony were to remain in force and be respected; and the Colony of Berbice was by the Articles of Capitulation of the 24th September, 1803, surrendered on the same terms. In 1831 by Royal Letters Patent the united Colony of Demerara and Essequibo and the Colony of Berbice were made into the single Colony of British Guiana. The laws and usages referred to in the Articles of Capitulation are based on the Roman-Dutch law as it prevailed in Holland previous to the introduction of the Code into that country. This Roman-Dutch law has been expounded by, amongst other jurists, Simon Van Leeuwen in his "Commentaries on Roman-Dutch Law," which was published in 1664.

Law in force.

The Common Law of the Colony is the Roman-Dutch law. The statutory law of the Colony consists of the Ordinances enacted by the Governor of British Guiana with the advice and consent of the Court of Policy, Orders in Council, Acts of the Imperial Parliament extended to the Colony, and Rules and Regulations for administrative purposes made under and by authority of Ordinances. A new and revised edition of the Statute Laws of the colony was prepared and printed pursuant to the Statute Laws (revised edition) Ordinance, 1904. It is based on the revised edition prepared in 1894 by Sir John Carrington, then Attorney-General of the colony, under the authority of an Ordinance similar to that under which the existing revised edition has been prepared. From the works of Simon Van Leeuwen and other commentators on Roman-Dutch law and this revised edition must be deduced the mercantile and maritime law of the Colony.

Commercial Law. Contract and Agency. The common law of the Colony is the Roman-Dutch law: the Institutes of the Laws of Holland by Johannes Van Der Linden LL.D., Amsterdam 1806, should be consulted on the law of contract and agency.

Partnership. The Partnership Ordinance, 1900 (No. 20, of 1900) extends to the Colony the Partnership (Imperial) Act, 1890 (53 & 54 Vic. c. 39), with such verbal variations as are requisite to substitute the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of British Guiana for that of the Supreme Court of Judicature of England. There are also supplemental sections whereby subject to the provisions of the Ordinance and of any other statute for the time being in force the rules of equity and common law applied by the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice in England in cases relating to partnership are to be in force and apply to cases in the Colony. The Ordinance is, subject to the provisions of any written partnership agreement, to apply to all partnerships formed after its commencement, and if the members of any partnership formed before its commencement signify by any written document recorded in the Registrar's (colonial) office their desire that it should so apply, it is also to apply to such partnership as if such partnership had been formed after its commencement. The Ordinance is dated 13th June, 1900.

Mining Partnerships. The Mining Ordinance, 1903, (No. 1 of 1903) in Part 5 as to Mining Partnerships, sections 37 to 46 inclusive, enacts that a mining partnership exists when two or more persons own or acquire a claim for the purpose of working it, and actually engage in working it or jointly employ others to work it for them; and whether there is a written contract of partnership or not.

An express agreement to become partners or to share the profits or losses of mining is not necessary to the formation or existence of a mining partnership. The relation arises out of the ownership of shares in a claim and working the same for the purpose for which the concession was granted or the licence in respect of it issued.

Any claim owned and worked by partners in mining, whether purchased with partnership funds or not, is partnership property.

The assessment of the shares of mining partners in profits and losses, their lien on partnership property for debts due to creditors or themselves for advances, modes of transfer of their shares, and right of dissolution, are provided for by these sections of Part 5 of the Ordinance.

Part 5 does not apply to any company or association incorporated or registered under the Companies Ordinance, 1898, and its application may be limited or excluded by a written contract of partnership. The Partnership Ordinance, 1900, does not apply to any question provided for by Part 5 of the Ordinance where the Ordinance applies to the partnership in connection with which such question had arisen.

Limited Partnership. No Ordinance has up to the end of the year 1911 enabled the formation of limited partnerships.

Company Law. The constitution and powers of joint stock companies for carrying on undertakings of a public nature and their authority to take lands for such purpose are provided for by the following Ordinances.

The Companies' Clauses and Powers Consolidation Ordinance No. 1, 1846. This Ordinance comprises such of the provisions of the following Imperial Acts as are applicable to the circumstances, state, and condition of the Colony, viz:

An Act to provide for the Conveyance of the Mails by Railway (1 & 2 Vic. c. 98).

An Act for regulating Railways (3 & 4 Vic. c. 97).

An Act for the better Regulation of Railways, etc. (5 & 6 Vic. c. 55).

An Act to attach certain Conditions to the Construction of Railways, etc. (7 & 8 Vic. c. 85).

An Act for consolidating in one Act certain provisions usually inserted in Acts with respect to the Constitution of Companies incorporated for carrying on Undertakings of a Public Nature (8 & 9 Vic. c. 16).

An Act for consolidating in one Act certain provisions usually inserted in Acts authorising the Taking of Lands for Undertakings of a Public Nature (8 & 9 Vic. c. 18).

An Act for consolidating in one Act certain Provisions usually inserted in Acts authorising the Making of Railways (8 & 9 Vic. c. 20).

An Act to restrict the Powers of selling or leasing Railways, &c. (8 & 9 Vic. c. 96).

The Companies' Clauses and Powers Consolidation Ordinance, No. 4 of 1877, consolidates in one Ordinance certain provisions usually inserted in Ordinances relating to the constitution and management of companies incorporated for carrying on undertakings of a public nature. This Ordinance, so far as the same may be applicable, applies to every company which obtains a special Ordinance incorporating this Ordinance save so far as its provisions are expressly varied or excepted by the special Ordinance. It is divided into 26 parts dealing with matters relating to Shares, Stock, General Meetings, Directors, Auditors, Accounts, Dividends, By-Laws, etc.

The Companies' Clauses (Completion of Titles) Ordinance, 1898, amends the Ordinance No. 1 of 1846 in respect of the completion of the title to lands required by undertakings of a public nature.

The English Companies (Holding of Lands) Ordinance, No. 7 of 1868, enables companies incorporated under the Imperial Companies Acts to hold lands and other immoveable property in the Colony in the same manner to all intents and purposes as if such company had been incorporated in the Colony under the Colonial Ordinance. This Ordinance is extended by Ordinance No. 12 of 1910.

The Companies Ordinance, No. 21 of 1898, consolidates and amends the law relating to the incorporation, regulation, and winding-up of trading companies and other associations.

Commercial Contracts. The Sale of Goods (Imperial) Act of 1893 and the Factors (Imperial) Act of 1889 have not been extended to the Colony. The law as to sales of goods and factors or mercantile agents follows the Roman-Dutch law of the Colony and English common law, both English and South African judgments being cited in the Supreme Court of the Colony.

Banking and Bills of Exchange. Copies of entries in bankers' books are by the Evidence Ordinance, No. 20 of 1893, made admissible as prima facie evidence of such entry after proof either oral or by affidavit that the book containing the entry was at the time of the entry one of the ordinary books of the bank and that the entry was made in the usual and ordinary course of business and that the book is in the custody of the bank.

Bills of Exchange. The Bills of Exchange Ordinance, No. 13 of 1891, extends to the Colony the Bills of Exchange (Imperial) Act of 1882. It was amended by Ordinance No. 17 of 1907.

Maritime Law. By Ordinance No. 6 of 1864 the general law is declared and it is provided that all questions relating to ships and property therein and owners thereof and the behaviour of masters and mariners and their respective rights, etc.; stoppage in transitu; freight; demurrage; insurance; salvage; average; collisions; bills of lading and all rights, liabilities, claims, contracts; and matters arising in respect of any ship or any such question as aforesaid are to be determined according to the law of England.

Bankruptcy. The Insolvency Ordinance, No. 29 of 1900, consolidates and amends the laws relating to insolvency.

Courts and procedure.

Constitution of the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court of Civil Justice of British Guiana and the Supreme Court of Criminal Justice of British Guiana were united, consolidated together, and constituted one Supreme Court of Justice in the Colony to be called the Supreme Court of British Guiana. The Court is a Superior Court of Record and exercises all the authorities, powers, and functions belonging to such a Court according to the law of England, and all the authorities, powers and functions which at the date of the conquest of the Colony belonged to the High Court of Justice of Holland and to the National Court of Holland or other Courts then possessing and exercising in Holland or in the Colony the jurisdiction of Superior Courts.

The Court consists of three judges; viz, the Chief Justice of British Guiana, and two Puisne Judges of British Guiana.

The Court uses a seal bearing the Royal Arms and the inscription "The Supreme Court of British Guiana," and every document, including letters of decree, required by law or the practice of the Court to be sealed must be sealed with such seal. The judges of the Court are appointed by the Governor and hold office during the King's pleasure, or until avoided by the judges' acceptance of some other office not authorized by law.

The Full Court is ordinarily composed of the three judges: but any two judges are sufficient to constitute a Court, except for the determination of appeals from the decision of a judge. In case of difference in a Full Court of two judges then the cause or matter must be re-tried, or re-heard and determined by a Full Court of three judges.

A single Judge, sitting apart or in chambers, continues to exercise the jurisdiction exercised by a single Judge before the passing of the Ordinance. The criminal jurisdiction is exercised by a single Judge sitting with a jury in the same manner and with the same power as a Judge of Assize in England. The limited, appellate and admiralty jurisdiction vested in the Court is exercised by a single Judge sitting apart or in chambers.

The officers of the Court have their duties and powers prescribed by the Ordinance.

Original Jurisdiction. The Court, both civil and criminal, includes within its jurisdiction all the jurisdictions then vested in the Courts which by the Ordinance were united, or in all or any one or more of the Judges of the said Courts sitting together or separately.

The Court has a limited jurisdiction: 1. In actions of debt or damages on any claim not exceeding 2500 dollars; 2. In actions for the recovery or transport of immoveable property, specific chattels, or penalties where the value or amount is under 2500 dollars; 3. In all mortgage actions where claim is under 2500 dollars; 4. In all opposition suits on claims under 2500 dollars; 5. In actions of interdict, mandament, mandamus, or appointment of a receiver, where the subject matter is under 2500 dollars; 6. In actions of partition or sale where the value of the property is under 5000 dollars; 7. In actions for an account, or administration of any estate or boedel under 5000 dollars in amount or value; 8. In actions for dissolution of partnership where the property is under 5000 dollars in value; 9. In actions against an agent for an account on claims under 2500 dollars; 10. In counter-claims in the foregoing actions to the same amount as the action; 11. In action on debts or claims recoverable by summary process; 12. And in each of the foregoing cases by consent in writing of the parties the Court has its jurisdiction unrestricted by the amount (whatever it may be) of the claim or value of the subject matter: but judgments in actions extended by such consent are not, in respect of appeal, to be deemed judgments with consent.

Appellate Jurisdiction. The Court exercises an appellate jurisdiction on appeals from decisions of the magistrates.

The Court is constituted a Colonial Court of Admiralty within the meaning of the Colonial Court of Admiralty (Imperial) Act 1890 and exercises Admiralty jurisdiction as provided by that Act. Jurisdiction is given to the Court to reduce what it may deem to be an excessive rate of interest in agreements to pay interest; to grant whatever remedies or relief it may think just in all causes or matters so that all questions between the parties shall be finally determined; to grant an interdict, mandament, or mandamus and appoint a receiver in cases in which it appears to the Court just or convenient: to make an order as to the procedure to be followed in any cause or matter, whether applied for by the party entitled or not.

Appeals. An appeal from the judgment or final order of a single Judge (not pronounced or made with the consent of the parties) must be made to the Full Court in all causes or matters not being criminal proceedings by the Crown: appeals from the Full Court are to His Majesty in Council subject to such conditions as may be in existence under Order in Council.

The Ordinance and the Rules of Court contained in it regulate the times and places of the sittings of the Court, and the practice and procedure of the Court in its general civil jurisdiction; its criminal jurisdiction; its limited jurisdiction; its appellate jurisdiction; and its admiralty jurisdiction so far as may be in accordance with the Rules for Vice-Admiralty Courts in British possessions approved by Order in Council of the 22d August, 1883.

Transfer of Actions. Power is given to the Court of its own motion to transfer actions from its limited to its general jurisdiction and vice versâ.

Costs. The fees and costs are regulated by the Rules of the Court.

Rules of Court. The judges may make rules and orders of Court as to: sittings and vacations; pleadings, practice, and procedure, and execution of process; costs and taxation, forms to be used; and generally as to any other matters to be regulated by the Court. All rules and orders must be approved by the Governor and Court of Policy and may be disallowed by the Crown.

Interpretation. Statutes relating to the several Courts whose jurisdiction is vested in the Supreme Court are to be interpreted as if the Supreme Court and the judges thereof had been named therein.

In any rules and orders of Court the words "Plantation in Cultivation" are to mean any quantity of land not less than 150 acres in cultivation with sugar-cane.

Power ad lites. The general power ad lites to any barrister at law or solicitor to prosecute and defend is not a power to receive money or give receipts without a special clause to that effect.

Power to Make Rules. The power to make rules extends to fees and costs and the practice and procedure in any department of the Registrar's office, including the Provost Marshall's office, so far as such practice and procedure is not prescribed by Ordinance.

Restrictions on Officers of the Court. No official in the Registrar's office may either directly or indirectly purchase any property sold in execution under pain of instant dismissal for so doing.

Foreigners. Subject to any special disability to sue or be sued any person, whether a foreigner or not and whether domiciled in the Colony or not, may take proceedings and be proceeded against in the Supreme Court in its civil jurisdiction, and the Court has full jurisdiction, power, and authority to try, hear and determine the action and pronounce a final judgment or order and execution therein.

Personal Arrest. Power is given to the Court to arrest in certain cases any defendant about to quit the Colony.

Legal (Civil) Procedure. The Legal Procedure is based on the following Enactments, viz: Order in Council relating to Appeals to the King in Council of the 20th June 1831; Imperial Act (3 & 4 William IV, Cap. 41), establishing the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council to hear Appeals from the Colonies, and the Acts amending the same; and the following Ordinances, viz: An Ordinance to explain and regulate the Duties, Powers, and Authority of the Chief Justice of British Guiana in certain Civil Matters (No. 2, 1847); An Ordinance for the Constitution of a Supreme Court of Justice for the Colony, &c. (No. 7; 1893); An Ordinance to amend the Law relating to the practice and procedure of the Supreme Court of British Guiana in its Civil Jurisdiction (No. 17 of 1901).

Application of Law.

No. 6 of 1864. An Ordinance to introduce into this Colony the Law of England with regard to Merchant Shipping and Matters connected therewith (2d January, 1865).

Short title. 1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Law of Merchant Shipping Ordinance, 1864.

Interpretation of term. 2. In the construction and for the purposes of this Ordinance, the term "ships" used therein includes every description of vessel used in navigation.

Questions relating to merchant shipping to be determined according to the law of England. 3. From and after the commencement of this Ordinance, all questions arising within this Colony relating to the following matters, namely: ships, and the property therein, and the owners thereof, and the behaviour of the master and mariners and their respective rights, duties, and liabilities as regards the carriage of passengers and goods by ships; stoppage in transitu; freight; demurrage; insurance; salvage; average; collision between ships; bills of lading; and all rights, liabilities, claims, contracts, and matters arising in respect of any ship, or any such question as aforesaid, shall be adjudged, determined, construed, and enforced according to the law of England applicable to such or the like case.

Where a consignee indorses a bill of lading the holder alone or person authorized by the holder, is entitled to delivery. — Rose and Duff v. Carter, (11th June, 1858), 2 L. R. (O.S.) 88, Held, on the facts, an unreasonable delay in forwarding. — Gomes v. Yong, (19th December, 1902); affirmed (17th March, 1903). Where a bill of lading provides "on deck at shipper's risk" the carrier is exempt from all responsibility, including that of loss or damage from negligent or improper acts of the master or crew. — More especially the carrier is not responsible for goods lost by being washed overboard. — S.S. "Cavalier" v. Santos & Co., (23d February, 1905).

Exercise of jurisdiction in specified matters. 4. All such questions and matters as aforesaid which, according to the law of England, are cognizable and determined by or before any of His Majesty's Superior Courts of Justice, or by or before any County Court shall be cognizable and determined in this Colony by or before the Supreme Court of British Guiana in its civil jurisdiction, according to the course and practice thereof; and all such questions which, according to the law of England, are cognizable before Justices of the Peace shall in like manner be cognizable and determined by or before the Stipendiary Magistrates of this Colony, according to the course and practice of such Magistrates, and so that such matters as, according to the law of England, are cognizable or determined by or before two Justices of the Peace may be cognizable and determined in this Colony by any Stipendiary Magistrate.

By Ord. No. 3 of 1909 the English law relating to fire and life insurance is adopted.

Saving of admiralty jurisdiction. 5. Nothing in this Ordinance shall in any way affect His Majesty's Vice-Admiralty Court of British Guiana or the jurisdiction or practice thereof.

Partnership.

No. 20 of 1900. An Ordinance to declare and amend the Law of Partnership (13th June, 1900).

(This Ordinance is identical in all material respects with the Imperial Partnership Act, 1890, [53 & 54 Vic. c. 39].)

The burden of proof of showing the existence of a partnership is on the party averring. — Tengely v. Hughes, (March, 1890) 1 L.R. (N.S.) 34. Facts indicating the existence of a partnership at will. — Cleghorn v. Brown, (7th February, 1893), 3 L.R. (N. S.) 12; Teixeira v. Harding

& Pinder, (5th May, 1906). Where several persons are sued as partners, and no partnership in fact ever existed, judgment may be given against one. — Brown v. Henry, (7th December, 1903). Quære, whether the mere registration of a partnership agreement without particular intimation such as would notify the commercial world that the particular partnership is one en commandite is sufficient to confer that exceptional status on the firm. Quære, whether the restriction of liability is not confined to contractual obligations and not extended to those arising in tort. — Administrator-General v. Farnum & Co., (14th July, 1891), 2 L. R. (N.S.) 73. Third persons are not bound by stipulations in the partnership agreement restricting the powers of partners to bind the firm. — De Jonge v. Gonsalves, (5th December, 1859), 2 L. R. (O.S.) 28. Where it is agreed between the parties that their rights shall be interpreted according to the law of British Guiana, and the foreign partners appear voluntarily, the Court will order an account in a partnership created in a foreign country to carry on operations in the Colony. — Leggatt v. Fogel, (6th January, 1903). Save under exceptional circumstances, the Court will not entertain an action for the taking of partnership accounts, unless a dissolution is sought. — Leggatt v. Fogel, (6th January, 1903). The dissolution of a partnership may be inferred from circumstances. Where by consent of the partners the business is transferred to another person, there is in effect a termination of the partnership. Thereafter the old partnership continues merely for the purpose of winding up pending affairs. — Tat v. Man Son Hing, (24th April, 1909). A partner cannot be a debtor, in the legal sense of the word, of the firm of which he is himself a member. — Gomes v. Willems, (1st October, 1903). A surviving partner can sue for a debt due to a firm, the remedy surviving. Perot v. Executors of Smith, (17th August, 1903). Circumstances under which a partner was held barred by acquiescence from opening up accounts. — De Freitas v. Peireira, (16th March, 1893), 3 L. R. (N. S.) 32. Upon dissolution, each partner is entitled in the absence of agreement, to have the partnership property sold. — Leggatt v. Fogel, (6th January, 1903). A claim for dissolution refused. — Seabra v. Wilson, (2d December, 1903). A partnership dissolved. — Taite v. Nedd, (3d January, 1903).

Companies.<sup>1)</sup>

a) No. 21 of 1898. An Ordinance to consolidate and amend the Law relating to the Incorporation, Regulation, and Winding-up of Trading Companies and other Associations. (10th December, 1898.)<sup>2)</sup>

Preliminary.

Short title. 1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Companies Ordinance, 1898. Imp. § 295.

Definitions. 2. For the purposes of this Ordinance: 1. A company which carries on the business of insurance in common with any other business or businesses, shall be deemed to be an insurance company. 2. "The Court" means the Supreme Court of British Guiana, and includes any Judge thereof sitting apart in any proceedings under Part IV or which may under this Ordinance or any Rules of Court be taken or had before a single Judge. 3. "The Registrar" means the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies hereinafter mentioned.

Arrangement of the Ordinance. 3. This Ordinance is divided into Parts as follows: Part. I. Constitution and Incorporation of Companies and Associations. Part. II. Registers, Capital, Liability of Members, etc. Part. III. Management and Administration of Companies and Associations. Part. IV. Winding-up of Companies and Associations, and striking defunct Companies off the Register. Part. V. The Registration Office. Part. VI. Application of Ordinance to Companies registered under the Companies Ordinance, 1864. Part. VII. Companies authorized to register, and Re-registration. Part. VIII. Application of the Ordinance to unregistered Companies. Part. IX. Repeals and special Provisions.

Prohibition of partnerships exceeding certain number. 4. 1. No company, association, or partnership shall be formed, after the commencement of this Ordinance, for the purpose of carrying on the business of banking, unless it is formed in pursuance of some special or other Ordinance, or of an Order-in-Council, or of an Act of Parliament, or of Letters Patent from the Crown. 2. No company, association, or partnership consisting of more than twenty persons shall be formed, after the commencement of this Ordinance, for the purpose of carrying on any business, other than banking, that has for its object the acquisition of gain by the company, association, or partnership, or by the individual members thereof, unless it is registered as a company under this Ordinance, or is formed in pursuance of some other Ordinance, in or of an Order-in-Council, or of an Act of Parliament, or of Letters Patent from the Crown.

Imp. § 1.

Part I. Constitution and Incorporation of Companies and Associations.

Memorandum of association.

Mode of forming company. 5. Any seven or more persons associated for any lawful purpose may, by subscribing their names to a memorandum of association and otherwise complying with the requirements of this Ordinance in respect of registration, form an incorporated company, with or without limited liability.

Imp. § 2.

Mode of limiting liability of members. 6. The liability of the members of a company formed under this Ordinance may, according to the memorandum of association, be limited either to the amount, if any, unpaid on the shares respectively held by them, or to such amount as the members may respectively undertake by the memorandum of association to contribute to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound up.

Memorandum of association. 7. Where a company is formed on the principle of having the liability of its members limited to the amount unpaid up on their shares, hereinafter referred to as "a company limited by shares," the memorandum of association shall contain the following things, that is to say: 1. The name of the proposed company, with the addition of the word "limited" as the last word in such name. 2. The town or place within the Colony in which the registered office of the company is proposed to be situate. 3. The objects for which the proposed company is to be established. 4. A declaration that the liability of the members is limited; and 5. The amount of capital with which the company propose to be registered divided into shares of a certain fixed amount. Subject to the following regulations: 1. That no subscriber shall take less than one share; and 2. That each subscriber of the memorandum of association shall write opposite to his name the number of shares which he takes.

Imp. § 3.

Memorandum of association of company limited by guarantee. 8. Where a company is formed on the principle of having the liability of its members limited to such amount as the members respectively undertake to contribute to the assets of the company in the event of the same being wound up, hereinafter referred to as "a company limited by guarantee," the memorandum of association shall contain the following things, that is to say: 1. The name of the proposed company, with the addition of the word "limited," as the last word in such name; 2. The town or place within the Colony in which the registered office of the company is proposed to be situate; 3. The objects for which the proposed company is to be established; and 4. A declaration that each member undertakes to contribute to the assets of the company, in the event of the same being wound up during the time that he is a member, or within one year afterwards, for payment of the debts and liabilities of the company contracted before the time at which he ceases to be a member, and of the costs, charges, and expenses of winding up the company, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories amongst themselves, such amount as may be required, not exceeding a specified amount.

Imp. § 4.

Memorandum of association of unlimited company. 9. Where a company is formed on the principle of having no limit placed on the liability of its members, hereinafter referred to as "an unlimited company," the memorandum of association shall contain the following things, that is to say: 1. The name of the proposed company; 2. The town or place within the Colony in which the registered office of the company is proposed to be situate; and 3. The objects for which the proposed company is to be established.

Imp. § 5.

Stamp, signature, and effect of memorandum of association. 10. 1. The memorandum of association shall bear the same stamp as an agreement, and shall be signed by each subscriber in the presence of, and be attested by, two witnesses. 2. It shall, when registered, bind the company and the members thereof to the same extent as if each member had subscribed his name thereto, and there were in the memorandum contained, on the part of himself, his heirs, executors, and administrators, a covenant to observe all the conditions of such memorandum, subject to the provisions of this Ordinance.

Imp. §§ 6, 14.

Power of certain companies to alter memorandum of association. 11. Any company limited by shares may so far modify the conditions contained in its memorandum of association, if authorized to do so by its regulations as originally framed or as altered by special resolution in manner hereinafter mentioned, as: 1. To increase its capital, by the issue of new shares of such amount as it thinks expedient; or 2. To consolidate and divide its capital into shares of larger amount than its existing shares, or to convert its paid-up shares into stock; but save as aforesaid, and save as is hereinafter provided in case of a change of name, rendering unlimited the liability of its directors or managers or of the managing director, reduction of capital and shares, subdivision of shares, and alteration of its objects or form of constitution, no alteration shall be made by any company in the conditions contained in its memorandum of association.

Imp. § 41.

Power to company to change name. 12. 1. Any company under this Ordinance, with the sanction of a special resolution of the company passed in manner hereinafter mentioned and with the approval of the Governor-in-Council, may change its name. 2. Upon such change being made, the Registrar shall enter the new name on the register in the place of the former name, and shall issue a certificate of incorporation altered to meet the circumstances of the case. 3. No such alteration of name shall affect any rights or obligations of the company, or render defective any legal proceedings instituted or to be instituted by or against the company, and any legal proceedings may be continued or commenced against the company by its new name that might have been continued or commenced against the company by its former name.

Imp. § 8.

Alteration of memorandum of association, etc.

Power for company to alter objects or form of constitution, subject to confirmation by Court. 13. 1. Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance a company may, by special resolution, alter the provisions of its memorandum of association or deed of settlement with respect to the objects of the company, so far as may be required for any of the purposes hereinafter specified, or alter the form of its constitution by substituting a memorandum and articles of association for a deed of settlement, either with or without any such alteration as aforesaid with respect to the objects of the company, but in no case shall any such alteration take effect until confirmed on petition by the Court. 2. Before confirming any such alteration the Court must be satisfied: a) That sufficient notice has been given to every holder of debentures or debenture stock of the company, and any persons or class of persons whose interests will, in the opinion of the Court, be affected by the alteration; and b) That, with respect to every creditor who in the opinion of the Court is entitled to object, and who signifies his objection in manner directed by the Court, either his consent to the alteration has been obtained or his debt or claim has been discharged or has been determined, or has been secured to the satisfaction of the Court: Provided that the Court may, in the case of any person or class of persons for special reasons, dispense with the notice required by this section. 3. An order confirming any such alteration may be made on such terms and subject to such conditions as to the Court seems fit, and the Court may make such orders as to costs as it deems proper. 4. The Court shall, in exercising its discretion under this Ordinance, have regard to the rights and interests of the members of the company, or of any class of those members, as well as to the rights and interests of the creditors, and may, if it think fit, adjourn the proceedings in order that an arrangement may be made to the satisfaction of the Court for the purchase of the interests of dissentient members; and the Court may give such directions and make such orders as it may think expedient for the purpose of facilitating any such arrangement or carrying the same into effect; provided always that it shall not be lawful to expend any part of the capital of the company in any such purchase. 5. The Court may confirm either wholly or in part, any such alterations as aforesaid with respect to the objects of the company if it appears that the alteration is required in order to enable the company: a) To carry on its business more economically or more efficiently; or b) To attain its main purpose by new or improved means; or c) To enlarge or change the local area of its operations; or d) To carry on some business or businesses which under existing circumstances may conveniently or advantageously be combined with the business of the company; or e) To restrict or abandon any of the objects specified in the memorandum of association or deed of settlement.

Imp. § 9.

Registration of order, together with memorandum as altered or substituted memorandum, and articles and consequences thereof. 14. 1. Where a company has altered the provisions of its memorandum of association or deed of settlement with respect to the objects of the company, or has altered the form of its constitution by substituting a memorandum and articles of association for a deed of settlement, and such alteration has been confirmed by the Court, an office copy of the order confirming such alteration together with a copy of the memorandum of association or deed of settlement so altered, or together with a copy of the substituted memorandum and articles of association (as the case may be), shall be delivered by the company to the Registrar within fifteen days from the date of the order, and the Registrar shall register the same, and shall certify under his hand the registration thereof, and his certificate shall be conclusive evidence that all the requisitions of this Ordinance with respect to such alteration and the confirmation thereof have been complied with, and thenceforth (but subject to the provisions of this Ordinance) the memorandum or deed of settlement so altered shall be the memorandum of association or deed of settlement of the company, or as the case may be, such substituted memorandum and articles of association shall apply to the company in the same manner as if the company were a company registered under this Ordinance with such memorandum and articles of association, and the company's deed of settlement shall cease to apply to the company. 2. If a company makes default in delivering to the Registrar any document required by the preceding subsection of this section to be delivered to him, the company shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars for every day during which it is in default. 3. In this and the preceding section the expression "deed of settlement" includes any contract of co-partnership or other instrument constituting or regulating the company and not being an Ordinance of the Legislature, an Order-in-Council, a Royal Charter, or Letters Patent.

Imp. § 9.

Articles of association.

Regulations to be prescribed by articles of association. First Schedule: Table A.

15. 1. The memorandum of association may, in the case of a company limited by shares, and shall, in the case of a company limited by guarantee or unlimited, be accompanied, when registered, by articles of association, signed by the subscribers to the memorandum of association, and prescribing such regulations for the company as the subscribers to the memorandum of association deem expedient. 2. The articles shall be expressed in separate paragraphs, numbered arithmetically. 3. They may adopt all or any of the provisions contained in the Table marked A in the first Schedule to this Ordinance. 4. They shall, in the case of a company, whether limited by guarantee or unlimited, which has a capital divided into shares, state the amount of capital with which the company propose to be registered; and in the case of a company, whether limited by guarantee or unlimited, who have not a capital divided into shares, state the number of members with which the company propose to be registered, for the purpose of enabling the Registrar to determine the fees payable on registration. 5. In a company limited by guarantee or unlimited, and having a capital divided into shares, each subscriber shall take one share at the least, and shall write opposite to his name in the memorandum of association the number of shares which he takes.

Imp. § 10.

Application of Table A. First Schedule: Table A. 16. In the case of a company limited by shares, if the memorandum of association is not accompanied by articles of association, or in so far as the articles do not exclude or modify the regulations contained in the Table marked A in the first Schedule to this Ordinance, the last mentioned regulations shall, so far as the same are applicable, be deemed to be the regulations of the company in the same manner and to the same extent as if they had been inserted in articles of association, and the articles had been duly registered.

Imp. § 11.

Stamp, signature, and effect of articles of association. 17. 1. The articles of association shall be printed, they shall bear the same stamp as if they were contained in an agreement, and shall be signed by each subscriber in the presence of, and be attested by, two witnesses. 2. When registered, they shall bind the company and the members thereof to the same extent as if each member had subscribed his name thereto, and there were in such articles contained a covenant on the part of himself, his heirs, executors, and administrators, to conform to all the regulations contained in such articles, subject to the provisions of this Ordinance; and all moneys payable by any member to the company in pursuance of the conditions and regulations of the company, or any of such conditions and regulations, shall be deemed to be a debt due from such member to the company.

Imp. §§ 12, 14.

General provisions.

Registration of memorandum of association and articles of association with prescribed fees. First Schedule, Table B: Table C. 18. 1. The memorandum of association and the articles of association, if any, shall be delivered to the Registrar, who shall retain and register the same. 2. There shall be paid to the Registrar by a company having a capital divided into shares, in respect of the several matters mentioned in the Table marked B in the first Schedule to this Ordinance, the several fees therein specified, or such smaller fees as the Governor and Court of Policy may from time to time, by resolution, direct; and by a company not having a capital divided into shares, in respect of the several matters mentioned in the Table marked C in the said Schedule, the several fees therein specified, or such smaller fees as the Governor and Court of Policy may from time to time, by resolution, direct.

Imp. § 15.

Effect of registration. 19. 1. Upon the registration of the memorandum of association and of the articles of association, in cases where articles of association are required by this Ordinance or by the desire of the parties to be registered, the Registrar shall certify, under his hand, that the company is incorporated, and, in the case of a limited company, that the company is limited. 2. The subscribers of the memorandum of association, together with such other persons as may from time to time become members of the company shall, thereupon be a body corporate by the name contained in the memorandum of association, capable forthwith of exercising all the functions of an incorporated company, and having perpetual succession and a common seal, with power to hold lands, but with such liability on the part of the members to contribute to the assets of the company in the event of the same being wound up, as is hereinafter mentioned. 3. A certificate of the incorporation of any company given by the Registrar shall be conclusive evidence that all the requirements of this Ordinance in respect of registration have been complied with.

Imp. §§ 16, 17.

Copies of memorandum and articles to be given to members. 20. 1. A copy of the memorandum of association, having annexed thereto the articles of association, if any, shall be forwarded to every member, at his request, on payment of the sum of forty-eight cents or such less sum as may be prescribed by the company for each copy. 2. If any company makes default in forwarding a copy of the memorandum of association and articles of association, if any, to a member, in pursuance of this section, the company so making default shall for each offence incur a penalty not exceeding five dollars.

Imp. § 18.

Prohibition of identity of names in companies. 21. 1. No company shall be registered under a name identical with that by which a subsisting company is already registered, or so nearly resembling the same as to be calculated to deceive, except in a case where such subsisting company is in the course of being dissolved and testifies its consent in such manner as the Registrar requires. 2. If any company, through inadvertence or otherwise, is, without such consent, as aforesaid, registered by a name identical with that by which a subsisting company is registered, or so nearly resembling the same so as to be calculated to deceive, such first-mentioned company may, with the sanction of the Registrar, change its name, and upon such change being made the Registrar shall enter the new name on the register in the place of the former name, and shall issue a certificate of incorporation altered to meet the circumstances of the case; but no such alteration of name shall affect any rights or obligations of the company, or render defective any legal proceedings instituted or to be instituted by or against the company, and any legal proceedings may be continued or commenced against the company by its new name that might have been continued or commenced against the company by its former name.

Imp. § 8.

Associations not for profit.

Prohibition of certain companies holding land more than two acres. 22. No company formed for the purpose of promoting art, science, religion, charity, or any other like object, not involving the acquisition of gain by the company or by the individual members thereof, shall, without the sanction of the Governor-in-Council, hold more than two acres of land; but the Governor-in-Council may empower any such company to hold lands in such quantity and subject to such conditions as they think fit.

Imp. § 19.

Special provisions as to associations formed for purposes not of gain. 23. 1. Where any association is about to be formed under this Ordinance as a limited company, if it proves to the Governor-in-Council that it is formed for the purpose of promoting commerce, art, science, religion, charity, or any other useful object, and that it is the intention of such association to apply the profits, if any, or other income of the association, in promoting its objects, and to prohibit the payment of any dividend to the members of the association, the Governor-in-Council may by licence, under the hand of the Government Secretary, direct such association to be registered with limited liability, without the addition of the word limited to its name, and such association may be registered accordingly, and upon registration shall enjoy all the privileges and be subject to the obligations by this Ordinance imposed on limited companies, with the exceptions that none of the provisions of this Ordinance that require a limited company to use the word limited as any part of its name, or to publish its name, or to send a list of its members, directors, or managers to the Registrars, shall apply to an association so registered. 2. The licence by the Governor-in-Council may be granted upon such conditions and subject to such regulations as the Governor-in-Council thinks fit to impose, and such conditions and regulations shall be binding on the association, and may, at the option of the Governor-in-Council, be inserted in the memorandum and articles of association, or in both or one of such documents.

Imp. § 20.

Part II. Registers, Capital, Liability of Members, etc.

Registers.

Register of members. 24. Every company under this Ordinance shall cause to be kept in one or more books a register of its members and there shall be entered therein the following particulars (that is to say): a) The names and addresses, and the occupations, if any, of the members of the company, with the addition, in the case of a company having a capital divided into shares, of a statement of the shares held by each member, distinguishing each share by its number, and of the amount paid or agreed to be considered as paid on the shares of each member; b) The date at which the name of any person was entered in the register as a member; and c) The date at which any person ceased to be a member. 2. Any company acting in contravention of this section shall incur a penalty not exceeding twenty-four dollars for every day during which its default in complying with the provisions of this section continues, and every director or manager of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits such contravention shall incur the like penalty.

Imp. § 25.

Making of annual list of members and summary of particulars. 25. 1. Every company under this Ordinance having a capital divided into shares shall make, once at least in every year, a list of all persons who, on the fourteenth day succeeding the day on which the ordinary general meeting, or if there is more than one ordinary general meeting in each year, the first of such ordinary general meetings is held, are members of the company; and such list shall state the names, addresses, and occupations of all the members therein mentioned, and the number of shares held by each of them, and shall contain a summary specifying the following particulars, that is to say: a) The amount of the capital of the company, and the number of shares into which it is divided; b) The number of shares taken from the commencement of the company up to the date of the summary; c) The amount of calls made on each share; d) The total amount of calls received; e) The total amount of calls unpaid; f) The total amount of shares forfeited; g) The names, addresses, and occupations of the persons who have ceased to be members since the last list was made, and the number of shares held by each of them; h) The total amount of shares or stock for which share warrants are outstanding at the date of the summary; and i) The total amount of share warrants which have been issued and surrendered respectively since the last summary was made and the number of shares or amount of stock comprised in each warrant. 2. The above list and summary shall be contained in a separate part of the register, and shall be completed within seven days after such fourteenth day as is mentioned in this section, and a copy shall forthwith be forwarded to the Registrar.

Imp. § 26.

Penalty on company not forwarding list or summary to the Registrar. 26. If any company under this Ordinance having a capital divided into shares makes default in complying with the provisions of this Ordinance with respect to forwarding such list of members or summary as is hereinbefore mentioned to the Registrar, such company shall incur a penalty not exceeding twenty-four dollars for every day during which such default continues; and every director and manager of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits such default shall incur the like penalty.

Imp. § 26.

Giving notice of consolidation or division of shares, or of conversion of capital into stock. 27. Every company under this Ordinance having a capital divided into shares which has consolidated and divided its capital into shares of larger amount than its existing shares, or converted any portion of its capital into stock, shall give notice to the Registrar of such consolidation, division, or conversion, specifying the shares so consolidated, divided, or converted.

Imp. § 42.

Effect of conversion of shares into stock. 28. Where any company under this Ordinance having a capital divided into shares has converted any portion of its capital into stock, and given notice of such conversion to the Registrar, all the provisions of this Ordinance which are applicable to shares only shall cease as to so much of the capital as is converted into stock; and the register of members hereby required to be kept by the company, and the list of members to be forwarded to the Registrar, shall show the amount of stock held by each member in the list instead of the amount of shares and the particulars relating to shares hereinbefore required.

Imp. § 43.

Giving notice of increase of capital and of members. 29. 1. Where a company has a capital divided into shares, whether such shares may or may not have been converted into stock, notice of any increase in such capital beyond the registered capital, and where a company has not a capital divided into shares, notice of any increase in the number of members beyond the registered number, shall be given to the Registrar, in the case of an increase of capital, within fifteen days from the date of the passing of the resolution by which such increase has been authorized, and in the case of any increase of members within fifteen days from the time at which such increase of members has been resolved on or has taken place, and the Registrar shall forthwith record the amount of such increase of capital or members. 2. If such notice is not given within the period aforesaid the company in default shall incur a penalty not exceeding twenty-four dollars for every day during which such neglect to give notice continues; and every director and manager of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits such default shall incur the like penalty.

Imp. § 44.

Prohibition of entry of trusts on register. 30. No notice of any trust, expressed, implied, or constructive, shall be entered on the register, or be receivable by the Registrar, in the case of companies registered under this Ordinance.

Imp. § 27.

Inspection of register. 31. 1. The register of members, commencing from the date of the registration of the company, shall be kept at the registered office of the company, hereinafter mentioned; and, except when closed as hereinafter mentioned, it shall, during business hours, but subject to such reasonable restrictions as the company in general meeting may impose, so that not less than two hours in each day be appointed for inspection, be open to the inspection of any member gratis, and to the inspection of any other person on the payment of twenty-four cents, or such less sum as the company may prescribe for each inspection. 2. Every such member or other person may require a copy of such register, or of any part thereof, or of such list or summary of members as is hereinbefore mentioned, on payment of twenty-four cents for every hundred words required to be copied. 3. If such inspection or copy is refused, the company shall incur for each refusal a penalty not exceeding ten dollars, and a further penalty not exceeding ten dollars for every day during which such refusal continues; and every director and manager of the company who knowingly authorizes or permits such refusal shall incur the like penalty; and, in addition to the above penalty, any Judge of the Supreme Court may, by order, compel an immediate inspection of the register.

Imp. § 30.

Power to close register. 32. Any company under this Ordinance may, on giving notice by advertisement in the Gazette and in some newspaper circulating in the county in which the registered office of the company is situated, close the register of members for any time or times not exceeding in the whole thirty days in each year.

Imp. § 31.

Remedy for improper entry or omission of entry in register. 33. 1. If the name of any person is, without sufficient cause, entered in or omitted from the register of members of any company under this Ordinance, or if default is made, or unnecessary delay takes place, in entering on the register the fact of any person having ceased to be a member of the company, the person or member aggrieved, or any member of the company, or the company itself, may by motion in the Supreme Court of British Guiana, or before any Judge thereof, apply for an order of the Court that the register may be rectified. 2. The Court or Judge may either refuse such application, with or without costs, to be paid by the applicant, or it may, if satisfied of the justice of the case, make an order for the rectification of the register, and may direct the company to pay all the costs of such motion, and any damages which the party aggrieved may have sustained. 3. The Court or Judge may, in any proceeding under this section, decide on any question relating to the title of any person who is a party to such proceeding to have his name entered in or omitted from the register whether such question arises between two or more members or alleged members, or between any members or alleged members and the company, and generally the Court or Judge may in any such proceedings decide any question which it may be necessary or expedient to decide for the rectification of the register: Provided that the Court or Judge may direct an issue to be tried, in which any question of law may be raised, or the Court may refer the parties to their ordinary remedy.

Imp. § 32.

Rectification of register. 34. Whenever any order has been made rectifying the register, in the case of a company hereby required to send a list of its members to the Registrar, the Court or Judge shall, by its order, direct the Registrar to make such rectification.

Imp. § 32.

Use of register as evidence. 35. The register of members shall be prima facie evidence of any matters by this Ordinance directed or authorized to be inserted therein.

Imp. § 33.

Branch registers.

Power for companies to have branch registers. 36. 1. Any company having a capital divided into shares and whose objects comprise the transaction of business in the United Kingdom or in any British Colony may, if authorized to do so by its regulations as originally framed or as altered by special resolution, cause to be kept in that part of the United Kingdom or in any such Colony in which it transacts business, a branch register or registers of members resident in the United Kingdom or in such Colony. 2. The company shall give to the Registrar notice of the situation of the office where any such branch register (in this section called a branch register) is kept, and of any change therein, and of the discontinuance of any such office in the event of the same being discontinued. 3. A branch register shall as regards the particulars entered therein be deemed to be a part of the company's register of members, and shall be prima facie evidence of all particulars entered therein. Any such register shall be kept in the manner provided by this Ordinance with these qualifications, that the advertisement mentioned in section thirty-two of this Ordinance shall be inserted in some newspaper circulating in the district wherein the register to be closed is kept. 4. The company shall transmit to its registered office a copy of every entry in its branch register or registers as soon as may be after such entry is made, and the company shall cause to be kept at its registered office, duly entered up from time to time, a duplicate or duplicates of its branch register or registers. The provisions of section thirty-one of this Ordinance shall apply to every duplicate, and every such duplicate shall, for all the purposes of this Ordinance, be deemed to be part of the register of members of the company. 5. Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance with respect to the duplicate register, the shares or stock registered in a branch register shall be distinguished from the shares or stock registered in the principal register, and no transactions with respect to any shares or stock registered in a branch register shall, during the continuance of the registration of such shares or stock in such branch register, be registered in any other register. 6. The company may at any time discontinue to keep any branch register and thereupon all entries in that register shall be transferred to some other branch register kept by the company in the United Kingdom or in such colony, or to the register of members kept at the registered office of the company. 7. Subject to the provisions of this section any company may by its regulations as originally framed or as altered by special resolution make such provisions as it thinks fit respecting the keeping of branch registers.

Imp. §§ 34, 35.

Distribution of capital.

Nature of interest of member in company. 37. The shares or other interest of any member in a company under this Ordinance shall be of the nature of moveable property, capable of being transferred in manner provided by the regulations of the company, and shall not be of the nature of immoveable property; and each share shall, in the case of a company having a capital divided into shares, be distinguished by its appropriate number.

Imp. § 22.

Definition of "member." 38. The subscribers of the memorandum of association of any company under this Ordinance shall be deemed to have agreed to become members of the company whose memorandum they have subscribed, and, upon the registration of the company, shall be entered as members on the register of members hereinafter mentioned; and every other person who has agreed to become a member of a company under this Ordinance, and whose name is entered on the register of members, shall be deemed to be a member of the company.

Imp. § 24.

Transfer by heir, etc. 39. Any transfer of the share or other interest of a deceased member of the company under this Ordinance made by his heir or executor shall, notwithstanding such heir or executor may not himself be a member, be of the same validity as if he had been a member at the time of the execution of the instrument of transfer.

Imp. § 29.

Certificate of shares or stock. 40. A certificate under the common seal of the company specifying any share or shares or stock held by any member of a company shall be prima facie evidence of the title of the member to the share or shares or stock therein specified.

Imp. § 23.

Reduction of capital.

Power to company to reduce capital. 41. Any company limited by shares may, by special resolution, so far modify the conditions contained in its memorandum of association, if authorised so to do by its regulations as originally framed or as altered by special resolution, as to reduce its capital; but no such resolution for reducing the capital of any company shall come into operation until an order of the Court is registered by the Registrar as is hereinafter mentioned.

Imp. § 46.

Company to add "and reduced" to its name for a limited period. 42. Subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, the company shall, after the date of the passing of any special resolution for reducing its capital, add to its name, until such date as the Court may fix, the words "and reduced" as the last words in its name, and those words shall, until such date, be deemed to be part of the name of the company within the meaning of this Ordinance.

Imp. § 48.

Company to apply to the Court for an order confirming reduction. 43. A company which has passed a special resolution for reducing its capital may apply to the Court by petition for an order confirming the reduction, and, on the hearing of the petition, the Court may, if satisfied that, with respect to every creditor of the company who, under the provisions of this Ordinance is entitled to object to the reduction, either his consent to the reduction has been obtained or his debt or claim has been discharged or has determined, or has been secured as hereinafter provided, make an order confirming the reduction on such terms and subject to such conditions as it thinks fit.

Imp. §§ 47, 50.

Creditors may object to reduction, and list of objecting creditors to be settled by the Court. 44. 1. Subject to the provisions hereinafter contained where a company proposes to reduce its capital, every creditor of the company who, at the date fixed by the Court, is entitled to any debt or claim which, if that date were the commencement of the winding-up of the company, would be admissible in proof against the company, shall be entitled to object to the proposed reduction and to be entered in the list of creditors who are so entitled to object. 2. The Court shall settle a list of such creditors, and for that purpose shall ascertain as far as possible, without requiring an application from any creditor, the names of such creditors and the nature and amount of their debt or claims and may publish notices fixing a certain day or days within which creditors of the company who are not entered on the list are to claim to be so entered, or to be excluded from the right of objection to the proposed reduction.

Imp. § 49.

Court may dispense with consent of creditor on security being given for his debt. 45. Where a creditor whose name is entered on the list of creditors and whose debt or claim is not discharged or determined, does not consent to the proposed reduction, the Court may, if it thinks fit, dispense with such consent on the company securing the payment of the debt or claim of such creditor by setting apart and appropriating, in such manner as the Court may direct, a sum of such amount as is hereinafter mentioned, that is to say: 1. If the full amount of the debt or claim of the creditor is admitted by the company, or, though not admitted, is such as the company are willing to set apart and appropriate, then the full amount of the debt or claim shall be set apart and appropriated; and 2. If the full amount of the debt or claim of the creditor is not admitted by the company, and is not such as the company is willing to set apart and appropriate, or if the amount is contingent or not ascertained, then the Court may, if it thinks fit, inquire into and adjudicate upon the validity of such debt or claim, and the amount for which the company may be liable in respect thereof, in the same manner as if the company were being wound up by the Court, and the amount fixed by the Court on such enquiry and adjudication shall be set apart and appropriated.

Imp. § 49.

Order and minute to be registered. 46. 1. The Registrar shall, upon the production to him of an order of the Court confirming the reduction of the capital of a company, and the delivery to him of a copy of the order and of a minute, approved by the Court, showing with respect to the capital of the company, as altered by the order, the amount of such capital, the number of shares into which it is to be divided, and the amount of each share, and the amount (if any) proposed to be deemed to have been paid up on each share, register the order and minute, and on such registration, the special resolution confirmed by the order so registered shall take effect. 2. Notice of such registration shall be published in such manner as the Court may direct. 3. The Registrar shall certify under his hand the registration of the order and minute, and his certificate shall be conclusive evidence that all the requirements of this Act with respect to the reduction of capital have been complied with, and that the capital of the company is such as is stated in the minute.

Imp. § 51.

Minute to form part of memorandum of association. 47. The minute shall, when registered, be deemed to be substituted for the corresponding part of the memorandum of association of the company, and shall be of the same validity and subject to the same alterations as if it had been originally contained in the memorandum of association, and, subject as in this Ordinance mentioned, no member of the company, whether past or present, shall be liable in respect of any share to any call or contribution exceeding in amount the difference, if any, between the amount which has been paid on such share and the amount of the share as fixed by the minute.

Imp. § 52.

Saving of rights of creditors who are ignorant of proceedings. 48. If any creditor who is entitled in respect of any debt or claim to object to the reduction of the capital of a company under this Ordinance is, in consequence of his ignorance of the proceedings taken with a view to such reduction or of their nature and effect with respect to his claim, not entered on the list of creditors, and after such reduction the company is unable within the meaning of section one hundred and twenty-five of this Ordinance to pay to the creditors the amount of such debt or claim, every person who was a member of the company at the date of registration of the order and minute relating to the reduction of the capital of the company, shall be liable to contribute for the payment of such debt or claim, an amount not exceeding the amount which he would have been liable to contribute if the company had commenced to be wound up on the day prior to such registration; and, on the company being wound up, the Court may, if it thinks fit on the application of such creditor and on proof that he was ignorant of the proceedings taken with a view to the reduction, or of their nature and effect with respect to his claim, settle a list of such contributories accordingly and make and enforce calls and orders on the contributories settled in such list in the same manner in all respects as if they were ordinary contributories in winding-up, but the provisions of this section shall not affect the rights of the contributories of the company among themselves.

Imp. § 53.

Copy of registered minute. 49. 1. A minute shall, when registered, be embodied in every copy of the memorandum of association issued after its registration. 2. If any company makes default in complying with the provisions of this section, it shall incur a penalty not exceeding five dollars for each copy in respect of which such default is made; and every director and manager of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits such default shall incur the like penalty.

Imp. § 52.

Penalty on concealment of name of creditor. 50. If any director, manager, or officer of the company: 1. Wilfully conceals the name of any creditor of the company who is entitled to object to the proposed reduction; or 2. Wilfully misrepresents the nature or amount of the debt or claim of any creditor of the company; or 3. Aids or abets in or is privy to any such concealment or misrepresentation as aforesaid, every such director, manager, or officer shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanour, and shall be liable to be indicted and, if convicted, to be punished accordingly.

Imp. § 54.

Provisions relating to reduction in certain specified cases. 51. Subject to the following provisions of this Ordinance, where the reduction of the capital of a company does not involve either the diminution of any liability in respect of unpaid capital, or the payment to any shareholder of any paid up capital: 1. The creditors of the company shall not, unless the Court otherwise directs, be entitled to object or required to consent to the reduction; and 2. It shall not be necessary, before the presentation of the petition, for confirming the reduction, to add, and the Court may, if it thinks it expedient so to do, dispense altogether with the addition of the words "and reduced" as hereinbefore mentioned.

Imp. §§ 48, 49.

Power to the Court to require publication of particulars relating to reduction of capital. 52. 1. In any case in which the Court thinks fit so to do, it may require the company to publish, in such manner as it thinks fit, the reasons for the reduction of its capital, or such other information in regard to the reduction of its capital as the Court may think expedient, with a view to give proper information to the public in relation to the reduction of its capital by a company, and, if the Court thinks fit, the causes which led to such reduction. 2. The minute required to be registered in the case of reduction of capital shall show in addition to the other particulars required by law, the amount, if any, at the date of the registration of the minute proposed to be registered which is deemed to have been paid up on each share.

Imp. § 55.

Power to reduce capital by the cancellation of unissued shares. 53. Any company limited by shares may so far modify the conditions contained in its memorandum of association, if authorized so to do by its regulations as originally framed or as altered by special resolution, as to reduce its capital by cancelling any shares which at the date of the passing such resolution have not been taken, or agreed to be taken by any person, and the provisions of sections forty-one to fifty (both inclusive) shall not apply to any reduction of capital made in pursuance of this section.

Imp. § 41.

Accumulated profits may be returned to shareholders in reduction of paid up capital. 54. 1. When any company has accumulated a sum of undivided profits, which, with the consent of the shareholders may be distributed among the shareholders in the form of a dividend or bonus, it shall be lawful for the company, by special resolution, to return the same or any part thereof to the shareholders in reduction of the paid up capital of the company, the unpaid capital being thereby increased by a similar amount. 2. The powers vested in the directors of making calls upon the shareholders in respect of moneys unpaid upon the shares shall extend to the amount of unpaid capital as augmented by such reduction.

Imp. § 40 (1).

No resolution to take effect till particulars have been registered. 55. No such special resolution as last aforesaid shall take effect until a memorandum, showing the particulars required by law in the case of a reduction of capital by order of the Court shall have been produced and registered by the Registrar.

Imp. (§ 40 2).

Power to any shareholder within one month after passing of resolution to require company to retain moneys paid upon shares held by such person. 56. 1. Upon any reduction of paid up capital made in pursuance of the two last preceding sections, it shall be lawful for any shareholder or for any one or more of several joint shareholders, within one month after the passing of the special resolution for such reduction, to require the company to retain and the company shall retain accordingly, the whole of the moneys actually paid upon the shares held by such person, either alone or jointly with any other person or persons, and which, in consequence of such reduction, would otherwise be returned to him or them; and thereupon the shares in respect of which the said moneys are so retained shall, in regard to the payment of dividends thereon, be deemed to be paid up to the same extent only as the shares on which payment as aforesaid has been accepted by the shareholders in reduction of their paid up capital. 2. The company shall invest and keep invested the moneys so retained in such securities authorized for investment by trustees, as the company may determine; and upon the moneys so invested, or upon so much thereof as from time to time exceeds the amount of calls subsequently made upon the shares in respect of which such moneys shall have been retained, the company shall pay such interest as may be received by them from time to time on such securities; and the amount so retained and invested shall be held to represent the future calls which may be made to replace the capital so reduced on those shares, whether the amount obtained on sale of the whole, or such proportion thereof as represents the amount of any call when made produces more or less than the amount of such call.

Imp. § 40 (3, 4).

Company to specify amounts which shareholders have required them to retain; also to specify amounts of profits returned to shareholders. 57. From and after such reduction of capital by the return of accumulated profits, the company shall specify in the annual lists of members to be made by them in pursuance of section twenty-five the amounts which any of the shareholders of the company have required the company to retain, and the company has retained accordingly, in pursuance of the last preceding section; and the company shall also specify, in the statements of accounts laid before any general meeting of the company, the amount of the undivided profits of the company which have been returned to the shareholder in reduction of the paid-up capital of the company as hereinbefore mentioned.

Imp. § 40 (6).

Construction of "capital" and powers to reduce capital. 58. The word "capital" as used in the foregoing provisions relating to the reduction of capital, shall include paid-up capital, and the powers hereby conferred to reduce capital shall include a power to cancel any lost or any capital capital unrepresented by available assets, or to pay off any capital which may be in excess of the wants of the company; and paid-up capital may be reduced either with or without extinguishing or reducing the liability, if any, remaining on the shares of the company, and to the extent to which such liability is not extinguished or reduced it shall be deemed to be preserved, notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained.

Reserve capital.

Reserve capital of company, how provided. 59. 1. An unlimited company may, by the resolution passed by its members when assenting to registration as a limited company under section two hundred and forty-one of this Ordinance, and for the purpose of such registration or otherwise, increase the nominal amount of its capital, by increasing the nominal amount of each of its shares; provided always that no part of such increased capital shall be capable of being called up, except in the event of and for the purposes of the company being wound up. 2. In cases where no such increase of nominal capital may be resolved upon, an unlimited company may, by such resolution as aforesaid, provide that a portion of its uncalled capital shall not be capable of being called up, except in the event of and for the purposes of the company being wound up. 3. A limited company may, by a special resolution, declare that any portion of its capital which has not been already called up shall not be capable of being called up, except in the event of and for the purposes of the company being wound up; and thereupon such portion of capital shall not be capable of being called up, except in the event of and for the purposes of the company being wound up.

Imp. §§ 58, 59.

Subdivision of shares.

Shares may be divided into shares of smaller amount. 60. Any company limited by shares may, by special resolution, so far modify the conditions contained in its memorandum of association, if authorized so to do by its regulations as originally framed, or as altered by special resolution, as by subdivision of its existing shares or any of them to divide its capital or any part thereof into shares of smaller amount than is fixed by its memorandum of association; provided that, in the subdivision of the existing shares, the proportion between the amount which is paid and the amount, if any, which is unpaid on each share of reduced amount, shall be the same as it was in the case of the existing share or shares from which the share of reduced amount is derived.

Imp. § 41.

Special resolutions to be embodied in memorandum of association. 61. 1. The statement of the number and amount of the shares into which the capital of the company is divided, contained in every copy of the memorandum of association issued after the passing of any such special resolution, shall be in accordance with such resolution. 2. If any company makes default in complying with the provisions of this section it shall incur a penalty not exceeding five dollars for each copy in respect of which such default is made; and every director or manager of the company who knowingly or wilfully authorizes or permits such default shall incur the like penalty.

Imp. § 41.

Calls upon shares.

Company may have some shares fully paid and others not. 62. Nothing in this Ordinance shall be deemed to prevent any company under this Ordinance, if authorized by its regulations as originally framed or as altered by special resolution, from doing any one or more of the following things, namely: 1. Making arrangements on the issue of shares for a difference between the holders of such shares in the amount of calls to be paid and in the time of payment of such calls; 2. Accepting from any member of the company who assents thereto the whole or a part of the amount remaining unpaid on any share or shares held by him, either in discharge of the amount of a call payable in respect of any other share or shares held by him or without any call having been made; or 3. Paying dividend in proportion to the amount paid up on each share in cases where a larger amount is paid up on some shares than on others.

Imp. § 39.

Manner in which shares are to be issued and held. 63. 1. Every share in any company shall be deemed and taken to have been issued and to be held subject to the payment of the whole amount thereof in cash, unless the same shall have been otherwise determined by a contract duly made in writing, and filed with the Registrar at or before the issue of such share. 2. Whenever any shares in the capital of any company under this Ordinance, credited as fully or partly paid up are issued for a consideration other than cash, and at or before the issue of such shares no contract or no sufficient contract is filed with the Registrar in compliance with this section, the company or any person interested in such shares or any of them may apply to the Court for relief, and the Court, if satisfied that the omission to file a contract or sufficient contract was accidental or due to inadvertence, or that for any reason it is just and equitable to grant relief, may make an order for the filing with the Registrar of a sufficient contract in writing, and directing that on such contract being filed within a specified period it shall, in relation to such shares, operate as if it had been duly filed with the Registrar aforesaid before the issue of such shares. 3. Any such application may be made in the manner in which an application to rectify the register of members may be made under section thirty-three of this Ordinance, and either before or after an order has been made or an effective resolution has been passed for the winding-up of such company, and either before or after the commencement of any proceedings for enforcing the liability on such shares consequent on the omission aforesaid, and any such application shall, if not made by the company, be served on the company. 4. Any such order may be made on such terms and conditions as the Court may think fit, and the Court may make such order as to costs as it deems proper, and may direct that an office copy of the order shall be filed with the Registrar aforesaid, and the order shall in all respects have full effect. 5. Where the Court in any such case is satisfied that the filing of the requisite contract would cause delay or inconvenience, or is impracticable, it may, in lieu thereof, direct the filing of a memorandum in writing, in a form approved by the Court, specifying the consideration for which the shares were issued, and may direct that on such memorandum being filed within a specified period it shall in relation to such shares operate as if it were a sufficient contract in writing within the meaning of this section and had been duly filed with the Registrar before the issue of such shares. 6. The jurisdiction by this section given to the Court is not by implication to curtail or derogate from its jurisdiction to grant relief in any such case under section thirty-three of this Ordinance or otherwise.

Transfer of shares.

Transfer may be registered at request of transferor. 64. A company shall, on the application of the transfer<sup>1)</sup> of any share or interest in the company, enter in its register of members the name of the transferee of such share or interest in the same manner and subject to the same condition as if the application for such entry were made by the transferee.

Imp. § 28.

Power to make compensation for losses from forged transfer. Provision where one company takes over, shares etc., of another company. 65. 1. Where a company issues or has issued shares, stock, or securities transferable by an instrument in writing or by an entry in any books or register kept by or on behalf of the company, it shall have power to make compensation by a cash payment out of its funds for any loss arising from a transfer of any such shares, stock, or securities, in pursuance of a forged transfer or of a transfer under a forged power of attorney. 2. Any company may, if it thinks fit, provide, either by fees not exceeding the rate of twenty-five cents on every five hundred dollars transferred with a minimum charge equal to that for one hundred dollars, to be paid by the transferee upon the entry of the transfer in the books of the company, or by insurance, reservation of capital, accumulation of income, or in any other manner which it may resolve upon, a fund to meet claims for such compensation. 3. For the purpose of providing such compensation any company may borrow on the security of its property. 4. Any such company may impose such reasonable restrictions on the transfer of its shares, stock, or securities or with respect to powers of attorney for the transfer thereof, as it may consider requisite for guarding against losses arising from forgery. 5. Where a company compensates a person under this Ordinance for any loss arising from forgery, the company shall, without prejudice to any other rights or remedies, have the same rights and remedies against the person liable for the loss as the person compensated would have had. 6. Where the shares, stock, or securities of a company, have by amalgamation or otherwise become the shares, stock, or securities of another company, the last mentioned company shall have the same power under this section as the original company would have had if it had continued.

Share warrants.

Warrant of limited shares fully paid up may be issued in name of bearer. 66. In the case of a company limited by shares, the company, if authorized so to do by its regulations as originally framed or as altered by special resolution, and subject to the provisions of such regulations, may with respect to any share which is fully paid up or with respect to stock, issue under their common seal a warrant stating that the bearer of the warrant is entitled to the share or shares, or stock therein specified, and may provide, by coupons or otherwise, for the payment of the future dividends on the share or shares or stock included in such warrant, hereinafter referred to as a share warrant.

Imp. § 37 (1).

Effect of share warrant. 67. A share warrant shall entitle the bearer of such warrant to the shares or stock specified in it, and such shares or stock may be transferred by the delivery of the share warrant.

Imp. § 37 (2).

Registration of bearer of a share warrant in the register. 68. The bearer of a share warrant shall, subject to the regulations of the company, be entitled, on surrendering such warrant for cancellation, to have his name entered as a member in the register of members; and the company shall be responsible for any loss incurred by any person by reason of the company entering in its register of members the name of any bearer of a share warrant in respect of the shares in stock specified therein, without the share warrant being surrendered and cancelled.

Imp. § 37 (3).

Regulations of the company may make the bearer of a share warrant a member. 69. The bearer of a share warrant may, if the regulations of the company so provide, be deemed to be a member of the company within the meaning of this Ordinance, either to the full extent or or<sup>1)</sup> such purposes as may be prescribed by the regulations; provided that the bearer of a share warrant shall not be qualified, in respect of the shares or stock specified in such warrant, for being a director or manager of the company in cases where such a qualification is prescribed by the regulations of the company.

Imp. § 37 (4).

Entries in register when share warrant issued. 70. 1. On the issue of a share warrant in respect of any share or stock, the company shall strike out of its register of members, the name of the member then entered therein as holding such share or stock as if he had ceased to be a member, and shall enter in the register the following particulars: a) The fact of the issue of the warrant; b) A statement of the shares or stock included in the warrant distinguishing each share by its number; and c) The date of the issue of the warrant. 2. Until the warrant is surrendered, the above particulars shall be deemed to be the particulars which are required by section twenty-four of this Ordinance to be entered in the register of members of a company; and on the surrender of a warrant, the date of such surrender shall be entered as if it were the date at which a person ceased to be a member.

Imp. § 37 (5, 6).

Contracts.

Contracts on behalf of company. 71. 1. Contracts on behalf of any company under this Ordinance may be made as follows, that is to say: a) Any contract which, if made between private persons would be by law required to be in writing and if made according to the law of this Colony, to be under seal, may be made on behalf of the company in writing under the common seal of the company and such contract may in the same manner be varied or discharged; b) Any contract which, if made between private persons, would be by law required to be in writing and signed by the parties to be charged therewith, may be made on behalf of the company in writing signed by any person acting under the express or implied authority of the company, and such contract may in the same manner be varied or discharged: and c) Any contract which, if made between private persons, would by law be valid, although made by parol only and not reduced into writing, may be made by parol on behalf of the company by any person acting under the express or implied authority of the company, and such contract may in the same manner be varied or discharged. 2. All contracts made according to the provisions herein contained shall be effectual in law, and shall be binding upon the company and their successors and all other parties thereto, their heirs, executors, or administrators, as the case may be.

Imp. § 76. See People Livery Stable Co., Ltd. v. Garroway, (30th December, 1905); Griffith v. Versailles Co., (7th April, 1906).

Liability of members.

Liability of present and past members of company. 72. Subject to the provisions hereinafter contained with respect to the unlimited liability of the directors of a company in the event of a company formed under this Ordinance being wound up, every present and past member of such company shall be liable to contribute to the assets of the company to an amount sufficient for payment of the debts and liabilities of the company, and the costs, charges, and expenses of the winding-up, and for the payment of such sums as may be required for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories amongst themselves, with the qualifications following, that is to say: 1. No past member shall be liable to contribute to the assets of the company if he has ceased to be a member for a period of one year or upwards prior to the commencement of the winding-up; 2. No past member shall be liable to contribute in respect of any debt or liability of the company contracted after the time at which he ceased to be a member; 3. No past member shall be liable to contribute to the assets of the company unless it appears to the Court that the existing members are unable to satisfy the contributions required to be made by them in pursuance of this Ordinance; 4. In the case of a company limited by shares, no contribution shall be required from any member exceeding the amount, if any, unpaid on the shares in respect of which he is liable as a present or past member; 5. In the case of a company limited by guarantee, no contribution shall be required from any member exceeding the amount of the undertaking entered into on his behalf by the memorandum of association. 6. Nothing in this Ordinance shall invalidate any provision contained in any policy of insurance or other contract whereby the liability of individual members upon any such policy or contract is restricted, or whereby the funds of the company are alone made liable in respect of such policy or contract; and 7. No sum due to any member of the company, in his character of a member, by way of dividends, profits, or otherwise, shall be deemed to be a debt of the company payable to such member in a case of competition between himself and any other creditor not being a member of the company; but any such sum may be taken into account for the purposes of the final adjustment of the rights of the contributories amongst themselves.

Imp. § 123.

Unlimited liability of directors.

Company may have directors with unlimited liability. 73. Where a company is formed as a limited company under this Ordinance, the liability of the directors or managers of such company or of the managing director may, if so provided by the memorandum of association, be unlimited.

Imp. § 60.

Liability of director past and present when liability is unlimited. 74. The following modifications shall be made in section seventy-two of this Ordinance with respect to the contributions to be required, in the event of the winding-up of a limited company under this Ordinance from any director or manager whose liability is, in pursuance of this Ordinance, unlimited, that is to say: 1. Subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, any such director or manager, whether past or present, shall in addition to his liability, if any, to contribute as an ordinary member, be liable to contribute as if he were, at the date of the commencement of such winding-up, a member of an unlimited company; 2. No contribution required from any past director or manager who has ceased to hold such office for a period of one year or upwards prior to the commencement of the winding-up shall exceed the amount, if any, which he is liable to contribute as an ordinary member of the company; 3. No contribution required from any past director or manager in respect of any debt or liability of the company contracted after the time at which he ceased to hold such office, shall exceed the amount, if any, which he is liable to contribute as an ordinary member of the company: and 4. Subject to the provisions contained in the regulations of the company, no contribution required from any director or manager shall exceed the amount, if any, which he is liable to contribute as an ordinary member unless the Court deems it necessary to require such contribution in order to satisfy the debts and liabilities of the company, and the costs, charges, and expenses of the winding-up.

Imp. § 123.

Director with unlimited liability may have set off as under section 159. 75. In the event of the winding-up of any limited company, the Court may, if it thinks fit, make to any director or manager of such company whose liability is unlimited, the same allowance by way of set off as under section one hundred and fifty-nine it may make to a contributory where the company is not limited.

Notice to be given to director on his election that his liability will be unlimited. 76. 1. In any limited company in which the liability of a director or manager is unlimited, the directors or managers of the company, if any, and the member who proposes any person for election or appointment to such office, shall add to such proposal a statement that the liability of the person holding such office will be unlimited; and the promoters, directors, managers, and secretary, if any, of the company, or one of them, shall before such person accepts such office or acts therein, give him notice in writing that his liability will be unlimited. 2. If any director, manager, or proposer makes default in adding such statement, or if any promoter, director, manager, or secretary makes default in giving such notice, he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars, and shall also be liable for any damage which the person so elected or appointed may sustain from such default, but the liability of the person elected or appointed shall not be affected by such default.

Imp. § 60.

Any limited company may by special resolution make liability of directors unlimited. 77. 1. Any limited company may by a special resolution, if authorized to do so by its regulations, either as originally framed or as altered by special resolution, from time to time modify the conditions contained in its memorandum of association so far as to render unlimited the liability of its directors or managers or of the managing director. 2. Such special resolution shall be of the same validity as if it had been originally contained in the memorandum of association and a copy thereof shall be embodied in or annexed to every copy of the memorandum of association which is issued after the passing of the resolution; and any default in this respect shall be deemed to be a default in complying with the provisions of section ninety-seven, and shall be punished accordingly.

Imp. § 61.

Liability for false prospectus.

Liability for statements in prospectus. 78. 1. Where after the passing of this Ordinance a prospectus or notice invites persons to subscribe for shares in or debentures, or debenture stock of a company every person who is a director of the company at the time of the issue of the prospectus or notice, and every person who having authorized such naming of him is named in the prospectus or notice as a director of the company or as having agreed to become a director of the company either immediately, or after an interval or<sup>1)</sup> time, and every promoter of the company and every person who has authorized the issue of the prospectus or notice, shall be liable to pay compensation to all persons who shall subscribe for any shares, debentures, or debenture stock on the faith of such prospectus or notice for the loss or damage they may have sustained by reason of any untrue statement in the prospectus or notice, or in any report or memorandum appearing on the face thereof or by reference incorporated therein or issued therewith, unless it is proved: a) With respect to every such untrue statement not purporting to be made on the authority of an expert, or of a public official document or statement, that he had reasonable ground to believe, and did up to the time of the allotment of the shares, debentures, or debenture stock, as the case may be, believe that the statement was true; and b) With respect to every such untrue statement purporting to be a statement by or contained in what purports to be a copy of or extract from a report or valuation of an engineer, valuer, accountant, or other expert, that it fairly represented the statement made by such engineer, valuer, accountant, or other expert, or was a correct and fair copy of or extract from the report or valuation: Provided always that notwithstanding that such untrue statement fairly represented the statement made by such engineer, valuer, accountant, or other expert, or was a correct and fair copy of or extract from the report or valuation, such director, person named, promoter, or other person who authorized the issue of the prospectus or notice as aforesaid, shall be liable to pay compensation as aforesaid if it be proved that he had no reasonable ground to believe that the person making the statement, report, or valuation was competent to make it; and c) With respect to every such untrue statement purporting to be a statement made by an official person or contained in what purports to be a copy of or extract from a public official document, that it was a correct and fair representation of such statement or copy of or extract from such document; or unless it be proved that having consented to become a director of the company he withdrew his consent before the issue of the prospectus or notice and that the prospectus or notice was issued without his authority or consent or that the prospectus or notice was issued without his knowledge or consent, and that on becoming aware of its issue he forthwith gave reasonable public notice that it was so issued without his knowledge or consent, or that after the issue of such prospectus or notice and before allotment thereunder, he, on becoming aware of any untrue statement therein, withdrew his consent thereto, and caused reasonable public notice of such withdrawal, and of the reason therefor, to be given. 2. A promoter in this section means a promoter who was a party to the preparation of the prospectus or notice, or of the portion thereof containing such untrue statement but shall not include any person by reason of his acting in a professional capacity for persons engaged in procuring the formation of the company. 3. Where any company existing at the passing of this Ordinance, which has issued shares or debentures, shall be desirous of obtaining further capital by subscriptions for shares or debentures, and for that purpose shall issue a prospectus or notice no director of such company shall be liable in respect of any statement therein, unless he shall have authorized the issue of such prospectus or notice, or have adopted or ratified the same. 4. In this section the word "expert" includes any person whose profession gives authority to a statement made by him.

Imp. § 84 (1, 2, 5).

Indemnity where name of person has been improperly inserted as a director. 79. Where any such prospectus or notice as aforesaid contains the name of a person as a director of the company or as having agreed to become a director thereof, and such person has not consented to become a director, or has withdrawn his consent before the issue of such prospectus or notice, and has not authorized or consented to the issue thereof, the directors of the company, except any without whose knowledge or consent the prospectus or notice was issued, and any other person who authorized the issue of such prospectus or notice, shall be liable to indemnify the person named as a director of the company, or as having agreed to become a director thereof as aforesaid against all damages, costs, charges, and expenses to which he may be made liable by reason of his name having been inserted in the prospectus or notice, or in defending himself against any action or legal proceedings brought against him in respect thereof.

Imp. § 84 (3).

Contribution from co-directors, etc. 80. Every person who by reason of his being a director, or as having agreed to become a director, or of his having authorized the issue of the prospectus or notice has become liable to make any payment under the provisions of this Ordinance, shall be entitled to recover contribution, as in cases of contract, from any other person who, if sued separately, would have been liable to make the same payment.

Imp. § 84 (4).

Prospectus, etc., to specify contracts made by company, etc. 81. Every prospectus of a company and every notice inviting persons to subscribe for shares in any joint stock company shall respectively specify the dates of and the names of the parties to any contract entered into by the company or the promoters, directors, or trustees thereof before the issue of such prospectus or notice, whether subject to adoption by the directors or the company or otherwise; and any prospectus or notice not specifying the same shall be deemed fraudulent on the part of the promoters, directors, and officers of the company knowingly issuing the same, as regards any person taking shares in the company on the faith of such prospectus, unless he shall have had notice of such contract.

Imp. § 81.

Part III. Management and Administration of Companies and Associations.

Provisions for protection of creditors.

Registered office of company. 82. 1. Every company under this Ordinance shall have a registered office, to which all communications and notices may be addressed. 2. If any company under this Ordinance carries on business without having such an office, it shall incur a penalty not exceeding twenty-four dollars for every day during which business is so carried on.

Imp. § 62.

Notice of situation of registered office. 83. Notice of the situation of such registered office, and of any change therein, shall be given to the Registrar, and recorded by him; and, until such notice is given, the company shall not be deemed to have complied with the provisions of this Ordinance with respect to having a registered office.

Imp. § 62.

Publication of name by limited company. 84. Every limited company under this Ordinance, whether limited by shares or by guarantee, shall paint or affix, and shall keep painted or affixed, its name on the outside of every office or place in which the business of the company is carried on, in a conspicuous position, in letters easily legible, and shall have its name engraven in legible characters on its seal, and shall have its name mentioned in legible characters in all notices, advertisements, and other official publications of such company, and in all bills of exchange, promissory notes, endorsements, cheques, and orders for money or goods purporting to be signed by or on behalf of such company, and in all bills of parcels, invoices, receipts, and letters of credit of the company.

Imp. § 63.

Penalties for non-publication of name, etc. 85. 1. If any limited company under this Ordinance does not paint or affix, and keep painted or affixed, its name in manner directed by this Ordinance, it shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty-four dollars for not so painting or affixing its name, and for every day during which such name is not so kept painted or affixed; and every director and manager of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits such default shall be liable to the like penalty. 2. If any director, manager, or officer of such company, or any person on its behalf, uses or authorizes the use of any seal purporting to be a seal of the company whereon its name is not so engraven as aforesaid, or issues or authorizes the issue of any notice, advertisement, or other official publication of such company, or signs or authorizes to be signed on behalf of such company any bill of exchange, promissory note, endorsement, cheque, or order for money or goods, or issues or authorizes to be issued any bill of parcels, invoice, receipt, or letter of credit of the company, wherein its name is not mentioned in manner aforesaid, he shall be liable to a penalty of two hundred and forty dollars, and shall further be personally liable to the holder of any such bill of exchange, promissory note, cheque, or order for money or goods for the amount thereof, unless the same is duly paid by the company.

Imp. § 63.

Register of mortgages. 86. 1. Every limited company under this Ordinance shall keep a register of all mortgages and charges specifically affecting property of the company, and shall enter in such register in respect of each mortgage or charge a short description of the property mortgaged or charged, the amount of the charge created, and the names of the mortgagees or persons entitled to such charge. 2. If any property of the company is mortgaged or charged without such entry as aforesaid being made, every director, manager, or other officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits the omission of such entry shall incur a penalty not exceeding two hundred and forty dollars. 3. The register of mortgages required by this section shall be open to inspection by any creditor or member of the company at all reasonable times; and, if such inspection is refused, any officer of the company refusing the same, and every director and manager of the company who authorizes or knowingly and wilfully permits such refusal, shall incur a penalty not exceeding twenty-four dollars, and a further penalty not exceeding ten dollars for every day during which such refusal continues; and, in addition to the above penalty, any Judge of the Supreme Court may, by order, compel an immediate inspection of the register.

Imp. §§ 93, 99.

Certain companies to publish prescribed statement. First Schedule: Form D.

87. 1. Every insurance company, and every deposit, provident, or benefit society under this Ordinance shall, before it commences business, and also on the first Monday in February and the first Monday in August in every year during which it carries on business, make a statement in the Form marked D in the first Schedule to this Ordinance, or as near thereto as circumstances will admit, and a copy of such statement shall be put up in a conspicuous place in the registered office of the company, and in every branch office or place where the business of the company is carried on. 2. If default is made in compliance with the provisions of this section, the company shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty-four dollars for every day during which such default continues; and every director and manager of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits such default shall incur the like penalty. 3. Every member and every creditor of any company mentioned in this section shall be entitled to a copy of the above-mentioned statement on payment of a sum not exceeding twenty-four cents.

Imp. § 108.

Keeping of register of directors. 88. 1. Every company under this Ordinance not having a capital divided into shares shall keep at its registered office a register containing the names and addresses and the occupations of its directors or managers, and shall send to the Registrar a copy of such register, and shall from time to time notify to the Registrar any change that takes place in such directors or managers. 2. If any company as aforesaid makes default in keeping a register of its directors or managers or in sending a copy of such register to the Registrar in compliance with the provisions of this section, or in notifying to the Registrar any change which may take place in such directors or managers, it shall incur a penalty not exceeding twenty-four dollars for every day during which such default continues; and every director and manager of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits such default shall incur the like penalty.

Imp. § 75.

Bills of exchange and promissory notes of company. 89. A bill of exchange or promissory note shall be deemed to have been made, accepted, or endorsed on behalf of any company under this Ordinance if made, accepted, or endorsed in the name of the company by any person acting under the authority of the company, or if made, accepted, or endorsed by or on behalf or on account of the company, by any person acting under the authority of the company.

Imp. § 77.

Prohibition against carrying on business with less than seven members. 90. If any company under this Ordinance carries on business when the number of its members is less than seven for a period of six months after the number has been so reduced, every person who is a member of such company during the time that it so carries on business after such period of six months, and is cognizant of the fact that it is so carrying on business with fewer than seven members, shall be severally liable for the payment of the whole debts of the company contracted during such time, and may be sued for the same, without the joinder in the action or suit of any other member.

Imp. § 115.

Provisions for protection of members.

Company to hold meetings within four months after registration. 91. 1. Every company formed under this Ordinance shall hold a general meeting within four months after its memorandum of association is registered. 2. If such meeting is not held the company shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty-five dollars a day for every day after the expiration of such four months until the meeting is held; and every director or manager of the company and every subscriber of the memorandum of association who knowingly authorizes or permits such default shall be liable to the like penalty.

Imp. § 65.

General meetings of company. 92. A general meeting of every company under this Ordinance shall be held once at the least in every year.

Imp. § 64.

Power to alter regulations by special resolution. 93. 1. Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance and to the conditions contained in the memorandum of association, any company formed under this Ordinance may in general meeting, from time to time, by passing a special resolution in manner hereinafter mentioned, alter all or any of the regulations of the company contained in the articles of association or in the Table marked A in the first Schedule to this Ordinance, where such Table is applicable to the company, or make new regulations to the exclusion of or in addition to all or any of the regulations of the company. 2. Any regulations so made by special resolution shall be deemed to be regulations of the company of the same validity as if they had been originally contained in the articles of association, and shall be subject in like manner to be altered or modified by any subsequent special resolution.

Mode of passing special resolution. 94. 1. A resolution passed by a company under this Ordinance shall be deemed to be special whenever a resolution has been passed by a majority of not less than three-fourths of such members of the company for the time being entitled, according to the regulations of the company, to vote as may be present, in person or by proxy (in cases where by the regulations of the company proxies are allowed), at any general meeting of which notice specifying the intention to propose such resolution has been duly given, and such resolution has been confirmed by a majority of such members for the time being entitled, according to the regulations of the company, to vote as may be present, in person or by proxy, at a subsequent general meeting of which notice has been duly given, and held at an interval of not less than fourteen days and not more than one month from the date of the meeting at which such resolution was first passed. 2. At any meeting mentioned in this section, unless a poll is demanded by at least five members, a declaration of the chairman that the resolution has been carried shall be deemed conclusive evidence of the fact, without proof of the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour of or against the same. 3. Notice of any meeting shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to be duly given and the meeting to be duly held, whenever such notice is given and meeting held in manner prescribed by the regulations of the company. 4. In computing the majority under this section, when a poll is demanded, reference shall be had to the number of votes to which each member is entitled by the regulations of the company.

Imp. § 69.

Provision where no regulations as to votes and meetings. 95. In default of any regulations as to voting, every member shall have one vote, and, in default of any regulations as to summoning general meetings, a meeting shall be held to be duly summoned of which seven days' notice in writing has been served on every member in manner in which notices are required to be served by the Table marked A in the first Schedule to this Ordinance; and, in default of any regulations as to the persons to summon meetings, five members shall be competent to summon the same, and, in default of any regulations as to who is to be chairman of such meeting, it shall be competent for any person elected by the members present to preside.

Imp. § 67.

Registration of special resolution. 96. 1. A copy of any special resolution that is passed by any company under this Ordinance shall be printed and forwarded to the Registrar, and be recorded by him. 2. If such copy is not so forwarded within fifteen days from the date of the confirmation of the resolution, the company shall incur a penalty not exceeding ten dollars for every day after the expiration of such fifteen days during which such copy is omitted to be forwarded; and every director and manager of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits such default shall incur the like penalty.

Imp. § 70.

Copies of special resolution. 97. 1. Where articles of association have been registered, a copy of every special resolution for the time being in force shall be annexed to or embodied in every copy of the articles of association that may be issued after the passing of such resolution. 2. Where no articles of association have been registered, a copy of any special resolution shall be forwarded in print to every member requesting the same on payment of forty-eight cents, or such less sum as the company may direct. 3. If any company makes default in complying with the provisions of this section it shall incur a penalty not exceeding five dollars for each copy in respect of which such default is made; and every director and manager of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits such default shall incur the like penalty.

Imp. § 70.

Execution of deed abroad by company. Official seals for use abroad. Agents for affixing such seals. Duration of such agent's powers. Statement of date of, and effect of affixing such seal. Restriction on exercise of foregoing powers. 98. 1. Any company under this Ordinance may, by instrument in writing under its common seal, empower any person, either generally or in respect of any specified matters, as its attorney, to execute deeds on its behalf in any place not situate in the Colony. 2. Every deed signed by such attorney, on behalf of the company, and under his seal, shall be binding on the company and have the same effect as if it were under the common seal of the company. 3. In addition to the powers conferred by the foregoing subsections any company under this Ordinance whose objects require or comprise the transaction of business in countries not within this Colony may cause to be prepared an official seal for and to be used in any place, district, or territory situate out of this Colony in which the business of the company is carried on; and every such official seal shall be a fac-simile of or as nearly as practicable a fac-simile of the common seal of the company, with the exception that on the face thereof shall be inscribed the name of each and every place, district, or territory in and for which it is to be used: Provided, that it shall be lawful for any such company as aforesaid from time to time to break up and renew any official seal or seals and to vary the limits within which it is intended to be used. 4. Every company having or using any such official seal as is authorized by this section may from time to time by any instrument or instruments in writing under the common seal of the company, empower any agent or agents specially appointed for the purpose, or any local agent, board, committee, manager, or commissioner appointed under the provisions of the articles of association of such company, in any place, district, or territory situate out of this Colony where the business of the company shall for the time being be carried on, to affix such official seal to any deed, contract, or other instrument to which the company is or shall be made a party in such place, district, or territory; and no other order of the company or the board of directors thereof shall be necessary to authorize any such seal to be affixed to any deed, contract, or other instrument. 5. Every power granted under the last preceding subsection shall as between the company, their successors and assigns, on the one hand, and the person or persons dealing with the agent or agents, board, committee, manager, or commissioner named in the instrument conferring the power, and all parties claiming through or under such person or persons, on the other hand, continue in force during the period, if any, mentioned in the instrument conferring the power, or if no period be there mentioned, then until notice of the revocation or determination of the power shall have been given to such person or persons as aforesaid. 6. Whenever any such official seal as aforesaid is affixed to any document, the person affixing the same shall, by writing under his hand, and written on the document to which the seal is affixed, certify the date when and the place where the same is affixed; and any document to which any such seal has been duly affixed within the district or territory or place the name whereof is inscribed on such seal shall bind the company in the same way, and to the same extent, and have the same force and effect, as if it had been duly sealed with the common seal of the company. 7. The powers given by subsections three and four of this section shall be exercised by such companies only as are expressly authorized to exercise the same by their articles of association or by a special resolution passed according to the provisions of this Ordinance and shall be exercised by such companies subject to any directions or restrictions in their articles of association or in the special resolution contained.

Imp. §§ 78, 79.

Examination of affairs of company by inspectors. 99. The Governor-in-Council may appoint one or more competent inspectors to examine into the affairs of any company under this Ordinance, and to report thereon, in such manner as the Governor-in-Council may direct, on the applications following, that is to say: 1. In the case of a banking company which has a capital divided into shares, on the application of members holding not less than one-third part of the whole shares of the company for the time being issued; 2. In the case of any other company which has a capital divided into shares, on the application of members holding not less than one-fifth part of the whole shares of the company for the time being issued; and 3. In the case of any company not having a capital divided into shares, on the application of members being in number not less than one-fifth of the whole number of persons for the time being entered on the register of the company as members.

Imp. § 109.

Evidence in support of application for inspection. 100. 1. The application shall be supported by such evidence as the Governor-in-Council may require for the purpose of showing that the applicants have good reason for requiring such investigation to be made, and that they are not actuated by malicious motives in instituting the same. 2. The Governor-in-Council may also require the applicants to give security for payment of the costs of inquiry before appointing any inspector or inspectors.

Imp. § 109.

Inspection of books. 101. 1. It shall be the duty of all officers and agents of the company to produce, for the examination of the inspectors, all books and documents in their custody or power; and any inspector may examine upon oath the officers and agents of the company in relation to its business and may administer such oath accordingly. 2. If any officer or agent refuses to produce any book or document hereby directed to be produced, or to answer any question relating to the affairs of the company, he shall incur a penalty not exceeding twenty-four dollars in respect of each offence.

Imp. § 109.

Result of examination, how dealt with. 102. 1. On the conclusion of the examination, the inspectors shall report their opinion to the Governor-in-Council, and such report shall be written or printed, as the Governor-in-Council may direct. 2. A copy of the report shall be forwarded by the Government Secretary to the registered office of the company, and a further copy shall at the request of the members upon whose application the inspection was made, be delivered to them or to any one or more of them. 3. All expenses of and incidental to any such examination as aforesaid shall be defrayed by the members on whose application the inspectors were appointed, unless the Governor-in-Council direct the same to be paid out of the assets of the company, which he is hereby authorized to do.

Imp. § 109.

Power to company to appoint inspectors. 103. 1. Any company under this Ordinance may, by special resolution, appoint inspectors for the purpose of examining into the affairs of the company. 2. The inspectors so appointed shall have the same powers and perform the same duties as inspectors appointed by the Governor-in-Council, with this exception, that, instead of making their report to the Governor-in-Council, they shall make the same in such manner and to such persons as the company in general meeting may direct. 3. The officers and agents of the company shall incur the same penalties, in case of any refusal to produce any book or document hereby required to be produced to such inspectors, or to answer any question, as they would have incurred if such inspectors had been appointed by the Governor-in-Council.

Imp. § 110.

Use of report of inspectors as evidence. 104. A copy of the report of any inspectors under this Ordinance, authenticated by the seal of the company into whose affairs they have made inspection, shall be admissible in any legal proceeding as evidence of the opinion of the inspectors in relation to any matter contained in such report.

Imp. § 111.

Notices.

Service of notice on company. 105. Any summons, notice, order, or other document required to be served on the company may be served by leaving the same, or sending it through the post in a prepaid letter addressed to the company, at its registered office.

Imp. § 116.

Rules as to service by post. 106. Any document to be served by post on the company shall be posted in such time as to admit of its being delivered in the due course of delivery within the period, if any, prescribed for the service thereof; and in proving service of such document, it shall be sufficient to prove that such document was properly directed and that it was put as a prepaid letter into the post office.

Authentication of notices of company. 107. Any summons, notice, order, or proceeding requiring authentication by the company may be signed by any director, secretary, or other authorized officer of the company and need not be under the common seal of the company, and the same may be in writing or in print or partly in writing and partly in print.

Imp. § 117.

Offences.

Forgery of share warrant, etc. 108. Every person who: 1. Forges or alters or offers, utters, disposes of, or puts off, knowing the same to be forged or altered, any share warrant or coupon, or document purporting to be a share warrant or coupon issued in pursuance of this Ordinance; or 2. Demands, or endeavours to obtain or receive, any share or interest of or in any company under this Ordinance or to receive any dividend or money payable in respect thereof, by virtue of any such forged or altered share warrant, coupon, or document purporting as aforesaid, knowing the same to be forged or altered, with intent in any of the cases aforesaid to defraud, shall be guilty of felony, and being convicted thereof shall be liable at the discretion of the Court to penal servitude for life or for any term not less than three years or to imprisonment for any term not exceeding two years with or without hard labour and with or without solitary confinement.

Imp. § 38.

Falsely personating owner of shares. 109. Every person who falsely and deceitfully personates any owner of any share or interest of or in any company, or of any share warrant or coupon issued in pursuance of this Ordinance and thereby obtains or endeavours to obtain any such share or interest or share warrant or coupon, or receives or endeavours to receive any money due to any such owner, as if such offender were the true and lawful owner, shall be guilty of felony, and being convicted thereof shall be liable at the discretion of the Court to penal servitude for life or for any term not less than three years, or to imprisonment for any term not exceeding two years with or without hard labour and with or without solitary confinement.

Imp. § 38.

Engraving plates, etc. 110. Every person who, without lawful authority or excuse, the proof whereof shall be on him: 1. Engraves or makes upon any plate, wood, stone, or other material, any share warrant or coupon purporting to be a share warrant or coupon issued or made by any particular company under and in pursuance of this Ordinance, or to be a blank share warrant or coupon issued or made as aforesaid, or to be a part of such share warrant or coupon; or 2. Uses any such plate, wood, stone, or other material, for the making or printing any such share warrant or coupon, or any such blank share warrant or coupon, or any part thereof respectively; or 3. Knowingly has in his custody or possession any such plate, wood, stone, or other material; shall be guilty of felony, and being convicted thereof shall be liable at the discretion of the Court to penal servitude for any term not exceeding fourteen years and not less than three years, or to imprisonment for any term not exceeding two years with or without hard labour and with or without solitary confinement.

Imp. § 38.

Legal proceedings.

Procedure and appeal. 111. All offences under this Ordinance made punishable by any pecuniary penalty may be prosecuted summarily before any stipendiary magistrate in manner directed by any Ordinance for the time being in force regulating proceedings before stipendiary magistrates in the exercise of their summary jurisdiction, and the decisions in respect thereof shall be subject to the appeal provided by any Ordinance for the time being in force regulating appeals from the decisions of stipendiary magistrates.

Imp. § 276.

Record of proceedings at meetings. 112. 1. Every company under this Ordinance shall cause minutes of all resolutions and proceedings of general meetings of the company, and of the directors or managers of the company in cases where there are directors or managers, to be duly entered in books to be from time to time provided for the purpose. 2. Any such minute as aforesaid, if purporting to be signed by the chairman of the meeting at which such resolutions were passed or proceedings had, or by the chairman of the next succeeding meeting, shall be received as evidence in all legal proceedings; and, until the contrary is proved, every general meeting of the company, or meeting of directors or managers, in respect of the proceedings of which minutes have been so made shall be deemed to have been duly held and convened, and all resolutions passed thereat or proceedings had to have been duly passed and had, and all appointments of directors, managers, or liquidators shall be deemed to be valid, and all acts done by such directors, managers, or liquidators shall be valid, notwithstanding any defect that may afterwards be discovered in their appointments or qualifications.

Provision as to costs in action brought by limited company. 113. Where a limited company is plaintiff in any action, suit, or other legal proceeding, any Judge having jurisdiction in the matter may, if it appears by any credible testimony that there is reason to believe that, if the defendant is successful in his defence, the assets of the company will be insufficient to pay his costs, require sufficient security to be given for such costs, and may stay all proceedings until such security is given.

Imp. § 278. The fact that the action has been brought with the consent of the Court does not affect the right of the defendant to security for costs, if he is otherwise entitled to such security. — British Guiana Ice Co. v. Birch, (6th January, 1909).

Claim and demand in action by company against member. 114. In any action or suit brought by the company against any member to recover any call or moneys due from such member in his character of member it shall not be necessary to set forth the special matter but it shall be sufficient to allege that the defendant is a member of the company and is indebted to the company in respect of a call made or other moneys due whereby an action or suit has accrued to the company.

Reception of certified copies of documents as legal evidence. 115. Any certificate of the incorporation of any company given by the Registrar for the time being shall be received in evidence as if it were the original certificate; and any copy of or extract from any of the documents or part of the documents kept and registered at any office for the registration of joint stock companies if duly certified to be a true copy under the hand of the Registrar for the time being, and whom it shall not be necessary to prove to be the Registrar shall, in all legal proceedings, civil or criminal, and in all cases whatsoever, be received in evidence as of equal validity with the original document.

Imp. § 17.

Use and alteration of forms.

Use of forms. Second Schedule. 116. 1. The forms contained in the second Schedule to this Ordinance, or forms as near thereto as circumstances admit, shall be used in all matters to which such forms refer. 2. The Governor-in-Council may from time to time, by resolution, make such alterations in the Tables and Forms contained in the first Schedule to this Ordinance, so that they do not increase the amount of fees payable to the Registrar in the said first Schedule mentioned, and in the Forms in the said second Schedule, or may make such additions to the last mentioned Forms, as the Governor-in-Council may deem requisite. 3. Any such Table or Form, when altered, shall be published in the Gazette, and, on such publication being made, such Table or Form shall have the same force as if it were included in the Schedules to this Ordinance: Provided that no such alteration made in the Table marked A in the said first Schedule shall affect any company registered prior to the date of such alteration, or repeal, as respects such company, any portion of such Table.

Arbitration.

Power to company to refer matter to arbitration. 117. Any company under this Ordinance may from time to time, by writing under its common seal, agree to refer and may refer to arbitration, in accordance with the Companies Clauses and Powers Consolidation Ordinance, 1846, any existing or future difference, question, or other matter whatsoever in dispute between itself and any other company or person, and the companies parties to the arbitration may delegate to the person or persons to whom the reference is made power to settle any terms or to determine any matter capable of being lawfully settled or determined by the companies themselves, or by the directors or other managing body of such companies.

Imp. § 119.

Application of certain enactments with respect to arbitration. 118. All the provisions of the Companies Clauses and Powers Consolidation Ordinance, 1846, with respect to arbitrations shall be deemed to apply to arbitrations between companies and persons in pursuance of this Ordinance; and in the construction of such provisions the expression "the promoters of the undertaking" shall be deemed to include any company authorized by this Ordinance to refer disputes to arbitration.

Imp. § 119.

Part IV. Winding-up of Companies and Associations.

Preliminary.

Meaning of "contributory". 119. The term "contributory" means every person liable to contribute to the assets of the company under this Ordinance, in the event of the same being wound up; and it shall also, in all proceedings for determining the persons who are to be deemed contributories, and in all proceedings prior to the final determination of such persons, include any person alleged to be a contributory.

Imp. § 124.

Nature of liability of contributory. 120. The liability of any person to contribute to the assets of a company under this Ordinance, in the event of the same being wound up, shall be deemed to create a debt accruing due from such person at the time when his liability commenced, but payable at the time or respective times when calls are made, as hereinafter mentioned, for enforcing such liability; and it shall be lawful in case of the insolvency of any contributory to prove against his estate the estimated value of his liability to future calls as well as calls already made.

Imp. § 125.

Contributories in case of death. 121. 1. If any contributory dies either before or after he has been placed on the list of contributories hereinafter mentioned, his heirs and executors shall be liable to contribute to the assets of the company in the discharge of the liability of such deceased contributory, and such heirs and executors shall be deemed to be contributories accordingly. 2. In this section the term "executors" includes the Administrator-General in all cases in which the estate of a deceased contributory is being administered by him.

Imp. § 126.

Contributories in case of insolvency. 122. If any contributory becomes insolvent, either before or after he has been placed on the list of contributories, his estate shall be liable to the payment in due course of law of any moneys due from such insolvent in respect of his liability to contribute to the assets of the company being wound up.

Imp. § 127.

Contributories in case of marriage. 123. If any female contributory marries in community of goods, either before or after she has been placed on the list of contributories, her husband shall, during the continuance of the marriage, be liable to contribute to the assets of the company the same sum as she would have been liable to contribute if she had not married, and he shall be deemed to be a contributory accordingly.

Imp. § 128.

Winding-up by the Court.

Circumstances under which company may be wound up by the Court. 124. A company under this Ordinance may be wound up by the Court as hereinafter defined, under the following circumstances, that is to say: 1. Whenever the company has passed a special resolution requiring the company to be wound up by the Court; or 2. Whenever the company does not commence its business within a year from its incorporation, or suspends its business for the space of a whole year; or 3. Whenever the members are reduced in number to less than seven; or 4. Whenever the company is unable to pay its debts; or 5. Whenever the Court is of opinion that it is just and equitable that the company should be wound up.

Imp. § 129.

Company when deemed unable to pay its debts. 125. A company under this Ordinance shall be deemed to be unable to pay its debts: 1. Whenever a creditor, by assignment or otherwise, to whom the company is indebted, in a sum exceeding two hundred and forty dollars then due, has served on the company, by leaving the same at its registered office, a demand under his hand requiring the company to pay the sum so due, and the company has, for the space of three weeks succeeding the service of such demand, neglected to pay such sum, or to secure or compound for the same to the reasonable satisfaction of the creditor; or 2. Whenever execution or other process issued on a judgment, sentence, or order obtained in any Court in favour of any creditor, in any proceeding instituted by such creditor against the company is returned unsatisfied in whole or in part; or 3. Whenever it is proved, to the satisfaction of the Court, that the company is unable to pay its debts.

Imp. § 130.

Mode of making application for winding-up. 126. 1. Any application to the Court for the winding-up of a company under this Ordinance shall be by petition. 2. Such petition may be presented by the company, or by any one or more creditor or creditors, or contributory or contributories, of the company, or by all or any of the above parties, together or separately. Provided always that no contributory of a company under this Ordinance shall be capable of presenting a petition for winding up such company unless the members of the company are reduced in number to less than seven or unless the shares in respect of which he is a contributory or some of them either were originally allotted to him or have been held by him and registered in his name for a period of at least six months during the eighteen months previously to the commencement of the winding-up, or have devolved upon him through the death of a former holder; but where a share has during the whole or any part of the six months been held by or registered in the name of the wife of a contributory either before or after her marriage or by or in the name of any trustee or other person for such wife or for the contributory, such share shall for the purposes of this subsection be deemed to have been held by and registered in the name of the contributory. 4. Every order which may be made on any such petition shall operate in favour of all the creditors and all the contributories of the company in the same manner as if it had been made upon the joint petition of a creditor and a contributory.

Imp. §§ 137, 138.

Commencement of winding-up by the Court. 127. A winding-up of a company by the Court shall be deemed to commence at the time of the presentation of the petition for the winding-up.

Imp. § 139.

Power to the Court to interdict, etc. 128. 1. The Court may, at any time after the presentation of a petition for winding up a company under this Ordinance, and before making an order for winding up the company, on the application of the company or of any creditor or contributory of the company, restrain further proceedings in any action, suit, or proceedings against the company, on such terms as the Court thinks fit. 2. The Court may also, at any time after the presentation of such petition, appoint provisionally the Administrator-General as official liquidator of the estate and effects of the company.

Imp. § 140.

Course to be pursued by the Court on hearing petition. 129. On hearing the petition the Court may dismiss the same, with or without costs, may adjourn the hearing, conditionally or unconditionally, and may make any interim order, or any other order that it deems just.

Imp. § 141.

Stay of actions after order for winding-up. 130. When an order has been made for winding up a company under this Ordinance no action, suit, or other proceeding shall be proceeded with or commenced against the company, except with the leave of the Court, and subject to such terms as the Court may impose.

Imp. § 142.

Making of minute of winding-up. 131. When an order has been made for winding up a company under this Ordinance, the Registrar shall make a minute thereof in his books relating to the company.

Imp. § 143.

Power to the Court to stay proceedings. 132. The Court may, at any time after an order has been made for winding up a company, on the application by motion of any creditor or contributory of the company, and on proof, to the satisfaction of the Court, that all proceedings in relation to such winding-up ought to be stayed, make an order staying the same, either altogether or for a limited time, on such terms and subject to such conditions as it deems fit.

Imp. § 144.

Effect of order on share capital of company limited by guarantee. 133. When an order has been made for winding up a company limited by guarantee and having a capital divided into shares, any share capital that may not have been called up shall be deemed to be assets of the company, and to be a debt due to the company from each member to the extent of any sums that may be unpaid on any shares held by him, and payable at such time as may be appointed by the Court.

The Court may have regard to wishes of creditors or contributories. 134. 1. The Court may, as to all matters relating to the winding-up, have regard to the wishes of the creditors or contributories, as proved to it by any sufficient evidence, and may, if it thinks it expedient, direct meetings of the creditors or contributories to be summoned, held, and conducted in such manner as the Court directs for the purpose of ascertaining their wishes, and may appoint a person to act as chairman of any such meeting, and to report the result of such meeting to the Court. 2. In the case of creditors, regard is to be had to the value of the debts due to each creditor, and in the case of contributories, to the number of votes conferred on each contributory by the regulations of the company.

Liquidators.

Provisions as to liquidator. 135. 1. On an order being made by the Court for winding up a company the Administrator-General shall by virtue of his office become the provisional liquidator of the company, and shall continue to act as such until he or another person becomes liquidator and is capable of acting as such. 2. When a person other than the Administrator-General is appointed liquidator of a company he shall be styled liquidator and not official liquidator of the company. Such a person shall not be capable of acting as liquidator until he has notified his appointment to the Registrar and given security in the manner prescribed to the satisfaction of the Court. He shall give the Administrator-General such information and such access to and facilities for inspecting the books and documents of the company, and generally such aid as may be requisite for enabling that officer to perform his duties under this Ordinance. 3. If any vacancy occurs in the office of liquidator of a company, the Administrator-General shall, by virtue of his office, be the liquidator during the vacancy. 4. The Administrator-General may be appointed by the Court provisional liquidator of the company at any time after the presentation of the petition and before a winding-up order has been made. 5. Where an application is made to the Court to appoint a receiver on behalf of the debenture holders or other creditors of a company the Administrator-General may be so appointed.

Imp. §§ 149, 153, 162.

Power to appoint special manager. 136. 1. Where the Administrator-General becomes the liquidator of a company, whether provisionally or otherwise, he may, if satisfied that the nature of the estate or business of the company, or the interests of the creditors or contributories generally, require the appointment of a special manager of the estate or business of the company other than himself, apply to the Court to, and the Court may on such application, appoint a special manager thereof during such time as the Court may direct, with such powers, including any of the powers of a receiver or manager, as may be entrusted to him by the Court. 2. The special manager shall give such security and account in such manner as the Court may direct. 3. The special manager shall receive such remuneration as may be fixed by the Court.

Imp. § 161.

Meetings of creditors. 137. 1. When the Court has made an order for winding up a company the Administrator-General shall summon separate meetings of the creditors and contributories of the company for the purpose of: a. Determining whether or not an application is to be made to the Court for appointing a liquidator in the place of the Administrator General; and b) Determining whether or not an application is to be made to the Court for the appointment of a committee of inspection to act with the liquidator, and who are to be the members of such committee if appointed. The Court may make any appointment and order required to give effect to any such determination, and if there is a difference between the determinations of the meetings of the creditors and contributories in respect of any of the matters mentioned in the foregoing provisions the Court shall decide the difference and make such order thereon as the Court may think fit. 2. The provisions of the third Schedule to this Ordinance shall subject to such modifications as may be made therein by general rules, apply to any meeting summoned in pursuance of this section. 3. In case a liquidator is not appointed by the Court the Administrator-General shall be the liquidator of the company.

Imp. § 162.

Statement of company's affairs. 138. 1. Where the Court has made an order for winding up a company, there shall be made out and submitted to the Administrator-General a statement as to the affairs of the company in the prescribed form, verified by affidavit, and showing the particulars of the assets, debts, and liabilities of the company, the names, residences, and occupations of the creditors of the company, the securities held by them respectively, the dates when the securities were respectively given, and such further or other information as may be prescribed or as the Administrator-General may require. 2. The statement shall be submitted and verified by one or more of the persons who are at the time of the winding-up order the directors and by the person who is at that time the secretary or other chief officer of the company, or by such of the persons being or having been directors or officers of the company or having taken part in the formation of the company at any time within one year before the order for winding up the company as the Administrator-General, subject to the direction of the Court, may require to submit and verify the same. 3. The statement shall be submitted within fourteen days from the date of the order, or within such extended time as the Administrator-General or the Court may for special reasons appoint. 4. Any person making or concurring in making the statement and affidavit required by this section shall be allowed, and shall be paid by the Administrator-General, out of the assets of the company, such costs and expenses incurred in and about the preparation and making of such statement and affidavit as the Administrator-General may consider reasonable, subject to an appeal to the Court. 5. If any person, without reasonable excuse, makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty dollars for every day during which the default continues. 6. Any person stating himself in writing to be a creditor or contributory of the company shall be entitled by himself or by his agent at all reasonable times, on payment of the prescribed fee, to inspect the statement submitted in pursuance of this section, and to a copy thereof or extract therefrom. But any person untruthfully so stating himself to be a creditor or contributory shall be guilty of a contempt of Court and shall be punishable accordingly on the application of the liquidator or of the Administrator-General.

Imp. § 147.

Report on winding-up and proceedings thereupon. 139. 1. Where the Court has made an order for winding-up a company, the Administrator-General shall, as soon as practicable after receipt of the statement of the company's affairs, submit a preliminary report to the Court: a. As to the amount of capital issued, subscribed and paid up and the estimated amount of assets and liability; and b) If the company has failed, as to the causes of the failure; and c) Whether in his opinion further inquiry is desirable as to any matter relating to the promotion, formation, or failure of the company, or the conduct of the business thereof. 2. The Administrator-General may also, if he thinks fit, make a further report, or further reports, stating the manner in which the company was formed and whether in his opinion any fraud has been committed by any person in the promotion or formation of the company or by any director or other officer of the company in relation to the company since the formation thereof, and any other matters which in his opinion it is desirable to bring to the notice of the Court. 3. The Court may, after consideration of any such report, direct that any person who has taken any part in the promotion or formation of the company, or has been a director or officer of the company, shall attend before the Court on a day appointed by the Court for that purpose, and be publicly examined as to the promotion or formation of the company, or as to the conduct of the business of the company, or as to his conduct and dealings as director or officer of the company. 4. The Administrator-General shall take part in the examination and for that purpose may, if specially authorized by the Court in that behalf, employ a solicitor with or without counsel. 5. The liquidator, when the Administrator-General is not the liquidator, and any creditor or contributory of the company may also take part in the examination either personally or by solicitor or counsel. 6. The Court may put such questions to the person examined as to the Court may seem expedient. 7. The person examined shall be examined on oath, and it shall be his duty to answer all such questions as the Court may put or allow to be put to him. The person examined shall at his own cost prior to such examination, be furnished with a copy of the Administrator-General's report, and shall also at his own cost be entitled to employ at such examination a solicitor with or without counsel, who shall be at liberty to put such questions to the person examined as the Court may deem just for the purpose of enabling that person to explain or qualify any answers given by him. Provided always, that if such person is, in the opinion of the Court, exculpated from any charges made or suggested against him, the Court may allow him such costs as the Court in its discretion may think fit. Notes of the examination shall be taken down in writing, and shall be read over to or by, and signed by, the person examined, and may thereafter be used in evidence against him. They shall also be open to the inspection of any creditor or contributory of the company at all reasonable times. 8. The Court may, if it thinks fit, adjourn the examination from time to time. 9. A public examination under this section may, if the Court so directs, and subject to general rules, be held before the Registrar of British Guiana, and the powers of the Court under subsections six, seven, and eight of this section may (except as to costs) be exercised by him.

Imp. §§ 148, 175.

Committee of inspection. 140. 1. A committee of inspection appointed in pursuance of this Ordinance shall consist of persons being creditors or contributories of the company or persons holding general powers of attorney from such persons in such proportions as may be agreed on by the meetings of creditors and contributories or as, in case of difference, may be determined by the Court. 2. The committee of inspection shall meet at such times as they from time to time appoint, and, failing such appointment, at least once a month; and the liquidator or any member of the committee may also call a meeting of the committee as and when he thinks necessary. 3. The committee may act by a majority of their members present at a meeting, but shall not act unless a majority of the committee are present at the meeting. 4. Any member of the committee may resign his office by notice in writing signed by him, and delivered to the liquidator. 5. If a member of the committee becomes insolvent, or compounds or arranges with his creditors, or is absent from five consecutive meetings of the committee without the leave of those members of the committee who together with himself represent the creditors or contributories as the case may be, his office shall thereupon become vacant. 6. Any member of the committee representing creditors may be removed by an ordinary resolution at any meeting of creditors of which seven days' notice has been given, stating the object of the meeting. Any member of the committee representing contributories may be removed by an ordinary resolution at any meeting of contributories, of which seven days' notice has been given stating the object of the meeting. 7. On a vacancy occurring in the office of a member of the committee, the liquidators shall forthwith summon a meeting of creditors or of contributories, as the case may require, for the purpose of filling the vacancy and the meeting may, by resolution, re-appoint the same or appoint another creditor or contributory to fill the vacancy. 8. The continuing members of the committee, provided there be not less than two such continuing members, may act notwithstanding any vacancy in their body. 9. If there be no committee of inspection, any act or thing or any direction or permission by this Ordinance authorized or required to be done or given by the committee may be done or given by the Court on the application of the liquidator.

Imp. § 160.

Banking account of liquidator. 141. 1. Every liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the order of the Court shall keep a separate account with such bank as the Court may determine and shall, subject to the directions of the Court, pay all moneys received by him as such liquidator into the said bank to such account and make all payments therefrom. 2. If any such liquidator at any time retains in his hands for more than three days any sum exceeding such amount, if any, as the Court may have authorized him to retain, then unless he explains the retention to the satisfaction of the Court he shall pay interest on the amount so retained in excess at the rate of twenty per cent. per annum and shall be liable to be removed from being liquidator and to pay any expenses occasioned by his default. 3. No liquidator of a company which is being wound up by order of the Court shall pay any sums received by him as liquidator into his private banking account.

Imp. § 154.

Powers of liquidator. 142. 1. The liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the Court may, with the sanction either of the Court or of the committee of inspection, carry on the business of the company, or bring or defend any legal proceeding in the name and on behalf of the company, or exercise any of the powers conferred by section 204 or section 205 of this Ordinance. 2. The liquidator of any such company may, without the sanction of the Court or of the committee of inspection, exercise any of the other powers conferred on the liquidator by section 154 of this Ordinance. 3. The exercise by the liquidator of the powers referred to in this section shall be subject to the control of the Court, and any creditor or contributory may apply to the Court with respect to any exercise or proposed exercise of any of those powers. 4. The liquidator of a company which is being wound up by order of the Court may, with the sanction either of the Court or of the committee of inspection, employ a solicitor or other agent to take any proceedings or do any business which the liquidator is unable to take or do himself. The sanction aforesaid must be a sanction obtained before the employment, except in cases of urgency, and in such cases it must be shown that no undue delay took place in obtaining the sanction.

Imp. § 151.

Delegation to liquidator of certain powers of Court. 143. General rules may be made for requiring or enabling all or any of the powers and duties conferred and imposed on the Court by sections 134, 156, 157, 158, 160 and 165 of this Ordinance to be exercised or performed by the liquidator as an officer of the Court and subject to the control of the Court. Provided that the liquidator shall not without the special leave of the Court, rectify the register of members, and shall not make any call without either the special leave of the Court or the sanction of the committee of inspection.

Imp. § 173.

Audit of liquidator's accounts. 144. 1. Every liquidator of a company which is being wound up by order of the Court shall, at such times as may be prescribed, but not less than twice in each year during his tenure of office send to the Registrar of the Court an account of his receipts and payments as such liquidator. 2. The account shall be in a prescribed form, and shall be verified by a statutory declaration in the prescribed form. 3. The accounts so sent shall be audited by the Accountant of Court and for the purpose of the audit, the liquidator shall furnish the accountant with such vouchers and information as the accountant may require, and the accountant may at any time require the production of and inspect any books or accounts kept by the liquidator. 4. When any such account has been audited it shall be filed with the Court and shall be open to the inspection of any creditor, or of any person interested. 5. The Registrar of the Court shall cause the account or a summary thereof when audited to be printed, and shall send a printed copy thereof by post to every creditor or contributory.

Imp. § 155.

Books to be kept by liquidator. 145. Every liquidator of a company which is being wound up by order of the Court shall keep in manner prescribed, proper books in which he shall from time to time cause to be made entries or minutes of proceedings at meetings, and of such other matters as may be prescribed, and any creditor or contributory of the company may, subject to the control of the Court, personally or by his agent inspect any such books.

Imp. § 156.

Release of liquidator. 146. 1. When the liquidator of a company which is being wound up by order of the Court has realised all the property of the company, or so much thereof as can, in his opinion, be realised without needlessly protracting the liquidation, and distributed a final dividend, if any, to the creditors, and adjusted the rights of the contributories between themselves, and made a final return, if any, to the contributories, or has resigned, or has been removed from his office, the Court shall, on his application, cause a report on his accounts to be prepared by the accountant of Court, and on his complying with all the requirements of the accountant, shall take into consideration the report, and any objection which may be urged by any creditor, or contributory, or person interested against the release of the liquidator and shall either grant or withhold the release accordingly. 2. Where the release of a liquidator is withheld the Court may on the application of any creditor, or contributory, or person interested, make such order as it thinks just, charging the liquidator with the consequences of any act or default he may have done or made contrary to his duty. 3. An order of the Court releasing the liquidator shall discharge him from all liability in respect of any act done or default made by him in the administration of the affairs of the company or otherwise in relation to his conduct as liquidator, but any such order may be revoked on proof that it was obtained by fraud or by suppression or concealment of any material fact. 4. Where the liquidator has not previously resigned or been removed, his release shall operate as a removal of him from his office.

Imp. § 157.

Discretionary powers of liquidator and control thereof. 147. 1. Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance the liquidator of a company which is being wound up by order of the Court, shall, in the administration of the property of the company and in the distribution thereof amongst its creditors, have regard to any directions that may be given by resolution of the creditors or contributories at any general meeting, or by the committee of inspection, and any directions so given by the creditors or contributories at any general meeting shall in case of conflict be deemed to override any directions given by the committee of inspection. 2. The liquidator may from time to time summon general meetings of the creditors or contributories for the purpose of ascertaining their wishes, and it shall be his duty to summon meetings at such times as the creditors or contributories, by resolution, either at the meeting appointing the liquidator or otherwise may direct, or whenever requested in writing to do so by one-tenth in value of the creditors or contributories as the case may be. 3. The liquidator may apply to the Court in manner prescribed for directions in relation to any particular matter arising under the winding-up. 4. Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance, the liquidator shall use his own discretion in the management of the estate and its distribution among the creditors.

Imp. § 158.

Appeal to Court against liquidator. 148. If any person is aggrieved by any act or decision of the liquidator of a company which is being wound up by order of the Court, he may apply to the Court, and the Court may confirm, reverse, or modify the act or decision complained of, and make such order in the premises as it thinks just.

Imp. § 158.

Control of Court over liquidator. 149. 1. The Court shall take cognizance of the conduct of liquidators of companies which are being wound up by order of the Court, and in the event of any such liquidator not faithfully performing his duties and duly observing all the requirements imposed on him by statute, rules, or otherwise, with respect to the performance of his duties, or in the event of any complaint being made to the Court by any creditor or contributory in regard thereto, the Court shall inquire into the matter, and take such action thereon as may be deemed expedient. 2. The Court may at any time require any liquidator of a company which is being wound up by order of the Court to answer any inquiry made by it in relation to any winding-up in which the liquidator is engaged, and may, if the Court think fit, examine on oath the liquidator or any other person concerning the winding-up. 3. The Court may also direct a local investigation to be made of the books and vouchers of the liquidator of any company which is being wound up by order of the Court

Imp. § 159.

Meaning of winding-up by order of the Court. 150. For the purposes of sections 136 to 150 (both inclusive) a company shall not be deemed to be wound up by order of the Court if the order is to continue a winding-up under the supervision of the Court.

Imp. § 203.

Appointment of liquidator. 151. 1. For the purpose of conducting the proceedings in winding up a company and assisting the Court therein there may be appointed a person or persons to be called a liquidator or liquidators, and the Court may appoint such person or persons, as it thinks fit, to the office of liquidator or liquidators. 2. In all cases, if more persons than one are appointed to the office of liquidator, the Court shall direct whether any act hereby required or authorized to be done by the liquidator is to be done by all or any one or more of such persons. 3. If the Administrator General is appointed or becomes liquidator in any case he shall be styled official liquidator, but the provisions hereinafter contained as to liquidators shall unless otherwise provided apply to the official liquidator though not specified therein.

Imp. § 149.

Resignation, removal, filling up vacancy, and compensation. 152. 1. Any liquidator other than the official liquidator may resign or any liquidator may be removed by the Court on due cause shown. 2. Any vacancy in the office of a liquidator appointed by the Court shall be filled by the Court. 3. There shall be paid to the liquidator (not being the official liquidator) such salary or remuneration by way of percentage or otherwise as the Court may direct; and if more liquidators than one such liquidator are appointed, such remuneration shall be distributed amongst them in such proportions as the Court may direct.

Imp. § 149.

Style and duties of liquidator. 153. 1. The liquidator or liquidators shall be described by the style of the liquidator or official liquidator or of the liquidators of the particular company in respect of which he is or they are appointed, and not by his or their individual name or names. 2. He or they shall take into his or their custody, or under his or their control, all the property, effects, and things in actions to which the company is or appears to be entitled, and shall perform such duties in reference to the winding-up of the company as may be imposed by the Court.

Imp. § 149.

Powers of liquidator with the sanction of the Court. 154. Subject to the provisions of section 142 of this Ordinance the liquidator shall have power, with the sanction of the Court, to do the following things, that is to say: 1. To bring or defend any action, suit, or prosecution, or other legal proceeding, whether civil or criminal, in the name and on behalf of the company. 2. To carry on the business of the company, so far as may be necessary for the beneficial winding-up of the same. 3. To sell the moveable and immoveable property, effects, and things in action of the company by public auction or private contract, with power to transfer the whole thereof to any person or company, or to sell the same in parcels. 4. To do all acts and to execute, in the name and on behalf of the company, all transports, assignments, conveyances, receipts, and other documents, and for that purpose to use, when necessary, the company's seal. 5. To prove, rank, claim, and draw a dividend in the matter of the insolvency of any contributory for any balance against the estate of such contributory, and to take and receive dividends in respect of such balance in the matter of bankruptcy or insolvency, as a separate debt due from such bankrupt or insolvent, and rateably with the other separate creditors. 6. To draw, accept, make, and endorse any bill of exchange or promissory note in the name and on behalf of the company, also to raise upon the security of the assets of the company from time to time any requisite sum or sums of money; and the drawing, accepting, making, or endorsing of every such bill of exchange or promissory note as aforesaid on behalf of the company shall have the same effect, with respect to the liability of such company, as if such bill or note had been drawn, accepted, made, or endorsed by or on behalf of such company in the course of carrying on the business thereof. 7. To do in his official name any act that may be necessary for obtaining payment of any moneys due from a contributory or from his estate, and which act cannot conveniently be done in the name of the company; and in all cases where he uses his official name for obtaining payment of any moneys due from a contributory, such moneys shall, for the purpose of enabling him to recover such moneys, be deemed to be due to the liquidator himself; and 8. To do and execute all such other things including the appointment of a solicitor to assist him in the performance of his duties as may be necessary for winding up the affairs of the company and distributing its assets.

Imp. § 151.

Discretion of liquidator. 155. The Court may provide by any order that the liquidator may exercise any of the above powers without the sanction or intervention of the Court.

Imp. § 151 (4).

Ordinary powers of the Court.

Collection and application of assets. 156. As soon as may be after making an order for winding up the company, the Court shall settle a list of contributories, with power to rectify the register of members in all cases where such rectification is required in pursuance of this Ordinance, and shall cause the assets of the company to be collected and applied in discharge of its liabilities.

Imp. § 163.

Provisions as to representative contributories. 157. 1. In settling the list of contributories, the Court shall distinguish between persons who are contributories in their own right, and persons who are contributories as being representatives of or being liable for the debts of others. 2. It shall not be necessary, where the heir of any deceased contributory is placed on the list, to add the executor or legatees of such contributory: Provided, nevertheless, that such executor or legatees may be added as and when the Court thinks fit.

Imp. § 163.

Power to the Court to require delivery of property. 158. The Court may, at any time after making an order for winding up a company, require any contributory for the time being settled on the list of contributories, trustee, receiver, banker, or agent, or officer of the company to pay, deliver, convey, surrender, or transfer forthwith, or within such time as the Court directs, to or into the hands of the liquidator, any sum or balance, books, papers, estate, or effects which may happen to be in his hands for the time being, and to which the company is prima facie entitled.

Imp. § 164. See note to § 203, infra.

Power to the Court to order payment of debts by contributory. 159. The Court may, at any time after making an order for winding up the company, make an order on any contributory for the time being settled on the list of contributories directing payment to be made, in manner in the said order mentioned, of any moneys due from him, or from the estate of the person whom he represents, to the company, exclusive of any moneys which he, or the estate of the person whom he represents, may be liable to contribute by virtue of any call made or to be made by the Court in pursuance of this Part; and it may, in making such order, when the company is not limited, allow to such contributory, by way of set-off, any moneys due to him, or to the estate which he represents, from the company, on any independent dealing or contract with the company, but not any moneys due to him as a member of the company in respect of any dividend or profit: Provided that when all the creditors of any company, whether limited or unlimited, are paid in full, any moneys due on any account whatever to any contributory from the company may be allowed to him by way of set-off against any subsequent call or calls.

Imp. § 165.

Power to the Court to make calls. 160. The Court may, at any time after making an order for winding up a company, and either before or after it has ascertained the sufficiency of the assets of the company, make calls on and order payment thereof by all or any of the contributories for the time being settled on the list of contributories, to the extent of their liability, for payment of all or any sums it deems necessary to satisfy the debts and liabilities of the company and the costs, charges, and expenses of winding it up, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories amongst themselves, and it may, in making a call, take into consideration the probability that some of the contributories upon whom the same is made may partly or wholly fail to pay their respective portions of the same.

Imp. § 166.

Power to the Court to order payment into bank. 161. The Court may order any contributory, purchaser, or other person from whom money is due to the company to pay the same into any bank to the account of the liquidator instead of to the liquidator, and such order may be enforced in the same manner as if it had directed payment to the liquidator.

Imp. § 167.

Regulation of account with the Court. 162. All moneys, bills, notes, and other securities paid and delivered into any bank in the event of a company being wound up by the Court shall be subject to such order and regulation for the keeping of the account of such moneys and other effects, and for the payment and delivery in, or investment and payment and delivery out, of the same as the Court may direct.

Imp. § 167.

Provision in case of representative contributory not paying moneys ordered. 163. If any person made a contributory as heir or executor of a deceased contributory makes default in paying any sum ordered to be paid by him, proceedings may be taken for compelling payment out of the estate of such deceased contributory of the moneys due.

Effect of order made upon contributory. 164. Any order made by the Court in pursuance of this Ordinance upon any contributory shall, subject to appeal to Her Majesty-in-Council, be conclusive evidence that the moneys, if any, thereby appearing to be due or ordered to be paid are due, and all other pertinent matters stated in such order are to be taken to be truly stated as against all persons and in all proceedings whatever.

Imp. § 168.

Power to the Court to exclude creditors not proving within certain time. 165. The Court may fix a certain day or certain days on or within which creditors of the company are to prove their debts or claims or to be excluded from the benefit of any distribution made before such debts are proved.

Imp. § 169.

Adjustment of rights of contributories. 166. The Court shall adjust the rights of the contributories amongst themselves, and distribute any surplus that may remain amongst the parties entitled thereto.

Imp. § 170.

Costs of winding-up. 167. The Court, may in the event of the assets being insufficient to satisfy the liabilities, make an order as to the payment out of the estate of the company of the costs, charges, and expenses incurred in winding-up any company in such order of priority as the Court thinks just.

Imp. § 171.

Dissolution of company. 168. 1. When the affairs of the company have been completely wound up, the Court shall make an order that the company be dissolved from the date of such order, and the company shall be dissolved accordingly. 2. On any order being so made, the Registrar shall make a minute accordingly in his books of the dissolution of such company.

Imp. § 172.

Extraordinary powers of the Court.

Power to the Court to summon persons before it suspected of having property of company. 169. 1. The Court may, after it has made an order for winding up the company, summon before it any officer of the company or person known or suspected to have in his possession any of the estate or effects of the company or supposed to be indebted to the company or any person whom the Court may deem capable of giving information concerning the trade, dealings, estate, or effects of the company. 2. The Court may require any such officer or person to produce any books, papers, deeds, writings, or other documents in his custody or power relating to the company. 3. If any person so summoned, after being tendered a reasonable sum for his expenses, refuses to come before the Court at the time appointed, having no lawful impediment (made known to the Court at the time of its sitting, and allowed by it), the Court may cause such person to be apprehended and brought before the Court for examination: Provided nevertheless, that in any case where any person claims any lien on papers, deeds, writings, or documents produced by him, such production shall be without prejudice to such lien, and the Court shall have jurisdiction in the winding-up to determine all questions relating to such lien.

Imp. § 174. See note to § 203, infra.

Examination of parties by the Court. 170. The Court may examine upon oath either by word of mouth or on written interrogatories any person appearing or brought before it in manner aforesaid concerning the affairs, dealings, estate, or effects of the company, and may reduce into writing the answers of every such person, and require him to subscribe the same.

Imp. § 174.

Power to arrest contributory about to abscond, or to remove or conceal any of his property. 171. The Court may, at any time before or after it has made an order for winding up a company, on proof being given that there is probable cause for believing that any contributory to such company is about to quit the Colony or otherwise abscond, or to remove or conceal any of his goods or chattels, for the purpose of evading payment of calls, or of avoiding examination in respect of the affairs of the company, cause such contributory to be arrested, and his books, papers, moneys, securities for moneys, goods, and chattels to be seized, and him and them to be safely kept until such time as the Court may order.

Imp. § 176.

Powers of the Court cumulative. 172. Any powers by this Ordinance conferred on the Court shall be deemed to be in addition to and not in restriction of any other powers subsisting of instituting proceedings against any contributory or the estate of any contributory, or against any debtor of the company, for the recovery of any call or other sums due from such contributory or debtor or his estate, and such proceedings may be instituted accordingly.

Imp. § 177.

Swearing of affidavits.

Affidavits where and before whom same may be sworn. 173. 1. Any affidavit required to be sworn under the provisions or for the purposes of Part IV. may be lawfully sworn in the United Kingdom, or in any Colony, or place under the dominion of Her Majesty, before any Court, Judge, or person lawfully authorized to take and receive affidavits, or before any of Her Majesty's consuls or vice-consuls in any foreign parts out of Her Majesty's dominions. 2. All Courts, Judges, Magistrates, Justices, Commissioners, and persons acting judicially shall take judicial notice of the seal or stamp or signature, as the case may be, of any such Court, Judge, person, consul, or vice-consul, attached, appended, or subscribed to any such affidavit, or to any other document to be used for the purposes of this Ordinance.

Imp. § 228.

Appeal from order of the Court.

Enforcement of order, but subject to appeal. 174. All orders made by the Court under this Ordinance may be enforced in the same manner in which orders of the Court made in any suit pending therein may be enforced; but any party feeling aggrieved by any order made, under the provisions of this or of any other Part, by any Judge sitting apart may, within fourteen days from the date of such order and on giving security for costs in appeal to the extent of fifty dollars, appeal from such order by petition to the Supreme Court of British Guiana, and the said Court may thereupon confirm, discharge, or vary such order in such manner as to it may seem meet.

Imp. §§ 178, 180, 181.

Voluntary winding-up.

Circumstances under which company may be wound up voluntarily. 175. 1. A company under this Ordinance may be wound up voluntarily under the following circumstances, that is to say: a) Whenever the period, if any, fixed for the duration of the company by the articles of association expires, or whenever the event, if any, occurs upon the occurrence of which it is provided by the articles of association that the company is to be dissolved, and the company in general meeting has passed a resolution requiring the company to be wound up voluntarily; or b) Whenever the company has passed a special resolution requiring the company to be wound up voluntarily; or c) Whenever the company has passed an extraordinary resolution to the effect that it has been proved to its satisfaction that the company cannot, by reason of its liabilities, continue its business, and that it is advisable to wind up the same. 2. For the purposes of this Ordinance, any resolution shall be deemed to be extraordinary which is passed in such manner as would, if it had been confirmed by a subsequent meeting, have constituted a special resolution, as hereinbefore defined.

Imp. § 182.

Commencement of voluntary winding-up. 176. A voluntary winding-up shall be deemed to commence at the time of the passing of the resolution authorizing such winding-up.

Imp. § 183

Effect of voluntary winding-up on status of company. 177. Whenever a company is wound up voluntarily, the company shall, from the date of the commencement of such winding-up, cease to carry on its business, except in so far as may be required for the beneficial winding-up thereof, and all transfers of shares, except transfers made to or with the sanction of the liquidators, or alteration in the status of the members of the company taking place after the commencement of such winding-up shall be void, but its corporate state and all its corporate powers shall, notwithstanding it is otherwise provided by its regulations, continue until the affairs of the company are wound up.

Imp. § 184.

Publication of notice of resolution to wind up voluntarily. 178. Notice of any special resolution or extraordinary resolution passed for winding up a company voluntarily shall be given by advertisement in the Gazette.

Imp. § 185.

Consequences of voluntary winding up. 179. The following consequences shall ensue upon the voluntary winding-up of a company, that is to say: 1. The property of the company shall be applied in satisfaction of its liabilities pari passu, and, subject thereto, shall, unless it is otherwise provided by the regulations of the company, be distributed amongst the members according to their rights and interests in the company. 2. Liquidators shall be appointed for the purpose of winding up the affairs of the company and distributing the property. 3. The company in general meeting shall appoint such persons or person as it thinks fit to be liquidators or a liquidator, and may fix the remuneration to be paid to them or him. 4. If one person only is appointed, all the provisions herein contained in reference to several liquidators shall apply to him. 5. On the appointment of liquidators, all the power of the directors shall cease, except in so far as the company in general meeting or the liquidators may sanction the continuance of such powers. 6. When several liquidators are appointed, every power hereby given may be exercised by such one or more of them as may be determined at the time of their appointment, or, in default of such determination, by any number not less than two. 7. The liquidators may, without the sanction of the Court, exercise all powers by this Ordinance given to the official liquidator. 8. The liquidators may exercise the powers hereinbefore given to the Court of settling the list of contributories of the company, and any list so settled shall be prima facie evidence of the liability of the persons named therein to be contributories. 9. The liquidators may, at any time after the passing of the resolution for winding up the company, and before they have ascertained the sufficiency of the assets of the company, call on all or any of the contributories for the time being settled on the list of contributories, to the extent of their liability, to pay all or any sums they deem necessary to satisfy the debts and liabilities of the company and the costs, charges, and expenses of winding it up, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories amongst themselves, and the liquidators may, in making a call, take into consideration the probability that some of the contributories upon whom the same is made may partly or wholly fail to pay their respective portions of the same; and 10. The liquidators shall pay the debts of the company, and adjust the rights of the contributories among themselves.

Imp. § 186.

Effect of winding up on share capital of company limited by guarantee. 180. Where a company limited by guarantee and having a capital divided into shares is being wound up voluntarily, any share capital that may not have been called up shall be deemed to be assets of the company, and to be a debt due from each member to the company to the extent of any sums that may be unpaid on any shares held by him, and payable at such time as may be appointed by the liquidators.

Power to company to delegate authority to appoint liquidators. 181. A company about to be wound up voluntarily, or in the course of being wound up voluntarily, may, by an extraordinary resolution, delegate to its creditors, or to any committee of its creditors, the power of appointing liquidators or any of them, and supplying any vacancies in the appointment of liquidators, or may, by a like resolution, enter into any arrangement with respect to the powers to be exercised by the liquidators, and the manner in which they are to be exercised; and any act done by the creditors in pursuance of such delegated power shall have the same effect as if it had been done by the company.

Imp. § 190.

Arrangement between company and creditors. 182. 1. Any arrangement entered into between a company about to be wound up voluntarily, or in the course of being wound up voluntarily, and its creditors, shall be binding on the company if sanctioned by an extraordinary resolution, and on the creditors if acceded to by three-fourths in number and value of the creditors, subject to such right of appeal as is hereinafter mentioned. 2. Any creditor or contributory of a company that has, in manner aforesaid entered into any arrangements with its creditors, may, within three weeks from the date of the completion of such arrangement, appeal to the Court against such arrangement, and the Court may thereupon, as it thinks just, amend, vary, or confirm the same.

Imp. § 191.

Power to liquidators or contributories in voluntary winding-up to apply to the Court. 183. Where a company is being wound up voluntarily, the liquidators or any contributory of the company may apply to the Court to determine any question arising in the matter of such winding-up, or to exercise, as respects the enforcing of calls or as respects any other matter, all or any of the powers which the Court might exercise if the company were being wound up by the Court; and the Court, if it is satisfied that the determination of such question or the required exercise of power, will be just and beneficial, may accede, either wholly or partially, to such application, on such terms and subject to such conditions as the Court thinks fit, or it may make such other order on such application as the Court thinks just.

Imp. § 193.

Power to liquidators to call general meetings. 184. 1. Where a company is being wound up voluntarily, the liquidators may from time to time, during the continuance of such winding-up, summon general meetings of the company for the purpose of obtaining the sanction of the company by special resolution or extraordinary resolution, or for any other purposes they think fit. 2. In the event of the winding-up continuing for more than one year, the liquidators shall summon a general meeting of the company at the end of the first year and of each succeeding year from the commencement of the winding-up, or as soon thereafter as may be convenient, and shall lay before such meeting an account showing their acts and dealings, and the manner in which the winding-up has been conducted during the preceding year.

Imp. § 194.

Power to fill up vacancy among liquidators. 185. If any vacancy occurs in the office of liquidators appointed by the company, by death, resignation, or otherwise, the company in general meeting may, subject to any arrangement which it may have entered into with its creditors, fill up such vacancy, and a general meeting for the purpose of filling up such vacancy may be convened by the continuing liquidators, if any, or by any contributory of the company, and shall be deemed to have been duly held if held in manner prescribed by the regulations of the company, or in such other manner as may, on application by the continuing liquidator, if any, or by any contributory of the company, be determined by the Court.

Imp. § 189.

Power to the Court to appoint or remove liquidator. 186. 1. If, from any cause whatever, there is no liquidator acting in the case of a voluntary winding-up, the Court may, on the application of a contributory, appoint a liquidator or liquidators. 2. The Court may also, on due cause shown, remove any liquidator, and appoint another liquidator to act in the matter of a voluntary winding-up.

Imp. § 188.

Making up of account by liquidators on conclusion of winding-up. 187. 1. As soon as the affairs of the company are fully wound up, the liquidators shall make up an account showing the manner in which such winding-up has been conducted, and the property of the company disposed of; and thereupon they shall call a general meeting of the company for the purpose of having the account laid before them and hearing any explanation that may be given by the liquidators. 2. The meeting shall be called by advertisement, specifying the time, place, and object of such meeting; and such advertisement shall be published in the Gazette one month at least previously to the meeting. 3. The liquidators shall make a return to the Registrar of such meeting having been held and of the date at which the same was held, and, on the expiration of three months from the date of the registration of such return, the company shall be deemed to be dissolved. 4. If the liquidators make default in making such return to the Registrar they shall incur a penalty not exceeding twenty-four dollars for every day during which such default continues.

Imp. § 195.

Costs of voluntary winding-up. 188. All costs, charges, and expenses properly incurred in the voluntary winding-up of a company, including the remuneration of the liquidators, shall be payable out of the assets of the company in priority to all other claims.

Imp. § 196.

Saving of rights of creditors. 189. The voluntary winding-up of a company shall not be a bar to the right of any creditor of such company to have the same wound up by the Court, if the Court is of opinion that the rights of such creditor will be prejudiced by a voluntary winding-up.

Imp. § 197.

Power to the Court to adopt proceedings of voluntary winding-up. 190. Where a company is in course of being wound up voluntarily, and proceedings are taken for the purpose of having the same wound up by the Court, the Court may, if it thinks fit, notwithstanding that it makes an order directing the company to be wound up by the Court, provide in such order or in any other order for the adoption of all or any of the proceedings taken in the course of the voluntary winding-up.

Imp. § 198.

Winding-up subject to supervision of the Court.

Power to the Court, on application, to direct winding up subject to supervision. 191. Where a resolution has been passed by a company to wind up voluntarily, the Court may make an order directing that the voluntary winding-up shall continue, but subject to such supervision of the Court and with such liberty for creditors, contributories, or others to apply to the Court, and generally upon such terms and subject to such conditions as the Court thinks just.

Imp. § 199.

Petition for winding up subject to supervision. 192. A petition, praying wholly or in part that a voluntary winding-up should continue, but subject to the supervision of the Court, and which winding-up is hereinafter referred to as a winding-up subject to the supervision of the Court, shall, for the purpose of giving jurisdiction to the Court over suits and actions, be deemed to be a petition for winding up the company by the Court.

Imp. § 200.

The Court may have regard to wishes of creditors or contributories. 193. 1. The Court may, in determining whether a company is to be wound up altogether by the Court or subject to the supervision of the Court, in the appointment of a liquidator or liquidators, and in all other matters relating to the winding-up subject to supervision, have regard to the wishes of the creditors, or contributories, as proved to it by any sufficient evidence, and may direct meetings of the creditors or contributories to be summoned, held, and regulated in such manner as the Court directs for the purpose of ascertaining their wishes, and may appoint a person to act as chairman of any such meeting and to report the result of such meeting to the Court. 2. In the case of creditors, regard shall be had to the value of the debts due to each creditor, and, in the case of contributories, to the number of votes conferred on each contributory by the regulations of the company.

Imp. § 201.

Power to the Court to appoint additional liquidators in winding-up subject to supervision. 194. 1. Where any order is made by the Court for a winding-up subject to the supervision of the Court, the Court may, in such order or in any subsequent order, appoint any additional liquidator or liquidators; and any liquidators so appointed by the Court shall have the same powers, be subject to the same obligations, and in all respects stand in the same position as if they had been appointed by the company. 2. The Court may from time to time remove any liquidators so appointed by the Court, and fill up any vacancy occasioned by such removal, or by death or resignation.

Imp. § 202.

Effect of order of the Court for winding-up subject to supervision. 195. Where an order is made for a winding-up subject to the supervision of the Court, the liquidators appointed to conduct such winding-up may, subject to any restrictions imposed by the Court, exercise all their powers without the sanction or intervention of the Court, in the same manner as if the company were being wound up altogether voluntarily; but, save as aforesaid, any order made by the Court for a winding-up subject to the supervision of the Court shall for all purposes, including the staying of action, suits, and other proceedings, be deemed to be an order of the Court for winding up the company by the Court and shall confer full authority on the Court to make calls or to enforce calls made by the liquidators, and to exercise all other powers which it might have exercised if any order had been made for winding-up the company altogether by the Court; and in the construction of the provisions whereby the Court is empowered to direct any act or thing to be done to or in favour of the liquidators conducting the winding-up by the Court the expression liquidators shall be deemed to mean the liquidators conducting the winding-up subject to the supervision of the Court.

Imp. § 203.

Appointment in certain cases of voluntary liquidators to be liquidators in winding-up by Court. 196. Where an order has been made for the winding-up of a company subject to the supervision of the Court, and such order is afterwards superseded by an order directing the company to be wound up compulsorily, the Court may, in such last-mentioned order or in any subsequent order, appoint the voluntary liquidators or any of them, either provisionally or permanently, and either with or without the addition of any other persons, to be liquidators in the winding-up by the Court.

Imp. § 204.

Power for Administrator General to apply as to voluntary winding-up. 197. Where a company is being wound up voluntarily or subject to the supervision of the Court, the Administrator-General may present a petition that the company be wound up by the Court, and thereupon, if the Court is satisfied that the voluntary winding-up or winding-up subject to supervision cannot be continued with due regard to the interests of the creditors or contributories, it may make an order that the company be wound up by the Court.

Supplemental provisions.

Avoidance of disposition of property after commencement of winding-up. 198. Where any company is being wound up by the Court or subject to the supervision of the Court, all disposition of the property, effects, and things in action of the company, and every transfer of shares or alteration in the status of the members of the company, made between the commencement of the winding-up and the order for winding-up shall, unless the Court otherwise orders, be void.

Imp. § 205.

Use of books of company as evidence in winding-up. 199. Where any company is being wound up, all books, accounts, and documents of the company and of the liquidators shall, as between the contributories of the company, be prima facie evidence of the truth of all matters purporting to be therein recorded.

Imp. § 220.

Disposal of books, accounts, and documents of company wound-up. 200. Where any company has been wound up under this Ordinance and is about to be dissolved, the books, accounts, and documents of the company and of the liquidators may be disposed of in the following way, that is to say, where the company has been wound up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, in such way as the Court directs, and where the company has been wound up voluntarily, in such way as the company, by an extraordinary resolution, directs; but after the lapse of five years from the date of such dissolution, no responsibility shall rest on the company, or the liquidators, or any one to whom the custody of such books, accounts, and documents has been committed, by reason that the same, or any of them, cannot be made forthcoming to any party or parties claiming to be interested therein.

Imp. § 222.

Inspection of books during winding-up. 201. Where an order has been made for winding-up a company by the Court, or subject to the supervision of the Court, the Court may make such order for the inspection by the creditors and contributories of the company of its books and papers as the Court thinks just, and any books and papers in the possession of the company may be inspected by creditors or contributories in conformity with the order of the Court, but not further or otherwise.

Imp. § 221.

Powers of assignee of thing in action. 202. Any person to whom any thing in action or rights of action belonging to the company is assigned, in pursuance of this Ordinance, may bring or defend any action or suit relating to such thing in action or right of action in his own name.

Admissibility to proof of debts and claims of all descriptions. 203. In the event of any company being wound up under this Ordinance, all debts payable on a contingency, and all claims against the company, present or future, certain or contingent, ascertained or sounding only in damages, shall be admissible to proof against the company, a just estimate being made, so far as may be possible, of the value of all such debts or claims as are subject to any contingency or sound only in damages, or for some other reason do not bear a certain value, provided that in winding up any company under this Ordinance whose assets are proved to be insufficient to pay its debts and liabilities and the cost of the winding-up the same provisions shall prevail and be observed as to the respective rights of secured and unsecured creditors, and as to the debts and liabilities provable, and as to the valuation of annuities and future and contingent liabilities respectively and as to the ranking and payment of all debts and liabilities as may be in force for the time being under the law of insolvency, with respect to the estates of persons adjudged insolvent; and all persons who, in any such case, would be entitled to prove for and receive dividends out of the assets of any such company, if such assets were sufficient to pay its debts and liabilities may come in under the winding-up of such company and make such claim against the same as they may respectively be entitled to.

Imp. § 206. A creditor proving his claim as an unsecured creditor thereby relinquishes his security, and may be compelled to turn over such security to the liquidator. — In re Companies Ordinance, 1898, (12th February, 1901). See also In re Winter Gold Mine, Ltd., (26th April, 1901).

Payment of creditors in winding-up. 204. The liquidators may, with the sanction either of the Court, or of the committee of inspection where the company is being wound up by the Court or with the sanction of the Court where the company is being wound up subject to the supervision of the Court, and with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution of the company where the company is being wound up altogether voluntarily, pay any classes of creditors in full, or make such compromise or other arrangement as the liquidators may deem expedient with the creditors or persons claiming to be creditors or persons having or alleging themselves to have any claim, present or future, certain or contingent, ascertained or sounding only in damages against the company, or whereby the company may be rendered liable.

Imp. § 214.

Power to make compromises, etc., with creditors, etc. 205. The liquidators may, with the sanction either of the Court, or of the committee of inspection where the company is being wound up by the Court or with the sanction of the Court where the company is being wound up subject to the supervision of the Court, and with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution of the company where the company is being wound up altogether voluntarily, compromise all calls and liabilities to calls, debts, and liabilities capable of resulting in debts, and all claims, whether present or future, certain or contingent, ascertained or sounding only in damages, subsisting or supposed to subsist between the company and any contributory or alleged contributory, or other debtor or person apprehending liability to the company, and all questions in any way relating to or affecting the assets of the company or the winding-up of the company, upon the receipt of such sums, payable at such times, and generally upon such terms as may be agreed upon, and with power for the liquidators to take any security for the discharge of such debts or liabilities, and to give complete discharges in respect of all or any such calls, debts, or liabilities.

Imp. § 214.

Where compromise proposed Court may order a meeting of creditors, etc., to decide as to such compromise. 206. Where any compromise or arrangement is proposed between a company which is being wound up by the Court or subject to the supervision of the Court or altogether voluntarily, and the creditors of such company or any class of such creditors, it shall be lawful for the Court on the application in a summary way of any creditor or of the liquidators, to order that a meeting of such creditors or class of creditors, shall be summoned in such manner as the Court may direct; and if a majority in number representing three-fourths in value of such creditors or class of creditors, present either in person or by proxy at such meeting, shall agree to any arrangement or compromise, such arrangement or compromise shall, if sanctioned by an order of the Court, be binding on all such creditors or class of creditors, as the case may be, and also on the liquidators and contributories of the company.

Imp. § 214.

Power to liquidators to accept shares, etc., as consideration for sale of property of company. 207. 1. Where any company is proposed to be or is in the course of being wound up altogether voluntarily, and the whole or a portion of its business or property is proposed to be transferred or sold to another company, the liquidators of the first-mentioned company may, with the sanction of a special resolution of the company by whom they were appointed, conferring either a general authority on the liquidators or an authority in respect of any particular arrangement, receive in compensation or part compensation for such transfer or sale, shares, policies, or other like interests in such other company, for the purpose of distribution amongst the members of the company being wound up, or may enter into any other arrangement whereby the members of the company being wound up may, in lieu of receiving cash, shares, policies, or other like interests, or in addition thereto, participate in the profits of or receive any other benefit from the purchasing company. 2. Any sale made or arrangement entered into by the liquidators in pursuance of this section shall be binding on the members of the company being wound up; subject to this proviso, that if any member of the company being wound up who has not voted in favour of the special resolution passed by the company of which he is a member, at either of the meetings held for passing the same, expresses his dissent from any such special resolution in writing addressed to the liquidators, or one of them, and left at the registered office of the company not later than seven days after the date of the meeting at which such special resolution was passed, such dissentient member may require the liquidators to do one of the following things as the liquidators may prefer; that is to say, either to abstain from carrying such resolution into effect, or to purchase the interest held by such dissentient member at a price to be determined in manner hereinafter mentioned, such purchase money to be paid before the company is dissolved, and to be raised by the liquidators in such manner as may be determined by special resolution. 3. No special resolution shall be deemed invalid for the purposes of this section by reason that it is passed antecedently to or concurrently with any resolution for winding up the company, or for appointing liquidators; but if an order is made within a year for winding up the company by or subject to the supervision of the Court, such resolution shall not be of any validity unless it is sanctioned by the Court. 4. The price to be paid for the purchase of the interest of any dissentient member may be determined by agreement, but if the parties dispute about the same, such dispute shall be settled by arbitration; and for the purposes of such arbitration the provisions of the Companies' Clauses and Powers Consolidation Ordinance, 1846, with respect to the settlement of disputes by arbitration shall be incorporated with this Ordinance, and, in the construction of such provisions, this Ordinance shall be deemed to be the special Ordinance, and "the promoters of the undertaking" shall mean the company that is being wound up, and any appointment by the said incorporated provisions directed to be made under the hand of the secretary, or any two of the directors, may be made under the hand of the liquidator, if only one, or any two or more of the liquidators, if more than one.

Imp. § 192.

Avoidance of attachment, etc., after commencement of winding-up. 208. Where any company is being wound up by the Court or subject to the supervision of the Court, any attachment, sequestration, distress, or execution put into force against the estate or effects of the company after the commencement of the winding-up shall be void to all intents.

Imp. § 211.

Fraudulent preference. 209. 1. Any such transfer, assignment, delivery of goods, payment, or other act relating to property as would, if made or done by or against any individual be deemed, in the event of his insolvency, to have been made or done by way of undue or fraudulent preference of the creditors of such person shall, if made or done by or against any company, be deemed, in the event of such company being wound up under this Ordinance, to have been made or done by way of undue or fraudulent preference of the creditors of such company, and shall be invalid accordingly. 2. For the purposes of this section the presentation of a petition for winding up a company, shall, in the case of a company being wound up by the Court or subject to the supervision of the Court, and a resolution for winding-up the company shall in the case of a voluntary winding-up be deemed to correspond with the act of insolvency in the case of an individual. 3. Any conveyance or assignment made by any company formed under this Ordinance of all its estate and effects to trustees for the benefit of all its creditors shall be void to all intents.

Imp. § 210.

Power of Court to assess damages against delinquent directors, officers, and promoters. 210. 1. Where in the course of the winding-up of a company under this Ordinance it appears that any person who has taken part in the formation or promotion of the company, or any past or present director, manager, liquidator, or other officer of the company, has misapplied or retained or become liable or accountable for any moneys or property of the company, or been guilty of any misfeasance or breach of trust in relation to the company, the Court may, on the application of the Administrator-General, or of the liquidator of the company or of any creditor or contributory of the company examine into the conduct of such promoter, director, manager, liquidator, or other officer of the company, and compel him to repay any moneys or restore any property so misapplied, or retained, or for which he has become liable or accountable, together with interest after such rate as the Court thinks just, or to contribute such sums of money to the assets of the company by way of compensation in respect of such misapplication, retainer, misfeasance, or breach of trust as the Court thinks just. 2. The provisions of this section shall apply in the winding-up of any company under this Ordinance whether the same is being wound up by or subject to the supervision of the Court or is being wound up voluntarily, and whether the winding-up commenced before or after the passing of this Ordinance and notwithstanding that the offence is one for which the offender may be criminally responsible.

Imp. § 215.

Effect of order under preceding section. 211. An order for payment of money made by the Court under the last preceding section of this Ordinance shall be deemed to be a final judgment within the meaning of paragraph f. of sub section 1 of section 3 of the Insolvency Ordinance, 1884.

Imp. § 215.

Punishment of person destroying, etc., books. 212. If any director, officer, or contributory of any company wound up under this Ordinance destroys, mutilates, alters, or falsifies any books, papers, writings, or securities, or makes or is privy to the making of any false or fraudulent entry in any register, book of account, or other document belonging to the company with intent to defraud or deceive any person, every person so offending shall be deemed to be guilty of a misdemeanour, and, being convicted thereof before the Supreme Court shall be liable to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for any term not exceeding two years.

Imp. § 216.

Prosecution of delinquent director, etc., in case of winding-up. 213. 1. Where any order is made for winding up a company by the Court or subject to the supervision of the Court, if it appears in the course of such winding-up that any past or present director, manager, officer, or member of such company has been guilty of any offence in relation to the company for which he is criminally responsible, the Court may, on the application of any person interested in such winding-up or its own motion direct the official liquidator or the liquidators (as the case may be) to institute and conduct a prosecution for such offence or proceedings for a preliminary investigation (as the case may be) and may order the costs and expenses to be paid out of the assets of the company. 2. Where a company is being wound up altogether voluntarily, if it appears to the liquidators conducting such winding-up that any past or present director, manager, officer, or member of such company has been guilty of any offence in relation to the company for which he is criminally responsible, it shall be lawful for the liquidators, with the previous sanction of the Court, to prosecute such offender or to institute and carry on proceedings for the preliminary investigation of the charge against such offender, and all expenses properly incurred by them in so doing shall be payable out of the assets of the company in priority to all other liabilities.

Imp. § 217.

Punishment of person giving false evidence. 214. If any person, on any examination upon oath or affirmation authorized under this Ordinance or in any affidavit, deposition, or solemn affirmation in or about the winding-up of any company under this Ordinance, or otherwise in or about any matter arising under this Ordinance, wilfully and corruptly gives false evidence, he shall, on being convicted, be liable to the penalties of wilful perjury.

Imp. § 218.

Priority of debts. 215. 1. All debts entitled to priority over other debts shall rank equally among themselves, and shall be paid in full unless the assets of the company are insufficient to meet them, in which case they shall abate in equal proportions among themselves. 2. Subject to the retention of such sums as may be necessary for the costs of administration or otherwise, the liquidators or official liquidators shall discharge the foregoing debts forthwith, so far as the assets of the company are and will be sufficient to meet them, as and when such assets come into the hands of such liquidators or official liquidators.

Imp. § 209.

Information as to pending liquidations. 216. 1. If the winding-up of a company is not concluded within one year after its commencement, the liquidator of the company shall at such intervals as may be prescribed, until the winding-up is concluded send to the Registrar a statement in the prescribed form and containing the prescribed particulars with respect to the proceedings in and position of the liquidation. Any person stating himself in writing to be a creditor or contributory of the company shall be entitled, by himself or by his agent, at all reasonable times, on payment of the prescribed fee, to inspect the statement submitted in pursuance of this section and to a copy thereof or extract therefrom. But any person untruthfully so stating himself to be a creditor or contributory shall be guilty of a contempt of court, and shall be punishable accordingly on the application of the liquidator or of the Administrator General. 2. If a liquidator makes default in complying with the requirements of this section he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars for each day during which the default continues. 3. If it appears from any such statement or otherwise that any liquidator of a company has in his hands or under his control any money representing unclaimed or undistributed assets of the company which have remained unclaimed or undistributed for six months after the date of their receipt, the liquidator shall forthwith pay the same to the Receiver-General, and the receipt of the Receiver-General shall be an effectual discharge to such liquidator in respect of the moneys so paid. 4. For the purpose of ascertaining whether any money is payable to the Receiver-General under this section, the Court may at any time order any liquidator to submit an account verified by affidavit of all sums received and paid by him as liquidator and may direct the Accountant of the Court to audit such account and may require the liquidator to attend and produce all documents or other evidence in his possession necessary for such audit, and may order the liquidator to pay to the Receiver-General any sum which on making such audit appears payable to him under this section. 5. Any liquidator who fails to comply with any such order shall be deemed guilty of contempt of court and be punishable accordingly. 6. Any person claiming to be entitled to any money paid to the Receiver-General in pursuance of this section may apply to the Governor-in-Council for payment of the same and the Governor-in-Council may on a certificate by the liquidator that the person claiming is entitled make an order for the payment to that person of the sum due. Any person dissatisfied with the decision of the Governor-in-Council in respect of any claim made under this section may appeal to the Supreme Court.

Power of Registrar to strike names of defunct companies off register.

217. 1. Where the Registrar has reasonable cause to believe that a company is not carrying on business or in operation, he shall send to the company, by post or otherwise, a letter inquiring whether the company is carrying on business or in operation. 2. If the Registrar does not within one month of sending the letter, receive any answer thereto, he shall, within fourteen days after the expiration of the month, send to the company by post or otherwise, a registered letter referring to the first letter, and stating that no answer thereto has been received by him, and that, if an answer is not received to the second letter within one month from the date thereof, a notice will be published in the Gazette with a view to striking the name of the company off the register. 3. If the Registrar either receives an answer from the company to the effect that it is not carrying on business or in operation, or does not within one month after sending the second letter, receive any answer thereto the Registrar may publish in the Gazette and send to the company a notice that, at the expiration of three months from the date of that notice the name of the company mentioned therein will, unless cause is shown to the contrary be struck off the register, and the company will be dissolved. 4. At the expiration of the time mentioned in the notice the Registrar may, unless cause to the contrary is previously shown by such company, strike the name of such company off the register, and shall publish notice thereof in the Gazette; and on the publication of such last mentioned notice, the company whose name is so struck off shall be dissolved; provided that the liability if any, of every director, managing, officer and member of the company shall continue and may be enforced as if the company had not been dissolved. 5. If any company or any member thereof feels aggrieved by the name of such company having been struck off the register in pursuance of this section, the company or member may apply to the Court, and the Court may, if satisfied that the company was, at the time of the striking off, carrying on business or in operation, and that it is just so to do, order the name of the company to be restored to the register and thereupon the company shall be deemed to have continued in existence as if the name thereof had never been struck off; and the Court may, by such order give such directions and make such provisions as seem just for placing the company and all other persons in the same position as nearly as may be as if the name of the company had never been struck off. 6. A letter or notice authorized or required for the purposes of this section to be sent to a company may be sent by post addressed to the company at its registered office, or if no office has been registered, addressed to the care of some director or officer of the company, or if there is no director or officer of the company whose name and address are known to the Registrar, the letter or notice in identical form may be sent to each of the persons who subscribed the memorandum of association addressed to him at the address mentioned in that memorandum. 7. In the execution of his duties under this section, the Registrar shall conform to any regulations or directions which may be from time to time made or given by the Governor-in-Council.

Making of rules.

Power to the Court, or any two Judges thereof, to make rules. 218. The Supreme Court of British Guiana or any two of the Judges thereof may, as often as circumstances require, make such rules for regulating appeals from orders made by a single Judge and concerning the mode of proceeding to be had for winding up a company in the Court and concerning all matters in which jurisdiction is by this Ordinance given to the Court as may from time to time seem necessary, but no such rules shall take effect until they have been laid before the Governor and Court of Policy and approved of and, until such rules are made and take effect, the general practice of the Court shall, so far as the same is applicable and not inconsistent with this Ordinance, apply to all appeals and proceedings for winding up a company under this Ordinance.

Imp. § 237.

Part V. The Registration Office.

Constitution of Registration Office. 219. The registration of companies under this Ordinance shall be conducted as follows, that is to say: 1. The Registrar of British Guiana shall, without any further or other appointment, act as and be the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies under this Ordinance for the Colony. 2. No company shall be registered except at the Registrar's Office in the county in which, by the memorandum of association, the registered office of the company is declared to be established. 3. Every person may inspect the documents kept by the Registrar, and there shall be paid for such inspection a fee of one dollar for each inspection; and any person may require a certificate of the incorporation of any company, or a copy or extract of any other document or any part of any other document, to be certified by the Registrar, and there shall be paid for such certificate of incorporation, certified copy, or extract a fee of one dollar for the certificate of incorporation and twenty-five cents for each folio of such copy or extract; and 4. Whenever any act is herein directed to be done by the Registrar, such act may be done by any sworn clerk and notary public or by any assistant sworn clerk in his office.

Imp. §§ 243, 244.

Part VI. Application of Ordinance to Companies Registered under the Companies Ordinance, 1864.

Former companies. 220. Subject as hereinafter mentioned, this Ordinance shall apply to companies formed and registered under the Companies Ordinance, 1864, in the same manner in the case of a limited company, as if such company had been formed and registered under this Ordinance as a company limited by shares, or guarantee (as the case may be, and in the case of a company other than a limited company) as if such company had been formed and registered as an unlimited company under this Ordinance, with this qualification, that wherever reference is made expressly or impliedly to the date of registration, such date shall be deemed to refer to the date at which such companies were respectively registered under the Companies Ordinance, 1864.

Imp. § 245.

Application of Ordinance to companies registered under the said Ordinance. 221. This Ordinance shall apply to companies registered but not formed under the Companies Ordinance, 1864, in the same manner as it is hereinafter declared to apply to companies registered but not formed under this Ordinance, with this qualification that wherever reference is made expressly or impliedly to the date of registration such date shall be deemed to refer to the date at which such companies were respectively registered under the Companies Ordinance, 1864.

Imp. §§ 246, 247.

Mode of transferring shares. 222. Any company registered under the Companies Ordinance, 1864, may cause its shares to be transferred in manner hitherto in use or in such other manner as the company may direct.

Imp. § 248.

Part VII. Companies Authorized to Register, and Re-register.

Regulations as to registration of existing companies. 223. 1. The following regulations shall be observed with respect to the registration of companies under this Part, that is to say; a) No company having the liability of its members limited by Ordinance, or by Act of Parliament, or by Letters Patent, and not being a joint stock company as hereinafter defined, and no banking company shall register under this Ordinance in pursuance of this Part; b) No company having the liability of its members limited by Ordinance, or by Act of Parliament, or by Letters Patent shall register under this Ordinance in pursuance of this Part as an unlimited company or as a company limited by guarantee; c) No company that is not a joint stock company as hereinafter defined shall, in pursuance of this Part, register under this Ordinance as a company limited by shares; d) No company shall register under this Ordinance in pursuance of this Part unless an assent to its so registering is given by a majority of such of its member as may be present, either personally or by proxy, in cases where proxies are allowed by the regulations of the company, at some general meeting summoned for the purpose; e) Where a company not having the liability of its members limited by Ordinance, or by Act of Parliament, or by Letters Patent is about to register as a limited company, the majority required to assent as aforesaid shall consist of not less than three-fourths of the members present, either personally or by proxy, at such last-mentioned general meeting; and f) Where a company is about to register as a company limited by guarantee, the assent to its being so registered shall be accompanied by a resolution declaring that each member undertakes to contribute to the assets of the company, in the event of the same being wound up, during the time that he is a member or within one year afterwards, for payment of the debts and liabilities of the company contracted before the time at which he ceased to be a member, and of the costs, charges, and expenses of winding up the company, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories amongst themselves, such amount as may be required, not exceeding a specified amount. 2. In computing any majority under this section when a poll is demanded, regard shall be had to the number of votes to which each member is entitled according to the regulations of the company of which he is a member.

Imp. § 249.

Companies capable of being registered. 224. With the above exceptions, and subject to the foregoing regulations, every company existing at the commencement of this Ordinance including any company registered under the Companies Ordinance 1864, consisting of seven or more members, and any company hereafter formed in pursuance of any Ordinance other than this Ordinance, or being otherwise duly constituted by law, and consisting of seven or more members, may at any time hereafter register itself under this Ordinance as an unlimited company, or a company limited by shares, or a company limited by guarantee, and no such registration shall be invalid by reason that it has taken place with a view to the company being wound up.

Imp. § 249.

Definition of "joint stock company." 225. For the purposes of this Part, so far as the same relates to the description of companies empowered to register as companies limited by shares, a joint stock company shall be deemed to be a company having a permanent paid-up or nominal capital of fixed amount, divided into shares, also of fixed amount, or held and transferable as stock, or divided and held partly in one way and partly in the other, and formed on the principle of having for its members the holders of shares in such capital or the holders of such stock, and no other persons, and such company, when registered with limited liability under this Ordinance, shall be deemed to be a company limited by shares.

Imp. § 250.

Requirements for registration of joint stock company. 226. Previously to the registration in pursuance of this Part of any joint stock company, there shall be delivered to the Registrar the following documents, that is to say: 1. A list showing the names, addresses, and occupations of all persons who, on a day named in such list and not being more than six clear days before the day of registration, were members of such company, with the addition of the shares held by such persons respectively, distinguishing, in cases where such shares are numbered, each share by its number. 2. A copy of any Act of Parliament, Letters Patent, Ordinance, deed of settlement, contract of co-partnery, or other instrument constituting or regulating the company; and 3. If any joint stock company is intended to be registered as a limited company, the above list and copy shall be accompanied by a statement specifying the following particulars, that is to say: a) The nominal capital of the company and the number of shares into which it is divided; b) The number of shares taken and the amount paid on each share; c) The name of the company, with the addition of the word "limited" as the last word thereof; and d) With the addition, in the case of a company intended to be registered as a company limited by guarantee, of the resolution declaring the amount of the guarantee.

Imp. § 252.

Requirements for registration of company not being a joint stock company. 227. Previously to this registration in pursuance of this Part of any company not being a joint stock company, there shall be delivered to the Registrar a list showing the names, addresses, and occupations of the directors or other managers, if any, of the company, also a copy of any Ordinance, deed of settlement, contract of co-partnery, or other instrument constituting or regulating the company, with the addition, in the case of a company intended to be registered as a company limited by guarantee, of the resolution declaring the amount of guarantee.

Imp. § 253.

Powers for existing company to register amount of stock instead of shares. 228. Where a joint stock company authorized to register under this Ordinance has had the whole or any portion of its capital converted into stock, such company shall, as to the capital so converted, instead of delivering to the Registrar a statement of shares, deliver to the Registrar a statement of the amount of stock belonging to the company, and the names of the persons who were holders of such stock, on some day to be named in the statement, not more than six clear days before the day of registration.

Authentication of statements of existing company. 229. The lists of members and directors and any other particulars relating to the company hereby required to be delivered to the Registrar shall be verified by an affidavit of the directors of the company delivering the same or any two of them, or of any two other principal officers of the company.

Imp. § 254.

Power to the Registrar to require evidence as to nature of company. 230. The Registrar may require such evidence as he thinks necessary for the purpose of satisfying himself whether an existing company is or is not a joint stock company as hereinbefore defined.

Imp. § 255.

Exemption of certain companies from payment of fees. 231. No fees shall be charged in respect of the registration in pursuance of this Part of any company in cases where such company is not registered as a limited company, or where, previously to its being registered as a limited company, the liability of the shareholders was limited by some other Ordinance.

Imp. § 257.

Power to company to change name. 232. Any company authorized by this Part to register with limited liability shall, for the purpose of obtaining registration with limited liability, change its name, by adding thereto the word "limited."

Imp. § 258.

Certificate of registration of existing company. 233. On compliance with the requirements contained in this Part with respect to registration, and on payment of such fees, if any, as are payable under the Tables marked B and C in the first Schedule to this Ordinance, the Registrar shall certify, under his hand, that the company so applying for registration is incorporated as a company under this Ordinance, and, in the case of a limited company, that it is limited, and thereupon such company shall be incorporated, and shall have perpetual succession and a common seal, with power to hold lands: Provided always that where by any Ordinance incorporating a company, the term or duration of succession is limited, such succession shall continue so limited, notwithstanding the company may be registered under this Ordinance.

Imp. § 259.

Effect of certificate as evidence of compliance with the Ordinance. 234. A certificate of incorporation given at any time to any company registered in pursuance of this Part shall be conclusive evidence that all the requirements herein contained in respect of registration under this Ordinance have been complied with, and that the company is authorized to be registered under this Ordinance as a limited or unlimited company, as the case may be, and the date of incorporation mentioned in such certificate shall be deemed to be the date at which the company is incorporated under this Ordinance.

Transfer of property to company. 235. All such property, moveable, and immoveable, including all interests and rights in, to, and out of property, moveable and immoveable, and including obligations and things in action, as may belong to or be vested in the company at the date of its registration under this Ordinance, shall, on registration, pass to and vest in the company as incorporated under this Ordinance, for all the estate and interest of the company therein.

Imp. § 260.

Saving of obligations incurred previously to registration. 236. The registration in pursuance of this Part of any company shall not affect or prejudice the liability of such company to have enforced against it, or its right to enforce, any debt or obligation incurred, or any contract entered into, by, to, with or on behalf of such company previously to such registration.

Imp. § 261.

Continuation of existing actions and suits. 237. All such actions, suits, and other legal proceedings as may, at the time of the registration of any company registered in pursuance of this Part, have been commenced by or against such company, or any member thereof, may be continued in the same manner as if such registration had not taken place: Provided, nevertheless, that execution shall not issue against the effects of any individual member of such company, upon any judgment, sentence, or order obtained in any action, suit, or proceedings so commenced as aforesaid; but in the event of the property and effects of the company being insufficient to satisfy such judgment, sentence, or order, an order may be obtained for winding up the company.

Imp. § 262.

Effect of registration under Part VII. 238. When a company is registered under this Ordinance in pursuance of this Part, all provisions contained in any Act of Parliament, Letters Patent, Ordinance, deed of settlement, contract of co-partnery, or other instrument constituting or regulating the company including in the case of a company registered as a company limited by guarantee the resolution declaring the amount of the guarantee, shall be deemed to be conditions and regulations of the company, in the same manner and with the same incidents as if they were contained in a registered memorandum of association and articles of association; and all the provisions of this Ordinance shall apply to such company and the members, contributories, and creditors thereof, in the same manner in all respects as if it had been formed under this Ordinance, subject to the provisions following, that is to say: 1. The Table marked A in the first Schedule to this Ordinance shall not, unless adopted by special resolution, apply to any company registered under this Ordinance in pursuance of this Part. 2. The provisions of this Ordinance relating to the numbering of shares shall not apply to any joint stock company whose shares are not numbered. 3. No company shall have power to alter any provision contained in any Act of Parliament, Letters Patent, or Ordinance relating to the company. 4. In the event of the company being wound up, every person shall be a contributory in respect of the debts and liabilities of the company contracted prior to registration, who is legally liable to pay or contribute to the payment of any debt or liability of the company contracted prior to registration or to pay or contribute to the payment of any sum for the adjustment of the rights of the members amongst themselves in respect of any such debt or liability, or to pay or contribute to the payment of the costs, charges, and expenses of winding up the company, so far as relates to such debts or liabilities as aforesaid; and every such contributory shall be liable to contribute to the assets of the company, in the course of the winding-up, all sums due from him in respect of any such liability as aforesaid; and, in the event of the death or insolvency of any such contributory as last aforesaid or the marriage of any such contributory being a female, the provisions hereinbefore contained with respect to the heirs and executors of deceased contributories, and with respect to the assignees of insolvent contributories and to the husbands of married contributories, shall apply; and 5. Nothing herein contained shall authorize any company to alter any such provisions contained in any deed of settlement, contract of co-partnery. Letters Patent or other instrument constituting or regulating the company, as would, if such company had originally been formed under this Ordinance, have been contained in the memorandum of association, and are not authorized to be altered by this Ordinance: Provided that nothing herein contained shall derogate from any power of altering its constitution or regulations which may be vested in any company registering under this Ordinance in pursuance of this Part thereof, by virtue of any Act of Parliament, Letters Patent, Ordinance, deed of settlement, contract of co-partnery, or other instrument constituting or regulating the company.

Imp. § 263.

Power to the Court to restrain further proceedings. 239. The Court may, at any time after the presentation of a petition for winding up a company registered in pursuance of this Part, and before making an order for winding up the company, on the application by motion of any creditor of the company, restrain further proceedings in any action, suit, or legal proceeding against any contributory of the company, as well as against the company as hereinbefore provided, upon such terms as the Court thinks fit.

Imp. § 265.

Order for winding up company. 240. Where an order has been made for winding up a company registered in pursuance of this Part, in addition to the provisions hereinbefore contained, it is hereby further provided that no action, suit, or other legal proceeding shall be commenced or proceeded with against any contributory of the company in respect of any debt of the company, except with the leave of the Court, and subject to such terms as the Court may impose.

Imp. § 266.

Re-registration of registered companies. 241. 1. Any company registered under this Ordinance or any Ordinance hereby repealed as an unlimited company may re-register hereunder as a limited company or any company so registered as a limited company may re-register hereunder. 2. The registration of an unlimited company as a limited company under this section shall not affect or prejudice any debts, liabilities, obligations, or contracts incurred or entered into by, to, with, or on behalf of such company prior to such registration and such debts, liabilities, contracts, and obligations may be enforced in manner provided by the preceding sections of this Part of this Ordinance in the case of a company registering in pursuance of those sections. 3. On the registration in pursuance of this section of a company which has been already registered, the Registrar shall make provision for closing the former registration of the company and may dispense with the delivery to him of copies of any documents with copies of which he was furnished on the occasion of the original registration of the company, but save as aforesaid the registration of such a company shall take place in the same manner and have the same effect as if it were the first registration of that company under this Ordinance and as if the provisions of the Ordinance under which the company was previously registered and regulated had been contained in a different Ordinance from the Ordinance under which the company is registered as a limited company. 4. A company authorized to register under this section may register thereunder and avail itself of the privileges conferred by section fifty-nine notwithstanding any provisions contained in any Act of Parliament, Ordinance, Royal Charter, deed of settlement, contract of co-partnery, Letters Patent or other instrument constituting or regulating the company.

Part VIII. Application of the Ordinance to Unregistered Companies.

Winding up of unregistered company. 242. Subject as hereinafter mentioned, any partnership, association, or company, except railway companies incorporated by Ordinance, consisting of more than seven members and not registered under this Ordinance, and hereinafter included under the term "unregistered company," may be wound up under this Ordinance, and all the provisions of this Ordinance with respect to winding-up shall apply to such company, with the following exceptions and additions, that is to say: 1. An unregistered company shall be deemed to be registered in that county of the Colony where its principal place of business is situate, or, if it has a principal place of business situate in more than one county of the Colony, then in each county of the Colony where it has a principal place of business; moreover, the principal place of business of an unregistered company, or (where it has a principal place of business situate in more than one county of the Colony) such one of its principal places of business as is situate in that county of the Colony at the Registrar's Office of which proceedings are being instituted, shall, for all the purposes of the winding-up of such company, be deemed to be the registered office of the company; 2. No unregistered company shall be wound up under this Ordinance voluntarily or subject to the supervision of the Court; 3. The circumstances under which an unregistered company may be wound up are as follows, that is to say: a) Whenever the company is dissolved, or has ceased to carry on business, or is carrying on business only for the purpose of winding up its affairs; b) Whenever the company is unable to pay its debts; c) Whenever the Court is of opinion that it is just and equitable that the company should be wound up; and 4. An unregistered company shall, for the purposes of this Ordinance, be deemed to be unable to pay its debts: a) Whenever a creditor to whom the company is indebted, by assignment or otherwise, in a sum exceeding two hundred and forty dollars then due, has served on the company, by leaving the same at the principal place of business of the company, or by delivering to the secretary or some director or principal officer of the company, or by otherwise serving the same in such manner as the Court may approve or direct, a demand under his hand requiring the company to pay the sum so due, and the company has, for the space of three weeks succeeding the service of such demand, neglected to pay such sum, or to secure or compound for the same to the satisfaction of the creditor; b) Whenever any action, suit, or other proceeding has been instituted against any member of the company for any debt or demand due, or claimed to be due, from the company or from him in his character of member of the company, and notice in writing of the institution of such action, suit, or other legal proceeding having been served upon the company, by leaving the same at the principal place of business of the company, or by delivering it to the secretary, or some director, manager, or principal officer of the company, or by otherwise serving the same in such manner as the Court may approve or direct, the company has not, within ten days after service of such notice paid, secured, or compounded for such debt or demand, or procured such action, suit, or other legal proceeding, to be stayed or indemnified the defendant, to his reasonable satisfaction against such action, suit, or other legal proceeding and against all costs, damages, and expenses to be incurred by him by reason of the same; c) Whenever execution or other process issued on a judgment, sentence, or order obtained in any Court in favour of any creditor in any proceeding instituted by such creditor against the company or any member thereof as such, or against any person authorized to be sued as nominal defendant on behalf of the company, is returned unsatisfied; and d) Whenever it is otherwise proved to the satisfaction of the Court, that the company is unable to pay its debts.

Imp. § 268.

Contributories in event of company being wound up. 243. In the event of an unregistered company being wound up, every person shall be deemed to be a contributory who is legally liable to pay or contribute to the payment of any debt or liability of the company, or to pay or contribute to the payment of any sum for the adjustment of the rights of the members amongst themselves, or to pay or contribute to the payment of the costs, charges, and expenses of winding up the company, and every such contributory shall be liable to contribute to the assets of the company in the course of the winding-up all sums due from him in respect of any such liability as aforesaid; but, in the event of the death or insolvency of any contributory, or the marriage of any female contributory, the provisions hereinbefore contained with respect to the heirs, executors, and legatees of a deceased contributory, and to the assignees of an insolvent contributory, and to the husband of a married contributory, shall apply.

Imp. § 269.

Power to the Court to restrain further proceedings. 244. The Court may, at any time after the presentation of a petition for winding up an unregistered company and before making an order for winding up the company, on the application of any creditor of the company, restrain further proceedings in any action, suit, or other proceeding against any contributory of the company, or against the company, as hereinbefore provided, upon such terms as the Court thinks fit.

Imp. § 270.

Effect of order for winding up company. 245. Where an order has been made for winding up an unregistered company, in addition to the provisions hereinbefore contained in the case of companies formed under this Ordinance, it is hereby further provided that no suit, action, or other legal proceeding shall be commenced or proceeded with against any contributory of the company in respect of any debt of the company, except with the leave of the Court and subject to such terms as the Court may impose.

Imp. § 271.

Provision in case of unregistered company. 246. If any unregistered company has no power to sue and be sued in a common name, or if for any reason it appears expedient, the Court may, by the order made for winding up such company or by any subsequent order, direct that all such property, moveable and immoveable, including all interests, claims, and rights into and out of property, moveable and immoveable, and including things in action, as may belong to or be vested in the company, or to or in any person or persons on trust for or on behalf of the company, or any part of such property, is to vest in the liquidator or liquidators by his or their official name or names, and thereupon the same or such part thereof as may be specified in the order shall vest accordingly, and the liquidator or liquidators may, in his or their official name or names, or in such name or names and after giving such indemnity as the Court directs, bring or defend any actions, suits, or other legal proceedings relating to any property vested in him or them, or any actions, suits, or other legal proceedings necessary to be brought or defended for the purpose of effectually winding up the company and recovering the property thereof.

Imp. § 272.

Provisions of Part VII cumulative. 247. The provisions made by this Part with respect to unregistered companies shall be deemed to be made in addition to, and not in restriction of, any provisions hereinbefore contained with respect to winding up companies by the Court: and the Court or liquidator or liquidators may, in addition to anything contained in this Part, exercise any powers or do any act in the case of unregistered companies which might be exercised or done by it or him or them in winding up companies formed under this Ordinance; but an unregistered company shall not, except in the event of its being wound up, be deemed to be a company under this Ordinance, and then only to the extent provided by this Part.

Imp. § 273.

Part IX. Repeal and Special Provisions.

Repeal. 248. The Companies Ordinance, 1864, is hereby repealed: Provided always (that in addition to the savings and limitations annexed to the repeal of an Ordinance by the Interpretation Ordinance, 1891) this repeal shall not affect the incorporation of any company registered under the Ordinance hereby repealed.

Imp. § 286.

Saving of existing proceedings for winding up. 249. Where previously to the commencement of this Ordinance an order has been made for winding up a company under the Ordinance hereby repealed, or a resolution has been passed for winding up a company voluntarily, the winding-up of such company shall be continued under this Ordinance subject to any express provisions of such Ordinance which are not enacted herein and for the purposes of such winding-up such repealed Ordinance shall be deemed to remain in full force.

Imp. § 287.

Saving of conveyances, deeds, etc. 250. Where previously to the commencement of this Ordinance any conveyance, mortgage, or other deed or instrument in writing has been made in pursuance of the Ordinance hereby repealed, such deed or instrument shall be of the same force as if this Ordinance had not passed, and for the purposes of such deed or instrument such repealed Ordinance shall be deemed to remain in full force.

Imp. § 288.

Schedules.

The First Schedule.

Table A. Regulations for Management of a Company limited by Shares.

Shares.

1. If several persons are registered as joint holders of any share, any one of such persons may give effectual receipts for any dividend payable in respect of such share.

2. Every member shall, on payment of twenty-four cents or such less sum as the company in general meeting may prescribe, be entitled to a certificate, under the common seal of the company, specifying the share or shares held by him and the amount paid up thereon.

3. If such certificate is worn out or lost, it may be renewed on payment of twenty-four cents or such less sum as the company in general meeting may prescribe.

Calls on shares.

4. The directors may from time to time make such calls upon the members in respect of all moneys unpaid on their shares as they think fit, provided that twenty-one days' notice at least is given of each call, and each member shall be liable to pay the amount of calls so made to the persons and at the times and places appointed by the directors.

5. A call shall be deemed to have been made at the time when the resolution of the directors authorizing such call was passed.

6. If the call payable in respect of any share is not paid before or on the day appointed for payment thereof, the holder for the time being of such share shall be liable to pay interest for the same, at the rate of six pounds per cent. per annum from the day appointed for the payment thereof to the time of the actual payment.

7. The directors may, if they think fit, receive from any member willing to advance the same, all or any part of the moneys due upon the shares held by him beyond the sums actually called for; and upon the moneys so paid in advance, or so much thereof as from time to time exceeds the amount of the calls then made upon the shares in respect of which such advance has been made, the company may pay interest at such rate as the member paying such sum in advance and the directors agree upon.

Transfer of shares.

8. The instrument of transfer of any share in the company shall be executed both by the transferor and transferee, and the transferor shall be deemed to remain a holder of such share until the name of the transferee is entered in the register book in respect thereof.

9. Shares in the company shall be transferred in the following form:

I, A.B., of _____ in consideration of the sum of _____ dollars paid to me by C.D., of _____ do hereby transfer to the said C.D. the share (or shares) numbered _____ standing in my name in the books of the _____ company, to hold unto the said C.D., his heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns, subject to the several conditions on which I held the same at the time of the execution hereof; and I, the said C.D., do hereby agree to take the said share (or shares) subject to the same conditions.

As witness our hands, this _____ day of _____ 1 _____

10. The company may decline to register any transfer of shares made by a member who is indebted to it.

11. The transfer book shall be closed during the fourteen days immediately preceding the ordinary general meeting in each year.

Transmission of shares.

12. The heirs, executors, or administrators of a deceased member shall be the only persons recognized by the company as having any title to his share.

13. Any person acquiring a vested interest in and becoming entitled to dispose of a share in consequence of the death or insolvency of any member, or in consequence of the marriage of any member, may be registered as a member upon such evidence being produced as may from time to time be required by the company.

14. Any person who has acquired a vested interest in, or who has become entitled to dispose of a share in consequence of the death or insolvency of any member, or in consequence of the marriage of any member, may, instead of being registered himself, elect to have some person to be named by him registered as a transferee of such share.

15. The person so acquiring such interest, and becoming entitled as aforesaid, shall testify such election by executing to his nominee an instrument of transfer of such share.

16. The instrument of transfer shall be presented to the company, accompanied with such evidence as the directors may require to prove the title of the transferor, and thereupon the company shall register the transferee as a member.

17. If any member fails to pay any call on the day appointed for payment thereof, the directors may, at any time thereafter, during such time as the call remains unpaid, serve a notice on him, requiring him to pay such call, together with the interest and expenses that may have accrued by reason of such non-payment.

18. The notice shall name a further day, on or before which such call, and all interest and expenses that have accrued by reason of such non-payment, are to be paid. It shall also name the place where payment is to be made (the place so named being either the registered office of the company or some other place at which calls of the company are usually made payable). The notice shall also state that, in the event of non-payment, at or before the time and at the place appointed, the share in respect of which such call was made will be liable to be forfeited.

19. If the requirements of such notice as aforesaid are not complied with, any share in respect of which such notice has been given may at any time thereafter, before payment of all calls, interest, and expenses due in respect thereof has been made, be forfeited, by a resolution of the directors to that effect.

20. Any share so forfeited shall be deemed to be the property of the company, and may be disposed of in such manner as the company in general meeting thinks fit.

21. Any member whose shares have been forfeited shall notwithstanding be liable to pay to the company all calls owing upon such shares at the time of forfeiture.

22. An affidavit that the call in respect of a share was made and notice thereof given, and that default in payment of the call was made, and that the forfeiture of the share was made by a resolution of the directors to that effect, shall be sufficient evidence of the facts therein stated, as against all persons entitled to such shares, and such affidavit and the receipt of the company for the price of such share shall constitute a good title to such share, and a certificate of proprietorship shall be delivered to a purchaser, and thereupon he shall be deemed the holder of such share discharged from all calls due prior to such purchase, and he shall not be bound to see to the application of the purchase money, nor shall his title to such share be affected by any irregularity in the proceedings in reference to such sale.

Conversion of shares into stock.

23. The directors may, with the sanction of the company previously given in general meeting, convert any paid-up shares into stock.

24. When any shares have been converted into stock, the several holders of such stock may thenceforth transfer their respective interests therein, or any part of such interests, in the same manner and subject to the same regulations as and subject to which any shares in the capital of the company may be transferred, or as near thereto as circumstances admit.

25. The several holders of stock shall be entitled to participate in the dividends and profits of the company according to the amount of their respective interests in such stock; and such interest shall, in proportion to the amount thereof, confer on the holders thereof respectively the same privileges and advantages for the purpose of voting at meetings of the company, and for other purposes, as would have been conferred by shares of equal amount in the capital of the company; but so that none of such privileges or advantages, except the participation in the dividends and profits of the company, shall be conferred by any such aliquot part of consolidated stock as would not, if existing in shares, have conferred such privileges or advantages.

26. The directors may, with the sanction of a special resolution of the company previously given in general meeting, increase its capital by the issue of new shares, such aggregate increase to be of such amount, and to be divided into shares of such respective amounts, as the company in general meeting directs, or, if no direction is given, as the directors think expedient.

27. Subject to any direction to the contrary that may be given by the meeting which sanctions the increase of capital, all new shares shall be offered to the members in proportion to the existing shares held by them, and such offer shall be made by notice specifying the number of shares to which the member is entitled, and limiting a time within which the offer, if not accepted, will be deemed to be declined, and after the expiration of such time, or on the receipt of an intimation from the member to whom such notice is given that he declines to accept the shares offered, the directors may dispose of the same in such manner as they think most beneficial to the company.

28. Any capital raised by the creation of new shares shall be considered as part of the original capital, and shall be subject to the same provisions with respect to the payment of calls and the forfeiture of shares on non-payment of calls, or otherwise, as if it had been part of the original capital.

General meetings.

29. The first general meeting shall be held at such time, not being more than four months after the registration of the company, and at such place, as the directors may determine.

30. Subsequent general meetings shall be held at such time and place as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting; and, if no other time or place is prescribed, a general meeting shall be held on the first Monday in February in every year, at such place as may be determined by the directors.

31. The above mentioned general meetings shall be called ordinary meetings; all other general meetings shall be called extraordinary.

32. The directors may, whenever they think fit, and they shall, upon a requisition made in writing by not less than one-fifth in number of the members of the company, convene an extraordinary general meeting.

33. Any requisition made by the members shall express the object of the meeting proposed to be called, and shall be left at the registered office of the company.

34. On the receipt of such requisition, the directors shall forthwith proceed to convene an extraordinary general meeting. If they do not proceed to convene the same within twenty-one days from the date of the requisition, the requisitionists, or any other members amounting to the required number, may themselves convene an extraordinary general meeting.

Proceedings at general meetings.

35. Seven days' notice at least, specifying the place, the day, and the hour of meeting, and, in case of special business, the general nature of such business, shall be given to the members in manner hereinafter mentioned, or in such other manner, if any, as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting, but the non-receipt of such notice by any member shall not invalidate the proceedings at any general meeting.

36. All business shall be deemed special that is transacted at an extraordinary meeting, and all that is transacted at an ordinary meeting, with the exception of sanctioning a dividend and the consideration of the accounts, the balance sheet, and the ordinary report of the directors.

37. No business shall be transacted at any general meeting, except the declaration of a dividend, unless a quorum of members is present at the time when the meeting proceeds to business; and such quorum shall be ascertained as follows, that is to say: if the persons who have taken shares in the company and are in the Colony at the time of the meeting do not exceed ten in number, the quorum shall be five; if they exceed ten, there shall be added to the above quorum one for every five additional members; with this limitation that no quorum shall in any case exceed fifteen.

38. If, within one hour from the time appointed for the meeting, a quorum is not present, the meeting, if convened upon the requisition of members, shall be dissolved: in any other case it shall stand adjourned to the same day in the next week, at the same time and place, and if at such adjourned meeting a quorum is not present, it shall be adjourned sine die.

39. The chairman, if any, of the board of directors shall preside as chairman at every general meeting of the company.

40. If there is no such chairman, or if at any meeting he is not present within fifteen minutes after the appointed time for holding the meeting, the members present shall choose some one of their number to be chairman.

41. The chairman may, with the consent of the meeting, adjourn any meeting from time to time, and from place to place, but no business shall be transacted at any adjourned meeting other than the business left unfinished at the meeting from which the adjournment took place.

42. At any general meeting, unless a poll is demanded by at least five members, a declaration by the chairman that a resolution has been carried, and an entry to that effect in the book of proceedings of the company, shall be sufficient evidence of the fact, without proof of the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour of or against such resolution.

43. If a poll is demanded by five or more members, it shall be taken in such manner as the chairman directs, and the result of such poll shall be deemed to be the resolution of the company in general meeting. In the case of an equality of votes at any general meeting, the chairman shall be entitled to a second or casting vote.

Votes of members.

44. Every member shall have one vote for every share up to ten. He shall have an additional vote for every five shares beyond the first ten shares up to one hundred, and an additional vote for every ten shares beyond the first hundred shares.

45. If any member is a lunatic or idiot, he may vote by his curator.

46. If one or more persons are jointly entitled to a share or shares, the member whose name stands first in the register of members as one of the holders of such share or shares, and no other, shall be entitled to vote in respect of the same.

47. No member shall be entitled to vote at any general meeting unless all calls due from him have been paid, and no member shall be entitled to vote in respect of any share that he has acquired by transfer at any meeting held after the expiration of three months from the registration of the company, unless he has been possessed of the share in respect of which he claims to vote for at least three months previously to the time of holding the meeting at which he purposes to vote.

48. Votes may be given either personally or by proxy.

49. The instrument appointing a proxy shall be in writing, under the hand of the appointer, or if such appointer is a corporation, under their common seal, and shall be attested by one or more witness or witnesses. No person shall be appointed a proxy who is not a member of the company.

50. The instrument appointing a proxy shall be deposited at the registered office of the company not less than seventy-two hours before the time for holding the meeting at which the person named in such instrument proposes to vote; but no instrument appointing a proxy shall be valid after the expiration of twelve months from the date of its execution.

51. Any instrument appointing a proxy shall be in the following form:

Company, Limited.

I, _____ of _____ in the County of _____ being a member of the Company, Limited, and entitled to _____ vote (or _____ votes), hereby appoint of _____ as my proxy, to vote for me and on my behalf at the ordinary (or extraordinary, as the case may be) general meeting of the company to be held on the _____ day of 1 _____, and at any adjournment thereof (or at any meeting of the company that may be held in the year _____).

As witness my hand, this _____ day of _____ 1 _____
Signed by the said _____ in the presence of _____

Directors.

52. The number of the directors, and the names of the first directors, shall be determined by the subscribers of the memorandum of association.

53. Until directors are appointed, the subscribers of the memorandum of association shall be deemed to be directors.

54. The future remuneration of the directors, and their remuneration for services performed previously to the first general meeting, shall be determined by the company in general meeting.

Powers of directors.

55. The business of the company shall be managed by the directors, who may pay all expenses incurred in getting up and registering the company, and may exercise all such powers of the company as are not by the Companies Ordinance, 1898, or by these articles, required to be exercised by the company in general meeting, subject, nevertheless, to any regulations of these articles, to the provisions of the said Ordinance, and to such regulations, being not inconsistent with the aforesaid regulations or provisions, as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting; but no regulation made by the company in general meeting shall invalidate any prior act of the directors, which would have been valid if such regulation had not been made.

56. The continuing directors may act, notwithstanding any vacancy in their body.

57. The office of director shall be vacated: 1. If he holds any other office or place of profit under the company; or 2. If he becomes insolvent; or 3. If he is concerned in, or participates in, the profits of, any contract with the company; but the above rules shall be subject to the following exceptions, namely, that no director shall vacate his office by reason of his being a member of any company which has entered into contracts with, or done any work for, the company of which he is director; nevertheless, he shall not vote in respect of such contract or work, and if he does so vote his vote shall not be counted.

Rotation of directors.

58. At the first ordinary meeting after the registration of the company the whole of the directors shall retire from office, and at the first ordinary meeting in every subsequent year one-third of the directors for the time being, or, if their number is not a multiple of three, then the number nearest to one-third, shall retire from office.

59. The one-third or other nearest number to retire during the first and second years ensuing the first ordinary meeting of the company, shall, unless the directors agree among themselves, be determined by ballot. In every subsequent year the one-third or other nearest number who have been longest in office shall retire.

60. A retiring director shall be re-eligible.

61. The company at the general meeting at which any directors retire, in manner aforesaid, shall fill up the vacated offices by electing a like number of persons.

62. If at any meeting at which an election of directors ought to take place, the places of the vacating directors are not filled up, the meeting shall stand adjourned till the same day in the next week, at the same time and place; and if at such adjourned meeting the places of the vacating directors are not filled up, the vacating directors or such of them as have not had their places filled up, shall continue in office until the ordinary meeting in the next year, and so on from time to time until their places are filled up.

63. The company may from time to time in general meeting increase or reduce the number of directors, and may also determine in what rotation such increased or reduced number is to go out of office.

64. Any casual vacancy occurring in the board of directors may be filled up by the directors, but any person so chosen shall retain his office so long only as the vacating director would have retained the same if no vacancy had occurred.

65. The company in general meeting may, by a special resolution, remove any director before the expiration of his period of office, and may, by an ordinary resolution, appoint another person in his stead. The person so appointed shall hold office during such time only as the director in whose place he is appointed would have held the same if he had not been removed.

66. The directors may meet together for the despatch of business, adjourn and otherwise regulate their meetings as they think fit, and determine the quorum necessary for the transaction of business. Questions arising at any meeting shall be decided by a majority of votes. In case of an equality of votes, the chairman shall have a second or casting vote. A director may at any time summon a meeting of the directors.

67. The directors may elect a chairman of their meetings, and determine the period for which he is to hold office; but if no such chairman is elected, or if at any meeting the chairman is not present at the time appointed for holding the same, the directors present shall choose some one of their number to be chairman of such meeting.

68. The directors may delegate any of their powers to committees, consisting of such member or members of their body as they think fit. Any committee so formed shall, in the exercise of the powers so delegated, conform to any regulations that may be imposed on them by the directors.

69. A committee may elect a chairman at their meetings. If no such chairman is elected, or if he is not present at the time appointed for holding the same, the members present shall choose one of their number to be chairman of such meeting.

70. A committee may meet and adjourn as they think proper. Questions arising at a meeting shall be determined by a majority of votes of the members present; and, in case of an equality of votes, the chairman shall have a second or casting vote.

71. All acts done by any meeting of the directors or of a committee of directors, or by any person acting as a director, shall, notwithstanding that it be afterwards discovered that there was some defect in the appointment of any such directors or persons acting as aforesaid, or that they or any of them were disqualified, be as valid as if every such person had been duly appointed and was qualified to be a director.

Dividends.

72. The directors may, with the sanction of the company in general meeting, declare a dividend to be paid to the members in proportion to their shares.

73. No dividend shall be payable except out of the profits arising from the business of the company.

74. The directors may, before recommending any dividend, set aside out of the profits of the company such sums as they think proper as a reserved fund to meet contingencies or for equalizing dividends or for repairing or maintaining the works connected with the business of the company, or any part thereof; and the directors may invest the sum so set apart as a reserved fund upon such securities as they may select.

75. The directors may deduct from the dividends payable to any member all such sums of moneys as may be due from him to the company on account of calls or otherwise.

76. Notice of any dividend that may have been declared shall be given to each member in manner hereinafter mentioned; and all dividends unclaimed for three years after having been declared may be forfeited by the directors for the benefit of the company.

77. No dividend shall bear interest as against the company.

Accounts.

78. The directors shall cause true accounts to be kept: 1. Of the stock-in-trade and other assets of the company; 2. Of the sums of money received and expended by the company, and the matters in respect of which such receipt and expenditure take place; and 3. Of the credits and liabilities of the company. The books of account shall be kept at the registered office of the company, and, subject to any reasonable restrictions as to the time and manner of inspecting the same that may be imposed by the company in general meeting, shall be open to the inspection of the members during the hours of business.

79. Once at the least in every year the directors shall lay before the company in general meeting a statement of the income and expenditure of the company for the past year, made up to a date not more than three months before such meeting.

80. The statement so made shall show, arranged under the most convenient heads, the amount of gross income, distinguishing the several sources from which it has been derived, and the amount of gross expenditure, distinguishing the expense of the establishment, salaries, and other like matters; every item of expenditure fairly chargeable against the year's income shall be brought into account, so that a just balance of profit and loss may be laid before the meeting; and in cases where any item of expenditure which may in fairness be distributed over several years has been incurred in any one year, the whole amount of such item shall be stated with the addition of the reasons why only a portion of such expenditure is charged against the income of the year.

81. A balance sheet shall be made out in every year, and laid before the company in general meeting, and such balance sheet shall contain a summary of the property and liabilities of the company arranged under the heads appearing in the form annexed to this Table, or as near thereto as circumstances admit.

82. A printed copy of such balance sheet shall, seven days previously to such meeting, be served on every member in the manner in which notices are hereinafter directed to be served.

Audit.

83. Once at the least in every year the accounts of the company shall be examined, and the correctness of the balance sheet ascertained by one or more auditor or auditors.

84. The first auditors shall be appointed by the directors; subsequent auditors shall be appointed by the company in general meeting.

85. If one auditor only is appointed, all the provisions herein contained relating to auditors shall apply to him.

86. The auditors may be members of the company; but no person is eligible as an auditor who is interested otherwise than as a member in any transaction of the company; and no director or other officer of the company is eligible during his continuance in office.

87. The election of auditors shall be made by the company at its ordinary meeting in each year.

88. The remuneration of the first auditors shall be fixed by the directors; that of subsequent auditors shall be fixed by the company in general meeting.

89. Any auditor shall be re-eligible on his quitting office.

90. If any casual vacancy occurs in the office of any auditor appointed by the company, the directors shall forthwith call an extraordinary general meeting for the purpose of supplying the same.

91. If no election of auditors is made in manner aforesaid, the Governor in Council may, on the application of not less than five members of the company, appoint an auditor for the current year, and fix the remuneration to be paid to him by the company for his services.

92. Every auditor shall be supplied with a copy of the balance sheet, and it shall be his duty to examine the same, with the accounts and vouchers relating thereto.

93. Every auditor shall have a list delivered to him of all books kept by the company, and shall at all reasonable times have access to the books and accounts of the company. He may, at the expense of the company, employ accountants or other persons to assist him in investigating such accounts, and he may, in relation to such accounts, examine the directors or any other officer of the company.

94. The auditors shall make a report to the members upon the balance sheet and accounts, and in every such report they shall state whether, in their opinion, the balance sheet is a full and fair balance sheet, containing the particulars required by these regulations, and properly drawn up so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the state of the company's affairs, and, in case they have called for explanations or information from the directors, whether such explanations or information have been given by the directors, and whether they have been satisfactory; and such report shall be read, together with the report of the directors, at the ordinary meeting.

Notices.

95. A notice may be served by the company upon any member either personally, or by leaving it at his registered place of abode, or by sending it through the post in a prepaid letter addressed to such member at his registered place of abode, if such place of abode is within a postal district.

96. All notices directed to be given to the members shall, with respect to any share to which persons are jointly entitled, be given to whichever of such persons is named first in the register of members; and notice so given shall be sufficient notice to all the holders of such shares.

97. Any notice, if served by post, shall be deemed to have been served at the time when the letter containing the same would be delivered in the ordinary course of the post; and, in proving such service, it shall be sufficient to prove that the letter containing the notices was properly addressed and put into the Post Office.

C. D.

Members.

2. The directors hereinafter mentioned may, whenever the business of the association requires it, register an increase of members.

3. Every person shall be deemed to have agreed to become a member of the company who insures any ship or share in a ship in pursuance of the regulations hereinafter contained.

5. Subsequent general meetings shall be held at such time and place as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting; and, if no other time or place is prescribed, a general meeting shall be held on the first Monday in February in every year, at such place as may be determined by the directors.

8. Any requisition made by the members shall express the object of the meeting proposed to be called, and shall be left at the registered office of the company.

9. On the receipt of such requisition the directors shall forthwith proceed to convene a general meeting; if they do not proceed to convene the same within twenty-one days from the date of the requisition, the requisitionist, or any other five members, may themselves convene a meeting.

10. Seven days' notice at least, specifying the place, the day, and the hour of meeting, and, in case of special business, the general nature of such business, shall be given to the members in manner hereinafter mentioned, or in such other manner, if any, as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting; but the non-receipt of such notice by any member shall not invalidate the proceedings at any general meeting.

12. No business shall be transacted at any meeting, except the declaration of a dividend, unless a quorum of members is present at the commencement of such business, and such quorum shall be ascertained as follows, that is to say: if the members of the company in the Colony at the time of the meeting do not exceed ten in number, the quorum shall be five; if they exceed ten, there shall be added to the above quorum one for every five additional members, with this limitation, that no quorum shall in any case exceed twenty.

13. If, within one hour from the time appointed for the meeting a quorum of members is not present, the meeting, if convened upon the requisition of the members, shall be dissolved; in any other case it shall stand adjourned to the same day in the following week at the same time and place; and if, at such adjourned meeting, a quorum of members is not present, it shall be adjourned sine die.

14. The chairman, if any, of the directors shall preside as chairman at every general meeting of the company.

15. If there is no such chairman, or if at any meeting he is not present at the time of holding the same, the members present shall choose some one of their number to be chairman of such meeting.

16. The chairman may, with the consent of the meeting, adjourn any meeting from time to time, and from place to place, but no business shall be transacted at any adjourned meeting other than the business left unfinished at the meeting from which the adjournment took place.

17. At any general meeting, unless a poll is demanded by at least five members, a declaration by the chairman that a resolution has been carried, and an entry to that effect in the book of proceedings of the company, shall be sufficient evidence of the fact, without proof of the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour of or against such resolution.

18. If a poll is demanded in manner aforesaid, the same shall be taken in such manner as the chairman directs, and the result of such poll shall be deemed to be the resolution of the company in general meeting.

Votes of members.

19. Every member shall have one vote and no more.

20. If any member is a lunatic or idiot, he may vote by his curator.

21. No member shall be entitled to vote at any meeting unless all moneys due from him to the company have been paid.

22. Votes may be given either personally or by proxies. A proxy shall be appointed in writing under the hand of the appointer, or, if such appointer is a corporation, under its common seal.

23. No person shall be appointed a proxy who is not a member, and the instrument appointing him shall be deposited at the registered office of the company not less than forty-eight hours before the time of holding the meeting at which he proposes to vote.

24. Any instrument appointing a proxy shall be in the following form.

Company, Limited.

I, _____ of _____ in the county of _____ being a member of the _____ Company, Limited, hereby appoint _____ of _____ as my proxy, to vote for me and on my behalf at the ordinary (or extraordinary, as the case may be) general meeting of the company to be held on the _____ day of _____ 1 _____, and at any adjournment thereof to be held on the _____ day of _____ 1 _____ (or at any meeting of the company that may be held in the year _____).

As witness my hand, this _____ day of _____ 1 _____
Signed by the said _____ in the presence of _____

Directors.

25. The number of the directors, and the names of the first directors, shall be determined by the subscribers of the memorandum of association.

26. Until directors are appointed, the subscribers of the memorandum of association shall, for all the purposes of the Companies Ordinance, 1898, be deemed to be directors.

Powers of directors.

27. The business of the company shall be managed by the directors, who may exercise all such powers of the company as are not hereby required to be exercised by the company in general meeting, but no regulation made by the company in general meeting shall invalidate any prior act of the directors which would have been valid if such regulation had not been made.

Election of directors.

28. The directors shall be elected annually by the company in general meeting.

Business of company.

(Here insert rules as to mode in which business of insurance is to be conducted.)

Accounts.

29. The accounts of the company shall be audited by a committee of three members, to be called the audit committee.

30. The first audit committee shall be nominated by the directors out of the body of members.

31. Subsequent audit committees shall be nominated by the members at the ordinary general meeting in each year.

32. The audit committee shall be supplied with a copy of the balance sheet, and it shall be their duty to examine the same, with the accounts and vouchers relating thereto.

33. The audit committee shall have a list delivered to them of all books kept by the company, and they shall at all reasonable times have access to the books and accounts of the company. They may, at the expense of the company, employ accountants or other persons to assist them in investigating such accounts, and they may, in relation to such accounts, examine the directors or any other officer of the company.

34. The audit committee shall make a report to the members upon the balance sheet and accounts, and in every such report they shall state whether in their opinion the balance sheet is a full and fair balance sheet, containing the particulars required by these regulations of the company, and properly drawn up, so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the state of the company's affairs, and, in case they have called for explanation or information from the directors, whether such explanations or information have been given by the directors, and whether they have been satisfactory; and such report shall be read, together with the report of the directors, at the ordinary meeting.

Notices.

35. A notice may be served by the company upon any member either personally, or by leaving it at his registered place of abode, or by sending it through the post in a prepaid letter addressed to such member at his registered place of abode, if such place of abode is within a postal district.

36. Any notice, if served by post, shall be deemed to have been served at the time when the letter containing the same would be delivered in the ordinary course of the post; and, in proving such service, it shall be sufficient to prove that the letter containing the notice was properly addressed, and put into the Post Office.

Winding-up.

37. The company shall be wound up voluntarily whenever an extraordinary resolution as defined by the Companies Ordinance, 1898, is passed requiring the company to be wound up voluntarily.

Notice of such meeting shall also be sent by post to every person appearing by the company's books to be a creditor of the company and to every member of the Company.

3. The Administrator-General shall also as soon as practicable send to each creditor mentioned in the company's statement of affairs, and to each person appearing from the company's books, or otherwise, to be a contributory of the company, a summary of the company's statement of affairs, including the causes of its failure, and any observations thereon which the Administrator-General may think fit to make; but the proceedings at any such meeting shall not be invalidated by reason of any summary or notice required by these rules not having been sent or received before the meeting.

4. The meeting shall be held at such place as is in the opinion of the Administrator-General most convenient for the majority of the creditors and contributories.

5. The Administrator-General or some person nominated by him, shall be the chairman at the meetings.

6. A person shall not be entitled to vote as a creditor unless he has duly proved a debt to be due to him from the company, and the proof has been duly lodged before the time appointed for the meeting.

7. A creditor shall not vote in respect of any unliquidated or contingent debt, or any debt the value of which is not ascertained.

8. For the purpose of voting, a secured creditor shall, unless he surrenders his security, state in his proof the particulars of his security, the date when it was given, and the value at which he assesses it, and shall be entitled to vote only in respect of the balance (if any) due to him after deducting the value of his security. If he votes in respect of his whole debt he shall be deemed to have surrendered his security, unless the Court on application is satisfied that the omission to value the security has arisen from inadvertence.

<sup>1</sup> The aggregate number of shares held, and not the distinctive numbers, is to be stated, and the column should be added up throughout, so as to make one total to agree with that stated in the summary to have been taken up.

<sup>2</sup> When the shares are of different classes these columns may be subdivided, so that the number of each class held or transferred, may be shown separately.

<sup>3</sup> The list should include all transfers since the date of the last return, and the date of registration of each transfer should be given, as well as the number of shares transferred on each date. The particulars should be placed opposite the name of the transferrer, and not opposite that of the transferee; but the name of the transferee may be inserted in the Remarks column, immediately opposite the particulars of each transfer.

9. A creditor shall not vote in respect of any debt on or secured by a current bill of exchange or promissory note held by him, unless he is willing to treat the liability to him thereon of every person who is liable thereon antecedently to the company, and against whom a receiving order in insolvency has not been made, as a security in his hands, and to estimate the value thereof, and for the purposes of voting but not for the purposes of dividend to deduct it from his proof.

10. It shall be competent to the Administrator-General or to the liquidator, within twenty-eight days after a proof estimating the value of a security as aforesaid had been made use of in voting at any meeting, to require the creditor to give up the security for the benefit of the creditors generally on payment of the value so estimated, with an addition thereto of twenty per centum. Provided, that where a creditor has put a value on such security he may, at any time before he has been required to give up such security as aforesaid, correct such valuation by a new proof, and deduct such new value from his debt, but in that case such addition of twenty per centum shall not be made if the liquidator requires the security to be given up.

11. The chairman of the meeting shall have power to admit or reject a proof for the purpose of voting, but his decision shall be subject to appeal to the Court. If he is in doubt whether the proof of a creditor should be admitted or rejected he shall mark the proof as objected to and shall allow the creditor to vote, subject to the vote being declared invalid in the event of the objection being sustained.

12. A creditor or a contributory may vote either in person or by proxy.

13. Every instrument of proxy shall be in the prescribed form and shall be issued by the Administrator-General or by the liquidator of the company and every written part thereof shall be in the handwriting of the person giving the proxy, or of any manager or clerk or other person in his regular employment, or of a commissioner to administer oaths to affidavits.

14. General and special forms of proxy shall be sent to the creditors and contributories with the notice summoning the meeting, and neither the name nor description of the Administrator-General or of any other person shall be printed or inserted in the body of any instrument of proxy before it is so sent.

15. A creditor or a contributory may give a general proxy to his manager or clerk, or any other person in his regular employment. In such case the instrument of proxy shall state the relation in which the person to act thereunder stands to the creditor or contributory.

16. A creditor or a contributory may give a special proxy to any person to vote at any specified meeting, or adjournment thereof: a) For or against the appointment or continuance in office of any specified person as liquidator or member of the committee of inspection, and b) On all questions relating to any matter other than those above referred to and arising at any specified meeting or adjournment thereof.

17. A proxy shall not be used unless it is deposited with the Administrator-General before the meeting at which it is to be used.

18. Where it appears to the satisfaction of the Court that any solicitation has been used by or on behalf of a liquidator in obtaining proxies or in procuring the appointment of liquidator, except by the direction of a meeting of creditors or contributories, the Court shall have power, if it think fit, to order that no remuneration shall be allowed to the person by whom or on whose behalf such solicitation may have been exercised, notwithstanding any resolution of the committee of inspection or of the creditors or contributories to the contrary.

19. A creditor or contributory may appoint the Administrator-General to act in manner prescribed as his general or special proxy.

20. The chairman of the meeting may, with the consent of the meeting, adjourn the meeting from time to time and from place to place.

21. A meeting shall not be competent to act for any purpose except the election of a chairman, the proving of debts, and the adjournment of the meeting, unless there are present or represented thereat, at least three creditors or contributories, or all the creditors or contributories if their number does not exceed three.

22. If within half an hour from the time appointed for the meeting a quorum of creditors or contributories is not present or represented, the meeting shall be adjourned to the same day in the following week at the same time and place, or to such other day as the chairman may appoint not being less than seven or more than twenty-one days.

23. The chairman of the meeting shall cause minutes of the proceedings at the meeting to be drawn up and fairly entered in a book kept for that purpose, and the minutes shall be signed by him or by the chairman of the next ensuing meeting.

24. No person acting either under a general or a special proxy shall vote in favour of any resolution which would directly or indirectly place himself, his partner or employer, in a position to receive any remuneration out of the estate of the company otherwise than as a creditor rateably with the other creditors of the company: Provided that where any person holds special proxies to vote for an application to the Court in favour of the appointment of himself as liquidator he may use the said proxies and vote accordingly.

The Fourth Schedule.

(This Schedule was added by Ord. No. 27 of 1902, and contains a table of fees.)

b) No. 27 of 1902. An Ordinance to amend the Companies Ordinance, 1898 (16th August, 1902).

[This Ordinance adds the fourth Schedule to Ord. No. 21 of 1898.]

c) No. 7 of 1868. An Ordinance with regard to Trading Companies incorporated under the Law of England, and for confirming the Title of the Colonial Company, Limited, to Lands in this Colony (29th July, 1868).

Short title. 1. This Ordinance may be cited as the English Companies (Holding of Lands) Ordinance, 1868.

Power to company incorporated under the Companies Acts to hold lands in the Colony. 2. It shall be lawful for any company already incorporated or which may hereafter be incorporated under the Companies Act, 1862, or the Companies Akt, 1867, to hold lands and other immoveable property in this Colony in the same manner to all intents and purposes as if such company had been incorporated in this Colony under the Companies Ordinance, 1864.

Evidence of incorporation of company. 3. It shall be lawful for any company already registered, or which may hereafter be registered, under either of the aforesaid Acts of Parliament to deliver to the Registrar of British Guiana, to be recorded by him, a certificate of incorporation of such company purporting to be under the hand of the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies, or a copy of such certificate of incorporation proved to be a true and correct copy by the oath or solemn declaration of the secretary or other officer of such company, sworn or made before the mayor or other chief magistrate of any city, town, or borough, or before any notary public or justice of the peace in Great Britain or Ireland, and such certificate or copy thereof duly recorded, or any office copy thereof certified by such Registrar, shall be conclusive evidence in this Colony of the incorporation of such company.

Semble, the incorporation of the company may be proved by affidavit. — In re McGowan, (7th October, 1901).

Evidence of memorandum and articles of association. 4. It shall be lawful for any company already registered, or which may hereafter be registered under either of the aforesaid Acts of Parliament to deliver to the Registrar of British Guiana, to be recorded by him, a copy of the memorandum of association, and a copy of the articles of association, registered under either of the said Acts of Parliament, and proved to be true and correct copies by the oath or solemn declaration of the secretary or other officer of such company sworn or made in manner hereinbefore mentioned; and every such copy duly recorded, or any office copy thereof certified by such Registrar shall be conclusive evidence in this Colony of such memorandum of association and articles of association respectively and of the signing thereof by the persons by whom the same respectively purport to be signed.

Manner of executing deed and mode of proving same. 5. Any deed of any incorporated company registered under either of the aforesaid Acts of Parliament which is executed out of this Colony, but which is recorded in this Colony, shall be executed under the common seal of such company in the presence of two witnesses; and the execution of such deed, and that the seal affixed thereto is the common seal of the company, and that the same was affixed thereto by the authority of the board of directors or managers of such company, and in conformity with the articles of association of such company, and the signatures of the directors or managers to any such deeds (where such signatures are required by the articles of association of such company), and the signature to such deed of the secretary or other officer by whom such seal may have been affixed, may be proved by the affidavit or solemn declaration of one of such witnesses or of the secretary or other officer affixing such seal, sworn or made in manner hereinbefore mentioned.

Effect of instrument under hand of attorney of company. 6. Every instrument made in this Colony on behalf of any such incorporated company and executed in the presence of two witnesses under the hand of any person empowered by instrument in writing under the common seal of such company, either generally or in respect of any specified matter as its attorney to execute deeds on its behalf in this Colony, shall be binding on such company, and have the same effect as if it were under the common seal of the company.

[7-8. Relate to the Colonial Company, Ltd.]

d) No. 12 of 1910. An Ordinance to extend the Provisions of the English Companies (Holding of Lands) Ordinance, 1868 (10th September, 1910).

Companies incorporated in England under Stat. 8 Edw. 7, c. 69, to have power to hold lands. 1. The provisions of the English Companies (Holding of Lands) Ordinance, 1868, shall be deemed to apply to the Act passed in the session of Parliament held in the eighth year of His late Majesty's reign, entitled an Act to consolidate the Companies Act, 1862, and the Acts amending it, which said Act is hereinafter referred to as the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, as if the same were mentioned in the said Ordinance, and every company incorporated, or which may hereafter be incorporated under the said Act or any statutory extension or modification thereof or any Act which may hereafter be substituted therefor may hold lands and other immoveable property and interests therein in this Colony in the same manner to all intents and purposes as if such company had been incorporated in this Colony under any Ordinance or Ordinances for the time being in force providing for the incorporation of companies, and shall, in this Colony, have all such other rights, powers, and privileges, and be subject to all such liabilities and duties as are in and by the said English Companies (Holding of Lands) Ordinance, 1868, conferred and imposed on companies incorporated under the Acts in the said Ordinance referred to as the Companies Act, 1862, and the Companies Act, 1867.

Temporary provisions. 2. 1. Any transport, grant, concession, licence, transfer, lease, or other disposition of land or other immoveable property, or any interest therein, passed, granted, issued, or made to any company incorporated under the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, before the commencement of this Ordinance, shall be as valid and effectual for all purposes whatsoever as if it had been passed after the commencement of this Ordinance. 2. Any act, deed, document, instrument, affidavit, declaration, certificate, office-copy, copy, proceeding or thing of or in connection with or on behalf of any such company heretofore done, made, extended, sworn or declared to, issued, granted, taken, attested, or recorded in the manner in and by sections 3, 4, 5, or 6 of the English Companies (Holding of Lands) Ordinance, 1868, provided for the doing, making, executing, deposing or declaring to, issuing, granting, taking, attesting, or recording of like acts, deeds, documents, instruments, affidavits, declarations, certificates, office-copies, copies, proceedings, or things of or in connection with companies registered under the Companies Act, 1862, and the Companies Act, 1867, and shall be of the same validity, and shall have the same effect as evidence or otherwise, as if such company had been registered under either of the said last mentioned Acts.

Proof of documents signed by Registrar or Assistant Registrar of Companies. 3. Any certificate or other document or any copy or extract of any such document or any part of any such document heretofore or hereafter purporting to be signed, attested, or certified, by the Registrar of Companies or the Registrar, as defined in section 285 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, or by an Assistant Registrar, shall have the same force and effect as if it purported to be signed, attested, or certified by the Registrar of joint stock companies as provided for in the English Companies (Holding of Lands) Ordinance, 1868, and any copy of a memorandum of association or articles of association of such a company heretofore or hereafter purporting to be similarly signed, attested, or certified delivered to the Registrar of British Guiana to be recorded by him shall have the same effect as if proved to be a true and correct copy by the oath of the secretary of the company as provided for in the English Companies (Holding of Lands) Ordinance, 1868, and every such copy so recorded, or an office-copy thereof certified by the Registrar of British Guiana shall be conclusive evidence in this Colony of the said memorandum and articles of association respectively.

Short title. 4. This Ordinance may be cited as the English Companies (Holding of Lands) Ordinance, 1910.

Sale of Goods.

The law relating to sale of goods is the Roman-Dutch law, but English decisions are frequently cited. There are no provisions corresponding to the Statute of Frauds.

By English law the sale of an ascertained chattel transfers the property in the thing sold to the buyer, whereas under the law prevailing in British Guiana a sale does not transfer the property, but only invests the vendee with a right to require the vendor to transfer. — De Freitas v. Santos, (24th June, 1891) 2 L.R. (N.S.) 1. The duty of a seller under the Roman-Dutch law is only to deliver vacant possession of the thing sold, and to warrant the purchaser against eviction, i.e., to compensate him to the full extent of his loss (quantum interest) if he is subsequently ousted by the execution of a judicial sentence based on a cause existing at the time of the sale, due notice of the institution of the judicial proceedings to obtain eviction having been given by the buyer to the seller. If, however, a seller knowingly delivers a thing not his own to a buyer who is ignorant of the fact, the latter may, without awaiting eviction, take proceedings to compel the seller to make good any damages (id quod interest) sustained thereby, provided he has paid the price. It is also open to a buyer, where sued for the price, if eviction be imminent, to require the seller before payment to provide sufficient sureties against eviction or to make consignment or deposit of the purchase money. — Payne and Williams v. Sproston, Ltd. (5th March, 1903). Where moveables are left in the possession of the seller they are liable to be levied on by creditors of such seller, unless there is clear evidence of a bona fide sale and a delivery. — Ramsammy v. Mannamootoo, (25th June, 1861), 2 L.R. (O.S.) 71; D'Aguiar v. Young, (3d June, 1901); Pereira v. Gonsalves, (20th November, 1903); O'Donoghue v. Mohabeer, (3d April, 1903). The cases of D'Aguiar v. Young (supra) and Pereira v. Gonsalves (supra) are cases where the claimant alleged that he had bought the goods levied on from the judgment debtor, and it was held there was no bona fide sale by the debtor to the claimant, that secrecy of the sale and the seller being allowed in possession were badges of fraud. But where the goods levied on were never the property of the debtor, and the claimant bought them from a third person, and the purchase has not been attacked in any way as fraudulent, a different question is presented. Quære, whether, in the latter case, the goods might be regarded as under the order and disposition of the person in possession in the event of proceedings in insolvency against him. — Laurence v. Conyers, (14th July, 1908). A tender made in response to an offer to sell to the highest bidder completes a contract of sale. — McGowan v. Gomas, (4th July, 1892), 2 L.R. (N.S.) 171. An agreement under the terms of which one party agrees to purchase an object, paying the price in stated instalments, and providing that the property in the object should not pass until the instalments are fully paid, is not a sale. It is an executory agreement to purchase. — Macquarrie v. Cunningham, (13th June, 1902). Where a sale is made under an agreement that the goods shall be landed in good order and condition, a failure to deliver them in that condition entitles the buyer to rescind in limine. But where the buyer has accepted a portion of the goods, or has placed himself in such a position that he cannot return all the goods (e.g., where he has sold a part) he is limited to damages. — De Freitas v. Santos, (24th June, 1891), 2 L.R. (N.S.) 1. It does not appear to be settled whether the doctrine of laesio enormis applies, but if it does apply it would seem to extend to buyers as well as to sellers. — Raleigh v. Jasmins, (4th July, 1902); c.p. De Freitas v. De Souza, (5th March, 1906). The law prima facie presumes that any money paid on account of a purchase is paid as a guarantee for the carrying out of that purchase. In case of default by the purchaser, such money is forfeited. — Le Blanc v. Lashley, (15th June, 1901).

Bills of Exchange.

a) No. 13 of 1891. An Ordinance to codify the Law relating to Bills of Exchange, Cheques, and Promissory Notes (15th July, 1891).

[This Act is identical in all material respects with the Imperial Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, (45 & 46 Vic. c. 61).]

An instrument payable to the executor of the estate of a deceased person is valid. — Executor of d'Andrade v. Small, (5th October, 1903), distinguishing Dos Santos v. Sargent, (June 1890). The sale of what is called in the Civil Law an expectation dependent on a chance (venditio spei) is a good consideration. — Ho-A-Hing v. D'Andrade, (6th June, 1902). Semble, where an instrument is signed with a mark it is not necessary that the marksman should hold the pen. A mere touching is sufficient. — Petansing v. Monjeriea, (13th November, 1909). As to signature affixed in a ministerial capacity, see Teixeira v. Harding, (5th May, 1906). A note signed by two persons and reading "I promise to pay" is a several as well as a joint note. — Petansing v. Montjeriea, (13th November, 1909). A married woman signing a negotiable instrument as an accommodation party cannot since the Married Persons Property Ordinance, 1909, come into force claim the benefit of the Senatusconsultum Velleianum and the Authentica si qua mulier. Semble, a woman who on the face of a negotiable instrument holds herself out as being indebted to another cannot claim the benefit of these enactments as a defence to an action brought by a holder in due course. — Farnum v. Kaster, (16th October, 1907). Parol evidence is not admissible to contradict an unconditional acceptance of a bill of exchange. — Lewis v. Wharton, (9th March 1903). A holder in due course holds the instrument free from any defect of title of prior parties, as well as from mere personal defences available to prior parties amongst themselves. — De Freitas v. Giles, (13th June, 1908). A donatio mortis causa of a negotiable instrument is valid without indorsement. — Chengamah v. Angoo Vandeyar, (26th May, 1903). When a bill is presented at the proper place and after the exercise of reasonable diligence no person authorized to pay or refuse payment can be found there, no further presentment to the acceptor is required. — Lopes and Fernandes v. Rose, (29th June, 1907) Presentment for payment is dispensed with by waiver of presentment, express or implied. A promise to pay is an implied waiver. — Vieira v. Gomes, (2d February, 1907). In order to charge an acceptor or maker it is not necessary that the instrument be presented at maturity at the place where it is made payable. The person primarily liable undertakes to have the money available at maturity at the place indicated for payment, and to leave it there until the instrument is presented. If by reason of his doing so he sustains a loss (e.g. by the failure of the bank) he is exonerated to the extent of such damage. — Lewis v. Williams, (2d October, 1909). Notice of dishonour may be given orally, and in any terms which sufficiently identify the instrument and intimate that the instrument has been dishonoured. A statement by the holder to accommodation indorser made on the day following dishonour in the following terms: "The note fell due yesterday. Capello (the maker) is in the country, and the note has not been paid by Capello, what are you (the indorser) going to do?" is a sufficient notice of dishonour. — Da Silva v. Capello and Gomes, (3d December, 1902).

b) No. 17 of 1907. An Ordinance to amend the Bills of Exchange Ordinance 1891 (31st July, 1907).

[This Ordinance is substantially identical with the Imperial Bills of Exchange (Crossed Cheques) Act, 1906, (6 Edw. 7, c. 17).]

Public Holidays.

No. 1 of 1875. An Ordinance to make Provision for Public Holidays, and respecting Obligations to make Payments and do other Acts on such Public Holidays (27th March, 1875).

Short title. 1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Public Holidays Ordinance, 1875.

Certain days to be public holidays. Schedule. 2. After the commencement of this Ordinance, the several days mentioned in the Schedule to this Ordinance, (and which days are hereinafter referred to as public holidays) shall be kept as close holidays in all the public offices and in all banks in this Colony.

Making of payment on public holiday. 3. 1. No person shall be compellable to make any payment or to do any act upon such public holidays which he would not be compellable to do or make on Christmas Day or Good Friday. 2. The obligation to make such payment and do such act shall apply to the day following such public holiday; and the making of such payment and doing of such act on such following day shall be equivalent to payment of the money or performance of the act on the holiday.

Power to appoint special public holiday. 4. It shall be lawful for the Governor in Council from time to time, as he may see fit, to appoint a special day to be observed as a public holiday, and any day so appointed shall be kept as a close holiday throughout this Colony and in all public offices and in all banks in this Colony.

Power to alter day appointed for public holiday. 5. It shall be lawful for the Governor in Council in like manner, from time to time, when it is made to appear to him in any special case, that in any year it is inexpedient that a day by this Ordinance appointed for a public holiday should be a public holiday, to declare that such day shall not in such year be a public holiday, and to appoint such other day as to him may seem fit to be a public holiday instead of such day, and thereupon the day so appointed shall in such year be substituted for the day so appointed by this Ordinance.

Schedule.Public Holidays.

The first of January, if a week-day.

Easter Monday.

The Monday in Whitsun Week.

The first Monday in August.

The twenty-sixth day of December, if a week-day, but if the twenty-sixth day falls on a Sunday, then the twenty-seventh day of December.

Insolvency.

a) No. 29 of 1900. An Ordinance to consolidate and amend the Laws relating to Insolvency (25th July, 1900).

Preliminary.

Short title. 1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Insolvency Ordinance 1900.
Imp. § 1.

Interpretation of terms. 2. In this Ordinance, unless the context otherwise requires: "The Court" means the Supreme Court of British Guiana in its civil jurisdiction; "The Full Court" means the Court composed of two or more Judges; "Judge" includes the Chief Justice and any Judge of the Court; "The Registrar" means the Registrar of British Guiana, and includes any sworn clerk and notary public, and any assistant sworn clerk in the office of the Registrar; "The Registrar's Office" includes any branch office of the Registrar's Office in any county of the Colony; "Marshal" includes any officer charged with the execution of a writ or other process; "The Administrator-General"<sup>1)</sup> means the Administrator-General of British Guiana; "Assignee" means the assignee in insolvency of debtor's estate; "Available act of insolvency" means any act of insolvency available for an insolvency petition at the date of the presentation of the petition on which the receiving order is made; "Debt provable in insolvency" or "provable debt" includes any debt or liability by this Ordinance made provable in insolvency; "Property" includes money, goods, things in action, land, and every description of property, whether moveable or immovable, and whether situate in this Colony or elsewhere; also obligations, easements, and every description of estate, interest, and profit, present or future, vested or contingent, arising out of or incident to property as above defined; "Goods" includes all moveable property; "Settlement" includes any ante-nuptial contract; "Ordinary resolution" means a resolution decided by a majority in value of the creditors present, personally or by proxy, at a meeting of creditors and voting on the resolution; "Resolution" means ordinary resolution; "Special resolution" means a resolution decided by a majority in number and three-fourths in value of the creditors present, personally or by proxy, at a meeting of creditors and voting on the resolution; "Secured creditor" means a person holding a mortgage, charge, or lien on the property of the debtor, or any part thereof, which by the law of the Colony is valid against creditors as a security for a debt due to him from the debtor; "Prescribed" means prescribed by general rules within the meaning of this Ordinance; "General rules" include forms; "Gazetted" means published in the Gazette; "Person" includes a body of persons, corporate or unincorporate; "Schedule" means Schedule to this Ordinance. The Schedules to this Ordinance shall be construed and have effect as part of this Ordinance.

Imp. § 168. Held, a secured creditor. — In re Mendonca, Ex parte Mendonca, (9th January, 1904), reversing Mendonca v. Administrator-General, (5th August, 1903).

Part I. Proceedings from Act of Insolvency to Discharge.Acts of insolvency.

Cases in which debtor commits act of insolvency. 3. 1. A debtor commits an act of insolvency in each of the following cases, that is to say: a) If, in the Colony or elsewhere, he makes any conveyance or assignment of his property for the benefit of his creditors generally; or b) If, in the Colony or elsewhere, he makes any conveyance, gift, delivery, or transfer of his property, or any part thereof, which is fraudulent as against his creditors or any of them; or c) If, in the Colony, or elsewhere, he makes any conveyance or transfer of his property or any part thereof, or creates any charge thereon, which would, under this or any other Ordinance for the time being in force, be void as a fraudulent preference if he were adjudged insolvent; or d) If, with intent to defeat or delay his creditors, he does any of the following things, namely: departs out of the Colony, or, being out of the Colony, remains out of the Colony, or departs from his dwelling house, or otherwise absents himself, or begins to keep house; or e) If execution issued against him has been levied by seizure of any of his property under process in execution, in an action in any Court, or in any civil proceeding in the Court, and he allows such property to remain in execution for ten days without taking steps to have such execution set aside and such property released: Provided that where a plantation on which there are forty acres under cultivation or any immigrants under indenture, or where the owner of immoveable property is proceeded against without naming such proprietor, the seizure and sale in execution of such property shall not be deemed an act of insolvency by the proprietors of such immoveable property; or f) If any person has obtained, or is for the time being entitled to enforce a final judgment against him for any amount, and, execution thereon not having been stayed, has served on him, in the Colony or, by leave of the Court, elsewhere, an insolvency notice under this Ordinance, requiring him to pay the judgment debt in accordance with the terms of the judgment or to secure or compound for it to the satisfaction of the creditor or the Court, and he does not, within seven days after service of the notice, in case the service is effected in the Colony, and, in case the service is effected elsewhere, then within the time limited in that behalf by the order giving leave to effect the service, either comply with the requirements of the notice or satisfy the Court that he has a counter-claim, set-off, or cross-demand, which equals or exceeds the amount of the judgment debt, and which he could not set up in the action in which the judgment was obtained; or g) If he files in the Registrar's Office a declaration of his inability to pay his debts or presents an insolvency petition against himself; or h) If he gives notice to any of his creditors that he has suspended, or that he is about to suspend, payment of his debts, or, intimates, in any one period of seven days, to three or more of his creditors that he is unable to pay his debts in full, or suspends payment of his debts. 2. An insolvency notice under this Ordinance shall be in the prescribed form, and shall state the consequences of non-compliance therewith, and shall be served in the prescribed manner.

Imp. § 4; 53 & 54 Vic. c. 71, § 1. See § 119, infra. Under subsection 1 (e) the period specified is to be reckoned exclusive of the day of seizure. — In re Lough, Ex parte Wong Fung Kiow, (10th December, 1909), affirming s.c. (19th June, 1909). Act of insolvency held sufficient. — In re Buie, Ex parte De Cairos Bros. (6th January, 1909).

Receiving order.

Jurisdiction to make receiving order. 4. Subject to the conditions hereinafter specified, if a debtor commits an act of insolvency, the Court may, on an insolvency petition being presented, either by a creditor or by the debtor, make an order, in this Ordinance called "a receiving order," for the protection of the estate.

Imp. § 5.

Conditions on which creditors may petition for receiving order. 5. 1. A creditor shall not be entitled to present an insolvency petition against a debtor unless: a) The debt owing by the debtor to the petitioning creditor, or, if two or more creditors join in the petition, the aggregate amount of debts owing to the several petitioning creditors, amounts to two hundred and forty dollars; and b) The debt is a liquidated sum, payable either immediately or at some certain future time; and c) The act of insolvency on which the petition is grounded has occurred within three months before the presentation of the petition; and d) The debtor is domiciled in the Colony, or has immoveable property in the Colony, or within a year before the date of the presentation of the petition, has ordinarily resided or had a dwelling house or place of business in the Colony. 2. If the petitioning creditor is a secured creditor, he must, in his petition, either state that he is willing to give up his security for the benefit of the creditors in the event of the debtor being adjudged insolvent or give an estimate of the value of his security. In the latter case, he may be admitted as a petitioning creditor to the extent of the balance of the debt due to him, after deducting the value so estimated in the same manner as if he were an unsecured creditor.

Imp. § 6.

Proceeding and order on creditor's petition. 6. 1. A creditor's petition shall be verified by an affidavit of the creditor or of some person on his behalf having knowledge of the facts, and shall be served in the prescribed manner. 2. At the hearing, the Court shall require proof of the debt of the petitioning creditor, of the service of the petition, and of the act of insolvency, or, if more than one act of insolvency is alleged in the petition, of some one of the alleged acts of insolvency, and, if satisfied with the proof, may make a receiving order in pursuance of the petition. 3. If the Court is not satisfied with the proof of the petitioning creditor's debt, or of the service of the petition, or of the act of insolvency, or is satisfied by the debtor that he is able to pay his debts or that for other sufficient cause no order ought to be made, the Court may dismiss the petition. 4. Where the act of insolvency relied on is non-compliance with an insolvency notice to pay, secure, or compound for a judgment debt, the Court may, if it thinks fit, stay or dismiss the petition on the ground that an appeal is pending from the judgment. 5. Where the debtor appears on the petition, and denies that he is indebted to the petitioner or that he is indebted to such an amount as would justify the petitioner in presenting a petition against him, the Court, on such security, if any, being given as the Court may require for payment to the petitioner of any debt which may be established against the debtor in due course of law and of the costs of establishing the debt, may, instead of dismissing the petition, stay all proceedings on the petition for such time as may be required for trial of the question relating to the debt. 6. Where proceedings are stayed, the Court may, if by reason of the delay caused by the stay of proceedings or for any other cause, it thinks just, make a receiving order on the petition of some other creditor, and shall thereupon dismiss, on such terms as it thinks just, the petition in which proceedings have been stayed as aforesaid. 7. Where it appears to the Court that the petition has been presented without reasonable and probable cause, the Court may order the petitioner to pay to the person against whom the petition is presented such sum by way of damages as will compensate such person for the injury and inconvenience occasioned by the presentment of the petition. 8. A creditor's petition shall not, after presentment, be withdrawn without the leave of the Court.

Imp. § 7.

Proceedings and order on debtor's petition. 7. 1. A debtor's petition shall allege that the debtor is unable to pay his debts, and the presentation thereof shall be deemed an act of insolvency without the previous filing by the debtor of any declaration of inability to pay his debts, and the Court shall thereupon make a receiving order. 2. A debtor's petition shall not, after presentment, be withdrawn without the leave of the Court.

Imp. § 8.

Effect of receiving order. 8. On the making of a receiving order, the official receiver shall be thereby constituted receiver of the property of the debtor, and thereafter, except as directed by this Ordinance, no creditor to whom the debtor is indebted in respect of any debt provable in insolvency shall have any remedy against the property or person of the debtor in respect of the debt, or shall commence any action or other legal proceedings, except with the leave of the Court and on such terms as the Court may impose: Provided that this enactment shall not affect the power of any creditor who is secured on any ship or vessel, or any share therein, to realize or deal with his security in the same way as he would have been entitled to realize or deal with his security if this enactment had not been made.

Imp. § 9.

Discretionary powers as to appointment of receiver and stay of proceedings against debtor. 9. 1. The Court may, if it is shown to be necessary for the protection of the estate, at any time after the presentation of an insolvency petition and before a receiving order is made, appoint the official receiver to be interim receiver of the property of the debtor or of any part thereof, and direct him to take immediate possession thereof or of any part thereof. 2. The Court may, at any time after the presentation of an insolvency petition, stay any action, execution, or other legal process against the property or person of the debtor, and any Court in which proceedings are pending against a debtor may on proof that an insolvency petition has been presented by or against the debtor either stay the proceedings or allow them to continue on such terms as it may think just.

Imp. § 10. A receiver appointed. — Boos v. Carreiro, (24th December, 1895); De Freitas v. Dos Santos, (24th June, 1891), 1 L.R. (N.S.) 215.

Service of order staying proceedings. 10. Where the Court makes an order staying any such action or other proceeding or staying proceedings generally, the order may be served by sending a copy thereof, by prepaid post letter, to the address of the plaintiff or other party prosecuting such action or other proceeding.

Imp. § 11.

Power to the official receiver to appoint special manager of debtor's estate or business. 11. 1. The official receiver may, at any time after a receiving order is made or after he is appointed interim receiver, on the application of any creditor or creditors, if he is satisfied that the nature of the debtor's estate or business or the interests of the creditors generally require the appointment of a special manager of the estate or business other than the official receiver appoint a manager thereof accordingly to act until such time as he may deem fit or an assignee is appointed, and with such powers (including any of the powers of a receiver) as may be entrusted to him by the official receiver. 2. The special manager shall give security and account in such manner as the official receiver may direct. 3. The special manager shall receive such remuneration as the creditors may, by resolution at an ordinary meeting, determine, or, in default of any such resolution, as may be prescribed.

Imp. § 12.

Advertisement of receiving order. 12. Notice of every receiving order, stating the name, address, and description of the debtor, the date of the order, and the date of the petition, shall be gazetted and advertised in one newspaper in the prescribed manner.

Imp. § 13.

Proceedings consequent on order.

First and other meetings of creditors. 13. 1. As soon as may be after the making of a receiving order against a debtor, a general meeting of his creditors (in this Ordinance referred to as the first meeting of creditors) shall be held for the purpose of considering whether a proposal for a composition or scheme of arrangement shall be entertained or whether it is expedient that the debtor shall be adjudged insolvent, and generally as to the mode of dealing with a debtor's property. 2. With respect to the summoning of, and proceedings at, the first and other meetings of creditors, the rules contained in the first Schedule shall be observed.

Imp. § 15.

Debtor's statement of affairs. 14. 1. Where a receiving order is made against a debtor, he shall make out and submit to the official receiver a statement of and in relation to his affairs in the prescribed form, verified by affidavit, and showing the particulars of the debtor's assets, debts, and liabilities, the names and residences, of his creditors, the securities held by them respectively, and the dates when the securities were respectively given, and such further or other information as may be prescribed or as the official receiver may require. 2. The statement shall be so submitted within the following times, namely: a) If the order is made on the petition of the debtor, within three days from the date of the order; and b) If the order is made on the petition of a creditor, within seven days from the date of the order: Provided that the official receiver may, in either case, for special reasons, extend the time for any further period not exceeding ten days: Provided also, that the Court may, for special reasons, further extend the time for such period as may be necessary. 3. If the debtor fails, without reasonable excuse, to comply with the requirements of this section, the Court may on the application of the official receiver or of any creditor, adjudge him insolvent. 4. Any person stating himself in writing to be a creditor of the insolvent may, either personally or by his agent, inspect the statement at all reasonable times, and take any copy thereof or extract therefrom, on paying the prescribed fee. Any person untruthfully so stating himself to be a creditor shall be guilty of a contempt of court and shall be punishable accordingly on the application of the official receiver or assignee.

Imp. § 16.

Public examination of debtor.

Public examination of debtor. 15. 1. Where the Court makes a receiving order, it shall hold a public sitting, on a day to be appointed by the Court, for the examination of the debtor, and the debtor shall attend thereat, and shall be examined as to his conduct, dealings, and property. 2. The examination shall be held as soon as conveniently may be after the expiration of the time for the submission of the debtor's statement of affairs. 3. The Court may adjourn the examination from time to time. 4. Any creditor who has tendered a proof, or his representative authorized in writing, may question the debtor concerning his affairs and the causes of his failure. 5. The official receiver shall take part in the examination of the debtor, and for the purpose thereof, if specially authorized by the Court, may employ a barrister or solicitor or both. 6. If an assignee is appointed before the conclusion of the examination, he may take part therein. 7. The Court may put such questions to the debtor as it may think expedient. 8. The debtor shall be examined upon oath, and it shall be his duty to answer all such questions as the Court may put or allow to be put to him. Such notes of the examination as the Court thinks proper shall be taken down in writing, and shall be read over by or to and signed by the debtor, and may thereafter be used in evidence against him. Such notes shall be open to the inspection of any creditor at all reasonable times, on payment of the prescribed fee. 9. When the Court is of opinion that the affairs of the debtor have been sufficiently investigated, it shall, by order, declare that his examination is concluded, but such order shall not be made until after the day appointed for the first meeting of creditors. 10. Where the debtor is a lunatic or suffers from any such mental or physical affliction or disability as in the opinion of the Court makes him unfit to attend his public examination, the Court may make an order dispensing with such examination or directing that the debtor be examined on such terms, in such manner, and at such place as to the Court seems expedient.

Imp. § 17; 53 & 54 Vic. c. 71, § 2. See In re Da Costa, (12th January, 1891), 1 L.R. (N.S.) 149.

Composition or scheme of arrangement.

Compositions and schemes of arrangement. 16. 1. Where a debtor intends to make a proposal for a composition in satisfaction of his debts or a proposal for a scheme of arrangement of affairs, he shall, within seven days of submitting his statement of affairs, or within such time thereafter as the official receiver may fix, lodge with the official receiver a proposal in writing, signed by him, embodying the terms of the composition or scheme which he is desirous of submitting for the consideration of his creditors, and setting out particulars of any sureties or securities proposed. 2. In such case the official receiver shall hold a meeting of creditors before the public examination of the debtor is concluded, and send to each creditor, before the meeting, a copy of the debtor's proposal with a report thereon, and if at that meeting a majority in number and three-fourths in value of all the creditors who have proved resolve to accept the proposal, the same shall be deemed to be duly accepted by the creditors, and when approved by the Court shall be binding on all the creditors. 3. The debtor may at the meeting amend the terms of his proposal, if the amendment is, in the opinion of the official receiver, calculated to benefit the general body of creditors. 4. Any creditor who has proved his debt may assent to or dissent from the proposal by a letter, in the prescribed form, addressed to the official receiver so as to be received by him not later than the day preceding the meeting, and any such assent or dissent shall have effect as if the creditor had been present and had voted at the meeting. 5. The debtor or the official receiver may, after the proposal is accepted by the creditors, apply to the Court to approve it and notice of the time appointed for hearing the application shall be given to each creditor who has proved. 6. The application shall not be heard until after the conclusion of the public examination of the debtor. Any creditor who has proved may be heard by the Court in opposition to the application notwithstanding that he may at a meeting of creditors have voted for the acceptance of the proposal. 7. The Court shall, before approving the proposal, hear a report of the official receiver as to the terms thereof, and as to the conduct of the debtor, and any objections which may be made by or on behalf of any creditor. 8. If the Court is of opinion that the terms of the proposal are not reasonable, or are not calculated to benefit the general body of creditors, or in any case in which the Court is required where the debtor is adjudged insolvent to refuse his discharge, the Court shall refuse to approve the proposal. 9. If any facts are proved on proof of which the Court would be required either to refuse, suspend, or attach conditions to the debtor's discharge were he adjudged insolvent, the Court shall refuse to approve the proposal unless it provides reasonable security for payment of not less than thirty-five cents in the dollar on all the unsecured debts provable against the debtor's estate. 10. In any other case the Court may either approve or refuse to approve the proposal. 11. If the Court approves the proposal, the approval may be testified by the seal of the Court being attached to the instrument containing the terms of the proposed composition or scheme, or by the terms being embodied in an order of the Court. 12. A composition or scheme accepted and approved in pursuance of this section shall be binding on all the creditors so far as relates to any debts due to them from the debtor and provable in insolvency, but shall not release the debtor from any liability under any judgment against him in an action for seduction, or under an affiliation order, or under a judgment against him as a co-respondent in a matrimonial cause, except to such an extent and under such conditions as the Court expressly orders in respect of such liability. 13. A certificate of the official receiver that a composition or scheme has been duly accepted and approved shall, in the absence of fraud, be conclusive as to its validity. 14. The provisions of a composition or scheme under this section may be enforced by the Court on application by any person interested, and any disobedience of an order of the Court made on the application shall be deemed a contempt of court. 15. If default is made in payment of any instalment due in pursuance of the composition or scheme, or if it appears to the Court, on satisfactory evidence, that the composition or scheme cannot, in consequence of legal difficulties, or for any sufficient cause, proceed without injustice or undue delay to the creditors or to the debtor, or that the approval of the Court was obtained by fraud, the Court may, if it thinks fit, on application by the official receiver or the assignee, or by any creditor, adjudge the debtor insolvent, and annul the composition or scheme, but without prejudice to the validity of any sale, disposition, or payment duly made, or thing duly done, under or in pursuance of the composition or scheme. Where a debtor is adjudged insolvent under this subsection, any debt provable in other respects, which has been contracted before the adjudication, shall be provable in the insolvency. 16. If under or in pursuance of a composition or scheme an assignee is appointed to administer the debtor's property, or manage his business, or to distribute the composition, sections 25 and 68 to 85 (both inclusive) of this Ordinance shall apply as if the assignee were an assignee in insolvency and as if the terms "insolvency," "insolvent," and "order of adjudication," included respectively a composition or scheme or arrangement, a compounding or arranging debtor, and order approving the composition or scheme. 17. Part III of this Ordinance shall so far as the nature of the case and the terms of the composition or scheme admit, apply thereto, the same interpretation being given to the words "assignee," "insolvency," "insolvent," and "order of adjudication," as in the last preceding subsection. 18. No composition or scheme shall be approved by the Court which does not provide for the payment in priority to other debts of all debts directed to be so paid in the distribution of the property of an insolvent. 19. The acceptance by a creditor of a composition or scheme shall not release any person who under this Ordinance would not be released by an order of discharge if the debtor had been adjudged insolvent.

Imp. § 18. Imp. § 3. See In re M. Li Qui Lung, (28th March, 1903); In re Figueria, (22d July, 1890), 1 L. R. (N.S.) 144.

Saving from effects of acceptance of composition of certain debts. 17. Notwithstanding the acceptance and approval of a composition or scheme, such composition or scheme shall not be binding on any creditor so far as regards a debt or liability from which, under the provisions of this Ordinance, the debtor would not be discharged by an order of discharge in insolvency, unless the creditor assents to the composition or scheme.

Imp. § 19.

Adjudication of insolvency.

Power to adjudge debtor insolvent. 18. 1. At the time of making a receiving order, or at any time thereafter, the Court may, on the application of the debtor adjudge him insolvent: such application may be made orally and without notice. 2. Where a receiving order is made against a debtor, the following provisions shall have effect, that is to say: a) If no creditors attend at the time and place appointed for the first meeting of creditors or any adjournment thereof, or if sufficient creditors do not attend thereat to form a quorum; or b) If the creditors, at the first meeting of creditors or any adjournment thereof, by ordinary resolution, resolve that the debtor be adjudged insolvent, or pass no resolution; or c) If a composition or scheme is not accepted and approved in pursuance of this Ordinance within twenty-one days after the conclusion of the examination of the debtor or such further time as the Court may allow; or d) If the official receiver satisfies the Court that the debtor does not intend to propose a composition or scheme, or that the debtor has absconded or is wilfully keeping out of the jurisdiction of the Court in order to avoid examination in respect of his affairs or otherwise to avoid, delay, or embarrass proceedings in insolvency against him, the Court shall, on the application either of a creditor or of the official receiver, forthwith adjudge the debtor insolvent and thereupon the property of the insolvent shall become divisible among his creditors and shall vest in an assignee. 3. Notice of every order adjudging a debtor insolvent stating the name, address, and description of the insolvent and the date of the adjudication, shall be gazetted and advertised in a newspaper in the prescribed manner. 4. The date of the order shall, for the purposes of this Ordinance, be the date of the adjudication.

Imp. § 20. Quære, whether a debtor can be adjudged insolvent on the official receiver's reports that no creditors attended the meeting of creditors. — In re D'Abreu (3d April, 1892) 2 L.R. (N.S.) 68.

Appointment of assignee. 19. 1. Where the debtor is adjudged insolvent, or the creditors have resolved that he be adjudged insolvent, the creditors may by ordinary resolution appoint some fit person whether a creditor or not, to fill the office of assignee of the property of the insolvent or they may resolve to leave his appointment to the committee of inspection hereinafter mentioned. It shall not, however, be obligatory on the creditors to appoint an assignee, and where none is appointed the official receiver shall act as such. 2. The person so appointed shall give security in manner prescribed to the satisfaction of the official receiver, and the official receiver, if satisfied with the security, shall certify that the appointment has been duly made, unless he objects to the appointment on the ground that it has not been made in good faith by a majority in value of the creditors voting, or that the person appointed has been previously removed from the office of assignee of an insolvent's property for misconduct or neglect of duty or is not fit to act as assignee or that his connection with or relation to the insolvent or his estate or any particular creditor makes it difficult for him to act with impartiality in the interests of the creditors generally. 3. Provided that when the official receiver does not approve of any such security or makes any such objection he shall, if so requested by a majority in value of the creditors, notify the non-approval or objection to the Court, and thereupon the Court may decide on its validity. 4. The appointment of an assignee shall take effect as from the date of the certificate. 5. The official receiver shall not, save as by this Ordinance provided, be the assignee of the property of the insolvent. 6. If an assignee is not appointed by the creditors within four weeks from the date of adjudication, or in the event of negotiations for a composition or scheme being pending at the expiration of those four weeks then within seven days from the close of those negotiations by the refusal of the creditors to accept or of the Court to approve the composition or scheme the official receiver shall continue to be the assignee of the property of the insolvent. 7. Provided that the creditors or the committee of inspection (if so authorized by resolution of the creditors) may at any subsequent time if they think fit appoint an assignee and on the appointment being made and certified the person appointed shall become assignee in the place of the official receiver.

Imp. § 21: 53 & 54 Vic. c. 71, § 4.

Appointment and powers of committee of inspection. 20. 1. The creditors qualified to vote may if they so desire at their first or any subsequent meeting by resolution appoint from among the creditors or the holders of general proxies or general powers of attorney from any creditors a committee of inspection for the purpose of superintending the administration of the insolvent's property by the assignee: Provided that a creditor or his attorney who is appointed a member of the committee of inspection shall not be qualified to act until such creditor has proved his debt and the proof has been admitted. The committee of inspection shall consist of not more than five or less than three persons. 2. The committee of inspection shall meet at such times as they shall from time to time appoint, and, failing such appointment, at least once a month; and the assignee, or any member of the committee, may also call a meeting of the committee as and when he thinks necessary. 3. The committee may act by a majority of their members present at a meeting, but shall not act unless a majority of the committee are present at the meeting. 4. Any member of the committee may resign his office by notice in writing signed by him and delivered to the assignee. 5. If a member of the committee becomes insolvent, or compounds or arranges with his creditors, or is absent from five consecutive meetings of the committee, his office shall thereupon become vacant. 6. Any member of the committee may be removed by an ordinary resolution at any meeting of creditors of which seven days' notice has been given, stating the object of the meeting. 7. On a vacancy occurring in the office of a member of the committee, the assignee shall forthwith summon a meeting of creditors for the purpose of filling the vacancy, and the meeting may by resolution, appoint another creditor or other person eligible as above to fill the vacancy. 8. The continuing members of the committee, provided there be not less than two such continuing members, may act notwithstanding any vacancy in their body; and where the number of members of the committee is for the time being less than five, the creditors may increase that number so that it does not exceed five. 9. If there is no committee of inspection, any act or thing, or any direction or permission, by this Ordinance authorized or required to be done or given by the committee, may be done or given by the Court on the application of the assignee. 10. If there is a committee of inspection, the assignee may, by notice in writing, require the committee of inspection to meet, at a time and place to be specified, and express the opinion of the committee on any matter mentioned in such notice which requires the direction or permission or consent of the committee; and if the members of the committee do not meet at the time and place appointed and express the opinion of the committee, the assignee may take such action in the matter as may appear to him to be just, and shall be deemed to have obtained the direction or permission or consent of the committee of inspection to such action. The notice shall be posted to each member of the committee not less than four clear days before the day of meeting.

Imp. § 22; 53 & 54 Vic. c. 71, § 5.

Power to accept composition or scheme after adjudication of insolvency.

21. 1. Where a debtor is adjudged insolvent the creditors may, if they think fit at any time after the adjudication, by a resolution passed by a majority in number and three-fourths in value of all the creditors who have proved, resolve to entertain a proposal of the debtor for a composition in satisfaction of the debts due to them under the insolvency, or for a scheme of arrangement of the insolvent's affairs, and thereupon the same proceedings shall be taken, and the same consequences shall ensue, as in the case of a composition or scheme accepted before adjudication. 2. If the Court approves the composition or scheme, it may make an order annulling the insolvency and vesting the property of the insolvent in him or in such other person as the Court may appoint, on such terms and subject to such conditions, if any, as the Court may declare. 3. If default is made in payment of any instalment due in pursuance of such composition or scheme, or if it appears to the Court that the composition or scheme cannot proceed without injustice or undue delay or that the approval of the Court was obtained by fraud, the Court may, if it thinks fit, on application by any person interested, adjudge the debtor insolvent and annul the composition or scheme, but without prejudice to the validity of any sale, disposition, or payment duly made, or thing duly done, under or in pursuance of the composition or scheme. Where a debtor is adjudged insolvent under this subsection, all debts, provable in other respects, which have been contracted before the date of such adjudication shall be provable in the insolvency.

Imp. § 23; 53 & 54 Vic. c. 71, § 6.

Control over person and property of debtor.

Duties of debtor as to discovery and realization of property. 22. 1. Every debtor against whom a receiving order is made shall, unless prevented by sickness or other sufficient cause, attend the first meeting of his creditors, and shall submit to such examination and give such information as the meeting may require. 2. He shall give such inventory of his property, such list of his creditors and debtors and of the debts due to and from them respectively, submit to such examination in respect of his property or his creditors, attend such other meetings of his creditors, wait at such times on the official receiver, special manager, or assignee, execute such powers of attorney, conveyances, deeds, and instruments, and generally do all such acts and things in relation to his property and the distribution of the proceeds amongst his creditors as may be reasonably required by the official receiver, special manager, or assignee, or may be prescribed by general rules, or may be directed by the Court by any special order or orders made in reference to any particular case or made on the occasion of any special application by the official receiver, special manager, assignee, or any creditor or person interested. 3. He shall, if adjudged insolvent, aid, to the utmost of his power, in the realization of his property and the distribution of the proceeds among his creditors. 4. If a debtor wilfully fails to perform the duties imposed on him by this section, or to deliver up possession of any part of his property which is divisible amongst his creditors under this Ordinance, and which is for the time being in his possession or under his control, to the official receiver, or to the assignee, or to any person authorized by the Court to take possession of it, he shall, in addition to any other punishment to which he may be liable, be guilty of a contempt of court, and may be punished accordingly.

Imp. § 24.
